THE SWEETEST LIVES.

BY MRS. ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed,
Whose deeds, both great and small,
Are close-knit strands of an unbroken thread
Where love ennobles all.
The world may sound no trumpets, ring no bells;
The Book of Life the shining record tells.

Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes
After its own life-working. A child's kiss
Set on thy sighing lips shall make thee glad;
A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;
Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest.

THE INCREASE OF CRIME.

BY CHAPLAIN THOMAS J. SHEPPARD.

Whether the increase of crime in proportion to population in this country is really alarming, I am not competent to say. But to one who reads year after year the terrible record of crime in the daily papers, who notes the constant gorge of our criminal courts, and the increasingly crowded condition of our prisons, there must come an awful fear for the perpetuity of our institutions and the welfare of our country. Our crop of criminals is no longer the old and ignorant. There is, too, an ominous increase in the breaches of trust, the beastly assaults on women, and the lawlessness of mobs. Surely it is time for every lover of God and country to ask whither are we tending, and what are the causes of this increase of crime. May they not be found in the following?

(1) A great and widespread decay of home government. Times have changed sadly as to this, and can we say otherwise than badly? Public speakers often dwell in glowing terms upon the millions of happy homes in this great and prosperous (?) country. But happy homes are well-governed homes; homes where the parents are not in the divorce courts, where parental authority is supreme and respected, and where the fear of God and the duties of life are carefully taught. Can we believe that even the best of our homes are now what they once were in these regards?

(2) The character of the home reading. Years ago our people had few books, but what they had were of a serious and largely of a religious character. I remember with what s I read, when a boy, the n's Progress"—a book nn-to the mass of young people
When a young man I read
s "Paradise Lost," and Pol-
Course of Time," and Young's Thoughts." The mental food young is now as unlike the s could be conceived. While lieve that the moral effect of ht and wholesome fiction of is good, I can not think that r can be formed wholly on he growth of the secular idea tion. We hear much of "the d school-house." I believe in one of the bulwarks of our n liberties and civilization.

t is not the school-house of
ent. Our fathers were igno-much of our boasted and knowledge; but, nevertheless y builded wisely. They did mpt to make good citizens by g the mental faculties only, obably did not steer entirely the sectarian, but they never of developing character morals. In "the little red ouse" the Bible was a com-ding-book, and was also re-as the Word of God. We w been sowing the seed of g secularism in all branches tion for thirty years, or more, are reaping the fruits in a crop of sharp embezzlers, g cashiers, dishonest public lawyers, the claims of whose is clients override all their ns to society; judges who itnesses to be brow-beaten, to defy justice, and litigabe endlessly prolonged, and law-makers who legislate "for revenue only."

What is more evident than that this utterly secular education is a failure? It is high time to inaugurate a change. Let our public schools begin to do the work for which they were intended: to make citizenship pure and the State safe. Hence let there be definite and careful teaching that there is a God, the ruler and judge of men. Let them teach parental authority, financial honesty, the sacredness of trusts, and the majesty of law. Let the general outlines of moral accountability, of social purity, of respect to superiors, and of obligation to society, be diligently and systematically taught in our schools. Let the heart be cultivated as well as the mind stimulated, and we shall see a very different state of society, of morals and of politics in the future. In all this there need be no sectarianism. The Bible in some form will be found the ultimate source and the supreme authority in this work. There need be no sectarian bias about the teaching of the great principles of a Christian morality. It can be so done as to conserve the life of the State and in no respect invade the religious liberty of the pupils. It must be done if we are to have any assurance of the perpetuity of our institutions, which must rest not on mental power, but on moral character. It can be done in the golden mean between sectarianism on the one hand and secularism on the other, and the result will be the prophecy of Lowell's lines:

"Nor heed the skeptic's puny hands,
While near the school the church spire stands.
Nor fear the blinded bigot's rule,
While near the church-spire stands the school."

This article is already so long that but a few words can be said as to two other prolific sources of crime, immigration, and the saloon. With scarcely any check the streams of the worst populations of Europe continue to pour in upon us. With a blindness almost inconceivable Congress does almost nothing to relieve us of this burden, while all the moral and educational forces of the country are on a constant strain to assimilate and Americanize this foreign element. A tax of $200 per capita would greatly decrease the number of immigrants, and those able to pay would be, in the majority of cases, the most desirable acquisitions. Meanwhile, why compel the American born to wait twenty-one years for the franchise, and allow the foreigner to vote, in too many cases, almost as soon as he reaches our shores? And what shall be said of the open saloon, that constant corrupter of youth, breeder of crime, promoter of taxes, and enemy to every moral interest of society? On this line there is need of better methods and greater determination to stay the increase of crime.—Standard.

ONE-DOLLAR WEEKLIES.

The following, taken from the St. Louis Christian Advocate, answers questions which are often asked by patrons of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate:

Why is it that the Republic, Globe-Democrat, and other great daily papers, can send out a weekly paper for $1 a year, while the church paper costs more? This question has been often answered, but it is so constantly repeated that a District Conference of our preachers asks us to answer it again, promising to read the answer from their pulpits to those who ask the question.

The largest part of the cost of any paper is the money which goes to pay those who do the writing and those who set the type. The great secular weeklies are made up out of the type which has been already set for the dailies. Hence, in making the secular weekly, there is no expense for editors, contributors, and type-setters. The simple re-arrangement of the columns, the ink, press-work, postage and paper constitute the entire cost of the secular weekly. The secular weekly also makes much more out of its advertisements, giving more space and less heed to the quality of the same. The quality of the advertisements which pay the largest are such as can not be admitted to the columns of a religious paper.

Think of a farmer every morning going off into the forest, felling trees, splitting them into rails, and hauling them home every evening and building a new pig pen every day. At the end of the week, having seven second-hand or useless pig pens on his hand, he concludes to build one weekly goat pen. Instead of going off to the forest to chop down trees, split them into rails, and haul them home, he simply lifts the rails from the top of his various pig pens and builds one goat pen. In this way, with but little labor, he could easily build his goat pen before breakfast. If he had to go into the forest, cut, split and haul new rails for a goat pen, it would require a long day of exhausting labor. The pig pens represent the secular daily, the goat pen the secular weekly.

Some country weeklies can be made for $1 from the fact that three-fourths of the entire space is filled with patented matter and advertisements. These patent insides or outsides, in some instances, are furnished to the publisher for less than the cost of unprinted, plain white paper. There are also some religious papers made for all Christians in every part of the world, not limited by denominational, doctrinal, or geographical lines, which have gained such an enormous circulation that the cost of production can nearly all be met with the income from advertisements. This is impossible with a paper which is circumscribed by doctrinal, denominational, and geographical limitations. The cost of a denominational paper must be paid out of the individual purse of either the subscriber or the publisher, or a lingering sickness ending in death is inevitable.

If we were making a great religious daily, we could so re-arrange the type already set as to make a religious weekly without having to pay anything to editors, contributors, correspondents, or compositors. We could pay for the ink, press-work, postage and paper and then charge only a dollar a year much easier and with more profit than we can now make the St. Louis Christian Advocate, with its present quality, size and price. With the present editor's and publisher's anxiety to lend a helping hand to all struggling humanity, the reader may rest assured that he would send the Advocate for 10 cents a year if it were possible.

To make the St. Louis Advocate we must first, each week, by hand, take down our paper, and distribute into classified compartments, between two and three hundred thousand pieces of type, each piece of which has to be handled a second time in being put together again. Then the matter for each issue must be written, secured, selected, prepared and edited. This is the larger part of the expense which does not enter into the make-up of the secular weeklies. Besides, the circulation of the Advocate is not only confined to Christian people, but to Methodist Christians. Not only to Methodist Christians, but to Southern Methodist Christians. Not only to Southern Methodist Christians, but principally to Missouri Southern Methodist Christians. So its circulation must inevitably be limited compared to such papers as are made for all kinds of Christians all over the world such as have no local or Conference interests to care for.

If our pastors and Epworth Leaguers will read these facts to their flocks, or in some way get them into the hands of our people, they will be doing a great work for their church, and for righteousness, and for truth. Practical business men and women who have religion and common sense, only need to know the truth and they can be easily persuaded to do right.

OUR INTENSE MODERN LIFE.

Many men have never learned to relieve the mind after active effort, and consequently do not get the refreshing sleep necessary to enable them to work well and rapidly. The mind simply goes on thinking, thinking, thinking, because it was not switched off when the office was closed.

Gladstone, all his life, had this remarkable quality of throwing off politics and business when away from London. He declared that he never lost five minutes' sleep from anxiety, or from thought concerning any debate in Parliament.

Hard-worked men and women need a great deal of sleep. This is the great power-restorer. Grant said he could do nothing without at least nine hours' sleep. Horace Greeley never permitted business or pleasure to keep him from bed after his usual hour for retiring.

A story is related of a merchant prince in New York, who was told by his physician, when very ill, that he must die. He replied, "Can't possibly do it, doctor. I haven't time."

There must be an end to this crowding and hurrying. Outraged Nature will have her revenge. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding fine. The terrible increase of deaths by apoplexy and heart disease ought to be a warning to our business and professional men who try to crowd weeks into days, months into weeks, and years into months. There is no such thing as cheating Nature. She may not present her bill on the day you violate her law, but if you overdraw on her bank, you are sure to become bankrupt. It is only a question of time.

A waiter in a down-town restaurant in New York, who has grown gray in the service, says that many of his customers habitually complain to him of dyspepsia and ill-health, and yet will cram down their lunches, day after day, in five or ten minutes.

Since 1851, according to the statistics of the Board of Health in the city of Boston, deaths from heart disease have increased seven per cent., while deaths from apoplexy have increased even more rapidly.

The American honey does not always pay for the sting. Labor is the eternal condition on which the rich man gains an appetite for his dinner, and the poor man a dinner for his appetite; but the habit of constant, perpetual industry has become almost a disease. Thousands of ambitious Americans throw away years of possible life by constant, perpetual, everlasting grind.

Dr. Richardson says that the natural life of animals is six times the period required to become fully grown. According to this, man should live about one hundred and fifty years.

Worrying and fretting are responsible for most of the nervousness and irritability of our professional and business men.

Overwork, worry, lack of exercise, are the chief causes of sudden death. The business man, the senator, the clergyman work by day and think half the night. Public and social demands, and burdensome and incessant competitors, are pressing them hard. No one dares to desert his post for a little recreation, lest he be elbowed out of place by his competitive neighbor. It seems as if everybody were working under a full head of steam, without any safety-valve.

The intensity of modern life in the United States has changed the type of many diseases. It is comparatively rare for a person to die now of old age or a lingering sickness. Heart trouble and apoplexy have usurped the place of wasting complaints, and people drop without a moment's warning. Hurry and worry are the characteristics of our national life.—Success.

TRY YOUR WINGS!

A friend of a friend of mine, who told me the story, had an eagle. He caught it when it was young, and had brought it up, as far as he could, like a domestic fowl. Having, in God's providence, to go to the other side of the world, he was selling off everything. He wondered what he should do with his eagle, and the happy thought came to him that he would not give it to anybody, but would give it back to itself—he would set it free. And he opened the place in which it had been kept, and brought it back to the back-green. How he was astonished! It walked about, feeling as if this were rather bigger than its ordinary run; but that was all. He was disappointed, and, taking the big bird in his arms, he lifted it and set it up on his garden wall. It turned and looked down at him! The sun had been obscured behind a cloud, but just then the cloud passed away, and the bright, warm beams poured out. The eagle lifted its eyes, pulled itself up. I wonder what it was thinking. Can an eagle recollect the crags and the cliffs, the revelling in the tempests of long ago, the joyous thunderings, and the ing lightnings? Pulling itself lifted o wing and stretched
"by prayer and supplication" lifted the other wing—" taken giving"—and outstretched it gave a scream, and soon was vanishing speck away in the blue heaven. Anxious, disturbed Christian, you are an eagle living in a hen-house. Try your wings.—Rev. John McNeil.

A RULE OF GROWTH.

One of the most difficult problems in life is to adjust the burden of one's immediate work to the conditions of one's largest development. Earnest young men and women are constantly tempted to pour their vitality so copiously in the channels of immediate duty that they frequently deny themselves the conditions of the highest growth. No young man can put all his force into the work of the day, if it be along intellectual lines, without dwarfing his ultimate development. There ought to be behind every specific force a general force, and in the long run the value of the specific force will depend upon the volume of general force; but it is this general force which is suffered to diminish by reason of the pressure of daily work.

A young minister goes into a new parish. If he happens to be a brilliant man, he is immediately assailed by calls to take part in every kind of enterprise, to speak on all occasions, and to become a leader in every movement in the community. In the enthusiasm of his strength and devotion to his profession, he gives himself body and soul to the solicitations of all these enterprises, every one of which involves a certain tax upon his strength, time and thought. His congregation, meanwhile, anticipate from him freshness, force and growth in his pulpit work, and for a time they get it; but no man can grow into full stature, develop strong lines of thought, and mature himself on the highest possible plane who does not reserve a good part of his time for study, investigation and meditation. In the course of ten years the man who gives himself to every demand begins to show a decline of freshness, a decay of force; and very soon the congregation that has been drawing on him relentlessly, and the community that has called him at every turn with imperative voice, begin to comment on his failure to fulfill the promise of his earlier years. Disappointment is followed by dissatisfaction, and the man, often embittered by a sense of ingratitude, finds his influence waning, his force declining, and steps down in order that some other and fresher man may step up into his place.

Every man must protect himself against the demands of his position, of the community in which he lives and of the causes which solicit his support, if he is to secure his highest growth and do his best work. He must heed not only the imperative demand of the duty of to-day, but the equally imperative demand of the duty of the next ten years. The young minister must defend himself against the not unkindly, but often too exhausting demands of his congregation and the community. This is true of the teacher, of the writer, of every man who, by position or talent, addresses the public, or is engaged in any kind of public work. The world does not, and, in the nature of things, can not, stop to think of a man's future. It leaves that to him. If it is denied its requests, it may sometimes grumble, but ten years afterward, instead of discarding a spent force, it is cherishing and following a growing leadership. There is a duty which every man owes to himself which is quite as great as that which he owes to the community. Indeed, it is in the widest sense a duty to the community: for the greatest thing which any man can do for the world is to make the most of the power, the force and character which are given him, and he can do this only by taking thought of the conditions which elicit what is deepest and greatest in his nature.—The Outlook.

PREACHING.

The spirituality of a sermon depends upon the spirituality of the preacher, and that depends not only upon the integrity of his faith in Christ as his Redeemer and Lord, but also upon the breadth and clearness of his intellectual view of the work of the Redeemer in all its phases, and all its bearings on things in heaven and things in earth.

The volume of water discharged from an inexhaustible reservoir is determined by the diameter of the tube through which it flows. A small tube, pouring out all it can, will deliver but a small stream, while a large one, working up to its full capacity, will deliver a great quantity. Each may do its best, but the difference in actual results is very great. It is just so with preachers and preaching. "The mind" is the instrument through which "the heart" must deliver its contents upon the congregation. If, therefore, the mind is of "small bore," it can not deliver a large volume of truth, for in this respect "the mind is the measure of the man." The intellect must be enlarged by every method. The range of vision must be expanded to the widest possible limit. All kinds of knowledge must be sought and carefully treasured. The preacher must strive for the fullness of the stature of a man, and rest satisfied with no attainment short of that which is the highest possible for himself. Gimlets do not bore big holes, nor do skiffs carry cargoes across the sea. No more possible is it for an ignorant man to be a great preacher. He can not get much of the gospel out of him, because he can not take much of it in him.

This is written mainly for the eyes of young preachers who have just entered into the ministry, or are about to do so. If they intend to quit themselves "like men," they must first make themselves men. It is not necessary for everyone of them to go to college, though, as a general rule, this is the best method of developing the intellect. But it is necessary that they, each and all, give themselves diligently to the study of such themes as will most certainly and rapidly expand their minds to the broadest and most correct understanding of the life and work of Christ, of the claims of humanity, and of all the purposes of his blessed gospel.—Alabama Christian Advocate.

SMILES.

BY JOHN F TROWBRIDGE

How many smiles there might be
If people only knew
That they feel better every time
Their faces smile anew!
How many smiles there would be
If people simply thought
Their look is fairer when they smile
Than when they're smiling not!

How many smiles there could be
If folks would always say,
"Good morning, neighbor, let me give
A helping hand to-day!"
How many smiles there will be,
My friend, when you and I
Have learned to practice what we wish
These other folks would try!

BRO. S S. COPE.

At memorial service the following beautiful tributes to the life and character of our beloved brother, S. S. Cope, were read by Mrs. Julia Jayne:

"So many worlds, so much to do,
So little done, such things to be;
How know I what had need of thee,
For thou wert strong as thou wert true."

—A. T.

The vacant chair brings a tear. Sister, we could not cherish the memory of a truer or a nobler character than that of our lamented brother, S. S. Cope. In nobility and true courage he was a giant among men; in gentleness and love a St. John; in outspoken thoughts for Christ a St. Paul. His zeal for the Master was always tempered with wisdom. He was instant in season and out of season in good works; always consistent. Upon the altar of his heart the flame of love was never extinguished. The atmosphere of his home was that of purity and piety. In his lovely wife he had a helpmeet indeed. It was a benediction to be a guest within their home.

Mr. Cope was a co-worker with our now sorrowing sister in her labors for our Home Mission Society. His hospitality was too generous. When his brother died he went to his distant home, took charge of the bereft ones, and made for them a home in this, his adopted State. In his young days he had a model wife in our lamented brother, Dr. Addison Hamilton, late of the Alabama Conference.

The ways of Providence, to our finite minds, are inscrutable. We must bow with submission. But why mourn for one who is now a glorified spirit, enjoying the intelligence of heaven in the light of God's love; possessing a mansion prepared for him by our blessed Savior who has said, 'For where I am, there ye may be also"?

"Oh, thou who driest the mourner's tear,
How dark this world would be
If, when deceived and wounded here,
We could not fly to thee."

Judge A. G Mayers wrote of him:

I had the pleasure of being the guest of Mr. Cope during the terms of my court in the latter years of my official career, and I can safely say that I never knew a man who possessed more the Christian virtues in the family circle, as well as in his daily walk and conversation with the world, than he. The truth is, I have often said what I sincerely felt: that I always left his home a better man than when I entered, because of the sweet influence that he and his excellent wife had; by their Christian walk and conversation, unconsciously shed upon me. I never saw a happier family. It was sanctified by Christian love. Every word and every act seemed to be inspired by a desire to live according to the teachings of the Master, and all who came in contact with the household felt that sweet influence. He was a man of convictions, and had the courage to express them. He was always ready to perform any duty that his church required of him. He was liberal, charitable, and unselfish.

Take him all in all, he was a splendid specimen of a Christian gentleman. It is no exaggeration to say that the world was better by his living in it, and though he lived, unfortunately, but a few years, his influence for good will be felt for ages to come. He enjoyed the love and confidence of the people of his church, and the respect and confidence of all who knew him.

May God help his wife and children in this sad bereavement!

Every hour comes with some little faggot of God's will fastened upon its back.—F. W. Faber.

Monday the remaining committee reports were tendered. A fine paper on "Female Physicians," read by Mrs. Robert McLaurin, was listened to with much interest and pleasure, especially as we would be glad to secure one from our Conference. The Woman's Board will give free the medical education. Anyone who wishes can obtain needful information from Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, corresponding secretary W. B. M., Nashville, Tenn.

We will hold in grateful remembrance President and Mrs. Chambers, the teachers and pupils, for honoring us with their presence at our meeting, aiding other friends in lovely anthems, beautiful solos, entertaining us so nicely at the college, as well as all the kindly ministries of the many friends outside the college.

STATISTICAL REPORT AND PLEDGES.

Conference treasurer reported from March, 1897 to March, 1898, total collections, $1 145 90. Amount received by general treasurer, as reported, $1,149 11. Of this amount, $27 64, thank-offerings; $8 60, mite-boxes; $54 50, scholarships; $2 10, Korea. Report of training-school, from June 1, 1897, to April 1, 1898: $5 25 Number of adult auxiliaries reported by Conference corresponding secretary, 58; number of Young People and Juveniles, 18; total, 76 Number of auxiliaries organized during the year, 21; members, 420; total members, 1 749; life members, 33 Subscribers to W. M. A, 343; Little Worker, 309 Number of leaflets distributed, 5 867; number of Annual Reports of W. F. M. S., M. E. Church, South, 225

Pledges were taken by members of the Conference to pay the $150 pledged by our representative at the Board meeting. Sixty dollars was also promised by the Conference to the school at Guadalajara, Mexico, to be named S C Trueheart, in honor of the corresponding secretary of the W. B. M.

Our missionary, Lelia McNamar, is completing her course of study this year at the Scarritt Bible and Training-school. Pledges were taken to complete the payment of her expenses.

In place of holding the next annual meeting, referred to the Executive Committee.

Mrs. Robert McLaurin, in behalf of the Conference, notified Miss Sallie Lee of her having been made a life member by the Conference.

Mrs. E. D. Jones read her report as Conference agent of W. M. A. and other literature. This office is discontinued.

THE DEAD-LINE IN THE MINISTRY.

Several years ago a grim specter—from certain latitudes down East—made its appearance, bearing on its brassy brow the inscription, "The ministerial dead-line of fifty!" It set some feeble knees to shaking, and it raised a panic among the supply committees of vacant pulpits and pastorless flocks. As this ill-favored creature is still roaming abroad, like its paternal ancestor, "seeking whom it may devour," it may be well to challenge it with one or two pertinent questions.

First of all, why that word "ministerial?" We do not remember to have heard of a legal or medical or political or commercial dead-line. These secular callings seem to have escaped the affliction entirely, or have it so mildly as not to awaken any commiseration. In all these pursuits long experience and wide observation are a positive advantage. Where there is a baffling case of disease people are very apt to send for the old doctor who is familiar with about every disease that flesh is heir to. In an important law suit the client must needs call in some veteran who carries in his head the decisions of a hundred courts. When France invaded Germany, twenty-five years ago, three old heads were put together—Emperor William, Bismarck, and Von Moltke—and the invaders were swept like chaff on a threshing-floor. The most extraordinary statesman now living performed nearly all his marvelous feats in Parliament and on the hustings after he had passed the line of threescore. John Quincy Adams became the terror of all his foes on the floor of Congress after he began to be known as "the old man eloquent." In regard to the legal, medical, political, or mercantile pursuits, no one seems to have ever discovered this ghost of a "dead-line" lurking behind the fiftieth milestone on the journey of life.

The one profession that is invaded by this specter is the Christian ministry. If you inquire of the believers in this new-fangled theory, they will probably tell you that the nervous system of ministers is apt to show some signs of exhaustion at the age of fifty, or thereabouts. According to this miserable materialistic view, the real power of an ambassador of Jesus Christ does not lie in biblical knowledge, or a sanctified heart and holy character, or the indwelling of the Divine Spirit; his power lies chiefly in the nerves and in the cells of the brain. The theory is that these physical (or animal) forces reach their maximum at about fifty, and then their unhappy possessor strikes the "dead-line." He has reached his meridian, and henceforth his sun is on the decline! Churches inoculated with this pestilent idea conclude it is "extra-hazardous" to call any minister to their pulpit if his family record shows that he has been in this world as long as most men have when they are elected to the governor's chair of a commonwealth, or to the presidency of the United States. Jockeys examine the teeth of a horse before making a purchase, and the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ are often subjected to a similar process. A Christian minister is to be estimated, like a horse, by the fire in his nerves and the amount of "go" in his physical temperament. If he can not "thrill" his auditors as he once did, if he is not equal to making new departures "suit the times," if he can not attract auditors by fresh novelties, then, according to these theologico-physiologists, he has passed the dead-line, and, like a basket of unmarketable eggs, he has survived his usefulness. What chance would "Paul the aged" stand with some modern supply committees, or with deputations who go out foraging for candidates?

If the ministry is the one profession to be subjected to this new statute of limitations, why put the mark at the age of fifty? As a simple matter of fact, this idea is perfectly preposterous, as numberless cases will certify. We need not go back to such illustrious examples as Thomas Chalmers leading the exodus of the Free Church of Scotland at sixty-three, and John Wesley still holding the helm of Methodism at eighty-seven. Let us only look around to see the men who are at the front to-day. By common consent there is no clergyman on this continent who, by the combination of varied scholarship, lofty character and brilliant oratory, is quite the peer of Dr. Richard S. Storrs; yet all his finest achievements of pulpit, platform or press have been wrought between the ages of fifty and seventy-five! The prince of British preachers, Dr. Alexander McLaren, has lately passed his seventieth birthday; and my beloved old friend, Dr. Newman Hall, at fourscore, has just completed one of the most fruitful years of his heaven-blessed labors. We need not waste time nor space by calling the roll of the men who are shepherding the largest flocks, or producing the richest discourses, or carrying the greatest weight in all ecclesiastical assemblies. They are chiefly the men whose mental and spiritual fiber has been compacted by at least half a century of experience in the conflicts of life.

The obstacles which a faithful and truly evangelical ministry have to encounter in these days of increasing materialism are becoming more and more formidable. If, in addition to these obstacles, there is to be an arbitrary statute of limitations which demands that as soon as a minister has been enriched and ripened by experience and practice he shall be regarded as ineligible to a call to a vacant pulpit, then no man of common sense or self-respect will enter the ministry. What a cruel injustice it is to the man, and what a dishonor it is to the Divine Master, when a capable and godly-minded minister is practically shelved by this preposterous time-limit! We could give many a pathetic example of most excellent preachers and pastors whose names have been "blackballed" by pastorless churches simply because some gray hairs were visible on their honored heads. These same churches which rejected ripe experience were quite ready to entrust all their momentous spiritual interests to some raw youth just out of a theological seminary! The supply of earnest, devoted, Holy-Spirit-endowed preachers does not now keep pace with the demand in our vast country. And in the name of the Master, let his churches stamp out this abominable idea that any vigorous and consecrated winner of souls shall be "tabooed" on account of his age. There is enough famine of genuine gospel now to make angels weep, and the best and brightest young men ought to have every possible encouragement to enter upon a work that any archangel might covet.

All that we have been saying in this article against an arbitrary time limit is solemn truth, and yet we admit that there is a melancholy "dead line in the ministry" which does not depend upon the nerves or on chronological tables. It is often reached before fifty. It is reached when a minister ceases to study and to think—when the curse of indolence makes his sermons as barren as the east wind. Manifold are the pitiful devices resorted to in order to hide the rags of his poverty. Sometimes old sermons—that were born old—are concealed under new texts; sometimes sensational topics are eagerly sought and presented, with more reliance on the newspapers than on God's Word or the "power from on high." It would be a mercy if such a sluggard would demit the sacred office entirely.

The dead-line is also reached when a minister's faith in the divine inspiration and absolute infallibility of his Bible is shaken; when he is hamstrung with doubts, and his vision is so dazed that he loses sight even of the great headlands of Sinai and Calvary. He may be alive as an essayist—perhaps a brilliant essayist—but as a soul-awakening, soul converting, soul-edifying preacher, he is a Samson shorn of his locks. It is a joyful and a glorious thing to be a live ambassador of Jesus Christ. But it is the most pitiable of all earthly conditions when a minister becomes dry-rotted at the heart, and his inner life is no longer hid with Christ in God. 'Gray hairs are upon him, yet he knoweth it not." He has swung over the dead-line, and nothing but timely repentance and the restoring grace of God and a new baptism of the Holy Spirit can ever deliver him from the body of that death!—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., in Northwestern Advocate.

CARE FOR CONVERTS.

To train young people in the Christian way is even more difficult than to secure their entrance into it. Conversion is often the work of a day or an hour; the training must extend over weeks, months, and even years. In conversion we are concerned to carry the citadel of the will, while the training relates to every part of the life. The importance of correct training is incalculable, as on it will depend the whole future course of the convert. The shape given to the spiritual life during the first few months is likely to continue to the last. The large amount of backsliding is due in part, and possibly a great part, to neglect of nurture in the beginning. With the ministers and churches who have been favored with conversions there is an important duty of instruction. Persons often begin well, but fail to go on for the want of light on the path. A little help at that point would have taken them on to the goal, while the want of it leaves them to stumble and fall by the way. If they begin right they will be very likely to continue, but, on the other hand, if they begin wrong, they will be liable to go wrong all the way. This after care will no doubt require much patience and labor on the part of the pastor and class leaders, but no care or labor will pay better. It is the best insurance against impending dangers and even spiritual shipwreck. The work may be done in part in the classes and public congregations, but in an important sense it must be individual. There must be personal contact with the pastor and the spiritual members of the church.

In these efforts at instruction the aim should be to give the new life the proper direction. The main trend is important. The old habits should give place to better ones. A bad habit may neutralize a genuine work of grace. There should be discrimination in dealing with new converts. Some have come from religious families where much religious training has already been received, and others have come from the ranks of the world where little proper instruction has been given. They have not been accustomed to read the Bible, to attend church, or to observe the Sabbath. In the latter case the whole course of nature must needs be changed. The scheme of salvation should be made plain. If any difficulties are in the way, they should be removed. Be sure that they early unite with the church and are placed under the care of competent leaders. With such care for their instruction and for the conduct of life, they should be led out into lives of activity. To be living and growing Christians they must be active workers in the vineyard of the Lord. Well started in these lines, they will be likely to run on to the end.—Selected.

TWO CLASSES OF PREACHERS.

If either of the two classes referred to should chance to read what follows, let them profit by it. The church suffers from two classes of preachers. The first class are those who have quit studying, who read no books, never study the Bible. No growth of mind or heart, starved intellects, stagnant minds. They preach the sermons which they made in the early years of their ministry, worn threadbare by repetition, moldy with age; good sermons when made, but mere skeletons now, the shadow of what they were. They pray but little; their prayers are as dry and dead as their thoughts. A starved intellect will make a starved heart. If the intellect be not freshened by study, the heart will not be freshened by prayer. The heart will not be fertile when the brain is barren. We do not locate spiritual life or progress in the head, but they hold an intimate connection. The preacher who fails to study and bring out the new things from the gospel treasury, always serving the old, will find his supply limited and stale. This class have been earnest men, and good they are, but give out no life.

The second class are stirring men, active, studious, progressive, but the springs of their activity do not have their rise in God; their inspiration is not kindled with a desire for his glory. They have their fountain and inspiration in self; ambition, reputation quickens their efforts and activities; the desire for success and to shine impels them on. They pray, but their prayers are hindered and do but blast instead of bless; they minister with diligence and outward fidelity, but the heart has betrayed God's cause to the enemy. Self and the diligence of the hands has been kindled by unhallowed flames. The first give out no streams. The second sends out strong, but poisoned streams. The fires have all gone out in the altars of the first. The second has a bright flame, an intense heat, but the flame does not ascend heavenward, and the heat is fierce with the fires of passion and lust.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The Christian Life.

BOTTLE, WELL, RIVER.

It has been suggested that these three words quite aptly designate three classes of Christians. There are those who seem to have but "a bottle of water," such as Abraham gave to Hagar when she wandered in the wilderness and was much distressed. There are those whose eyes have been opened to see the "well of water," and in whom the water has "become," as Christ says, "a well springing up." Happy they who possess this unfailing fountain to supply their needs! But there is yet something more, even that which shall overpass all local bounds, and bear forth gladness far and wide, refreshing, vivifying, fructifying. For Jesus says again that from the believer "shall flow rivers of living water," by which he referred to the Spirit when in his largest, fullest abundance he has taken the most complete possession of the soul. The Spirit-filled life will speedily make itself felt. The important question is, how far our family, our neighborhood, our church, are being refreshed by us. Where are the "rivers of living water" that we should be giving forth?—Zion's Herald.

Discouragements are, generally, little things—things growing out of habit, or temper, or inclination. They beset the apostles; but they despised them, Paul especially. Paul glorified in his trials and afflictions and sufferings. He counted them as nothing. Not because they were all light and easy to bear, but because they were of no moment compared with the end in view. These light afflictions, he said, which are but for a moment, work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. He gives a catalogue of them in the sixth chapter of Second Corinthians, showing how apostles in those tronblous times approved themselves as ministers of God in afflictions, necessities, distresses, stripes, imprisonment, tumults, labors, watchings, fastings; by long-suffering, kindness, honor and dishonor, evil report and good report; chastened they were, but not killed; sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; they had nothing, yet possessed all things. Who has in these days such discouragements as Paul and his co-laborers had in the days of the early church?

What are our discouragements? We get weary in well-doing, we get tired of watching and working, we find continual self-denial hard, our shoulders ache from heavy burdens or burdens borne continually; we lack patience for the little tasks; results do not come quickly enough or seem large enough; we discover weaknesses where we imagined we were strong; God seems at times to desert us; duty, now and then, wears a most forbidding look. It is, finally, a long climb and a hard climb.

So it is. But it is good for us. It makes such beautiful characters; it shows forth so grandly man's magnificent powers; it makes our human nature so wondrously like the divine; it demonstrates man's ability to overcome; it reveals the vastness of the possibilities of future development; it manifests the power of God, brings the world nearer to him, and is some recompense to Christ for the sufferings of his atoning sacrifice.

It is hard to fight, but it is glorious to overcome.—Independent.

WHAT ONE CENT CAN DO.

A son of one of the chiefs of Burdwan was converted by a single tract. He could not read, but he went to Rangoon, a distance of 250 miles; a missionary's wife taught him to read, and in forty-eight hours he could read the tract through. He took a basket full of tracts, with much difficulty, preached the gospel at his own home, and was the means of converting hundreds to God. He was a man of influence; the people flocked to hear him; and in one year 1 500 natives were baptized in Arracan as members of the church. And all this through one little tract! That tract cost one cent. O, whose cent was it? God only knows. Perhaps it was the mite of some little girl—perhaps the well-earned offering of some little boy. Yet, what a blessing it has been!—Selected.

When the soul has been cast in the crucible of worship and the mould of loyalty, then, and not till then, can we give acceptable service. Then can we go on God's errands. Then can we fulfill our divinely given mission in the partnership of Father, Son & Company, in the reclamation of lost, but ransomed world. God in this partership has made man his active distributing partner. If we have great talent, if we can plan largely, if we can master great schemes, we are still either God's active distributing agents, or else are embezzlers in the firm. God hasten the day when, realizing our responsibility, we will come to the proper altitude and have ever in our hearts the cry of the Psalmist, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?"—Rev. G. L. McManiman.

THE AVERAGE MAN.

BY DR. JOHN T. SAWYER.

There's so much of seeming, so little real,
In the average man we meet,
That we sometimes fear the average man
Is nothing at all but a cheat.

The average man, while seeming a friend,
Is his heart a friend is not;
While fondly with tongue he's oiling you o'er,
Against you he's deep in a plot

He presses you close to his beating heart
And swears he will never betray—
Yet, when you have need for a friend that's true,
You find he has shrunken away.

A blessing indeed 'tis to find just one
Real, genuine man amongst men
A man whose true heart is worn on his sleeve,
Who is honest with tongue and pen.

Give me the man who is just what he seems,
Who will neither flatter nor lie: —
If a foe, he fights in an open field;
If a friend, for friends he will die.

I can lash myself to a man like that,
For his words with his heart agree;
He means what he says, and that he will do,
He is just what he seems to be

AUTHORSHIP.

BY REV. ROBERT A. WILLIAMS.

Authors are indebted to the works of others for most of their best thoughts. George Eliot, we are told, read a thousand works before she wrote "Daniel Deronda." Allison, it is said, read two thousand works before he completed his history. Richter declared that three words of Shakespeare created volumes in him. An old librarian says that authors make new books "as apothecaries make new mixtures, by pouring out of one vessel into another."

"Literature," says another, "may be aptly styled a mill, that is always grinding over and over again the same grist." "All literature," says Holmes, "lives by borrowing and lending." Even where the charge of plagiarism could not be brought, the debt to others is visible. Sensible and original an author as Macaulay gave this advice, "Soak your mind with Cicero." Many have acknowledged their indebtedness to the classics; and a larger number have derived their choicest thoughts and the beauties of their style from the Word of God. Said Daniel Webster, "If anything I have ever said or written deserves the feeblest encomiums of my countrymen, I have no hesitation in declaring that for their partiality I am indebted, solely indebted, to the daily and attentive perusal of the Sacred Scriptures—the source of all true poetry and eloquence, as well as of all good and all comfort."

Earnest and protracted labor has been another aid to authorship. Dickens declares, "If I had not known long ago that my place could never be held, unless I were at any moment ready to devote myself to it entirely, I should have dropped out of it very soon." Thackeray says of Macaulay, "He reads twenty books to write a sentence; he travels a hundred miles to make a line of description." It is said of Carlyle, "He crosses over, one rough day, to Dublin, and he jots down in his diary the personal appearance of some unhappy creatures he never saw before or expected to see again; how men laughed, cried, swore, etc." Hugh Miller said, "If I have had any success, whether as author or editor, it has been by constantly writing up to my audience—never writing down to them." Lord Bacon's best work was rewritten twelve times. Pascal's Letters were rewritten several times, one of them thirteen times. Edmund Burke had all his works printed two or three times at a private press before submitting them to a publisher. Bulwer declared that he had rewritten some of his briefer productions as many as eight or nine times before their publication.

The character, too, is a great aid to authorship. "All good men," says Carlyle, "may be called poets in act, or in word; all good poets are so in both." "He who would not be frustrated of his hope to write well in laudable things," says Milton, "ought to be himself a true poem, that is, a composition and pattern of the best and honorablest things. . . . He must live an heroic life to write an heroic poem." It is said of Byron, "In the lack of a keen conscience, he suffered the lack of the first quality necessary to a true poet."

What is true of the painter is true of the author. His work deteriorates if his life deteriorates. What he has in his life he puts upon the canvas.

What is true, too, of the orator is true of the writer. Said a well-known writer on rhetoric, "Demosthenes became an orator through the greatness and solidity of his character, and these qualities are indispensable to you, in order to the attainment of your aim." Said the elder Cato, "The orator is an upright man who understands speaking." Every quality of the heart that is valuable to the orator is equally valuable to the writer.—Christian at Work.

RITUALISM IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

The Established Church of England is just now in a crisis about ritualistic High Church tendencies. The Papists declare that their only hope of the conquest of the British Isles for the Catholic Church lies in the High Church ritualistic party. There is a sufficient basis of facts in candles, incense, such intoning that you can not tell whether Latin or English is being recited, auricular confession, robes, crucifixes, partaking of the sacrament on an empty stomach, etc., to make this unsubstantial fabric of the dream rise high and seem not likely soon to vanish quite away.

Why do Englishmen so take to ritualism, including consideration of the nature of the real Presence in the sacrament, the degree of adoration it demands, prayers for the dead, confession, absolution, and such like vagaries and subtleties? First, because the clergy regard the church as a place for "a living," as it is openly called. Men take to it as to the army or navy. Second, being in it, they unduly exalt "the service" to a place of honor altogether beyond its true value. I have heard profane men read it in the same apparent spirit that I have seen Chinamen stick their paper pictures of gods on the ship side next the storm. They do not obey the injunction to avoid vain repetitions that the heathen do. Third, having given an hour to a wild gallopade through words that only the best initiated can tell what is piped or harped, there is no time for nor expectancy of a sermon. The mind must turn to something. To many there is just fascination enough in the occultism that inheres in sacred jugglery to attract their devotion to ritualism.

They do not notice the practical effect. On High Holborn street stands the City Temple, crowded with thousands Sundays and Thursday noons, with no sign of a ritual. The next building is St. Andrews Church. Its clergy are surpliced with vestments, the altar ablaze with candles, its arches resonant with anthem and chant, and its pews distinguished for emptiness. Ritualism is powerless to attract the people. Christ did not attire himself with its robes, nor perfume the air about him with its incense, nor intone unintelligibly what the people could not understand.—Bishop Warren, in Western Advocate.

The little that I have seen of the world and know of the history of mankind teaches me to look upon their errors in sorrow, not in anger. When I take the history of one poor heart that has sinned and suffered, and represent to myself the struggles and temptations it passed through—the brief pulsations of joy, the tears of regret, the feebleness of purpose, the scorn of the world, that has little charity, the desolation of the soul's sanctuary, and threatening voices within, health gone, happiness gone—I would fain leave the erring soul of my fellow-man with Him from whose hands it came.—Dr. Chalmers.

THE ENSIGN OF THE NATIONS.*

BY MRS. L. CRARY SADLER.

See you yon glorious Ensign?
"The Branch" from Jesse's stem;
Far o'er Judea's mountains,
The Star of Bethlehem?

The wise men saw its splendor,
And they were sore amazed,
They said, "That Star we'll follow,
For it we long have gazed."

"The prophets said the eastern
Heaven should show the sign,
And lo! our eyes behold it,
The Star of David's line"

"Sing all ye Hosts of heaven,
Ye planets, earth and skies,
Ye mountains leap for gladness;
We see that Star arise"

"Lead us, O blessed Beacon,
O'er mountain, desert bare,
Nor stay your beams one moment,
There is no time to spare."

"We leave behind the Orient,
That Star alone we see,
For where it stops we'll find Him;
Yes! there the King will be"

"And we have come to worship,
We know that Ensign true;
On, on, our steps we hasten,
Our journey's end is in view."

"Where is He, O! great Herod,
The young King born to reign?
Afar His star we've followed,
Nor followed it in vain."

"We've brought Him gold and jewels,
And gems from oceans deep,
And at His feet we'll lay them,
Before our eyes can sleep."

'Twas long ago those wise men
Fell down before His feet,
Since then the hosts of heaven
Doth still His praise repeat.

Glory in the Highest,
Glory to the King,
In Bethlehem Our Savior
Was born; to Him we sing.

And lo! the Star is shining,
The angels singing still,
"To God be all the glory,
On earth, peace and good-will."

Oh! Ensign of the Nations,
"Thy Kingdom come," we pray.
Oh! Christians, see its dawning
The great millennial day.

THE LOVE OF TRUTH.

The importance of truth, and of the knowledge of the truth to all men, was unknown in any practical way to heathenism, and may be considered as due essentially to Christianity. Christianity requires not merely truthfulness, but love of truth. The divine Son of man represented his mission to be very principally to bear witness to the truth; and that question which the highest civilization of antiquity did not care to have answered, he has made through his spirit a perpetual aspiration of his disciples. Christianity in fact has added many new cardinal virtues to the old pagan ones, and among them this, neither the last nor the least of all, the desire of moral progress. To seek truth, and as it is found to live by it and to others, to cherish true personal convictions concerning human and divine relationships and to diffuse them, in every way to testify to the truth which we live by—this is a new birth of Christianity.

Christianity, it is true, does not directly denounce some social evils, and it does not directly define some social rights; nor does it furnish new instruments, nor found new institutions for realizing its aims; but, notwithstanding, it ever has been and ever will be indirectly the most powerful adversary of such evils, and advocate of such rights. It is silent concerning slavery and tyranny and war; it does not prescribe free political institutions, nor does it make mention of the cultivation of literature, nor of many modern benevolent associations; but to all social miseries and to all civilizing agencies it upholds the permanent and persuasive opponents and inducements respectively of the grand idea of brotherhood in redemption— its law of love, its principle of progress and its standard of perfection.—Rev. Frederick Myers.

A SUNNY RELIGION.

Ours is a sunny religion, born of divine love; and one of the fruits of the Holy Spirit is joy. A joyless Christian is a libel on his profession. We ought to walk so close to Jesus as to be always in his sunshine, and make so little of earthly ills and vexations and losses as never to let them envelop us in an atmosphere of Arctic midnight. Paul made a dungeon ring with holy melodies. Every follower of Christ should strive to make his daily life a song as well as a gospel sermon.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

The record book of every Christian's life has some pages in it which were written at the bidding of that severe teacher, Disappointment. Tears may have blotted and blurred the page at the time, but as we turn over that page now, and read it in the light of experience, we can write beneath it: "Thank God for these losses; they were my everlasting gain. Thank God for these bereavements; they have saved my soul from being bereaved in heaven." All things work together for good to them that love God; to them who are called according to his purpose.—Cuyler.

"Which Wins?"

In nearly every man's career there comes a time when he stands between the angel of life and the angel of death, both contending for his mortal frame; and the question arises: "Which wins?" Will he be carried away by disease and death or will the angel of life prove the stronger and bring him back to health and happiness? When a man's energy and physical force have gradually weakened down to the lowest ebb, until perhaps consumption has already laid its grim hand upon him, and doctor after doctor and medicine after medicine have been tried in vain—now, perhaps, comes some kind friend who says, "Dr. Pierce can cure you, write to him: His "Golden Medical Discovery" has rescued thousands who were further gone than you."

"He is chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y.; he has been at the head of this great Sanitarium for thirty years; he has probably had more experience in treating severe chronic diseases than any other physician living. Write to him anyway; that will cost you nothing. He will gladly and freely answer your letters with friendly, fatherly advice which will be of value beyond all price!"

Now is the critical instant. Will the patient give up in despair and let the angel of disease drag him away from wife and family and children, or will he grasp the hand of the angel of life in one more supreme effort for restoration? Are you standing between the contending angels? Which wins?

Mrs. Emily Howe, of 7 Park Avenue, Chicago, Ills., writes: "About two years ago my son was afflicted with what seemed to be symptoms of consumption. I purchased three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured him completely."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1000-page illustrated volume by R. V. Pierce, M. D., will be sent free for cost of mailing only,—21 one-cent stamps. Address Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Or send 31 stamps for a heavier cloth-bound copy.

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read [illegible] text, while the Revised Version is read from the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all [illegible]

It is only necessary to examine these columns to see that the greatest [illegible] Holy Scriptures, and this [illegible] our simple arrangement [illegible] This is the greatest [illegible] ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell the Bible at the publisher's retail price—$6.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $4.00, the only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay in advance [illegible] year in advance, viz.: to January, 1900. The Woman's Exchange will send any person who will send us three new cash subscribers [illegible] and will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

We thank thee, God, for all the mysteries
That thou hast hid beyond our reason's range;
That 'midst the onward rushing of our lives
We still may pause to muse on something strange.

We thank thee that we may, of hating sick,
Of loving, hoping, wearied more and more,
Dropping the old old burdens of the light,
Turn to the dark to wonder and adore.
—Graham Horne.

Our minds are like certain vehicles—when they have little to carry they make much noise about it but when heavily loaded they run quietly.—Elihu Burritt.

How near may a person live to me to be my neighbor? Every person is near to you whom you can bless. He is nearest whom you can bless most.—Channing.

All I think, all I hope, all I write, all I live for, is based upon the divinity of Jesus Christ, the central joy of my poor, wayward life.—William E. Gladstone.

Take the self-denial gayly and cheerfully; and let the sunshine of thy gladness fall on dark things and bright alike, like the sunshine of the Almighty.—James Freeman Clarke.

Never to tire, never to grow cold; to be patient, sympathetic, tender; to look for the budding flower and the opening heart; to hope always like God; to love always—this is duty.—Amiel's Journal.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

FIRST DAY.

The eighty-fifth annual session of the Mississippi Conference convened in Hattiesburg, Thursday, Dec. 29, 1898, at 9 A. M.

The Conference was called to order by Bishop Chas. B. Galloway, who read as the opening lesson the second chapter of Second Timothy. The hymn, "And are we yet alive," was then sung with much fervor, after which the Bishop led in an earnest and eloquent prayer.

After the roll-call Bishop Galloway read a letter from Bishop Fitzgerald, expressing deep regret at his inability, on account of feeble health, to be present and preside according to appointment. Bishop Galloway then feelingly referred to his colleague's enforced absence, and spoke of what a delightful privilege he counted it to attend and assist in the work of his own home Conference that has become so dear to him. He mentioned the fact that just thirty years ago, at Vicksburg, he was admitted on trial into this Conference, being taken peculiarly on trial, for having been licensed but a short time before, he had not preached a single sermon. Said he, "If I had those years to go over again, I would once more knock at your door for admission."

Dr. C. G. Andrews, who has served the Conference so long and efficiently, was re-elected secretary, with the following corps of assistants: J. A. B. Jones, G. H. Galloway, J. G. Galloway, W. T. Leggett, H. G. Hawkins and C. F. Emery.

The hours of 9 A. M. and 12:30 P. M. were fixed for meeting and adjournment. The usual standing committees were then nominated and appointed, after which a number of communications were read and referred to appropriate committees. In accordance with the new provision in the Discipline, a committee of three was appointed to inquire into the character and qualifications of applicants for admission on trial.

Quite an interesting incident of the morning session was the presentation to the Conference of a hickory gavel made by Bro. E. R. Jones, of Harriston, Miss., of wood which grew near that spring Hill Meeting-House, in Jefferson county, Miss., near which stood the residence of Rev. Newit Vick, where the first Mississippi Conference was held. The gift was accepted with sincere thanks. In this connection Bishop Galloway stated that during the year he had visited the site of the first Methodist Church in Mississippi, and had examined the record of the gift by Lorenzo Dow and his wife, Peggy, of the lot upon which the church stood. He also mentioned some interesting facts concerning Elizabeth Female Academy, which flourished in by-gone days at Washington, Miss., and which was undoubtedly the oldest chartered female college in the world.

Rev. Mr. Curry, pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Rev. J. E. Carpentor, of the East Texas Conference, and Rev. W. S. LaGrone, of the North Mississippi Conference, were next introduced to the Conference.

The names of the presiding elders were then called, their characters passed, and each made a report. Rev. W. W. Simmons reported, among other things, a revival in parsonage building on the Forest district. Dr. C. G. Andrews, of the Meridian district, mentioned that he had missed a single Quarterly Conference during the year. Rev. C. A. Powell spoke of gratifying improvement in the Sunday-school work on the Seashore district.

The names of a number of brethren were next referred to the Committee on Conference Relations.

The passage of character was again taken up, and J. J. Golden and Gus Shaw Harmon were continued in the class of the first year. H. J. Moore, H. A. Gatlin, L. E. Alford and W. A. Thurman were advanced to the class of the second year. W. A. Terry was continued in the class of the second year. The following were continued in the class of the third year: Robt. Lee Phillips, John H. Foreman, Robt. A. Sibley, Clarence M. Crossley, James C. Ellis, George W. Huff, and H. C. Brown. The following were elected to elder's orders: J. D. Ellis, R. E. Rutledge, W. W. Moore, W. M. Williams, Robt. H. Barr, and D. Scarborough.

A report from East Mississippi Female College was then read by President Beeson, which showed that the college is succeeding most admirably. One hundred and twenty-one boarders are in attendance, which is twenty more than last year. There is not a single cent of indebtedness on the institution. Christian work among the students has already resulted in from 35 to 40 conversions. At the conclusion of this report a resolution, signed by Revs. H. W. Featherstun and A. T. Bell, calling for an investigation by the Board of Education of certain hurtful tendencies in the college and rumors respecting its work, was adopted by the Conference.

Under Question 20 the following were elected local deacons: W. E. M. Brogan, J. M. Carley, Geo. W. Huff, Wm. Patterson Donnell, Jas. E. Williams, Louis F. Alford, Thos. J. O'Neil, Frederick L. Crowson, and Luke E Alford.

Some time was consumed in discussing the status of Rev. J. E. Riddle, who refused to go to the appointment given him by the last Conference, and later on joined the Episcopal Church, but now wishes to be reinstated as a Methodist preacher. Final discussion in the matter was deferred till to-morrow.

SECOND DAY.

The Conference was opened with religious service conducted by Rev. T. W. Brown.

The names of the absentees of yesterday were called, after which the Minutes were read and approved.

Dr. W. H. Pritchett, one of the Missionary Secretaries, and Dr. J. D. Hammond, Secretary of the Board of Education, were introduced to the Conference.

The following were announced as the Committee on Recommendations: R. Selby, G. H. Thompson, and D. P. Bradford.

A resolution was adopted, signed by Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt and C. F. Emery, making it the duty of the several Boards by whom the assessments are apportioned to the districts, to apportion the same on the basis of the salaries received by the pastors in each district during this year.

Under Question 20 the characters of a number of brethren were passed, each making a report of his work. Rev. J. N. Tucker, preacher in charge of the Indian Mission, gave an interesting account of his year's labors among the Choctaws of our State.

Rev. Dr. Murrah then read a gratifying report concerning the work at Millsaps College. Notwithstanding the yellow fever and quarantines, 143 students have been enrolled, 25 of these being the sons of preachers, and 21 are preparing for the ministry. A strong religious sentiment pervades the institution, and the Y. M. C. A. is doing better work than during previous years.

Dr. DuBose, Secretary of the Epworth League, then gave some interesting facts respecting the League work. Since Aug. 4 the circulation of the Epworth Era has increased 7,500. There are now in our church 16,000 League members and 500 chapters.

A report from the trustees of Whitworth College was read by President Chambers, and referred to the proper committee.

The following visitors were present during the morning session, and were introduced to the Conference: Rev. Mr. Hall, pastor of the Hattiesburg Baptist Church; President Fitzhugh, of Belhaven College; Prof. Phillips, principal of the Hattiesburg Graded School, and Rev. Mr. Barr, pastor of the Biloxi Presbyterian Church.

T. J Norsworthy was continued in the class of the fourth year. H. B. Vandenburg, having stood an approved examination, was elected to elder's orders.

The case of Rev. F. B. Ormond, who last year declined to go to his appointment, next came up for consideration. After he had made some explanations and a humble confession of his mistake, his character was unanimously passed.

The report of the Committee on Conference Relations was then read and adopted, by virtue of which J. W. Sandell was continued in the supernumerary relation, and the following were superannuated: A. B. Nicholson, E. A. Flowers, G. Bancroft, J. W. Harmon, J. A. Vance, H. R. Caldwell, J. H. Evans, R. A. Sibley, N. B. Young, W. B. Hines, J. M. Pugh, P. Howard, D. G. W. Ellis, L. P. Meador, T. W. Brown, and R. B. Downer. The last mentioned brother who, by to-day's action of the Conference, was put for the first time on the list of superannuates, was then called to the platform by Bishop Galloway, and invited to say anything he might choose. For half an hour or more Bro. Downer, who, for forty years, has done faithful work as an itinerant preacher, though a cripple, entertained the Conference with an account of his early life, conversion, admission on trial, and experiences as a minister of the gospel. As he spoke of the appalling difficulties he had encountered, the battles fought with self, and the victories won for the Master, the whole Conference was moved to tears. Among the many noble things he said was: "In my own estimation, I was a supernumerate when I was admitted on trial." When he sat down a most touching scene followed. While some of the old-time hymns were being sung, the brethren all pressed forward to shake his hand and rejoice with him in his devotion to God. Shouts of praise resounded, and tears of joy and sorrow were intermingled. It is such scenes and incidents as this that make Conference ties so dear to the brethren.

The morning session closed with a strong and striking address by Dr. J. D. Hammond, Secretary of the Board of Education, who threw much light on the project proposed by the last General Conference to raise during 1899 a million and a half dollars as a Twentieth Century Educational Fund. His speech outlined the methods to be pursued in raising this money, and aroused no little enthusiasm. Just before this address the passage of character, with one or two exceptions, was completed, and reports were heard from all the brethren whose names had not previously been called.

THIRD DAY

Conference met at the usual hour. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. M. Pugh. After the reading and approval of the Minutes, the question, "Who are admitted on trial?" was called, and the following were admitted: J. W. Campbell and R. L. Webb, from the Jackson district; W. L. Blackwell, from the Forest district; Louis F. Alford, Thos. J. O'Neil, and Frederick L. Crowson, from the Meridian district.

The committee appointed to investigate the charges against Rev. F. M. Keen reported a trial necessary, and Rev. W. H. Huntley was appointed to prosecute the case.

A beautiful and impressive incident of to-day's session was the gift by the Conference of a handsome typewriter to Dr. C. G. Andrews, who, for the past thirty-three years, has served the Conference as chief secretary, the speech of presentation being made by Bishop Galloway in his characteristically appropriate and felicitous way. Dr. Andrews was deeply touched by this token of appreciation, and in a tender and fitting response remarked that he esteemed the love and sympathy of his brethren above anything else on earth.

The following having been two years on trial, and stood approved examinations, were admitted into full connection: Geo. P. McKeown, J. A. Moore, and George M. Hull.

Bishop Galloway's address to the class admitted on this occasion was full of the noblest counsel and striking, stimulating truths, and produced a profound impression. A more timely, eloquent, or masterly address on such an occasion we have never heard. The Bishop urged upon the young brethren the avoidance of polemical discussion concerning the higher spiritual experiences. "The spirit of perfect love," said he, "means a spirit of tolerance with everything except sin. You may discuss form of words until you lose the experience you thought you had." After asking the disciplinary question, "Do you expect to be made perfect in love in this life?" he said, "You will never be made perfect in any other respect." The Bishop also put strong emphasis upon the evangelistic feature of ministerial work, and the necessity of preserving the integrity of our connectionallem.

Final action was then taken in the case of Rev. J. E. Riddle, which was up for consideration on yesterday, he being located at his own request. Rev. E. E. Langford was also located at his own request.

The Board of Education then reported that, after duly considering the resolutions passed yesterday calling for an investigation of the rumors respecting objectionable features in the management of the East Mississippi Female College, they deemed no further action necessary. The report was promptly adopted.

A resolution introduced by Dr. C. G. Andrews, respecting the war claim and the Agents of the Publishing House, was, on motion, referred to the Committee on Publishing Interests, as was also a resolution proposing the establishment, two years hence, of a Mississippi paper, to cost one dollar per annum. The editor and publisher of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE at this point took occasion to address the Conference in behalf of its official organ, pointing out the inexpediency of the proposition, and offering to reduce the price of the ADVOCATE to one dollar as soon as 12,000 subscribers are secured.

The report of the Board of Directors of our Orphans' Home at Water Valley mentioned, among other interesting items, the following: Thirty-five children in all have been cared for, thirty-four of whom are still in the Home. Seven of the children have recently been converted and joined the church. Four thousand two hundred dollars has this year been expended for the support of the Institution, $1,900 of which was contributed by the Mississippi Conference. The first Sunday in April was designated as Orphans' Day.

Rev. J. W. Chambers, chairman of the Joint Board of Finance, having announced a deficit of $170 on the amount needed to pay the Conference claimants in full, was given opportunity to take a collection to cover the same, and the sum of $88 was quickly raised.

Rev. M. L. Burton, manager of the Orphans' Home, next made an earnest and telling address in behalf of this noble benevolence of the church.

The report of the Joint Board of Finance, which was then read, stated that the total collections for Conference claimants this year is $500 short of what was raised last year; recommended the first Sunday in March as Veterans' Day, and fixed the total assessment for Conference claimants at $6,000, the same as last year.

Before adjournment the Bishop announced the names of the committee appointed to try Rev. F. M. Keen; then came sundry announcements and the benediction.

MONDAY MORNING'S SESSION.

Conference was opened with religious service by Rev. J. D. Crymes; Bishop Galloway presiding. After the reading and approval of the Minutes of Saturday's session, and of the memorial session on Sunday, a report was heard from the Board of Church Extension, which mentioned a shortage in the collections for this cause as compared with last year of $292. The work of the Woman's Home Mission Society was heartily commended, and it was shown to be making encouraging progress. One thousand seven hundred dollars has been raised by this society this year, and four parsonages have been substantially aided. February 26 was designated as Home Mission and Parsonage Day.

A resolution was then passed instructing the pastors to pro rate their collections, except when taken for a specific object, so as not to discriminate against any one of the Conference assessments.

The committee appointed to try Rev. F. M. Keen, ex-chaplain in the U. S. Army, next reported that they had acquitted him of the charges of immorality, but had found him guilty of imprudence, and that, in view of the frank confession made by him and pledge to conduct himself more discreetly in the future, his character be passed. This was accordingly done.

The report of the Board of Education, which was next had, spoke encouragingly of the work and prospects of our several Conference colleges, and recommended the observance of first Sunday in October as Education Day. The following educational statistics were then given: Number of schools, 5; value of educational property, $109,000; endowment funds, $107,000; number of teachers, 52; number of pupils, 752.

President J. W. Chambers next took the platform, and delivered a strong and earnest address in behalf of Whitworth College, which, in spite of the hard times, is having a prosperous session.

Appropriate resolutions of sympathy with our beloved senior Bishop, John C. Keener, in the loss of his son, Dr. J. O. Keener, of the Alabama Conference, who has just passed over the river, were introduced by Dr. C. G. Andrews and unanimously adopted, the secretary being instructed to communicate the same at once to our bereaved brother and his family.

The greater part of the morning session was taken up with the warm discussion of several items in the report of the Committee on Publishing Interests. The first matter that evoked discussion was a proposition to establish a Mississippi Methodist paper at Jackson two years hence, or as soon as the contract with the present publisher expires. The amendment was finally voted down by a large majority, and an amendment to the original clause was passed warmly endorsing the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, and pledging hearty co-operation therewith.

The last item of the report related to the War claim of our Publishing House, and precipitated a lengthy and heated debate, which resulted in the passage by an overwhelming majority of the following resolutions, for which two substitutes were offered, but were finally rejected:

Resolved (First), That if the agents of the church made any statements which misled senators into the passage of the bill through the United States Senate, though they declare that they had no such purpose, and though such statements did not affect the merits of the case, we deplore the fact.

Resolved (Second), That the public declaration and assurance of our Board of Bishops that if the Senate, by affirmative action, declares the passage of the bill was due to such misleading statements, that they would take the proper steps to have the entire amount returned to the government, plants the church on high ground, and is fully responsive to the utmost demands of reason and the conscience of the church.

Resolved (Third), That we approve this action of the Bishops, and we believe the settlement of the whole matter had best be left to them, and the unrestrained action of the United States Senate, which has it under consideration.

Conference then adjourned to meet at 3:30 P. M.

MONDAY AFTERNOON.

The session Monday afternoon was taken up mainly with the hearing and adoption of reports of the various committees not previously heard from or having supplementary reports, namely: the Sunday-school Board, Epworth League Board, Committee on Bible Cause, Board of Missions, and others. The report on Sabbath Observance, presented by Rev. H. G. Hawkins, was a strong and timely document, and contained a resolution memorializing the Legislature to give relief as far as practicable to railroad employees from Sunday labor, and same was adopted after some alterations had been made.

The report of the Committee on Temperance, which was adopted without change, emphatically reaffirmed our position on the temperance question, urged persistent effort toward State prohibition, and condemned the use of tobacco and cigarettes.

The report of the Committee on the State of the Church, presented by H. W. Van Hook, mentioned that the church has had many victories this year as well as many trials, that the grace of liberality has abounded, and that our schools are well patronized. Bishop Galloway here took occasion to say a few words, and expressed it as his deep conviction that the great need of the church is a deepening of the spiritual life. "If we, as Methodists, are not a spiritual people," said he, "we have no mission to the world."

Among the most noteworthy resolutions passed by the Conference was the one offered by Rev. H. M. Ellis, pledging us to more active effort for the evangelization of the Jews in our State. The resolution was warmly advocated by Dr. H. M. DuBose.

Resolutions were passed tendering hearty thanks to the people of Hattiesburg for their hospitality, to the New Orleans dailies, and the several railroads of the State for their kindness and courtesies.

Vicksburg was selected as the place for holding the next Conference.

A collection amounting to $33.45 was then taken for Bro. Jim Johnson, an Indian missionary.

After the following statistics had been given, Conference adjourned till 7:30 P. M., at which time the appointments were read by Bishop Galloway: Number of local preachers, 129; members, 38,773—an increase of 2,330 over last year. Infants baptized, 830; adults baptized, 506. Number of KRAKAUER. WEBER. PIANOS. JUNIUS HART, MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. EMERSON. HARDMAN.

Epworth Leagnes, 57; number of Epworth Leagne members, 1,790; nnmber of Snnday-schools, 346; nnmber of Sunday-school teachers, 1,971; number of Sunday-school scholars, 16,185; amonnt raised for foreign missions, $5,326; amonnt raised for domestic missions, $3,401.86; amonnt raised for chnrch extension, $1,483.76; amonnt raised for presidlng elders, $2,144.06; amonnt raised for pastors, $55,864 67. Nnmber of societies, 420; honses of worship, 388—valne of same, $451 556; nnmber of pastoral charges, 123; nnmber of parsonages, 104—valne of parsonages, $94,250. (We omit several items.)

CONFERENCE NOTES.

Greatly to the regret of all, Rev. J. P. Drake was taken sick dnring Conference and was forced to retnrn home on Satnrday.

No other people have ever manifested to onr Conference more generons hospitality or greater appreciation than those of Hattiesbnrg.

A dozen or more preachers' wives were in attendance, among them being the brides of Revs. H. A. Gatlin, J. A. Moore, and J. T. Abney.

The financial reports showed a considerable falling off as compared with last year. The shortage, however, was not as great as was expected.

The Woman's Home Mission Society was represented by the bright and consecrated Miss Pauline Stafford, who secnred qnite a nnmber of subscribers to the organ of the society, "Onr Homes."

It is almost "like carrying coal to Newcastle" to say that Bishop Galloway received a royal welcome to his old Conference. Nowhere is the Bishop more popnlar—more nniversally beloved—than in his native State.

Bro. I. L. Peebles was untiring in his efforts to look after the interests of the Conference and the comfort of the brethron, and proved himself in every way a most worthy host. Presiding Elder Powell also rendered efficient service in this direction.

Tho Conference was largely attended, not only by the people of Hattiesbnrg, bnt also attracted many visitors from the surrounding country and the towns adjacent, this being the first time that an Annnal Conference has been held in this section of the State.

The Conferenoe sessions were held in the Hattiesbnrg Public School building, an elegant and oommodions brick structnre fitted np with all the modern improvements. A more snitable place for the meeting of a deliberative assembly conld hardly have been fonnd.

Dnring onr stay in Hattiesbnrg we were hospitably entertained by Bro. and Sister McInnis, having as onr oo-gnest onr genial friend, Rev. H. C. Brown. We also enjoyed the hospitalities of Sister Hawkins, Bro. J. P. Carter, and Bro. Bionnt and Presiding Elder Powell.

On Snnday the brethren named below preached in the varions chnrches: Revs. A. F. Watkins and Dr. DuBose in the Presbyterian Chnroh; Dr. Pritchett in the Baptist Chnrch; Revs. G. H. Thompson and C. F. Emery in the Colored Methodist Chnrch; Rev. B. S. Rayner at Ellisville, and Rev. H. P. Lewis at Rawls' Spring.

We have great reason for thankfnlness over the fact that onr increase in membership dnring '98 was 2 330

We were not fortnnate enough to hear more than one of the sermons preached before Snnday, bnt, jndging by reports, they were all of a high ordor. Following are the names of the brethren who preached: Revs. H. W. Featherstnn, R. Bradley, W. B. Lewis, and T. L. Mellon.

Among the leading laymen in attendance we noted: D. S. Harmon, T. L. Monnt, S. J. Johnson, Jndge A. T. Bell, L. P. Brown, T. C. Harmon, Capt. S. B. Watts, ex-Sheriff Harper, W. M. Thornton, Col. A. C. McNair, Maj. R. W. Millsaps, Lieut.-Gov. Jones, H. B. McGehee, and T. M. Evans.

Dr. H M. DnBose's address, Friday night, on the Epworth Leagne, was masterly, magnetic and magnificent, and completely charmed all who heard it. By the witchery of his word painting, the brilliance of his rhetoric, the brightness of his hnmor, and the elegance of his thought, he held the vast audience spell-bonnd for nearly two honrs.

On Sunday night, in the school bnilding, Dr. C G. Andrews preached a strong and splendid sermon on ministerial stewardship, after which the following were ordained by Bishop Galloway to the office of traveling elders: Daniel Soarborongh, J. D. Ellis, R. E. Rntledge, Waldo W. Moore, Wm. M. Williams, Robt. H. Barr, and H. B. Vandenbnrg.

At the memorial service, Snnday afternoon, Rev. W. B. Lewis read a memoir of Rev. M. J. Harris, and Rev. P. D. Hardin a memoir of Rev. G. W. Ferrer, after which a nnmber of brethren rose and paid fitting tribntes to these translated ministers. Memoirs were also read in honor of Bros. S. S. Cope, of Panlding, Miss., and W. G. Paxton, two consecrated laymen who died dnring the year.

Methodism in Hattiesbnrg is aggressive, and is moving forward with rapid strides. Dnring Bro. Peebles' pastorate of two years 245 members have been added to the chnrch, and the pastor's salary has been raised from $700 to $1,000. One hnndred and nine members have been received the present year, forty-six of these being on profession of faith. All the oollections were reported as raised in fnll. The Snnday-school has an enrollment of 230.

Bishop Galloway's sermon, Snnday morning, on the text: "Nevertheless the fonndation of God standeth snre," was the grandest disconrse we have ever heard him deliver, and had an electrical effect npon the great oongregation present. Many were the glad amens and the mingled tears of joy and sympathy that it evoked. After the sermon the following were ordained local deacons: James M. Carley, Wm. P. Donnell, Lewis F. Alford, Frederick L Crowson, and L. E. Alford. At another time dnring the Conference Thos. J. O'Neil and Geo. W. Hnddleston wore ordained to the same office.

On Saturday night a highly enjoyable and profitable Missionary Mass Meeting was held. An interesting report was first read by Rev. T. L. Mellen in behalf of the Mission Board, which was followed by the treasurer's report. Miss Sallie Smylie, representing the W. F. M. Society, next read a most excellent paper, telling abont the work of the Woman's Board. The address of the evening was then delivered by Dr. J. H. Pritchett, one of our Missionary Secretaries, who presented the gronnd and claims of missions in one of the most profonnd, logical, and stirring speeches we have evor listened to. His address is snre to bear frnit.

A Ragged Coat and An Empty Pocket

Changes the Aspect of the World.

Walter Wycoff, a student of social problems, abandoned his station in life and assumed the garb of daily toil to bring his observations among hunted workers in order to feel the change. A MALARIA POISONED LIVER will also cause as great a change in physical life. Sunshine will leave the face. The eye loses its sparkle, while the skin assumes a dull copper tint. These are least of the evils and merely betoken the external cry that Nature gives when laboring with Malaria poison. Headache, Nausea, dullness of thought, pain in the back and side, a coated tongue, a horrible taste, are among the danger signals which if unheeded ushered CONGESTION, CONVULSIONS, SUPPRESSION OF SECRETIONS AND TERMINATION OF LIFE.

Far easier than the solution of the social problem is the remedy for Malaria—DOCKS' CHILL DODGE absolutely exterminates it. A Few Doses, and health spreads her wings over the grateful system, and the sun shines once more, while life is worth the living.

POLITENESS IN CHILDREN.

A mother writing in Harper's Bazaar prefaces her "talk" under the above heading by telling of reading, not long ago, of a discouraged and despairing mother who said to her children, "You ain't got no manners, and I declare I can't beat none into you."

Now, the course pursued by this mother was not more unwise, and but little more vulgar, than that pursued by some parents in the higher walks of life in their attempts to teach their children to be polite. As politeness is the expression of kindness and goodwill, it can not be whipped nor scolded into children. It can not be put on or off at will, like a garment. It must be largely the result of example in the case of children. The imitative faculty is strong in a child, and, if father and mother are habitually polite to each other and to everyone else, the child will imitate this beautiful trait and be polite also.

The writer recalls without pleasure a visit in a home in which the mother very properly classed good manners among the cardinal virtues of life, and she was determined that her children should be "little ladies and gentlemen." Her methods of achieving this result were astonishing, in view of her intelligence and of her position in life. No sooner were we seated at the dinner table than she began to instruct the children in this wise:

"Edith, sit up straight. It is vulgar to lounge at the table, above all places. Harry, take your elbows from the table. How often have I told you that it was rude to put your elbows on the table? Is it possible, Harold, that you are eating mashed potatoes with a spoon? I have told you over and over again just what was the proper use of the spoon at the table."

In the parlor it was: "Edith, sit erect! Harry, don't pass in front of Mr. H—— without an apology! Harold, you forgot to say 'Thank you.' Mamma wants her little boys and girls to be polite."

Now, we are all more or less familiar with this painful method of instructing children in the art of politeness. It is possible that it was the misfortune of some readers of this to have received this sort of instruction in the days of their own childhood. If so, they can testify to the sense of humiliation and anger that filled their childish breasts when the attention of strangers was directed to them. They felt shy, awkward, and painfully self-conscious in the presence of visitors, and the arrival of guests was looked forward to with fear and dread, because it meant public exposure of the child's defects.

This method would imply that good breeding was confined altogether to the external things of life, and that if children ate properly and gave proper replies when spoken to, and bowed at the right time and in the right way, they had achieved the highest forms of politeness.

Henry Ward Beecher said that "politeness is a religious duty, and should be a part of religious training." The law of politeness applies to men and women quite as much as to children; and if courtesy and kindness and sweetness are the natural expression and attitude of the parents, these graces will naturally manifest themselves in the child.—Union Signal.

FATHERHOOD.

We must be something to our children. And I know no better argument for universal liberal education than the need for universal educated parenthood. A man can be a merchant without a liberal education. A man may be a doctor, even, with only technical education. A man may be wealthy without being wise, but a man can not be worth his salt as a parent without the ideals and the tastes and the power of expression that free him from the humdrum and the grossness of life, and enable him, in some degree, to point and to lead his children along the path of the same freedom.

Fundamentally, however, the parental relation is a moral and spiritual relation. The chief importance of the kind of intellectual nature I have described lies in its utility for moral and spiritual ends—for the growth of character. These two things must go together.

The child must be good, but must also be something; and the surest way to make him good is to make him good for something. For example, the parent who is interesting and companionable, intellectually, has a better right to correct and punish his child than one who has no time, or takes no time, to live with his child. Punishment must be rational and positive. One of its first requisites is that it be a subtraction from an already existing fund, not a process that reduces the child to less than zero. He blames most effectively who has previously found most occasions for praise. His punishments can be simplest and lightest whose helpful service has been most marked. The essence of moral, as distinguished from brutal, punishment lies in this: that it touches not so much the body as the spirit; that it works upon ideals, chiefly depriving for the time being, of valued privileges or possessions of a moral sort.

And, secondly, I would not have it thought that, in laying stress on physical and moral matters, and saying nothing of religious interests and duties, I place the latter in a subordinate place. Lack of time has made it necessary to confine attention to those things, which, while they are important, are so chiefly because they form the basis and the only basis of religious nurture. It is a privilege too precious to forego to lead the children to love the stories of the Bible, lead them to see God in nature and in human life; to pray with the children, and be rewarded by having the children pray for you when you are away from home, or in your presence pray for needed graces for you all; and it is above all the duty of the earthly father, as clear as it is humiliating, to give the child the only basis he can have for a knowledge of his heavenly Father.—Harvey.

UNCONSCIOUS REVELATIONS.

The other day, as I sat by my window, I was the observer of a little incident which set in motion the train of thought reaching from my quiet home to you, wherever you are. I live on a street which has a smooth asphalt pavement greatly in favor with wheelmen and women, and there are few hours between morning and bedtime when young people are not flying up and down its lengths on their magical machines.

A very pretty girl came sweeping along, managing her bicycle with the graceful ease of a confident and skillful rider. Her face was glowing with health, her dress was most becoming, and her whole air was that of one accustomed to the courtesies of polite society, and used, on her own part, to much gentleness and consideration. Yet, when another girl, evidently a novice, swerved awkwardly and narrowly escaped colliding with her, the pretty young woman shocked and amazed the elderly lady in the shadow of the curtains by exclaiming, angrily, "Great Scott! I wish you would look where you are going!"

There was a bit of wholly unconscious revelation of character. I saw that my beautiful maiden was not like the King's daughter, "all glorious within." She had caught, perhaps from a schoolboy brother, the trick of slang; she was impatient, she was hasty of speech and temper, and she failed to make allowance for the inexperience of another. I was saddened, and I wished with my whole heart that the young girl could realize how unfortunate for herself was the frame of mind and the habit of petulance which had made possible her impetuous remonstrance. Life may discipline her by greater trials than the clumsy blunder of a fellow-traveler on the road, and by and by she may learn to repress the vehement word of irritation. But what I long for, when I think of her, and of thousands like her, is that they may not feel the impulse to needless vexation with the errors or even with the carelessness of others. It is a splendid thing so to live that the face, manner, voice, and what the Bible aptly terms "walk and conversation," are the expressions of inward poise, serenity and sweetness.—Margaret E. Sangster, in New York Evangelist.

GOOD THINGS TO LEARN.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.

Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick-room.

Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop croaking. If you can not see any good in this world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache, or rheumatism.

Learn to attend strictly to your own business. Very important point.

Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns in their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.—Selected.

A German boy was reading a blood-and-thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now, this will never do. I get too much excited over it. I can't study well after it. So here goes!" and he flung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.—Christian Leader.

Whoever would govern a child must first govern himself. A word spoken hastily, a reproof given in anger, may be the beginning of alienation, or a lesson in passion, of which the unhappy fruits will appear long after.

DID YOU EVER THINK.

That though a loving thought may not seem to be appreciated, it has yet made you better and braver because of it?

That the little acts of kindness and thoughtfulness day by day are really greater than one immense act of goodness once a year?

That to be always polite to the people at home is not only ladylike, but more refined than having "company manners?"

That to judge anybody by his personal appearance stamps you as not only ignorant, but ill-bred?

A wise man who left the company of an acquaintance rather than avenge an insult said: "If you were climbing a hill and a great stone was rolling down toward you, would you not consider it wise to step aside, and allow it to rush past? So it is better to avoid an angry man until he has had time for reflection."

Hygiene.

FATS AS FOOD.

Fats, including all palatable oils, are valuable as foods, and under favorable conditions may be digested and absorbed in considerable quantities by a healthy adult.

A study of physiology shows that nature has bestowed great attention upon the means for the digestion, absorption and assimilation of fatty substances by the human body. This fact may be taken as an indication that fat is naturally a beneficial food. Yet it is a popular supposition that fat is unwholesome; and in many cases the eating of fat does cause discomfort and stomach disorder.

To live naturally, everyone should spend a part of the day in physical exercise, preferably in the open air. Exercise is requisite for the digestion of fat. Lack of exercise is one reason why, in many cases, fats "disagree" with the eater.

The digestibility of different fats varies. Butter and cod-liver oil are in the front rank as regards ease of digestion.

It is not easy to overestimate the value of cod-liver oil as a tonic for a child born with an inclination to consumption, as indicated by coughs, lameness, or curvature of the spine. The value of good butter in the same connection is not widely enough recognized.

The writer was recently asked by the anxious mother of a young girl of consumptive tendencies whether her fondness for butter was not unnatural and harmful. To such a person the taste for fatty foods is a natural craving for a perfectly proper and wholesome food. The craving should not be discouraged at all; but plentiful indulgence in out-door air and exercise should be insisted upon as a necessary condition of digesting the fats; otherwise symptoms of stomach disorder will appear; blotches and pimples will often occur upon the face, and general ill health will result.

Fatty, heat-producing foods are especially called for in Winter. Chemistry demonstrates it, and it is proved also by the wide use of fat in cold regions, both by animals and by men.

A dressing of olive oil greatly increases the food value of the common potato, and at the same time adds much to its palatability.—Youth's Companion.

OBITUARIES

DUKE—HAMILTON HAYES was born in Burke county, Ga., Jan. 8, 1819, and died in Conshatta, La., Oct. 28, 1898. He was married to Mrs Sarah Ann Munson, Oct 31, 1839, in Macon, Ga., by whom he had nine children—seven daughters and two sons. After many years of happy married life, death claimed his excellent wife. He afterwards married Mrs. Eliza Cable, June 17, 1869, of DeSoto parish, La., a most estimable lady, by whom he had two daughters. There are now living seven daughters and one son by his first marriage, and two daughters by his last, and they, with his wife and forty-one grand and great-grandchildren, are truly bereaved of the loss of this noble husband and father. He was converted at the age of nineteen, and joined the Methodist Church. He moved to Louisiana, and lived for the last twenty-nine years in Conshatta, the place of his death. He loved the church of God, and was prominent in building up its interests. He was almost a life-long steward, and especially prompt and correct as a recording steward, which many a Conference committee can testify. For over twenty years he was a faithful superintendent of the Conshatta Sunday-school, prompt, cheerful, commanding the respect and love of all. He was born again of the Spirit, and was ever ready to testify to his acceptance with God. He was a noble man of God, walking uprightly to the end of his life, having the confidence of his brethren. The entire community and fraternity of Masons of which he was a prominent member mourned together over his death. He was a just man, paying his obligations, and especially to the church. When dying the question was asked, "Do you still trust God?" He calmly answered, "I have trusted him too long not to trust him now." Fearlessly and patiently he awaited his Master's call. Thus, surrounded by his large family, kindred and friends, he gently fell asleep in Jesus.

May the mantle of the father fall upon the only living son, who has taken up the work that his father laid down to go to his great reward. May God comfort his bereaved wife, son and daughters with the hope of a family reunion in heaven! J. F. PATTERSON.

BREWER.—Daniel Brewer was born in New York, Aug. 16, 1824, and died at his home at Lecompte, Rapides parish, La., May 21, 1898, aged seventy-three years eight months and twenty days. He came to Louisiana in 1851 and settled in Rapides parish, where he spent the remainder of his life. In 1856 he was married to Miss Esther Susan Moore, and to these parents were born fourteen children—seven sons and seven daughters. His widow, four sons and four daughters survive.

He joined the M. E. Church in his eighteenth year, and for fifty-five years was a follower of the meek and lowly Savior. He was a constant church worker, earnest, devout, and faithful. He had served as steward, trustee, and Sunday-school superintendent. For the sake and means in his possession no man did more for the cause of Christ. He had his family altar, where he and the other members worshiped twice a day. He was very efficient in all the meetings of the church. When he went to Lecompte there was no church-house. A lot was procured, and soon he and others erected a beautiful house of worship. He was the friend of the Methodist preacher, and at his home he always received a Christian welcome.

For three years he was sick, but was resigned and hopeful. He endured as seeing Him who is invisible. As a mail-clad warrior he laid his armor by in the consciousness of a glorious victory. Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. J. F. SOUDLOCK.

JONES—Mrs. ROSASTA HELLAN JONES died Sept 24, 1898. She was born at Phœnix, Yazoo county, Miss., Aug. 22 1841, and was a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Holloman. Her father was a local preacher in the Methodist Church. She was educated at Whitworth College, and during her girlhood professed conversion and united with the Methodist Church. In December, 1886, she was married to Dr. L. G. Jones, of Yazoo county, and in 1887 they moved to Madison Station, at which place they lived happily together until her death. The husband has lost a true and worthy wife, the children a tender and loving mother, the church one of its chief ornaments, and the world one of its best friends. The preacher, too, has lost one of the best of friends. The country of the Methodist Church and parsonage at Madison Station is in a goodly measure owing to her personal efforts. Several times during the year the pastor and church received substantial mementoes of her affection. She was never absent from her place in the sanctuary, unless providentially prevented. She earnestly endeavored to bring up her children in the instruction and discipline of God. The opinion of the community is universal that she was indeed a good soldier of the cross, loyal to her church and worthy of everlasting life. May the bereaved husband and other loved ones meet her in heaven!

JNO. D. ELLIS.

Madison Station, Miss.

HARRIS—JOSEPH W. HARRIS was born May 4, 1831, near Commerce Wells, in Hinds county, Miss., and died Dec. 3, 1898, near Flora, Miss. He was the youngest son of W. H. and Mary Harris. He joined the Methodist Church in 1890 quite early in life, and ever remained a faithful, consecrated Christian life. He never vowed any will oaths, but gave all of his life to the Lord and the right, living in such a noble, upright way that everyone was compelled to love and admire him. He lived a life that his parents were not ashamed of, and made a character with which he was not afraid to go into eternity with. His sudden death was caused by pernicious malaria. He had not been well for some time, yet he was not thought to be in any danger until two days before he died, when he was taken suddenly and violently ill, and was unconscious till he died. His death was a shock to the whole community, and a sadness that will not soon pass away. He leaves a father and mother and two brothers and three sisters to mourn his loss. The home is inexpressibly sad, yet amid sorrow, grief and tears they are comforted in the thought that he is at rest in our Father's house, and there they will meet again. May God comfort and bless all the loved ones left behind! J. G. CAMMACK.

Flora, Miss.

THE VITAL ATMOSPHERE OF A CHRISTIAN LIFE.

I think no one can study the life of Jesus Christ without being impressed with the thought that it is not the individual miracles which he wrought and the great things which he did which have moved the heart of mankind, so much as the great spirit in which he did everything. You never feel, in studying the life of Christ, that on any occasion he is summoning all his powers to meet some great emergency. All life was great to him. The common at wayside conversation brought out clearly his living insight, his wealth of reasons, and the gentle sweetness of his nature. All this revealed the spiritual atmosphere in which he lived. It is this vital atmosphere in which he lived which it is important for us to attain—not to be waiting for great opportunities to accomplish great deeds, but to live always in the spirit of Christ, so that every-day experiences shall be clothed upon from heaven . . .

Let us study for a little some of the characteristics of the Christian atmosphere. First of all, it is a joyous, hopeful spirit. Paul, who certainly had his share of the buffetings and struggles of the Christian life, found it to be a life of unbounding joy and ever-buoyant hope. Farther on in this same letter he exclaims: "If I be offered upon the sacrifice and service of your faith, I joy and rejoice with you all. For the same cause also do ye joy and rejoice with me." Christianity is joy bringer to the world. . . .

Christianity is a religion of hope. No man can despair for the human race who sees himself in the sunshine optimism of Jesus Christ, for such a one can sing with Tennyson:

"For all men hope, despair of none!
Foul vapors of the glowing sun;
The darkest cloud the day draws on
To paint the sky with harmony;
So love shall lift to higher goals
The lowest lives, the darkest souls;
Rejoice we, then, for one lasting cure—
We pass, but deeds live to endure."

There are enough Christians in the world to spiritually transform it if we all lived in that atmosphere of faith and hope which characterized Jesus Christ.—From The Christ Dream, by Dr. Louis Albert Banks.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dread disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

Do we need a shelter from the storms of temptation? We may find it in Jesus. Hiding beneath him, taking refuge in the pavilion of his presence, we are secure. Put the man, Christ Jesus, between you and temptation, or adverse circumstances, as the Roman soldier his shield between him and the fiery darts of the foe. In days of temptation he is the impenetrable covert. In loneliness he is like the murmur of waters in a dry place. In weariness he is the shadow of a great rock, beneath which we may sit with great delight. In other words, Jesus Christ is the one answer of the soul to every possible circumstance, to all emergencies, to the demands and appeals that constantly knock at the door of our life.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

The Organ that Suits the Choir

THE organist and the choir get the blame if anything goes wrong with the music—it embarrasses the preacher too.

The church organ ought to be in perfect tune; sweet toned; easy to pedal; under perfect control; in perfect order all the time; and it ought to have big bellows.

NOTE: Most church organs have bellows altogether too small. The bellows are the lungs. When too much the organ is short of breath; the organist has to pedal so fast she gives out.

EPWORTH ORGANS are better made than ordinary organs, very much better. That's why such competent judges of tone as Prof. E. O. Excell and Prof. Chas. H. Gabriel—two of the best known S. S. song writers—use them in their studios and recommend them.

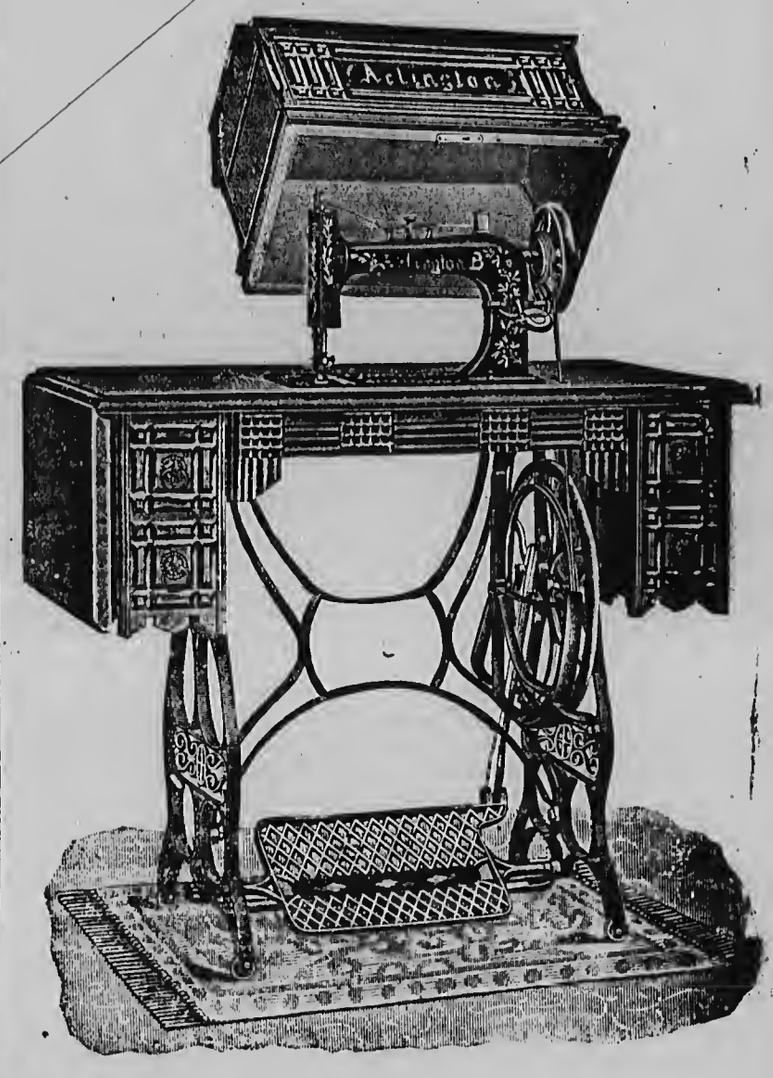
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm. Its mechanical appearance is perfect. Its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylindar shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts, runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The Southern Educational Association, which met in this city last week, adjourned on Friday.

Senor Don Macias Romero, the Ambassador of Mexico to the United States, died in Washington on Dec. 30.

Iowa druggists are being assessed the regular saloon license tax of $50 per month in some towns. Sioux City insists on this rule because the saloons of that place sell less whisky than the drug stores.

The insurgents at Iloilo are trying to provoke a conflict with the Americans. They will not surrender until they hear from Aguinaldo. General Miller has given them an ultimatum, and last accounts show him preparing to enforce his demands for surrender.

Ten thousand bushels of rice was raised last year on the North Carolina State farms by convict labor. The crop required the labor of thirty-five convicts, and the greater acreage was land only reclaimed from marshy wastes last year. The quality of the rice is said to be very good.

About the only unpleasant jar in naval circles, as a result of the war with Spain, is the matter of the promotions accorded to those officers who had the good fortune to distinguish themselves. The public generally is familiar with the acrimony occasioned by the promotion of Rear Admiral Sampson. He was passed over the heads of a number of his seniors, and in this way their promotion was to some extent delayed.

A compromise has been arranged by General Brooke, which satisfied the Cubans, and will result in all classes celebrating evacuation on Sunday. The Cubans were still feeling greatly hurt over the refusal of the American commander to allow them to participate in the ceremonies. Generals Brooke and Meacal had a conference in the Inglaterra Hotel, at which it was agreed that full sway should be given the Cubans for a grand insurgent celebration to be held in Havana on Feb. 24, the fourth anniversary of the uprising in Santiago province. General Brooke told Meacal that the insurgents might march and feast to their hearts' content at that time. When this became known good feeling resulted and plans were immediately begun for a week's celebration. It has already been decided that formal disbandonment of the insurgent force shall take place on Feb. 24.

AN OLD ENEMY.

Thibodeaux, La., Dec. 28, 1898.—Celiste M. Aucoin, Lock Box 202, this place, states that she has been entirely relieved of her old enemy, headache, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and she has never been ill since she began its use.

The been of employment at fair wages is seemingly not appreciated by Cuban laborers. A few days ago the dock laborers struck for a raise of 55 cents a day. They were getting $1.25 a day, which is 25 cents more than they were getting under the Spaniards. Now they refuse to go to work under $1.80. General Wood told the ring-leaders that if they did not instantly go to work, he would import all the negro laborers from Jamaica that were required for government purposes.

The sovereignty of Cuba passed from Spain to the United States at noon on Jan. 1. The form of the transfer was simple, consisting only of an exchange of speeches in the salon of the palace, the hauling down of the Spanish flag and the raising in its stead of the flag of the United States on the flagstaff on the palace roof. Salutes were fired from the heavy guns of the forts and the warships before and after the change of flags. The raising of the stars and stripes was greeted with cheers by the people, who covered the roofs of the buildings around the palace and plaza.

Very soon after Congress resumes business on Wednesday President McKinley will transmit to the Senate the treaty of peace with Spain, and with it he will turn over to Congress the entire problem of dealing with all the complications the war has brought to the United States. Pending action by Congress, the Executive will initiate no new policy in regard to any of the islands. Congress must decide how long the system of military government is to continue and what is to displace it in each locality.

After the treaty is out of the way, efforts will probably be made to secure the passage of some sort of resolution declaratory of the policy of the United States toward the new acquisitions, and especially toward the Philippine Islands, but it is not probable such a resolution will be adopted. The most that is likely to be done is the authorization of a commission to visit the Philippines and submit a report to the next Congress.

Growing out of the obligation to maintain peace and order in the islands is the necessity for a larger army and an increased navy. The House committee on naval affairs has already decided to increase the enlisted strength of the navy to 20,000 men and 2200 apprentices, and most, if not all, of the fifteen new warships recommended will be authorized. The bill for the reorganization of the personnel of the navy and the marine corps and for the increase of the latter corps is also in better legislative position than ever before, and it is possible it may be passed during the present session.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

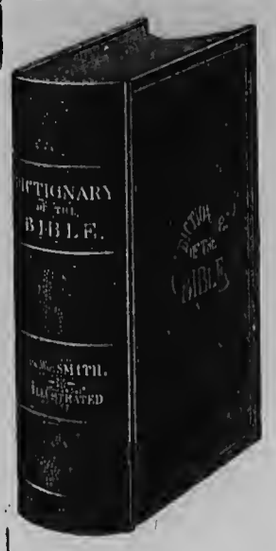
Smith's Dictionary



—OF THE—

BIBLE.

Comprising Its Antiquities, Biography, Geography, and NATURAL HISTORY.

EDITED BY WM. SMITH, LL. D.,
Classical Examiner of the University of London.

This great work prepared under the direction and superintendence of Dr. Smith himself contains every name in the Bible and Apocrypha of which anything can be said; gives an account of each of the books of the Bible; explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves: embraces the results of the most successful and approved biblical labors and researches, constituting an indispensable aid to ministers, teachers, families, Sunday-school superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

The simple explanations of this work, unlike the expositions of a commentary, admit of no denominational or sectarian coloring and it is therefore equally valuable to Bible readers of every diversity of belief.

This is, undoubtedly, the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The work contains 1024 large octavo pages, over 150 illustrations and maps engraved especially for this work and is handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. Publishers' price, $4.50.

To any person who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: To December, '99, we will sell this magnificent book postpaid for $2. Send in your order at once, as this offer may soon be withdrawn. Address

EPWORTH COLLEGE.

THE STUDENTS OF EPWORTH COLLEGE

Will enjoy a literary feast of rare excellence during the remainder of the session. On the evening of Dec. 23d, Miss Sallie McGee Isom (University, Miss.) will give, in the College Chapel, a Shaksperian Recital, and in February, "Scenes from 'Quo Vadis.'"

Beginning January 5th, Miss Clara Conway, of Memphis, will give a series of six lectures, dispensed through first and second week of January (three each week).

SUBJECTS.

1. How to Enrich the Vocabulary.
2. The Abuse of the Superlative.
3. A Study of Verbs.
4. Common Errors.
5. The Value of Science.
6. Ethics of Conversation.

We have in preparation what we will call our Easter Program, that will be of great educational value; and, better still, we have a course of study mapped out especially for pupils who enter after Christmas, that for real, true educational worth will approximate the work of a whole session.

Write for terms, and come and spend five months with us, and meet and hear the most distinguished readers and lecturers in the South. Address E. T. KEETON, President, Holly Springs, Miss.

OPPORTUNITY.

BY ANNIE M. LIBBY.

There was a chance for loving service; my idle hands were slow.
There were messages to carry; my feet refused to go.
There was place for words of kindness, and time for songs of cheer,
But I left them all unspoken till there was none to hear.
Yet I called myself a worker with Him who died for men,
Nor knew I had denied my Lord, and pierced His heart again.

FROM KEY WEST TO HAVANA.

On Tuesday night, the twenty-second instant, at 9:30 o'clock, Bishop and Mrs. Candler, Dr. Fulwood, Bro. H. W. Baker and myself, left Key West by the "Mascotte" for Havana. Our little steamer had made the round trip from Tampa twice during the week we were detained at Key West. As on our former voyage, we found her crowded with passengers. Fortunately a state-room was secured for the Bishop and his wife; the rest of us found a lodging-place in the smoking-room. The purser had promised this cubbey-hole to ourselves; so we retired early. To my astonishment two other passengers—Americans—entered a half hour afterwards, and one of them claimed that I was in his bed. Baker kindly suggested the apartment belonged to us by arrangement of the purser, and that "Dr. Lambuth was already fast asleep; he was very tired, and it would be a pity to disturb him." With a good-humored remark about men always being asleep when it was inconvenient to be awake, my constant climbed up in the bunk above my sofa, and was snoring long before I got through shaking over Baker's strategy. In the morning the affair ended with a hearty laugh all round and introductions.

A full hour before day Bro. Baker had me on deck looking for land. He is incorrigible as an early riser, and would make a good attendant upon the imperial court at Peking, where they get up at 3 A. M. to transact business. A cup of coffee and a talk with the quartermaster made the hour slip rapidly by. Our sailor friend was on duty keeping the morning watch. I kept it in another way, praying silently for him and for Cuba yet shrouded in darkness across our bow. He was not a professing Christian, but he believed in his mother's God and in the ultimate triumph of the gospel. She was a Wesleyan Methodist, lived on one of the Bahama Islands, and had taught him the Scriptures in his youth. That he loved his old mother was evident from the tender, reverential tone of voice in which he spoke of her. Little did she realize, perhaps, that her life was a sheet anchor to this weather-beaten mariner.

What a contrast! Bro. Baker fell in with an Italian the night before. The conversation turned on religion and the Pope. He scouted the sincerity of those who professed to be religious, and almost hissed at the name of the head of the Roman Catholic Church. "How," said he, "can we hold in veneration a man who blessed the soldiers of Spain as they went forth to curse and butcher the soldiers of Cuba, and yet he claims both as being under his fatherly care?" It is evident there has come a radical change in the sentiment of the people in the West Indies. The power of Catholicism is waning—a new light begins to dawn. The day is breaking. "Arise, shine, for thy light is come!"

A shaft of light shoots athwart the eastern horizon. It is followed by another and a third. We were just crossing the Tropic of Cancer. Twilight in the tropics is short, and daylight comes fast. Almost at the same time the quartermaster pointed out the revolving light on Morro Castle. "Two points, sir, off the starboard bow." There it was shining a moment, then disappearing, reminding us of the ignis fatuus Spain has been in the western hemisphere. Thank God the baleful light of her dominion on this side of the Atlantic has set forever!

Turning again to the east, we beheld the sun a vast dome of gold emerging from the sea. Once a narrow film of cloud across his equator gave him the appearance of Saturn, but, stripping himself of every encumbrance, he rose clear and full orbed into the heavens, the peerless conqueror of night and of darkness. As he discharged his arrows of light in every direction, there suddenly appeared before us the Cuban coast, with its silvery line of surf backed by hills of richest verdure. The language of the nineteenth Psalm came unbidden to my lips: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork. . . . In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race." By this time we were joined by Dr. Fulwood, who started the Doxology, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." We joined in with such a will that the astonished captain thrust his head out of his cabin to ascertain the cause of these unusual sounds. "Humph, only singing a hymn," and the old sea dog pulled in his head again. Only a hymn, but one of conquest, or we sadly mistake the signs of the times.

An hour brought us abreast of Morro Castle and the embrasured forts on either side. How they frowned upon us! Hundreds of Spanish soldiers in blue lined the battlements, but made no demonstration. Passing the narrow entrance, we glided into a magnificent bay, which, with its numerous pouch-like receptacles, could hold the navies of the world. A beautiful sheet of water, far more attractive than the city, which was a fac-simile of Venice by day-light, so cracked was it and seamed and scarred. Old Cadiz or Barcelona could hardly present a more antiquated appearance.

We are anchored. "What is that?" comes from a dozen passengers at once. "The wreck of the Maine," is the reply. A shadow creeps over the face of every American. Silence reigns, while the imagination calls up the quiet of nightfall, three hundred seamen going to rest, a lurid light, an explosion, cries of "Help, help; for God's sake, help!" Then all is quiet again, but two hundred and sixty brave men have met their doom. If Spain or her minions were responsible, the recompense has been swift and fearful. "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

REPORT OF THE EAST MISSISSIPPI FEMALE COLLEGE TO THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

It is with pleasure that I present to you this, my third report as president of the East Mississippi Female College. I am glad to be able to report it in a most prosperous condition. Notwithstanding the yellow fever, quarantine, low price of cotton, etc., that prevented many of our students from coming, we have enrolled the largest number of boarders of any year in the history of the college. Last session our total enrollment was 327 students—178 in the Conservatory of Music, 53 in Elocution and 120 in the Boarding Department. Up to this time this session we have enrolled 121 boarding students in the college, which is about 20 more than were enrolled this time last year.

We have this year the finest student body we have ever had. More of the students are young ladies of mature minds, and are, therefore, capable of doing a higher grade of work. We have them this year from many of the Southern States; also from as far West as New Mexico and Arizona. We have decidedly the best faculty we have ever had before. Some have thought that because they hear more of our fine talent in music and elocution, that they are the best teachers we have. This is by no means the case. It is a difficult matter to display the abilities of a teacher of mathematics, languages, or English, while it is quite easy to show the skill of a pianist, violinist, or elocutionist. "By their fruits ye shall know them" is what we shall say of our literary teachers. They are all real scholars, and teachers of culture and experience, and are doing a high grade of work. Our teacher of higher English is an A. B. graduate of the University of South Carolina, being the first woman to graduate from that institution. She received high honors in a large class of young men, and was the peer of any man in the class. She has taught several years, and is doing as high type of work in English as is done in most male colleges.

Our teacher of languages is an A. B. graduate of Wellesley College. This in itself speaks for her ability. She has held a chair of languages in a prominent Southern college for several years, and is the best teacher of ancient languages, man or woman, with whom I have ever been associated.

Both the teacher and assistant teacher of mathematics have taken post-graduate courses in the University of Chicago, and we shall be glad to compare the work in this line to that done in any of our male colleges. In short, we have spared no means in employing the very finest talent in every department. We are doing thorough, honest, conscientious work of a high order. In proof of this, I have only to say that one of our last year graduates entered the Senior work at the University of Chicago, and is taking a high stand in that advanced institution.

Our curriculum, faculty and thoroughness of work more than meet the requirements of the Education Commission appointed by our last General Conference. We do not pretend to do university work, but we are willing to have its character and thoroughness tested by competent judges. We have lost a number of pupils this session because they could not enter the class for which they made application. We have 110 studying Latin, and quite a number in Greek and modern languages, and, of course, all of our classes are studying English and mathematics, many studying sciences, history, etc.

Our Music Department still holds the high place it has justly won among Southern music schools. A director of music in a prominent Southern Methodist college, after visiting us and hearing some of the artists we employ, said that the musical talent here certainly excels that of any female college in the South. Whether this is or is not true is a matter of opinion. At any rate, I know that we have had teachers come and study with us who have been to Northern conservatories, and yet they think some of our talent equal to any they studied under in the North.

To those who are not familiar with the inside workings, appearance and improvements of the college, I would say that you would be astonished at the many changes in the institution in a material way. Besides the erection of the new buildings, the college has been painted on the outside, and painted, papered and calcimined on the inside; the old chapel divided up by partitions into recitation-rooms, twenty music-rooms added; a complete set of water fixtures, sewer connections, gas connections, bath-rooms, hot and cold, have been put in. We have bored a deep well and erected a tank, put in steam pump, laundry fixtures for steaming clothes, and numbers of other permanent improvements—all at our own expense. We have replaced all the old pianos with new instruments, and now we have two fine grand pianos and quite a number of new uprights. The old furniture has been gradually replaced with new until now one who has not gone through the college recently would hardly recognize it as the same institution.

Despite the large and constant expense in repairing, keeping in repair, and thoroughly renovating and furnishing an old and, in some respects, dilapidated building, we have been able to keep the best of tables, as can be attested by our pupils and faculty. Our teachers have been paid promptly at the end of every month, some of them in advance, and that without their even having to ask for their salaries. By prayer and careful management we have been enabled to pay cash for everything, not a single cent of indebtedness has occurred, and no credit has been asked for. In addition to this, it has been a pleasure to take every daughter of preachers or widows of preachers of any denomination free of charge for tuition, and at less than cost for board. We have also been enabled to help many poor and worthy girls who could not otherwise have had the opportunities we give them. This, I say, has been a real pleasure, and we are thankful to God for giving us this opportunity of thus helping on his cause.

We are grateful at the encouragement and co-operation that many of our preachers have given us in our work. Especially are we grateful for the strong support we have received from the people of Meridian. From all classes of business men we have received commendation, encouragement, and patronage. Among our patrons are the strongest, wealthiest, most influential business men in the city. Traveling men, lawyers, doctors, bankers, Jews and Gentiles are in sympathy with and encourage the college. This greatly aids us in our work. The fact that Meridian is a friend of and encourages the college makes our duties lighter.

But over and above all these things, this material prosperity, I rejoice in the wonderful spiritual atmosphere at the college. I am pleased to say that it excels even the high standard of last session. Already we have had between 35 and 40 professions of conversions, that have occurred from time to time during the session. This work commences at the very beginning of the session and continues till the end, or until the material is exhausted. We had six conversions at the first regular meeting of the Young Woman's Christian Association, and others almost every week up to the time I left for Conference. On last Sunday, Christmas night, we had a spiritual feast in that upper room in the college. Five girls were converted, and others received new life and new inspiration. On the Sunday previous four or five others were converted. Many of these girls have been at other colleges in and out of the State, and they tell us they were never in such a spiritual atmosphere before. We require them to attend the morning services at church and Sunday-school, and give them the meeting at night in the college, where they are all alone; nothing to divert their minds; none present but girls and teachers, and the Lord honors the meetings in a wonderful manner. It is an inspiration to hear these ringing testimonies, and see the bright faces and beautiful lives of these girls. They have organized among themselves twelve, or more, Worker's Training classes, which includes nearly every girl in the Boarding Department. They meet once a week voluntarily, and study the Bible together. We think it is something remarkable that nearly all the students voluntarily enter into these Bible classes. They select leaders from among their number, and receive training by doing personal work among the unconverted or weak Christians. Committees of active Christian girls are appointed to meet the new students as they come in, and thus throw around them a good influence from their first entrance into the college. Most of our teachers being active Christian workers greatly facilitates this work. The religious atmosphere is something wonderful. Many girls have said they do not see how it is possible for a girl to remain in the college a session without being a Christian. They are often sent to us especially on account of the religious influence, and, of course, steel themselves against it; yet I have seen the Holy Spirit break up one after another until at the end of last session only about three or four remained unconverted. I have seen many a hard heart melt before the wonderful wooings of the Spirit of God. We do not promise to make saints out of all that may be sent us, but I do say that the Lord has wonderfully blessed and honored our efforts in making Christians of the girls. When school opened about half of the girls were unconverted, according to their own statements. Nearly all were church members, but about half did not have the witness of the Spirit to regeneration. One by one we have seen these girls born into the kingdom of God until now the number of unsaved has grown beautifully small. The Lord has blessed us in every way, financially, numerically, and spiritually. We have also been wonderfully blessed in health. Barring a number of cases of la grippe, it would be hard to find a better health record. We attribute this to a healthy location, pure water, wholesome food, plenty of exercise, careful and skillful watching, and regular and systematic living. Our girls are hale and hearty, most of them having gained from five to thirty pounds since they came. If they should say they are not fed well, no one would believe it; yet I don't think you could get any to say that. On the whole, they are studious, religious, healthy, happy and contented. We are willing for our work to speak for itself. One of our pastors, a member of this Conference, one with whom I am not intimately acquainted, told one of our girls this Summer he was always glad to meet up with an E. M. F. C. girl on his work, for in her he found a helper and a religious worker. This is not universally true of them, yet we believe it is true of a large per cent. of them.

We are not pleasing everybody, Mr. President; neither are we trying to please all. There was never an enterprise that succeeded but that some one was ready to speak evil of it, or try to pull it down. Our Master's work was not popular with all people, yet it lives to-day. We are trying in our own humble way to please God and do right, and we are willing for the work to speak for itself. God has wonderfully blessed the humble efforts we have put forth. To him be all the praise. We take no credit to ourselves except that we are trying daily, in every detail of the work, to follow his leadings. He honors the feeble efforts and does the work. Praise be to his holy name. Give us your prayers, your support, your sympathy, and your girls, and we will strive to send out women who are real scholars, and who love God and his church.

WORN OUT AND DEAD.

MR. EDITOR: I am sure it will bring joy to your heart, and through your columns to the hearts of your readers, to know of a prominent death which has recently occurred in our church.

The subject of this sketch was the unfortunate, but legitimate, child of Fanaticism and Intolerance, and his parents before him could never agree. He was born in a wrangle, grew up in a gale, and spent his life in a storm. Being the child of the church, multitudes took interest in him, and what was worse, took sides with one or the other of the ever-contending parents. Nothing is more unfortunate than for parents to disagree on the training of their children.

The father of the deceased determined that his son should be raised up with double-barreled theological notions, while the strong-minded mother was equally determined that her boy should entertain none other than single-barreled views. The contest waxed warm, and reached beyond the privacy of the home, and spread through many parts of the church. The church grew warm in spots, and the conflict continued and intensified until one party religiously declared to the other, "You shall not play in our back-yard." The other party devoutly responded, "We are the children of a king, and will play where we please."

But in the lapse of time both parties got more religion, and, consequently, more light, and came up to a broader view of things, and began to see how foolish and ridiculous the fight, and also discovered that the effect upon the "subject" was fast proving fatal. He had declined, become attenuated, frazzled, played-out, and ere they were aware of it, death had ended his ailments. (What a friend is death! He cures the incurable.) A delegation from both parties attended his burial. It was an occasion of great rejoicing, and, clasping hands around his grave, they sung in unison,

"Together let us sweetly live, Together let us die."

This, followed by the long-meter Doxology and benediction, closed the service over the remains of the "holiness controversy." After a hearty handshaking the parties took leave of the deceased, saying, "Requiescat in pace, without hope of resurrection." Also gladly agreeing that henceforth every man should have his own choice of weapons in doing battle for the Master, using either one of the good old gospel pieces, the single or the double barrel, as his own godly judgment should direct. They also religiously agreed and declared that "Hereafter any effort made, through pulpit or press, to revive his memory, would be (to say the least) in exceeding bad taste; and to indulge again in unkind or unbrotherly utterances, on either side, of the 'subject' would be understood at once by all refined and godly people to be proof positive of the lack of one of two essential things, viz.: common sense or religion."

Selections.

Yesterday is no mausoleum of dead deeds, no storehouse of mummies. Memory is a granary holding seed for to-morrow's sowing; memory is an armory holding weapons for to-morrow's battles; memory is a medicine chest with balms for to-morrow's hurts; memory is a library with wisdom for to-morrow's emergency. Yesterday holds the full store of to-day's civilization; contains our tools, conveniences, knowledges; contains our battle fields and victories; above all, gives us Bethlehem and Calvary. But alone man's yesterday is impotent; his to-morrow insufficient. The true man binds all his days together with an earnest, intense, passionate purpose. His yesterdays, to-days and to-morrows march together, one solid column, animated by one thought, constrained by one conspiracy of desire, energizing toward one holy and helpful purpose—to serve man and love God.—Newell Dwight Hillis, in "The Investment of Influence."

The man of faith is never in a hurry for God to explain himself.

THE BIBLE.

BY HORATIUS BONAR.

My thoughts are here, my God,
Expressed in words divine,
The utterance of heavenly lips
In every sacred line.

Across the ages they
Have reached us from afar;
Than the bright gold more golden they,
Purer than purest star.

More durable they stand
Than the eternal hills;
Far sweeter and more musical
Than music of earth's rills.

A thousand hammers keen
With fiery force and strain,
Brought down on it in rage and hate,
Have struck this gem in vain.

Against this sea-swept rock
Ten thousand storms their will
Of foam and rage have wildly spent;
It lifts its calm face still.

It standeth and will stand,
Without or change or age,
The word of majesty and light,
The church's heritage.

THE INFLUENCE OF EDUCATION UPON OUR NATION.

BY MISS BELLE M. TRIMBLE.

Read at the Thanksgiving service in Farmerville, La., Nov. 24, and published by request.)

There is an old Greek legend that runs as follows: In the palmy days of Athenian greatness the king had offered the laurel to the man who could confer the highest benefit upon the State. When the appointed day arrived a great many contestants presented themselves before the king and all the assembled Athenians. The soldier was there aglow with military splendor to show that through his deeds conquests were made, enemies subdued, and the safety of Athens assured; the statesman came forward to claim that through the brilliancy of his thought Athens was the home of democracy and freedom and culture; the physician argued that by restoring humanity to health and usefulness he conferred the greatest benefit to man; the poet was there with his marvelous creations of the imagination, and the sculptor put forth a strong plea on the ground that his statues cultivated the love of the beautiful and the artistic; the farmer came forth with the fruits of the ground and claimed that but for him none of the others could live; the sailor showed how he utilized the winds and the waves, and gave Athens the products of far-away countries; the blacksmith and the jeweler and the weaver and the merchant were all there, but, after each had made his boast, the king noticed an old man, bent with age and white with the snows of many Winters, standing a little aloof from the other contestants, to whom he said, "And what claim have you to present?" But the old man shook his head and said, "Nothing, my lord; I am only a school teacher, and all these were my pupils." "Then," said the king, "your training and your thinking have produced all these—our military splendor, our political glory, our domestic greatness, and our intellectual brilliancy; to you I award the laurel as being the greatest benefactor to the State."

This old legend but illustrates the influence of the educator in the estimation of the Greek. Let us see what is the influence of the educator, or of education, in our own republic. Let us go back a moment and notice the origin of education in this country. To whom are we indebted for this great system of learning, and by whom has it been so carefully and ably guided? In its first stages the church was the promoter of education.

The revival of learning, born of Paganism in Italy, took a religious turn throughout England and Germany, and gave Protestantism to the world. The Reformation allied itself with the universities: Wycliffe, Tyndale, Luther, Melanchthon and Calvin turned their lecture-rooms into preaching-places, and Wittenberg, Heidleberg, Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh, with their thousands of students, made those countries Protestant. What is true of England and Germany is true of the American colonies. In Winthrop's company there were about eighty ministers, the greater part of them graduates of Cambridge and Oxford, and they became the leaders of education, and to them we are indebted for our educational system. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, William and Mary, Columbia, Vanderbilt, and nearly every great university in our land was founded by the church, and has had its growth in and support from Christianity. Thus we see that we owe our educational advantages to the church.

Now, let us see what has been the influence of these advantages upon our nation. In the broader sense we are educated by every influence and force with which we come in contact, and everybody and everything are our teachers; but in this paper we use the term "education" as referring to the work of our schools only, and as applied only to the mind. Using the term in this limited sense, education has had a prodigious influence upon our material progress as a nation. With her mighty naval and military academies she has produced soldiers who are the admiration of the world. The great inventions and exploits in military affairs have not been made by the ignorant idler, but by the men of trained minds. We need but to mention the names of Dewey and of Hobson to illustrate this. Our great law schools have produced statesmen capable of coping with the diplomats of Europe. Our pedagogical and theological institutions have moulded minds whose thoughts are read from continent to continent. In all departments of life we have come to realize that "thought is the constructive force in the world, and that the thinker is the creator of values beyond any work." Think of the inventions that have resulted from the thought of man. Take the steamboat and the locomotive! How Fulton, Watts and Stephenson by their thoughts have utilized so great power from steam! Take the telegraph and the telephone and the electric light. What are the thoughts of the men who discovered these worth to humanity? How much more work the mind of Eli Whitney or Elias Howe accomplish than thousands of ignorant, untrained minds. But you may say these men were geniuses, and that education had nothing to do with it. Indeed, they were geniuses, and I would not claim for a minute that every educated child can accomplish great things, but what I do maintain is that education, the thorough training of the mind, greatly develops natural talent, and the history of nations and the example of individuals prove this to be true. Cultivate the minds of our nation, and our sons will not be "hewers of wood and drawers of water." Develop their thought-power so that they may understand and utilize the forces of nature. Let them catch the winds, the rushing waters, and the lightning, and make these elements do their work. But aside from the influence of education on our material progress, there is a higher and grander side to its influence. Victor Hugo has said, "He who opens the door of the school-house closes the door of the jail," and the French philosopher was right. The right kind of education cultivates the heart as well as the head: it gives us pleasure in the virtues of life; it opens up the enjoyment of the beautiful; it gives happiness through living by the Golden Rule; it makes the lawyer, the doctor, the merchant, the teacher, the preacher, but, above all, it makes a man a truth-loving, a God-fearing man. This side of education is essential to our well-being. It will not do to cultivate the mind alone. Bacon has said that, "In knowledge without love there is ever something of malignity." The mental without the moral education is just as apt to turn out polished knaves as industrious, capable citizens.

As we have seen, our educational system had its origin in the minds of those who gave up home and kindred and country for conscience sake; therefore, in the birth of our schools the moral side was strongly emphasized. The sturdy traits of American character exemplify this. Let us not depart from the high ideal set by our forefathers.

Realizing, then, that education enables us to utilize the world about us, and to develop our own natures, as well as to enjoy a future existence, let us, as a nation, as a State, as a town, give thanks to the Giver of all blessings for our great institutions of learning. May they, in the future, as they have been in the past, be the crowning glory of our grand commonwealth!

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference—

DEAR SISTERS: Again, at the fourth quarter of our fiscal year, it becomes my duty, as your president, to acquaint you with the condition of our work, and to enlist your earnest prayers and efforts in bringing it up to the high mark of other years. The reports of your treasurer for the second and third quarters show that we have fallen somewhat behind those of last year, but we are fully persuaded that this is caused by the peculiar conditions under which we have worked, and that these having passed away, their effect may be entirely overcome by a faithful effort on the part of all during this fourth quarter. I am encouraged to trust this matter to you, feeling sure that as in the past it has only been necessary to set that matter before you in order to have you do cheerfully what was needed to be done, so at the present moment you will unite your hearts as one woman to bring the work up to the required standard. It is not simply that we must not fall behind; it is that a failure on our part means more than we can correctly estimate to the Lord's work and workers in foreign fields. It means retrenchment, discouragement, and unsaved souls.

Sisters, we can not thus wound our Lord and neglect the souls for whom he died. I commit to your ever-faithful hands the work of this fourth quarter, expecting that you shall lovingly and conscientiously do your Lord's work. I would especially call your attention to the depleted condition of our Contingent Fund. The last annual meeting was a very heavy drain upon our resources, failing, as we did, to obtain the usual reduction in rates; hence, since that time this fund, so necessary to our work, has been quite exhausted—in fact, overdrawn. In order to replenish our treasury, it will be necessary to give close attention to the collection of this fee from the members. Many do not understand its importance, and do not pay. It would be well to discuss it freely in the auxiliary meetings, that all may know just how necessary it is to our work. Great care must always be taken by auxiliary treasurers that the contingent fees are properly reported, being kept entirely separate from dues and other fees.

My prayers and labors are with yours, that at the close of this fiscal year we may render our account to the Lord of the harvest with great joy, and not be ashamed before him. God bless you all!

BESSIE W. LIPSCOMB.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

At the recent session of the Louisiana Conference the following report of the Committee on Church Publications, on the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, was unanimously adopted:

We call attention first to our own ADVOCATE published in New Orleans. Of its merits as a weekly paper we need say nothing to the members of this Conference, who are familiar with its pages. We all know that it occupies a high plane as a religious family paper. Its editorials and clippings give us wholesome food upon which we may grow and strengthen in the spiritual life, and at the same time we get the religious and secular news of immediate interest to us. But while our own paper is greatly superior to many others circulated among our people at a smaller price, we are confronted with this difficulty in canvassing for it. This fact makes it imperative, if possible, to reduce the subscription price of the paper, which the publisher says can be done when the circulation reaches twelve thousand, and he proposes to help us, in any way practicable, to obtain that number. Surely this ought to be done in the three patronizing Conferences.

AMEN

To the note of Bro. H. P. Gibbs on "Tobacco." Without condemning the brethren who are already addicted to the use of tobacco, it may be said that the habit is unnecessary, expensive, often selfish, and if scientific testimony be accepted, is injurious to health. Many of the laity would be glad to see the Conference go further and refuse to admit candidates who use tobacco in any form.

The shepherd of souls ought not to be the servant of any habit. Did our Lord ever plead trials or deprivations as excuse for self-indulgence? "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me." Rigid self-denial, absolute unselfishness must be the portion of those who would be Christ-like in heart and life.

If the way of life be strait and narrow, surely the pathway to power in the service of Christ our Lord lies through the very straitest and narrowest part of that way. E.

THE KEY-NOTE.

The last message of the year 1898—what shall it be? The angels gave the key-note when they sang to the shepherds near Bethlehem eighteen hundred and ninety-eight years ago. No other song of joy has lived so long, and had the power to bring with it each year such buoyant hopes, such fresh inspirations of delight in the thought that "unto us a Child is born, unto us a Savior given." It was not unto me, but unto us—to China's millions, to the inhabitants of the islands of the sea, to all peoples, to the whole world. What wondrous love is this! We know that

The fields are all ripening, and far and wide
The world is now waiting the harvest-tide.

But there is another truth that clouds the joy of the first:

But the reapers are few, and the work is great,
And much will be lost should the harvest wait.

On whom does the responsibility rest? Shall it be your fault and mine if the harvest is left ungarnered? Shall the ripening fields go to waste, while hundreds and thousands of those who profess to believe in Christ refuse to obey his last command, or neglect to make the slightest effort to show their faith by their works, and send the gospel to those who have never so much as heard his name mentioned? How can they know him of whom they have never heard? While the blessed Christmas-tide is with us, and the New Year approaching, and all preparing gifts for loved and loving friends, may prayers go with everyone, that each recurring thought of it may bring a blessing! We must remember that love makes way for love, and prayer makes way for prayer; and from the loved at home our hearts should go out to those far away in heathen lands, who have no Christ in their hearts, no Christ in their homes. Oh, how bereft of all that brightens this life, of all that gives a hope of eternal life!—(Selected from W. M. Advocate for N. M. Column.) LEN.

MRS. J. C. STUART.

The Ladies' Aid Society No. 1, of Central Church, Meridian, has lost one of its most useful members by the removal of Mrs. J. C. Stuart to New Orleans. As secretary, she was prompt and accurate. In caring for the poor she was ever ready to lend willing assistance, and many were the garments her deft fingers fashioned to clothe the needy. When necessary to make collections for a church enterprise, Mrs. Stuart always responded, not only going herself, but furnishing conveyance for the committee.

May our friend and faithful coworker find a happy home among the Methodists of New Orleans!

To insure progress and success, Dr. A. T. Pierson says: "We must have knowledge of the field of work, sympathy with the workers, and prayerful interest in the work." Some one has also written: "A great work can not be done unless we have large views concerning it. It must be considered as to its source, its history, its present state, and its future development."

It is not within the bounds of this brief article to consider all the points presented in these two paragraphs, but we may, in a few words, apply them, as a whole, to the question that is interesting some of our very best people just now, which is, "How shall we raise from moral degradation and vice poor, down-trodden, crushed Cuba, which, by the fortunes of war, has been cast under the protection of our country's flag?"

From the press, teeming with information concerning this "nearest, neediest, ripest field," we may glean all needful knowledge, and sympathy will naturally follow, not only sympathy for the sufferers, but hearty, sympathetic co-operation with those working for the relief and salvation of these people. Sympathy without prayer is of little worth, and prayer without a willingness to help is equally worthless.

Sisters of the W. H. M. S., let us keep informed of the needs of the Cubans on our own shores and in their fair island-home, and remember that while all can not go, all can help in some way. At the beginning of this last year of the century let us be united in our efforts to cheer Miss Bruce and her co-laborers by helping to save the people bought with the precious blood of our brave boys. They died to break the shackles of Spanish oppression. Let us rejoice that it is our privilege to aid in setting them free from the power of sin.

The amount realized from the Week of Prayer recently observed by many of our societies was, it will be remembered, devoted to our Cuban Mission work in Key West. The importance of this work was strongly emphasized by Bishop Candler, who says: "The school at Key West is vital to our conquest of Cuba. The naval depot there is not more vital to the Southern squadron than that school is to our Cuban Missions on the coast of Florida or on the island of Cuba," and he adds, "I do hope the good women will press it to early completion." The Christian Life.

ALONE WITH GOD.

In these days of hurry and bustle we find ourselves face to face with a terrible danger, and it is this: no time to be alone with God. The world in these last days is running fast; we live in what is called "the age of progress," and "you know we must keep pace with the times." So the world says. But this spirit of the world has not confined itself to the world. It is, alas! to be found among the saints of God. And what is the result? The result is no time to be alone with God, and this is immediately followed by no inclination to be alone with God. . . .

This "desert life," as many call it, is of an importance which can not be overvalued. Let us turn to the pages of God's Book. On scanning its precious pages we find that the men of God—God's mighty men—were those who had been in "the school of God," as it has been well said; and his school was simply this: "in the desert alone with himself." It was there they got their teaching. Far removed from the din and bustle of the haunts of men—distant alike from human eye and ear—there they met alone with God; there they were equipped for the battle. And when the time came that they stood forth in public service for God, their faces were not ashamed; nay, they had faces of lions; they were bold and fearless, yea, and victorious for God, for the battle had been won already in the desert alone with him.—London Christian.

THE BLESSING OF ENLARGEMENT.

It is quite common to mistake our own incapacity for God's unwillingness to give. We can not take more than our hearts and lives can hold, not even of the free and abundant grace of God. The limit of blessing for every man is the limit of capacity. Even God does not put more than a pint into a pint cup. Therefore God's richest blessing is the blessing of enlargement. When a soul submits to him he causes it to grow, so making room for more delight and larger power of use in every blessing. God's will to give may always be taken for granted. Our will to receive is not so sure. And when we are disposed to complain of our small share of spiritual blessing, may it not be best to ask ourselves whether it is not our will that fails and our littleness which can not find room to receive? God's apparent grudging, we may be sure, is always a sign of our incapacity. What we most need, therefore, is a continual enlargement of soul, which comes to men only from the continual presence of God's spirit. God does not offer gifts at random, much less does he enlarge a soul which has no desire for him. He who thinks that spiritual capacity may be picked up anywhere along life's dusty road, and that one may set his heart upon the earth and then enjoy the full measure of a disciple's happiness besides, will surely be disappointed.—Congregationalist.

OUR DEPENDENCE ON BODILY CONDITIONS.

We are affected more than we dream of by the very state of the atmosphere. The great Doctor Alexander was once asked "whether he had the full assurance of faith." He replied, "Yes, except when the wind is in the east." When Elijah lay down under the juniper tree, and wished that he might die, he was suffering from physical prostration, and God had prepared food for him, and the angel said, "Come and eat." You will mark the tenderness. He did not say, "Can this be Elijah?" No. This was not the time to preach to him; this was the time to care for him physically. "Come and eat, for the journey is too great for thee." What comfort there is in that sentence, "the journey is too great for thee"! It gives us such an ideal view of God. We feel that he sees the journey which is before us, as well as the way we have come, and wants us to be prepared physically for it. Oh, what it would be to many who read these words if they only believed that God cared whether the journey was great or not! I am compelled to believe that so many never realize that God cares whether they are tired or not. Would it not make a difference if we believed he cared for us? Well, he does, and he would have us rest always in his love.—Margaret Bottome, in Ladies' Home Journal.

A man may seem for a while to be a Christian without really being one. But no one can actually be one long without its becoming apparent. To have clean, honest, happy, trustful hearts, then, hearts which need not shrink from being laid bare to view because God reigns in them—this is the great thing. This, too, is the way to influence others. It is the old familiar truth once more apparent, that to be means far more than to say or even to do; and the nobler and fuller the inward life, the holier and richer are the outward appearance and the fruit of it in example and influence. We need not reveal all the items of personal history, opinion, or feeling; but the underlying principles to which we are loyal we may not hesitate to show forth. We may testify to our love and practice of charity, for instance, without specifying our gifts even of sympathy and consolation. The inward life is the soul's attitude toward God. The outward show is its attitude toward men. The nearer they approach harmony, and even identity, the better.—The Advance.

Bear in mind that your happiness or your misery is very much of your own making. You can not create spiritual sunshine any more than you can create the morning star; but you can put your soul where Christ is shining. Begin every day with God. Keep a clean conscience and a good stock of Bible promises within reach. Keep a strong, robust faith that can draw honey out of a rock and oil out of the flinty rock. Never spend a day without trying to do somebody good; and then, keeping step with your Master, march on toward home over any road, however rough, and against any headwind that blow. It will be all sunshine when we get to heaven, and "there is no night there!"—Theodore Cuyler.

Not one little brown withered leaf falls to the ground on one of the November days but the shape of the plant is changed; so there is not one little act of ours, one whispered prayer that His kingdom may come but becomes a factor in the world's redemption. If I can only place one little golden brick in the pavement of the Lord's highway, I will place it there, that coming generations may walk thereon to the heavenly city.—Phillips Brooks.

You never can tell when God will take a little word you may drop, like an arrow shot at a venture, and cause it to strike some hearer between the joints of the harness and bring him down. Therefore, let no opportunity slip for speaking a word for Christ.—Rev. A. F. Schauffler.

The testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla come from a class of people whose words are worth considering. Many clergymen testify to the value of this medicine. Read this:

"By a severe attack of diphtheria I lost two of my children. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic both for myself and little girl and found it most excellent as a means to restore the impoverished blood to its natural state and as a help to appetite and digestion. I depend upon it when I need a tonic and I find it at once efficacious." REV. C. H. SMITH, Congregational parsonage, Plymouth, Conn.

"AND WHEN THEY SAW THE STAR, THEY REJOICED."

BY MRS. E. L. SHERWOOD.

Shine on! oh Star of Heavenly Light,
Without thy beams we grope in night,
Nor sun, nor moon, nor both combined,
Can pierce the darkness of the mind.

Blinded by self thro' weary years,
While seeking self, we find but tears;
Joy comes unsought when thy bright ray
Reveals to us the Christ, the Way.

O! Magi of the Orient clime,
Your vision fair has thrilled all time,
With glimpses of a Father's face
Whose love is Heaven, whose gift is Peace.

MRS. HENRY BACKUS.

Her life was a beautiful one, and like the fading of the day, it went out without a murmur, without a sigh, without a pain. Sweetly trusting in the Savior she had served for many years, her eyes fixed upon the cross, she passed through the valley of death, leaving a blessing with the loved ones who had watched over her and comforted her in old age. For the past eight years she has been an invalid, but never complained. She loved those dear to her on earth, but loved better that One who had gone to prepare a place for her, and watched and waited for the coming of the summons, only praying that the end be calm and peaceful, without pain. Her death was as sweet as her life. Without an enemy she lived, without an enemy she died. She has gone home to heaven.

Mrs. Backus was seventy-four years old. She was a Miss Annie Gurley. Her father was a well-known citizen of Selma, Ala. She attended school at the academy in Summerfield, and was married to Dr. Backus fifty-seven years ago. Seven children and a number of grandchildren survive her. One of these grandchildren, Miss Daisy Backus, was the idol of her heart. She thought there was no one like "Daisy," and their childish play was something that could hardly be understood. It was love, sweet love, and all else faded before it.

URGE YOURSELF.

There is a strong tendency in quite a large number of people to never undertake certain tasks until they chance to feel in a congenial mood for them. They wait for special "inspirations" as incitements to endeavor. Now, while it is delightful to be in a rapturous mood when one is engaged in a task, it is very unfortunate for one to be governed by the accidents of inspirational tenses. Such a one does not accomplish anything like as much as one does who urges himself to the taking hold of a work which he is capable of doing, whether he feels just like it or the reverse. I have found, in the course of many years of writing for the press, that I have had to especially urge myself to the task of taking up certain subjects, especially for a particular class of papers. It is much more difficult for me to think up subjects which seem suitable for young people's papers than it is to get hold of some general religious theme which would be appropriate for any religious newspaper. I can not allow myself to write at random when I attempt to produce an article for the young people, and especially when writing many of such articles. So I advise my young readers to bring themselves up to the point of downright urgency in the matter of applying themselves to mental tasks which, were it not for such urgency, they would not essay to perform. There is a twofold advantage, at least, in such a course: one is, it increases one's mental strength; the other is, it leads one into happy discoveries of truth, such as would not be revealed to one unless he persisted in exploring into veins of truth which had been formerly sealed against him. One needs to knock hard and repeatedly at the doors of some truths in order to gain admittance to their inner wealth and bright beauty. Do not depend upon your moods for undertaking explorations into the realms of truth. Push forward. —C. H. Wetherbe, in Epworth Era.

What you learn from bad habits and in bad society you will never forget, and it will be a lasting pang to you. I tell you in all sincerity, not in the excitement of speech, but as I would confess and have confessed before God, I would give my right hand if I could forget that which I have learned in bad society.—John B. Gough.

TRUST THOU IN ME.

BY ELLIS MINER HAGGARD.

The way is rough and steep, my child—
The tempests rage, the storms are wild—
Take thou my hand—
And I will lead thee day by day,
Though gloom of night obscures the way
To Canaan's land.

And if thy frightened footsteps fall
In the wild tumult of the gale,
Then call on me!
My arms about thee will enfold,
The way no longer will be cold,
I'll shelter thee.

Trust thou in me, my love surrounds,
And in my Presence joy abounds,
I am thy friend;
When life's brief span shall cease to be
Thou shall in triumph dwell with me,
Time without end.

THE DISCIPLINE OF LIFE.

Sooner or later we find out that life is not a holiday, but a discipline. Earlier or later we will discover that the world is not a play-ground. It is quite clear God means it for a school. The moment we forget that the puzzle of life begins. We try to play in school; the Master does not mind that so much for its own sake, for he likes to see his children happy; but in our playing we neglect our lessons. We do not see how much there is to learn, and we do not care. But our Master cares. He has a perfectly overpowering and inexplicable solicitude for our education; and because he loves us, he comes into the school sometimes and speaks to us. He may speak very softly and gently, or very loudly. Sometimes a look is enough, and we understand it, like Peter, and go out at once and weep bitterly. Sometimes the voice is like a thunder-clap startling a Summer night. But one thing we may be sure of: the task he sets us to is never measured by our delinquency. The discipline may seem far less than our desert, or even to our eye ten times more. But it is not measured by these—it is measured by God's solicitude for our progress; measured solely by God's love; measured solely that the scholar may be better educated when he arrived at his Father. The discipline of life is a preparation for meeting the Father. When we arrive there to behold his beauty, we must have the educated eye; and that must be trained here. We must become so pure in heart—and it needs much practice—that we shall see God. That explains life—why God puts man in the crucible and makes him pure by fire.—Henry Drummond.

FAULT-FINDERS.

Many people have a genius for seeing the faults of others, but there is one peculiarity about this faculty which will be an interesting study for the psychologist; it is the tendency to criticise most sharply those faults in others which are most prominent in ourselves. In other words, that which exerts our greatest antagonism is the duplication of our own traits. It would be amusing, if it were not disturbing and pathetic, to hear people criticise mercilessly traits in others which everybody recognizes as being the special possession of the critics themselves. It is pathetic because it shows how little we know about ourselves, and it is disturbing because it suggests to the listener that he may be doing precisely the same thing. In all probability he is. So little do we know ourselves, as a rule, that when we see parts of ourselves in others we detest them. "If we recognize them as being in a sense our own possessions, we might not like them any better, but we should surely sympathize with their possessors. If there is any common experience which ought to draw us together, it is identity of struggle and temptation. We ought to stand shoulder to shoulder with those who are fighting the same fight which we are fighting, and who find in themselves the same tendencies to evil or to weakness; and yet these are the very people from whom, as a rule, we withdraw ourselves most entirely, and upon whose shoulders the lash of our criticism falls most mercilessly.—Great Thoughts.

"When a boy," said a prominent member of a church, "I was much helped by Bishop Hamline, who visited a house where I was. Taking me aside, the Bishop said: 'When in trouble, my boy, kneel down and ask God's help; but never climb over the fence into the devil's ground, and then kneel down and ask help. Pray from God's side of the fence.'" "Of that," said he, "I have thought every day of my life since." Continuing, he remarked: "Sandford Cobb, the missionary to Persia, helped me in another way. Said he: 'Do you ever feel thankful when God blesses you?' 'Always.' 'Did you ever tell him so?' 'Well, I don't know that I have.' 'Well, try it, my young friend; try it, try it. Tell him so; tell him aloud; tell him so that you will hear it yourself.' That was new revelation. I found that I had only been glad, not grateful. I have been telling him with grateful feelings ever since, to my soul's help and comfort."—Epworth Herald.

Mr. Depew's remarks about the decrease of drunkenness among railroad men indicate an encouraging condition of affairs if true, and we have no doubt of their substantial accuracy. The association has helped to bring a better order of things about. It never has claimed the entire credit. The brotherhoods have aided much. The companies by strict discipline, and the public by more rigid demands, have also helped to raise the standard of manhood. But the work is by no means completed. Drinking is not a lost art. Drunkenness is not a forgotten vice. The tears of wives who suffer and of children who starve are not dry upon their cheeks. Drink with its attendant evils is still the greatest enemy of railroad men. There must continue to be relentless warfare against it by all those who wish to see the moral standard of the railroad men raised.—Railroad Men.

Be resolutely and faithfully what you are, be humbly what you aspire to be. Be sure you give men the best of your wares, though they be poor enough; and the gods will help you to lay up a better store for the future. Man's noblest gift to man is his sincerity; for it embraces his integrity also.—Thoreau.

Man talks to God; that is prayer. God talks with man; that is inspiration. The Hebrews believed both in prayer and in inspiration. They believed that man could talk with God. They believed that God did talk with man.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. Geo. P. White, St. Francisville charge, La., Dec. 29, 1898: "I am glad to say that we are again stationed among our kind and ever-generous people of St. Francisville circuit—i. e., Bayou Sara circuit. This is our second year, and the people proved their kindness to us last year. But again they have endeared themselves to us, and made a new exhibition of their hospitality and generosity. At the close of Xmas-eve Day came one to our door bearing what he called the 'breakables,' saying that more was behind, and soon there stood a wagon drawn by two horses, loaded with Xmas offerings: something for the preacher and ever-faithful wife and the little folks, and something for the horse and cow; flour, sugar, coffee, hams, rice, grits, jellies, preserves, and some cash, and, in fact, everything that would go to make one happy on Xmas Day. Yes, and four turkeys. Mr. Editor, I am glad I was sent back. So my blessing was this: 'Lord, I thank thee for friends, health, strength, appetite, and, above all, for capacity.' I hope many others were rounded as we were. We are now engaged in trying to build a church and parsonage. May the good Lord bless us in our labors during the present year, and may his work prosper at our hands! Dear Editor, we extend you a cordial invitation to come among us during the year."

Rev. H. O. White, Lake Providence, La., Jan. 3, 1899: "I arrived at my work and filled my appointment, morning and night, the first day of the new year, after a trip by railroad of 275 miles, and then by steamboat 65 or 70 miles, at a cost of something over $100. We are comfortably situated in the parsonage; all in good health, and ready to do the best year's work of the thirty-nine that I have spent in the active work in Louisiana. I wish each preacher could be a presiding elder for two or three years, or even eight years, as I have been, and go back to the pastorate and realize how pleasant to have some one to claim them as their preacher."

If life were one long summer day and its journey through a garden of flowers, it might be possible for people to be careless of their health without fearing evil results. Unfortunately, since Adam and Eve were driven from the Garden of Eden, life has not been a toilless journey through a garden of flowers. Man must earn bread by the sweat of his brow, and woman must bring forth children in pain and suffering.

In both cases the curse is multiplied many times over because both men and women neglect their health. Man's toil is rendered a thousand times harder by the added burden of ill-health. The woman is a still greater sufferer. She suffers in silence untold agonies from weakness and disease in a womanly way. Motherhood becomes to her a menace of death, and her babes are born with the seeds of disease already implanted in their little bodies. There is but one unfailing remedy for women who suffer in this way. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs that bear the brunt of maternity. It makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the tortured nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It does away with the trials of the period of apprehension and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. Thousands have testified to its marvelous merits.

"I was afflicted for four years with local weakness, but would not confess it for a time," writes Mrs. Beulah Woodall, of Bateman, Patrick Co., Va., "then I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and they cured me. I cannot praise Dr. Pierce's medicines too much."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to January, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to January, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to February, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP.

One of the most remarkable political campaigns ever carried on in any section of the Union in the interest of honesty and reform was waged recently in Pennsylvania under the leadership of Rev. Dr. S. C. Swallow, the independent candidate for governor. The Keystone State has for some time been under the dominion of a ring of corruptionists and plunderers, who have robbed the people most shamefully. The reform movement, the slogan of which was, "None but honest men for office," was organized to defeat the boodler element, headed by Senator Quay, whose name has become the synonym for political dishonesty. Up to a short time before the election came off there were the strongest indications that Dr. Swallow would carry the State by a large majority, but the Republican party managers fearing defeat, gave it out that unless the Republicans united, there was strong probability of the election of the Democratic candidate. This false rumor, which was circulated with prodigious industry in every nook and corner of the State, had the two fold effect of uniting both the Republicans and the Democrats, and thus largely diminished the vote of the reform ticket.

Dr. Swallow, though defeated by such conscienceless scheming, evidently has in him the elements that make a true reformer. On being asked shortly after the election whether he was out of politics, by way of reply, he inquired: "What right has any American citizen to go out of politics?" Would that this sentiment could find a permanent lodging-place in the breast of every Christian in the land. Every citizen is responsible to the extent of his vote and his influence for the character of the government under which he lives —national, state, and municipal. Everyone is, therefore, under the most sacred obligations to exercise his civic rights faithfully; to do all in his power for the purification of politics and the election of good men to office.

Every section of the Union suffers more or less from political corruption, hoosism, and hoodlerism, the popular notion being that a Christian must not dabble much in politics. This erroneous notion is responsible for much of the rottenness that from time to time is unearthed in governmental affairs. When Christian people turn over the entire management of political affairs to the sons of Belial, is it to be wondered at that they pillage the public and perpetuate themselves in office? Religion should play a no less important part in civil than in industrial life. The Christian who holds himself aloof from political affairs is derelict in duty. While many pursue this course thoughtlessly, or under the influence of false conceptions, more, we are persuaded, do so from sheer cowardice. It oftimes requires a measure of heroism to undertake the task of purifying politics. Good government is not to be had for nothing. Its establishment and perpetuation in a country of free institutions like this demands ceaseless vigilance, aggressiveness and self-sacrifice on the part of every true patriot. Indifference to civic duties and responsibilities is one of the great evils of the day. All would like to enjoy the benefits of good government, but comparatively few are willing to make any sort of sacrifice in order to secure it. Benjamin Kidd uttered a profound truth when he remarked a few years ago that "the great need of this country is civic self-sacrifice." If the virtuous element in our citizenship would assert itself more strongly all over the country, the Augean stables of politics would soon be cleansed, and the reproach that American cities are the worst governed on the globe, save those of China, would be taken away. As the New York Evening Post pertinently says: "This country has never lacked men to die for it—men who are ready without a moment's hesitation, or a sign of reluctance, to lay down their lives; but it has lacked for many years past men who are willing to live for it. It is a great deal easier to die for one's country than to live for it, because dying requires one supreme act of courage, and that is the end of it, but living involves continuous courage, self-sacrifice, patience, and hard work. A Democracy demands that every citizen shall put the interest of the State first, and his own second. If the citizens are willing to do this, Democracy is the best form of government which men have tried; if they are not willing, it is one of the most ineffective and disappointing." These words are worthy of being carefully pondered by everyone who claims to belong to the ranks of good citizenship.

PROMPTNESS IN CHARITY.

Since this section of our Southland is now passing through a period of financial stringency of extraordinary severity, readiness in charity is the pressing duty of the hour. While we are in the midst of times that try men's souls, it must not be forgotten that the lot of the poor will be unusually hard this Winter unless those who have enough and to spare shall generously come to their relief. Because of the widespread business depression and the general distress consequent thereupon, it is peculiarly incumbent upon the rich and the well-to-do to be more liberal in the bestowal of charity than at other times. Seldom has there been a time when so great need of open-handed benevolence and of self-sacrificing sympathy existed. Creditors should be as lenient as possible with their debtors.

It is a sad fact that the harder the times, the more illiberal some who have abundance become. The straitness in business affords them a wished-for excuse to be selfish and stingy to their fellow-men and to the church. Many deliberately shut their eyes to the destitution around them, fancying that, avoiding contact with it, they shall escape responsibility. It is ofttimes as wicked to refuse to see want and suffering as it is to refuse to relieve such when brought to our notice. In every community there are unfortunates and ne'er-do-wells whose path could be smoothed no little if their neighbors would only consider their condition and render slight, but timely aid. Let us remember that the Word of God says: "He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack: but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse."

The present financial distress would be far less grievous than it seems if people would think and talk less about it, and if the more fortunate could be gotten to turn their eyes from their own supposed impecuniosity to the penury and hardships of the really poor, who form so numerous a class everywhere.

Not a few attempt to shirk doing what they ought for the relief of their needy neighbors on the ground that others are better able to help than they are. Be this as it may, every Christian must share in the work of benevolence according to ability, or be but sounding brass. "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" Should our ability be limited to the giving of so insignificant a thing as a cup of cold water, let us give that in the name of the Lord, saying, in heart at least, to our brother with whom we share some blessing, "Thy need is greater than mine." Heaven-sent opportunities of benevolence are all about us if we will but recognize them.

Not infrequently men ask God to do for his work and for the poor what they ought to do themselves. Such asking is sinful presumption. When a rich man in a Chicago noon meeting asked the audience to pray that God would help a needy mission to a needed building, Mr. Moody, who was in charge, said quickly: "Brother, I would not bother the Lord with that. I would do it myself."

How great is the suffering often produced by delayed generosity! Some people are always going to help the needy, but they never do it until the last moment, and hence are criminally neglectful. There is no little force in the saying that "he gives twice who gives quickly." Do not wait until your fellow-man is ready to perish from cold and hunger before ministering to his needs. Do not delay giving him a word of encouragement until he is ready to despair from loneliness and lack of sympathy. Do not put off visiting your sick neighbor until he is altogether at the gates of death, and the relatives are worn out with watching, but go promptly, and act the part of a ministering angel.

While such trying times are upon us, let us show ourselves "ready to distribute, willing to communicate." The need of free-flowing charity is urgent. Let us act now.

SOME SURPRISING STATISTICS.

The following table gives the number of deaths in this city from all causes since 1870, and also the population for each year. The mortuary figures are taken from official records. The population figures are based upon the U. S. Census except for the years since 1890. Most persons resident here regard our estimate of the present population as an underestimate. The figures for '70, '80 and '90 are taken from the U. S. Census. Those for intervening years are computed on the theory that the rate of increase is uniform for the years in a census decade.

	Deaths.	Population.
'71	6,059	193,890
'72	6,122	196,367
'73	7,505	198,817
'74	6,798	201,321
'75	6,117	203,798
'76	6,257	206,275
'77	6,708	208,752
'78	10,318	211,229
'79	5,122	213,706
'80	5,623	216,190
'81	6,400	218,774
'82	5,922	221,358
'83	7,523	223,942
'84	7,150	226,526
'85	6,673	229,110
'86	6,221	231,694
'87	6,075	234,278
'88	6,301	236,862
'89	6,075	239,446
'90	7,238	242,039
'91	6,856	245,534
'92	7,499	249,029
'93	7,156	252,524
'94	6,843	256,019
'95	8,045	259,514
'96	7,594	263,009
'98	6,826	270,000

By inspecting this table, it will be seen that in '97 and '98, when the city was supposed to be in the midst of a fearful epidemic, the number of deaths was smaller than in any year since 1890. This without regard to population. But in order that the exact truth may be known, it is necessary to consider the question of population. The population at present is estimated at 270,000. In 1890 the population was 242,039. If the death-rate had been as high in '98 as in '90, then the total number of deaths would have been 8,062 instead of 6,826—a difference of 1,236. If the death-rate had been as high in '98 as in 1870, then the total number of deaths would have been 10,421 instead of 6,826—a difference of 3,595

What is true of the years specified is true of each year since 1870, with one exception, viz., 1879. In other words, the terrible epidemic years of '97 and '98 show a less percentage of mortality than any years since 1870 with one single exception. Truly, "Truth is stranger than fiction."

TWENTIETH CENTURY EDUCATION FUND—FIRST GIFT.

The "Twentieth Century Education Fund," I am glad to report, is already launched in Mississippi. In advance of any plans adopted by the Boards of Education of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, for a thorough canvass of the field, a good lady this day gives me a check for five hundred dollars. This makes one thousand dollars this generous friend of education has given within a year. I have no words to express my appreciation of the timely gift—the first in Mississippi toward a fitting memorial for the signal mercies of God upon our great church during the past one hundred years. May we not hope that Mississippi will give not less than $85,000 to this Twentieth Century Fund?

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 9, 1899.

The above from the pen of Bishop Galloway was received just before going to press. This being the case, we have no room to exhort after him; otherwise we would do so.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

With more than sixty other preachers in the Conference, this writer has moved his family during the past month; but, unlike the others, he has had no Board of Stewards, committee, or other church officials, to aid in making the transition, to have the parsonage ready, the supper prepared, the larder filled, and the formal hearty greeting extended. Nevertheless, after much toil and fatigue, we are in our own newly-hired house, and are receiving many brotherly and sisterly greetings, and are being made to feel that we have a cordial welcome to citizenship among the good people of Winona. May our newly-formed relations prove to be mutually pleasant and profitable.

Being thus more centrally located, and at the crossing of the "Illinois Central" and "Southern Railway" lines, I am more favorably situated for the promotion of the work assigned me than heretofore, and I hope the advantage thus afforded will result in greater efficiency in the service.

Favorable reports are being heard from various pastors in their new charges.

"Gilderoy" has gone from the "bottom to the top of Tallahatchie river," as he expresses it, and is happy in his new field.

Bro. Bowen begins well in Columbus. He writes: "The people have given us a good Christian welcome. The services twice a day during Christmas week were successful. Good was done. We are much encouraged by the outlook. The League has increased fifty per cent. Dr. Boiling did a great work here, and the people stand by me in all the work." There will evidently be a lively time in the "old town" this year.

Bro. Park has captured Rosedale. He says: "On our arrival we found conveyances waiting, parsonage ready, larder filled, and everything done to make our welcome warm and coming comfortable." Now, if those people will open their hearts for the divine message as they have for the messenger, great spiritual good will come to them under the ministry of their worthy and consecrated pastor.

Dr. Sullivan is making a good impression as a cultured Christian gentleman and able minister of the gospel upon the intelligent, thinking and devout ones in Kosciusko. His ministry and pastorate will, doubtless, be a great blessing to that people.

Bro. Shipman begins the work on the Winona district earnestly, and, with proper co-operation on the part of preachers and people, he will do good service. We do not hesitate to bespeak the same for the other new presiding elders.

I have just read "Doctrinal Tract, by Rev. C. McDonald, of the Mississippi Conference," and pronounce it good. It deserves circulation and reading. Send five cents to the author, or to myself, for it.

Persons ordering books and all correspondents will note my change of address to Winona, Miss., and govern themselves accordingly.

Please send me at once all dues on last year's account, and orders for books and Sunday-school supplies for this year. Many brethren have expressed appreciation of these "Notes," and desire for their continuance. These expressions are gratifying indeed, and I will be pleased to write occasionally when there is something worthy of note. To this end, brethren, write me what you know and what you are doing that is of interest. And write yourselves to our Conference organ, and keep it filled with fresh and inspiring matter. Happy New Year to everybody. And may this year be one of unprecedented success in every department of our church work!

G. W. BACHMAN.

Winona, Miss., Jan 6, 1899.

A WISE FRIENDLY ADMONITION.

If we believe some people and some evangelists and some editors, we speedily arrive at the dismal and damaging conclusion—at which many infidels and irreligious people are arriving—that nobody in the church is any good, or anywhere near right in anything, but their own dear wise, thoroughly-saved selves. Now let such people go to the altar, and be saved from their all-consuming self-sufficiency and lynx-eyed suspiciousness. Then we will begin to come round about right.—Christian Standard.

DEPARTED.

My wife's only brother—J. H. Martin—crossed the dark river this sixth instant, after an illness of upwards of seven weeks. Feared no evil. Brethren, pray for us.

J. H. BROWN.

Garnville, La.

We sympathize with our brother in his bereavement.

The great object of religion is not to prepare people to die, but to prepare people to live. If people live right, they will die right.—Standard.

We hope all our subscribers who are in arrears will pay up as early as possible.

NOTES.

Rev. A. T. Buck has made a good beginning for '99 at Sallis, Miss.

Rev. J. A. Leech has made an auspicious beginning at Minter City, Miss.

Dr. C. W. Carter let the light of his genial face shine into our sanctum recently.

A reception will be given to Dr. and Mrs. LaPrade at Rayne Memorial Church on Friday night, the thirteenth.

We are pleased to learn that Rev. H. W. May has made an excellent beginning at Amite City, La. The outlook is hopeful.

Dr. J. W. Price has met a very cordial reception from the Methodists of Holly Springs, Miss. The outlook is decidedly encouraging.

An intelligent, cultured brother, in renewing his subscription, speaks of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE as "the best paper in the South."

In our write-up of the Mississippi Conference we failed to make mention of an excellent Sunday-school address by Rev. T. B. Holloman.

Bishop Galloway will leave home on Friday, the thirteenth, for Texas, where he will remain for a month, conducting an educational campaign. Thence he goes to Virginia.

In speaking of the sermons preached at the Hattiesburg Conference, we failed to mention one by Rev. J. T. Nicholson. We heard it highly commended by those who heard it.

Dr. W. H. LaPrade has been royally received by the congregation at Rayne Memorial. The people are delighted with his ministrations, and he begins the year under the most favorable auspices.

A pastor, writing from his new charge, says: "This is a hard place, but, by the help of God, we will make it a good one during the next four years." This is genuine Methodism. Just that sort of a spirit in the rank and file of our itinerant hosts has made Methodism what it is.

From a private letter from President I. W. Cooper, of Centenary College, we quote as follows: "New pupils are coming in every day. Our pastor, Rev. F. S. Parker, has captured everything in his pathway. He is one of the finest preachers in Southern Methodism. We are arranging a Bible course for Centenary, and Bro. Parker will have charge of it."

Rev. E. N. Evans began his ministry at Carondelet with a prayer meeting service on Wednesday night, the fourth. He made an excellent talk, appropriate to the occasion. The attendance was quite good, and after the service an informal reception was given, affording everybody an opportunity to get acquainted with the pastor and his family. His sermon on Sunday made an impression which is prophetic of a successful pastorate.

In the account of the Mississippi Conference proceedings, last week, by inadvertence the number of Epworth League members was put at 16,000, and the number of chapters at 500. The sentence should have read: "There has been an increase of 16,000 Epworth League members and 500 chapters since Sept. 1." There are now in fact upwards of 250,000 League members and 5,000 Epworth League chapters in Southern Methodism.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

Let the Louisiana Leaguers look for a good time at Crowley in the Spring.

To make the meeting a success, it will be necessary for each Leagner to play his or her part by planning to attend, and by praying for the special blessing of God upon the Conference.

It would be well for the Executive Committee to begin now to select topics, and persons to lead discussion of same, that plenty of time may be given for prayerful study and careful preparation.

It was our privilege to spend Christmas with the Methodists of Lake Charles, and during the visit to address the senior Epworth League. They also have a Junior League. Good things are reported of the Leaguers thereabouts.

The Christmas number of the Epworth Era was an extra neat and attractive edition. Dr. DuBose is making a great success of the paper. Its circulation continues to increase daily.

Rev. R. L. Honiker, pastor of St. Matthew's Church, Jacksonville, Fla., is editor of the Epworth League department of the Florida Christian Advocate. He is described by Dr. DuBose as a capital gentleman and a lovable brother.

We are glad to note the reorganization of the Port Gibson College League. We note the name of Miss E. M. Hartwell as president, and whom we remember as one of the efficient Leaguers at Wood Street, Water Valley.

Ere these notes appear in the ADVOCATE, the new year, with its privileges and responsibilities, will have been ushered in. Let us ask God to forgive us for our indifference and unfaithfulness in the past, and then press more earnestly than ever "toward the mark for the prize."

Many who beheld the brightness of the morning rays of 1898 have heard the summons, and have crossed to the other side. We hope to meet them some sweet day by and by.

The editor of this department wishes the Leaguers in Mississippi and Louisiana a Happy New Year, and desires to join them in fervent prayer for a fullness of power as necessary for the work which confronts us in the coming days.

The Louisiana Leaguers will please note change of postoffice address of Rev. P. O. Lowrey (treasurer) from Farmerville to Shreveport, La.

We would be glad to know from those who have charge of affairs exact time of meeting of the Louisiana League Conference at Crowley.

We are glad to give space in our department this week to Mississippi notes from Miss Vic Thompson, Tupelo, Miss., who is corresponding secretary and treasurer of the State League Conference.

LEAGUE NOTES.

[Cleaned from State Correspondence.]

BY MISS VIC THOMPSON, TUPELO, MISS., CORRESPONDING SECRETARY AND TREASURER.

Now is the time to begin to talk up our fifth State League Conference, which is to convene at West Point, May 18-21.

Central Church League, at Meridian, has bought fourteen sets of the Reading Course for 1898-'99. There is no more certain sign of a progressive League.

Dr. DuBose has promised to attend our State Conference, and efforts will be made to secure Bishop Candler; Joe Ramsey, of Tennessee; John R. Pepper, of Memphis; Bishop Galloway, and Mr. Hemphill, the Texas singer, who has offered to take charge of the music.

The Corinth Epworth League is reported to have taken on new life under the president in charge, Miss Sallie Kilpatrick, and with Bro. T. W. Lewis as pastor. I'm sure they will make things move.

The Holly Springs League is the only League not having a representative at the Meridian Conference, which has voluntarily paid two shares on our special fund.

Do you want your Leaguers to renew their zeal and energy for the Master's cause? Then take them in a body to the West Point Conference in May.

MISSIONS AND ORPHANS' HOME.

A determined effort is now necessary on the part of the district secretaries, the League presidents, and the Missionary Committees, in order to redeem the pledge made at the Meridian Conference for Dr. and Mrs. Fearn and the Water Valley Orphans' Home. I trust that immediate steps will be taken to push this matter vigorously during the month of January. It will never do for us to meet in the State Conference, on the eighteenth of next May, without redeeming this pledge; so now is the time for us to take up this work in earnest. I have received $75 during the month of December, making a total of $387 already paid. While this is an improvement on the preceding months, still we must do a great deal more each month in order to meet this pledge. Let us arouse ourselves, and see that $200, at least, is forthcoming during the month of January. I trust that no League, that can possibly do more, will stop at either one or two shares. As yet only the Greenville; First Church, Jackson; Holly Springs, Corinth, and the Carrollton Leagues have paid two shares. What League will be next to pay two shares?

"All for Christ."

VIC THOMPSON, Sec. and Treas.

OUR KENTUCKY CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. EDITOR: While the savans of New York are discussing whether la grippe is infectious or contagious, and the terrified Knickerbockers are organizing their quarantines against the plague, the busy little bacillus, rapidly propagated by our slovenly arts, or transformed by frequent and violent changes of our thermometer, goes steadily on with his work, and shakes the continent with his ravages. My wife, two children and myself are just escaping from his mandibles, though confined to our room by weather that last night sent the mercury into the bulb.

Change of appointment and new domestic conditions are responsible for my failure recently to get your paper promptly, but the last two issues came to-night, and were eagerly devoured article by article and item by item. Rev. F. S. Parker's report of the Conference proceedings was most delightful. As was once said of his brilliant father by Bishop Keener, I may be allowed to say of his gifted son, Gerald, "There's a great deal of fine butter in that brain, if he will consent to churn it but a little." I read with consuming interest the appointments of the Louisiana Conference.

A CORNER-STONE LAID.

One of the most impressive services ever witnessed by the people of our lovely little city was that which took place on Christmas Day at 3:30 P. M. At that hour the corner-stone of the Moore Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was laid in the presence of a large assembly of our citizens. After an appropriate hymn by the choir, the prayer was read by Rev. J. B. Stone, and Rev. W. S. Shipman, presiding elder of the Winona district, read the lesson. The pastor, Rev. Geo. H. Lipscomb, announced the contents of the box to be deposited in the corner-stone, viz.: A copy of the Bible, the Discipline, the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, the Nashville Advocate, the Epworth Era, Sunday-School Magazine, the Illustrated Lesson Paper, Little People, The Children's Visitor, a book in which is written a short history of the new church, giving a list of members of the church, the number and state of the Sunday-school and societies of the church. Also a list of all who had made any contribution toward the erection of the building, the name of building committee, architect and builders, a copy of the Winona Times in which is a picture and account of the building; a picture of Col. O. J. Moore, with newspaper notices of his death; the resolutions passed by the Sunday-school at the time of his death; a notice of the death of his wife, Mrs. Rebecca N. Moore; the statistical report of the church for 1898; a copy of the contract; a list of workmen on the building Dec. 24, 1898; a $100 Confederate note presented by Jules Blackwell, and other things of minor importance.

After reading the above the box was deposited in the stone with these words: "We lay this corner-stone of a house to be built and set apart, from all worldly uses, for divine worship, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The vault was then cemented, and after another hymn the benediction was pronounced.

Winona, and Winona Methodists in particular, will long rejoice at the very mention of Dec. 25, 1898, because of this happy occasion.—Winona Times.

The issue of the Winona Times, from which the above is taken, contains a cut of the new building, which will be one of the handsomest church edifices in the State. It is fitting that this architectural gem should bear the name of that honored layman who was so long connected with our church in Winona, Col. O. J. Moore. We congratulate Bro. Lipscomb and his enterprising flock.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP WILL SAVE the life of your child when attacked by croup. Mothers, this remedy never fails to cure.

MINDEN, LA.

I arrived with my mother, sister, and little brother last evening. Came thirteen hundred and sixty miles from Laurel, Md., in the Baltimore Conference. The good people here gave me a hearty reception. The presiding elder and Official Board met yesterday and made Minden a station. Bro. Crews has secured a young man for the country work. Parsonage was ready for myself and family. Will preach of first sermon next Sabbath to this people.

Pray for us! Let us into your hearts, brethren of the Louisiana Conference; for "we are brethren." It is my desire to identify myself thoroughly with the work in this Conference.

PAINT TALKS—XII.

CAUSES OF THE DESTRUCTION OF PAINTS.

There is no paint that does not look well when it is new. The poorest mixture produced looks bright, glossy and clean when it is fresh from the brush. But rain and snow, wind and sun quickly test the quality of paints. The best paints will still look quite respectable at the end of five or eight years; the poorest begin to look shabby at the end of as many months. What is the cause of this difference?

Briefly stated, with very few exceptions, the lasting paints are compounded with pure linseed oil and contain a goodly percentage of zinc white, while the fading, crumbling, discoloring paints contain materials which destroy the oil and are based on pigments which are themselves not permanent.

If a paint darkens, loses its gloss and begins to grow "chalky" after a short time, it is probably a pure white lead paint; if its colors fade or change in the sunlight, it is either colored with aniline dyes, or it is a white lead paint tinted with one of the many colors that are destroyed by lead; if it "deadens" or "flattens" and begins to peel and chip off, it probably contains an alkali which has destroyed the linseed oil, or a mineral oil which has evaporated; if it shows cracks like the lines on a checker-board, the painter has probably been at fault in not allowing sufficient time for the under coat to dry before applying the next; and if it shows blisters, one or more of the coats have probably been applied in damp weather or at a time when the air was saturated with moisture.

But there is another cause for the destruction of paints which, though seldom taken into account, is very important, and that is the action of the dust, sand, etc., carried by the wind. If we have two paints, one of which retains its glossy surface, while the other becomes dull and powdery, we shall find that the latter collects and retains dust while the other remains comparatively clean, and that of the two the dull surface will be worn away much more rapidly than the glossy coating. The reason for this is that the glossy surface is elastic, while the dull surface is brittle; the wind-borne dust acts like a sand blast, and cuts away the brittle surface, while upon the elastic surface it makes no impression. Remembering that pure white lead paints always lose their gloss and become dry and powdery in a very short time, while paints containing zinc retain their gloss indefinitely, it is easy to understand one of the reasons why a combination paint based on zinc is more durable than other paints. The additional reasons are the greater stability of zinc white itself, and its superior oil-carrying capacity; for it should never be forgotten that so long as the oil endures the paint will remain good and sound, but when the oil is gone the paint crumbles and washes away.

The most lasting paint is the most economical. The combination paints usually cost less and cover more surface per pound than the so-called "strictly pure" paints, and they last fully fifty per cent. longer; therefore the paint consumer will see that it will profit him to insist that the paint used on his buildings shall be based on zinc white and that it shall be mixed only with pure linseed oil and the necessary driers—the less of the latter the better for the paint.

A CALENDAR THAT STAYS.

The calendar crop is never short, as the postoffice people will testify. We always get our share, and begin the new year with a great assortment, but the one we select "for keeps" is that of N. W. Ayer & Son, the keeping-everlastingly-at-it advertising men of Philadelphia. This one spends the whole year in our company. It is a piece of fine printing, but its good looks do not constitute its sole charm. It is clear and plain. While they last, a copy can be obtained postpaid by sending 25 cents to the publishers.

A Ragged Coat and An Empty Pocket Changes the Aspect of the World.

Walter Wycoff, a student of social problems, abandoned his station in life and assumed the garb of daily toiler, taking his place among grimy handed workers in order to test the change. A MALARIA POISONED LIVER will also cause as great a change in physical life. Sunshine will leave the face. The eye loses its sparkle; while the skin assumes a dull copper tint. These are least of the evils and merely bespeak the external cry that Nature gives when battling with Malaria germs. Headache, Nausea, dullness of thought, pain in the back and side, a coated tongue, a horrible taste, are among the danger signals which if unheeded portend CONGESTION, CONVULSIONS, SUPPRESSION OF SECRETIONS AND TERMINATION OF LIFE.

Far easier than the solution of the social problem is the remedy for Malaria—DICKS' CHILLIFUGE absolutely exterminates it. A Few Doses, and health spreads her wings over the grateful system, and the sun shines once more, while life is worth the living.

"BLESSED ARE THEY THAT MOURN."

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

Deem not that they are blest alone
Whose days a peaceful tenor keep:
The anointed Son of God makes known
A blessing for the eyes that weep.

The light of smiles shall fill again
The lids that overflow with tears;
The weary hours of woe and pain
Are promises of happier years.

There is a day of sunny rest
For every dark and troubled night:
And grief may bide an evening guest,
But joy shall come with early light.

Nor let the good man's trust depart,
Though life its common gifts deny,
Though with a pierced and broken heart,
And spurned of men, he goes to die.

For God has marked each sorrowing day,
And numbered every secret tear;
And heaven's long age of bliss shall pay
For all his children suffer here.

ACTING A LIE.

Dolly had been told never to meddle with a beautiful vase that stood on a bracket over the piano. "It will break very easily," her mother said. Now, Dolly had an intense desire to take the vase down and examine it—probably because she had been told not to do so. One day, when she was alone, she made up her mind to gratify her curiosity. She took the vase down without breaking it, but on trying to put it back the bracket slipped off its nail, and the vase fell to the floor, and was broken into a dozen pieces. Dolly was frightened. As she stood there trying to think her way out of the dilemma her kitten came into the room.

"I'll shut Spotty into the room, and mama'll think she did it," decided Dolly, "and Spotty can't tell."

So the kitten was shut up in the parlor, and when Dolly's mother came home she found Spotty there, and the vase broken.

"Do you s'pose Spotty did it?" asked Dolly.

"I think she must have done so," answered her mother. "You don't know anything about it, do you?"

Dolly pretended that she didn't hear the question, and got out of the room as soon as possible. That night she couldn't sleep. "You lied," something said to her. "No, I didn't," she said. "I didn't say I didn't break it." "But you might just as well have said so," the voice of conscience told her. "If you didn't tell a lie, you acted one, and that's just as bad as telling one."

Dolly stood it as long as she could. She got up and went to her mother's bed.

"Mama, I broke the vase," she sobbed out. "I thought if I acted a lie, you wouldn't find out about it, but I can't sleep for thinking that God knows, if you don't."—Christian Intelligencer.

HOW TO FILL THE LIFE-PLAN.

It may often be hard to learn what God's plan is for our future, but there will generally be no difficulty in finding what it is for to-day. If we fulfill his plan day by day, we shall fill the life-plan at last.

"Do you think that will please me?" said a gentleman to a little bootblack who had shined his boots with unusual thoroughness. The boy replied: "I think it will please my father." "Where is your father?" "In heaven." "Poor boy; when did he die?" "My father is not dead. My father in heaven is God," "Do you think it will please God that you have done a good job on my boots?" "Oh, yes; God is pleased whenever we do the best we can." He was making a success of life more truly than many in higher stations not doing their best.

I do not much believe in the regulation school committee speech that stimulates every boy to rise out of his social class to be a president or a millionaire. The world is full of failures, men who went up like rockets and came down like sticks. Better to urge each one to contented faithfulness in his lot and place. In any case, "The best way to rise out of a lowly position is to be conspicuously useful in it." But

"Some must follow, and some must lead,
Though all be made of clay."

Let us do all we can to magnify what are commonly regarded as lowly offices. Let the tailor be a "Pantaloon Artist;" the livery, a "Hotel de Horse;" the cobbler's shop, a "Hospital for Refractory Shoes;" the barber's shop, "Tonsorial Parlors;" and let the organ blower be the "Assistant Organist." You remember the case where one such compelled the boasting organist to say "we" by refusing otherwise to blow, and the other one who said, "I can pump any tune that organist can play."

"All are needed by each one,
Nothing is good or fair alone."

There is one glory of the sun, another glory of the moon, another glory of the stars, for one star differeth from another star in glory. "Every man's life is a plan of God." We are to fulfill that plan, to fill it full of light and life. Its best definition of success is enfolded in those words of Christ, "She hath done what she could." Neither man nor God can say anything greater of a man than this, "He hath done what he could."—Success.

KEEP A CLEAN MOUTH.

A distinguished author says: "I resolved, when I was a child, never to use a word which I could not pronounce before my mother." He kept his resolution, and became a pure-minded, noble, honored gentleman. His rule and example are worthy of imitation.

Boys readily learn a class of low, vulgar words and expressions which are never heard in respectable circles. Of course, we can not think of girls as being so much exposed to this peril. We can not imagine a decent girl using words she would not utter before her father or mother.

Such vulgarity is thought by some boys to be "smart," the "next thing to swearing," and yet "not so wicked;" but it is a habit which leads to profanity, and fills the mind with evil thoughts. It vulgarizes and degrades the soul, and prepares the way for many of the gross and fearful sins which now corrupt society.

Young readers, keep your mouth free from all impurity, and your "tongue from evil;" but in order to do this, ask Jesus to cleanse your heart, and keep it clean, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."—The Standard.

TAKE THE TIME.

Let us take time for reading. It will never come if we wait to have every piece of work finished, and every speck of dirt removed from each article we use. We can always find something else to do, and conscientious housekeepers, with little taste for mental pursuits, are apt to make a great blunder. "The life is more than meat, and the body than raiment," which means—if I may be allowed to preach a wee bit of a sermon—that you yourself, with all your immortal faculties, are of vastly more importance than your house and furniture and clothing and cookery; and these are utterly worthless if they serve as hindrances instead of helps to your individual human culture.

No kind of labor is degrading if done from a worthy motive, and no motive can be nobler than the womanly desire to make a pleasant home. With this end in view—with love as a prompter, washing and darning and scrubbing are all elevated from drudgery to a nobler sphere. But our homes can not be properly attractive and profitable to our families if we ourselves are dull and harassed. Our brothers and fathers and husbands and sons need cheerful and intelligent companions at home far more than they need nice dinners and spotless linen. It is necessary that good home-makers and keepers should read and reflect and listen and converse.—Selected.

LIFE'S LITTLE DAYS.

One secret of a sweet and happy Christian life is learning to live by the day. It is the long stretches that tire us. We think of life as a whole, running on for us. We can not carry this load until we are threescore and ten. We can not fight this battle continually for half a century. But really there are no long stretches. Life does not come to us all at one time; it comes only a day at a time. Even to-morrow is never ours till it becomes to-day, and we have nothing whatever to do with it but to pass down to it a fair and a good inheritance in to-day's work well done and to-day's life well lived.

It is a blessed secret, this of living by the day. Anyone can carry his burden, however heavy, till nightfall. Anyone can do his work, however hard, for one day. Anyone can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly, purely, till the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever really means to us—just one little day. "Do to-day's duty; fight to-day's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you can not see, and could not understand if you saw them." God gives us nights to shut down the curtain of darkness on our little days. We can not see beyond. Short horizons make life easier, and give us one of the blessed secrets of brave, true, holy living.—British Weekly.

WORK AND WORRY.

"Studying too hard," "overworked," are charged with many deaths, but, in the majority of cases, most unjustly. Trouble kills, but it is a very rare thing for a man to think himself to death, unless his thoughts are intimately connected with something painful and distressing. Study is a boon to the student. He would rather study than eat. The greatest students have lived long and happily to fourscore and beyond.

Thought is to the brain what exercise is to the physical constitution; it keeps the channels of life clear, the blood vessels unobstructed, and the vital fluid courses along them, distributing newness of life and vigor of action to the latest hours of existence, while the want of thought brings starvation to the circulation and causes man to drivel and sleep in old age—dead as to everything except eating and dozing and cowering over the fire.

Men may study hard, and after fifty may study with comfort and advantage for five, ten and fifteen hours day after day; and if the studies are pleasurable, they promote the general well-being of the system, both physical and mental, only if abundant sleep is had, with a regular supply of simple and nourishing food, sitting down to meals in pleasant moods and allowing a good half-hour before study is resumed.

Many of our literary men die prematurely, not from overstudy, but from depressing mental states and irregular or excessive eating and drinking. It is high pressure and constant tension, rather than steady, continuous labor of body or mind, which hurries multitudes to their graves years before their time. With all haste there is impatience, solicitude, worry. In the present age we rfea that everything is sacrificed to "hurry."—Public Health Journal.

A courteous disposition becomes the elect of God; for the design of the gospel is not only to soften the minds of men, but to sweeten them, and to promote friendship among men, as well as reconciliation with God.

Do You Get Up with a Lame Back?

Do You Have Rheumatism or Neuralgia?

Are You Sleepless, Nervous, Irritable?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

SWAMP-ROOT IS THE GREAT REMEDY FOR KIDNEY, BLADDER AND URIC ACID TROUBLES—TO PROVE ITS WONDERFUL MERITS, EVERY CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE READER MAY HAVE A SAMPLE BOTTLE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE BY MAIL.

Well people have healthy kidneys.

You are in no danger of being sick if you keep your kidneys well.

They filter your blood, keep it pure and free from disease-breeding germs.

Your other organs may need care, but your kidneys most, because they do most.

If you are sick, begin with your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The treatment of some diseases may be delayed without danger, not so with kidney disease.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is a genuine specific with wonderful healing action on the kidneys.

It will be found by both men and women just what is needed in all cases of kidney and bladder disorders; lame back, dull pain or ache in the back, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of neglected kidney trouble.

Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold water and promptly overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

The way to be well is to pay attention to your kidneys.

To take Swamp-Root when you are suffering from clogged kidneys.

This prompt, mild and wonderful remedy is easy to get at the drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles.

To prove its merits you may have a sample bottle, and a book telling more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a free sample bottle, and to kindly mention the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE when sending their addresses to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

THE OLD AND YOUNG.

I can conceive of few sadder things in old age than being without younger persons who love us enough to correct us. Yes—correct us, neither more nor less than that. Not rudely of course, nor impertinently, nor in a nagging, disrespectful way, as disagreeable in the manner of the mother to the child as of the child to the mother; but who will correct us in a way which, violating no law of good breeding or courtesy, can yet keep us up to our own best mark.

For the tendency of many of us, when seventy is reached, is to let ourselves go to pieces. We can call it "resting on our oars," or describe it with as picturesque a set of symbols as we choose. But, for all that, a man or woman comes to one of the great critical periods of life about the time that age is reached. They can then either sink under existing conditions, let every encroachment of age have its way, excusing themselves on the plea of years for every failure to meet them gracefully, or they can readjust themselves to the changes years have wrought, and with renewed spirit go on, still young and still attractive, because still growing and still alive.

And certainly the most adorable old people are the old people who have met age in the latter way, and who have kept themselves alive to the criticisms and suggestions of the young. "Have your children told you yet that you turn out your toes?" said one middle-aged parent, laughing, to another. His daughter saved him. For all children, when just grown, become absorbed in their parents—it is a mark of their affection—and they are more sensitive to their failures, peculiarities or virtues than to those of all the rest of the world. And certainly no sweeter sight is to be found than that of young girls who are interested in their father's cravat, the latest cut of his vest, or his looking his very best on all occasions. For though our fathers and mothers bring us up, when a certain period is passed we turn about, in all well-regulated families, and return the compliment. The young educate the old as surely as once the old trained them, and the really fascinating old person is one who has submitted to the process.—Harper's Bazar.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

RIGHT AND WRONG USE OF THE TONGUE.

The slue of the tongue all point to the necessity and profit of self-mastery. So evident and so important did this appear to James that it occurs again and again in his epistle. "In many things we all stumble," he writes. If any stumble not in word, the same is a perfect man, able to bridle the whole body also." If this confession of failure and magnifying of the office of the tongue seem exaggerated, let anyone sit down quietly and think of the sins and cruelties of human speech. The careless words which no repentance can call back again, the rash promises which it has cost us so much to fulfill, the expression of the lower nature which has shamed the higher, the confessions of evil and yieldings to falsehood, the hot and angry words which sober thought condemned—these are some of the perils of the tongue.

On the other hand, like most of the uses of the world which turn so easily to evil, the tongue may be the instrument of great and lasting good. "Therewith bless we the Lord and Father." If we can, by God's grace, hold it to blessing, there is no better testimony to the indwelling of God's Spirit in a human soul than righteous, considerate, modest, truthful speech. The faithful Christian's manner of words, as well as of life, already has the mark of heaven's purity and truth upon it. Speaking the truth in love, men trust him. Seeking not his own, men come to speak unselfishly in his presence. Considering others, they in turn become considerate. Cherishing no resentments, he awakens no angry feelings. Such a Christian self-control is not easily attained, but it is worth striving for, and by God's help it is not out of reach.—The Congregationalist.

THE POWER OF FORGIVENESS.

The power of forgiveness, even for an offense against human law, is well illustrated in the following incident:

A soldier was about to be brought before his commanding officer for some offense. He was an old offender, and had often been punished. "Here he is again," said the officer, on his name being mentioned; "flogging, disgrace, solitary confinement, everything has been tried with him." Whereupon the sergeant stepped forward, and, apologizing for the liberty, said, "There is one thing which has never been done with him yet, sir."

"What is that?" said the officer.

"Well, sir," said the sergeant, "he has never been forgiven."

"Forgiven!" exclaimed the colonel, surprised at the suggestion. He reflected a few minutes, ordered the culprit to be brought in, and asked him what he had to say to the charge.

"Nothing, sir," was the reply; "only I am sorry for what I have done."

Turning a kind and pitiful look on the man, who expected nothing else than that his punishment would be increased with the repetition of his offense, the colonel addressed him saying:

"Well, we have tried everything with you, and now we have resolved to forgive you."

The soldier was struck dumb with amazement; the tears started in his eyes, and he wept like a child. He was bumbled to the dust, and, thanking his officer, he retired—to be the old, refractory, incorrigible man? No!—from that day forward he was a new man. He who told the story had him for years under his eye, and a better conducted man never wore the Queen's colors.—Exchange.

OBITUARIES.

GRISWOLD—Prof. LYMAN GRISWOLD was born May 19, 1829, in Easton, Md.; married to Miss M. Amanda Lawrence in Bossier parish, La., Nov. 6, 1870, and died in Cooper, Texas, Nov 8, 1898.

Teaching school was his life-work. He made an ideal president, holding the reins with a firm grasp, yet ever mindful of the rights of even the smallest child in school. He bent his energies to his profession, and many prosperous business men in the South can testify to his worth as an instructor.

About two years ago he fell and broke a leg, since which time he has been a confirmed invalid and great sufferer, which resulted in death.

He was a loyal member of the M. E. Church, South, always ready to support its institutions and work for the advancement of the cause of Christ. He loved the song service, and often have I seen him melted to tenderness and tears when he heard the songs he loved: "There is rest for the weary," and "Coma bear me away on your snowy wings." He had a great, loving heart, always glad to do good for others; generous almost to a fault, often depriving himself of necessities to relieve the needs of friends and enemies. But his life-work is finished; his pure spirit has been wafted on angel wings to his reward in heaven.

He leaves a wife and two children, who sorrow for the absence of their loved one; but, although there is a vacant couch in their home and a void in their hearts that can not be filled, they would not call him back to earth, for they, too, have learned to say, "Thy will be done." M. A. LAWRENCE.

GUTHRIE—Mrs. ANNA E. GUTHRIE was born Aug. 2, 1848; died Oct. 8, 1898; married J. L. Guthrie near old Trenton, La., in 1868. Her maiden name was Noble. She joined our church when thirteen years old. Her remains were carried to Farmerville, and rest beside those of her husband and three little children.

For years a resident of Ruston, she had moved back to her plantation on Island De Siard, to remain with her sons. She returned to visit her kindred and friends; was smitten by fatal disease. She suffered much and long, but manifested patience and resignation, ever expressing her unwavering faith in God. She was true to her church vows, assumed so early in life. Her place at all the church services was rarely vacant, and her communion with the saints at the chancel rail constant. She was a working member of the church. She had a prayerful solicitude for her two sons (now grown), that they might "adorn the doctrines of God our Savior," and left them the heritage and inspiration of a "good name, which is rather to be chosen than great riches." What a stimulus to holy living! And they, following her Savior, may surely know that a tinsle rest is for them, into which, we have reason to believe, their glorified mother has entered.

She died at the residence of her brother-in-law, W. W. Guthrie, of Ruston, La., after receiving all that medical skill and the sympathy and love of friends and relatives could do. We hope to meet her again.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

"Be kindly affectioned one to another." Paul meant that Christians should treat each other with the same consideration that brothers and sisters should receive. "Kindly" means "kind-like," belonging to one's kindred.

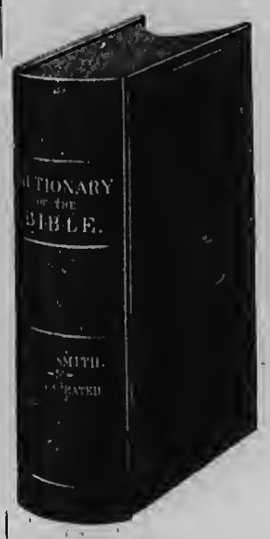
Smith's Dictionary
—OF THE—
BIBLE.


Comprising Its Antiquities, Biography, Geography, and NATURAL HISTORY.
EDITED BY WM. SMITH, LL. D.,
Classical Examiner of the University of London.
This great work prepared under the direction and superintendence of Dr. Smith himself contains every name in the Bible and Apocrypha of which anything can be said; gives an account of each of the books of the Bible; explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves; embraces the results of the most successful and approved biblical labors and researches, constituting an indispensable aid to ministers, teachers, families, Sunday-school superintendents, and Bible readers generally.
The simple explanations of this work, unlike the expositions of a commentary, admit of no denominational or sectarian coloring and it is therefore equally valuable to Bible readers of every diversity of belief.
This is, undoubtedly, the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.
The work contains 1024 large octavo pages, over 150 illustrations and maps engraved especially for this work and is handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. Publishers' price, $4.50.
To any person who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: To December, '99, we will sell this magnificent book postpaid for $2. Send in your order at once, as this offer may soon be withdrawn. Address

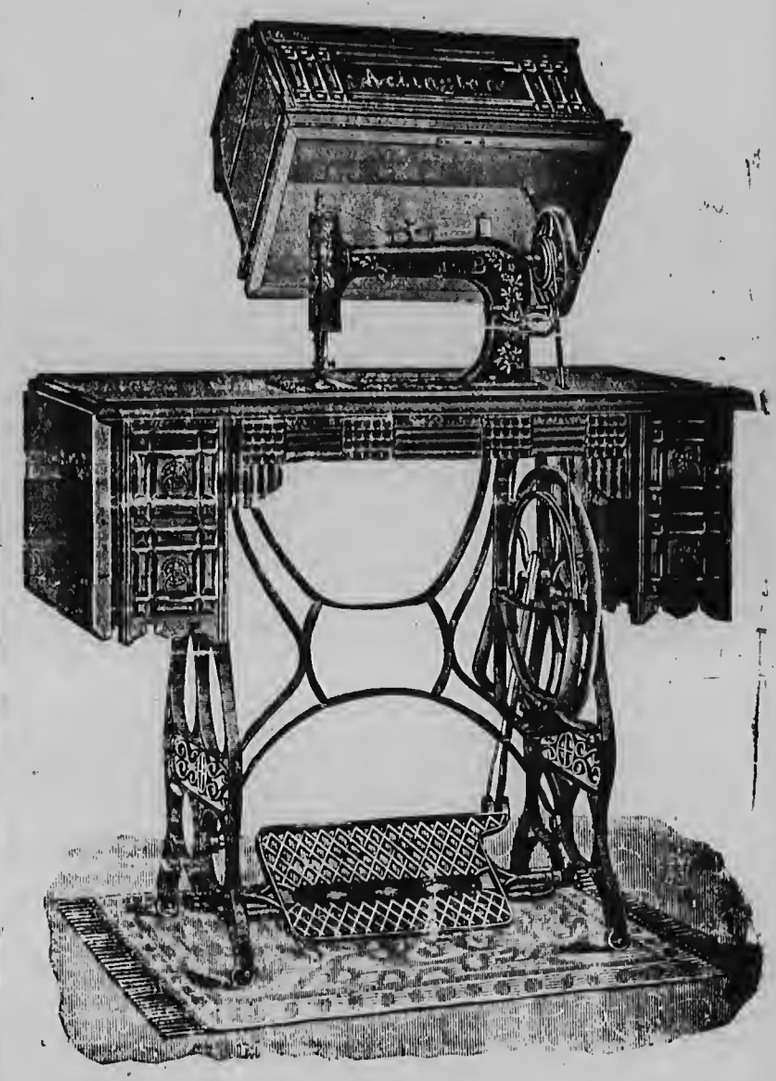
Machine Offer.
New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.
A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.


The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One darner, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (two different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.
THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.
NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.
IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.
SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.
THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.
SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.
LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.
PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

By the will of L. Tayler Dicksen, of Philadelphia, who died recently in Georgetown, N. C., his estate of $100,000 is to revert in time to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

President Harper, of the University of Chicago, announced the other night at the annual convocation of the university that gifts aggregating $402,000 had been made to the institution.

By a head-end collision between two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley railroad, at West Dunellen, N. J., on Monday, thirteen persons were killed and over twenty-five were injured.

Governor Mount, of Indiana, has prepared a bill for the Legislature "allowing the next of kin to the person lynched to bring suit for damages against the county in which the lynching occurs."

The Central American Union, or Greater Republic of Central America, as it was at one time called, is no more, as each of the States composing the union has agreed to resume its independence and regulate its own affairs for the future.

Though a native force is opposing the peaceful occupation of Iloilo by General Miller's command, it is nevertheless a fact that the natives of the Visoaya group and the Island of Mindanao have petitioned the American Government for annexation to the United States.

The meeting held, on Friday, at the City Hall, this city, for a preliminary discussion of the proposed water and sewerage tax was in every way representative, being composed of citizens of every class and calling. There was a large degree of unanimity in the expression of willingness to pay the tax.

Several important retirements in the army will occur during the current year. Brigadier General Stanton, paymaster general, will retire on the thirtieth instant; Brigadier General Flagler, chief of ordnance, June 24; Brigadier General Sumner, in August next, and Brigadier General Shafter, Oct. 16.

It is reported that General Henry Kyd Douglas, of Maryland, who was Stonewall Jackson's chief of staff, and in whose arms the famous Southern soldier died, is engaged to Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, General U. S. Grant's only daughter. General Douglas is 65 years old.

The House Committee on Rivers and Harbors is keenly alive to the necessity for providing a channel through Southwest Pass, and is equally appreciative of the large commercial advantages which will result. It is a foregone conclusion, therefore, that an appropriation of $7,000,000, if not $8,000,000, will be recommended to carry out the project.

While Paris has been, according to the news reports, the head center of all the experimentation with and exploitation of the new automobile vehicle, and while America has seemed backward in this latest craze, Chicago has quietly secured a contract for furnishing Europe with 50,000 electro-automobiles during the next ten years, the money involved being something like $5,000,000.

Although the trouble growing out of the Fashoda incident, which at one time threatened to precipitate war between France and England, has subsided, it has left the relations between the two countries in a decidedly strained condition. New causes of irritation are cropping out daily, and even conservative people are beginning to fear that, sooner or later, war must come.

The Spanish transport "Notre Dame de Saint," which sailed from Havana on Dec. [illegible] for Barcelona, arrived there with 1100 repatriated soldiers on board. The vessel was overcrowded, and many of the troops were found to be ill on the steamer's arrival. During the voyage thirty-nine deaths occurred. The sick soldiers were speedily attended to. The remainder of the troops were in a fearfully emaciated condition.

President and Mrs. McKinley gave an elaborate dinner at the White House on Monday, at which the members of the Paris Peace Commission were the guests of honor. Invited to meet them were the members of the Cabinet, senators and representatives in Congress, and a number of officers of the army and navy, who took prominent parts in the war, including Major-Generals Shafter and Wheeler, and Admirals Sampson and Schley, and Captain Robley D. Evans.

The charges that the United States warship "Maine" was blown up in Havana harbor by design have again been actively brought forward. This time persons are individually accused of the crime, names and details being freely given. The principal in the commission of the atrocious act is said to be one Zacaries Bresmos, a judge of one of the lower courts. If he executed the crime, it is more than likely that others higher in authority were more or less privy to it, since it is difficult to see how the preparations for the explosion could have been made without the knowledge of the military and police authorities, if, indeed, their connivance was not involved.

ATTENTION, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The printers are at work on the Minutes, and say that they will finish the job in about three weeks. Please let me know your postoffices at once. Unless your appointment plainly indicates the postoffice, please do not presume on my knowing it. Also, if the pastoral charges have been changed, let me know how many members are in the charge of the pastor this year. Unless this is done, I will have to distribute the Minutes according to the number of members reported last year. Please let the presiding elders and pastors attend to this matter.

INDIAN MISSION.

Dear Brethren and Sisters—

Friends of the Indian Mission: We promised our Choctaw preacher, Jim Johnston, $75 for preaching and interpreting. We have paid him up to date $65.30. We are yet due him $9.70. Promised and in hand, $3.50; unprovided for, $6.20. Now, he is old and has been very faithful; we ought to pay him. Please send money order or registered letter to me at Hermanville, Miss. If we get any over, it will be placed to next year's, or 1899's, expense. Please help.

A. D. MILLER.

Hermanville, Miss., Jan. 5, 1899.

NOTICE.

Pastors and Sunday-school Superintendents, Mississippi Conference:

The Sunday-school Board met and organized with the following officers: W. T. Griffin, president, Mayersville; D. Scarborough, secretary, Forest, Miss; Thos. Mount, treasurer, Vicksburg, Miss. Any Sunday-school not able to buy necessary literature can secure the same by applying to the secretary for blank applications. Applications should be made immediately. There is money in the treasury for this purpose. Let us begin the new year with renewed zeal in this great work.

W. T. GRIFFIN.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Are the desire of all men's hearts. You can be beautiful by gaining a perfect complexion. Dr. Harly Newton, the great Australian Dermatologist and Chemist, has opened a six months course of treatment at $1.00 per month, or $5.00 for 6 months. He guarantees that after 6 months treatment your complexion will be as transparent as a baby's. Send to Dr. Harly Newton, Suite 35, Central Music Hall, Chicago, for blanks to describe your symptoms. This advertisement will not appear again.

The law of Christ is the law of love and sacrifice, exemplified in the life of the lowly Nazarene, and all attempts to make his religion a moral philosophy or a humanitarian project must prove futile; it has to do with eternal verities through a perpetual sacrifice.—Exchange.

GREAT AND SMALL.

BY JOHN HALL INGHAM.

I love to lie awhile and look
Into the bubbling of a brook;
Nor do I greatly long to know
Of silent tides to which they flow,
Nor wonder, when the sunbeams play,
How many sunbeams make a day.

My faith accepts as wisely planned
The things I do not understand;
I can not doubt the rainbow knows
A secret hidden from the rose;
But rather would my flower see,
Than solve the heavenly mystery.

'Tis not that I ignore the great,
Only I am content to wait.
The Infinite has too fierce a glare
For my poor human sight to bear;
While little things more dear to me,
Show side-lights of eternity.

AN ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The seventh Annual Conference of secretaries and members of the various Foreign Missionary Boards of the United States and Canada was held in New York City, Jan. 10-13. There were interesting papers read and discussed on The Qualifications and Training of Missionaries, The Science of Missions, Gifts for Special Objects, Comity, etc. The topic, however, which will attract the widest interest was the action in regard to an Ecumenical or International Conference on Missions, to be held in New York City in April, 1900.

The plans for this have been maturing for three years. A committee appointed at the Annual Conference in 1896 has been in communication with the different Protestant missionary societies of the world, and has met with most gratifying responses from all. There seems to be a very general appreciation of the appropriateness of the plan for rounding out the century with a survey of the work accomplished in the past and an outlook over the future. In the afternoon meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 11, the Rev. Judson Smith, D. D., secretary of the American Board, the foreign missionary organization of the Congregational Churches, presented a graphic and interesting paper on the plans already formed and the prospects for success.

The whole enterprise is under the care of a General Committee appointed by this Annual Conference, of which Dr. Smith is chairman, and the Rev. S. L. Baldwin, D. D., of the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, is secretary. There is also an Executive Committee, composed of some members of the General Committee, together with the chairmen of a number of sub-committees charged with special duties for the conduct of the detail work. These committees, including those on Finance, Program, Publication and the Press, Hospitality, Transportation, Hall and Places of Meeting, and others as may be needed, will find a large field of work, in view of the magnitude of the undertaking.

Some conception of the Conference will be obtained from the fact that in 1888, at the Conference in London, there were 1,759 delegates in attendance, and it is hoped to double that number next year. There are about 200 societies whose work is to be represented, and it is hoped to have missionaries present from every part of the world. The general plan of the Conference is to have a few general sessions and a number of sectional meetings where specific topics can be discussed. Papers will be presented by experts on the different topics, and these will be followed by short addresses. It is planned also to secure the attendance of the delegates in different cities of the country, and it is hoped that miniature Conferences may be established elsewhere, so that the presence of so large a body of men directly interested in missionary work and closely connected with it may be exerted to arouse a still greater interest in the cause.

The Conference at London had the support of many of the most influential men of the country—nobility, clergy, officers in the army and navy, men in business and professional life. It is the earnest wish of the committee in charge that the same thing should be true of the Conference to meet in this country. Already many of the prominent citizens of this country have joined in the movement, and others have indicated their interest. There was held last week a business men's meeting, called by Darwin R. James, John H. Converse, W. E. Dodge, Lucien C. Warner, William L. Brower, Seth Low, Gen. O. O. Howard, Enoch L. Fancher, Everett P. Wheeler, D. Willis James, Mornay Williams, and Frank H. Fields.

At this meeting a Committee of Finance was appointed, consisting of prominent business men representing the different denominations. They will arrange plans for securing subscriptions to meet the necessary expenses of the Conference, such as hiring halls, publication of the proceedings, entertainment of guests, etc. As this is a matter in which the whole country is interested, they will also enter into correspondence with different cities to secure the formation of sub-committees in them.

England has more than once entertained American delegates, and given them right royal welcome. It is the hope of the committee that America will not be behind, but will give to the kinsmen from over the sea and to the delegates from other countries a welcome that shall show that we are ready and able to assume our place in the great world movements, with its honors and responsibilities. It is the purpose of the committee to keep the public well informed of the various steps taken, and they will welcome any inquiries or suggestions. The addresses of the secretaries are: General Secretary, the Rev. S. L. Baldwin, D. D., 150 Fifth avenue, and Associate Secretary, W. Henry Grant, 156 Fifth avenue, New York City.

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

I dated my first letter for the new year this morning. In spite of a previous determination not to be caught napping this time, I first wrote "'98," and am inclined to the opinion that I mailed a second epistle so dated.

The new year has opened auspiciously for California (from a temporal point of view it has). The clouds literally "poured out water" during most of the day yesterday over the greater portion of the State, and indications are reported to be favorable in the remainder. The heaviest snow seen for years fell in the mountains of Shasta. Still, the rainfall to date has been but little greater than for the corresponding period last year, and everybody was getting blue, fearing a repetition of last year's drouth. The ground is so thirsty that an unusual amount of water will be needed this season.

The State seems to be greatly in need of a moral awakening. The Legislature met to-day. A United States senator is to be elected to succeed Stephen M. White, who is precluded from succeeding himself by virtue of being a Democrat, while the Legislature is Republican. The Call and Chronicle, the two leading Republican papers, charge that money is being expended freely to purchase votes for certain aspirants who are objectionable to those papers. In seeking to defeat such candidates other plots have been unearthed, and the crookedness of former Legislatures exposed. It seems beyond question that more than one Western senator has purchased his seat.

For some time a controversy was waged in the city papers between certain A. P. A. leaders and Peter C. York, a Catholic priest. The priest proved more than a match for his opponents, in persistency at least, and silenced them long since. He has continued his fight "against bigotry and in favor of liberty," speaking constantly and making free use of the press. He had about convinced the public that the Catholic Church was the real champion of freedom, but I am inclined to think he has made one speech too many. Just before the election he made a wholly unprovoked attack upon Hon. Jas. G. Maguire, the Democratic candidate for governor, the most serious charge brought against him being that he had left his mother's church. Mr. Maguire has figured out that this speech caused the defeat of the Democratic ticket, and has published an open letter to Mr. York, in which he exposes the political intrigues of the priesthood. The leading papers were afraid to publish this letter, proving again which church is in politics, but the author is able and fearless, and I am persuaded has not had his last word upon the subject by several. He is not an A. P. A., and is opposed to that organization. If a Protestant minister had made the speech made by York, he would have been promptly and roundly denounced by the politicians and the political papers; but not so 'Father York." When the Catholics and railroad company join hands they can about get what they want in this section. By the way, the A. P. A.'s and priests endorsed the same candidate this time.

Our new presiding elders are moving rapidly, and conquering as they go. With about two dozen charges each to look after, they do not spend much time at home. Drs. Riddick and Emery write up their rounds for the Pacific Methodist Advocate, and their "write-ups" are interesting reading. Kenney, of the San Joaquin district, has not spoken, but is well spoken of. Many of the preachers are having a hard struggle financially, but if the season continues favorable, doubtless "better times are coming."

Bishop Hendrix seems to have done well in choosing transfers for us, if he did permit some of our best men to leave us. I. F. Betts, the Alabamian, my successor at Hollister, has completely won the hearts of his parishioners, and they pronounce him an excellent preacher. They are good judges, for this scribe served them four years, you will remember.

Clarence M. Davenport, from the St. Louis Conference, is preaching to large audiences at Colusa. Colusaites think they have the preacher. I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting him.

All those who came out during last year are doing well. One of them, J. R. Sawyer, of North Carolina, is at Fresno, in some respects the first appointment in the Conference, and none among us have made a more favorable beginning.

There are several other things that I had intended to say, but I have about reached the limit of space that one letter ought to occupy, so will make mention of them at another time. W. P. ANDREWS.

Oakland, Cal., Jan 2, 1899.

FROM THE ARCADIA DISTRICT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: I hear so much said about our preachers of the Louisiana Conference not writing about the interests of the church that I feel guilty myself; so I venture to say some things in the way of information and exhortation. I am so anxious to see our church in Louisiana come to the front, in every respect, and to see all the preachers and people take hold to score a great victory this year. I promise to be (if possible) more devoted to her welfare than ever before.

All the preachers are at their posts except Bro. J. H. Brown, who has been detained at Gainsville on account of sickness in his family. The presiding elder and seven preachers were returned to their charges, seven new ones came into the district, three were changed to other works (in the district), and five went out. Rev. C. P. Smith, transfer from the Baltimore Conference, has made a good impression upon the presiding elder, and also upon his flock at Minden. I have divided the Minden charge, making Minden a station, which was desired by the entire Board of Stewards. I have put the country appointments with other unoccupied territory, and appointed Rev. A. F. Vaughn, P. C. It will be called Flat Lick circuit. The district shows an advance in collections for the past year that is encouraging. The spiritual state of the church is perceptibly better than it has been for the two past years. We are planning to build several churches this year, and to bring up all assessments in full. May the Lord help us! I don't think the district has been better manned in many years.

I want here to urge all the pastors in the district to try to visit all their members, and all who do not belong to any church, as soon as they possibly can. If we expect to save the outside, non-church people, we must visit and induce them, if possible, to attend church. We have many godly families that will forego the pleasure of our visits into their homes if we are diligent in looking after the unsaved. Oh, may we, as itinerant Methodist preachers, have the spirit of the Master, that seeks them that are unsaved, that they may be brought to the great Physician of souls!

Now, a word to the stewards and officers of the church.

Dear brethren, will you not see to it that your pastor is not hampered and hindered from his high and holy work of winning souls to Christ by lack of support for himself and family? Will you not, in the beginning of this year, supply all his needs, and give him every opportunity to do the work of a minister of Christ? Let me urge that every steward in the Arcadia district see to it that he will not leave a single stone unturned to raise every dollar assessed for his pastor. To do this, you must begin at once, and, if possible, have every dollar up to date of every Quarterly Conference. I beg you, don't put off your work, but commence now. Keep your preacher in good spirits, and he can work better. Assist him in raising at least half his Conference assessments for the various causes before Spring.

And now, to all that have not subscribed for the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, I urge that you do so at once. Remember, it is only one dollar if the subscription list reaches twelve thousand; and I believe it will go to fifteen thousand at that one-dollar price if the preachers will work for it.

I wish here to ask the prayers and co-operation of my brethren, that I may have grace, strength and wisdom to lead the army of the Lord in the Arcadia district. Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell and work together in the unity of the Spirit and the bonds of peace! Faithfully,

B. T. CREWS.

HAPPINESS.

Thousands of men have made shipwreck in their attempts to get honey out of the hive of life without getting stung. "Antony sought for happiness in love; Brutus in glory; Cæsar in dominion: the first found disgrace, the second disgust, the last ingratitude, and each destruction."

It is impossible to get happiness from any one thing in life if followed to the exclusion of everything else. Many people fortify themselves against lots of troubles that never come.

He who seeks pleasure, who pants along the path which he imagines will lead to happiness, who tries to buy and bargain for bliss, never finds that for which he expends so much toil. "The kingdom of heaven is within"—or nowhere. Soul radiance must gild the unlovely, color the commonplace, and give old surroundings ever-new beauty, or the grayness, the restlessness, the sameness must continue to depress, to irritate and, perhaps, to madden the heart and brain of man.

A sunny soul, like rose-colored glasses, gives everything an agreeable look. Its possessor sees beauty everywhere. He does not need to go to Switzerland to behold the Alps; he sees them in imagination in the thunder cloud.

Phillips Brooks, Thoreau, Garrison, Emerson, Beecher, Agassiz, were rich without money. They saw the splendor in the flower, the glory in the grass, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything. They sucked in power and wealth at first hand from the meadows, fields, and flowers, birds, brooks, mountains, and forests, as the bee sucks honey from the flowers. Every natural object seemed to bring them a special message from the great Author of the beautiful. To these rare men every natural object was touched with power and beauty, and their thirsty souls drank it in as a traveler on a desert drinks in the God-sent water of the oasis. To extract power and real wealth from men and things seemed to be their real mission, and to pour it out again in refreshing showers upon thirsty humanity. They believed that a man's most important food does not enter by the mouth. They knew that a man can not live by estates, dollars, and bread alone, and that, if he could, he would only be an animal. They believed that the higher life demands a higher food, a heavy ambrosia.

Some of the happiest homes I have ever known—ideal homes, where intelligence, peace and harmony dwell—have been homes of poor people. No rich carpets covered the floors; there were no costly paintings on the walls, no piano, no library, no works of art. But there were contented minds, devoted and [illegible] lives, each contributing as much as possible to the happiness of all, and endeavoring to compensate by intelligence and kindness for the poverty of their surroundings. No man is happy who does not think himself so. Nothing is wanted to make yourself wretched but to fancy yourself miserable.

"I once talked with a Rosicrucian about the Great Secret," said Addison. "He talked of it as a spirit that lived in an emerald, and converted everything that was near it to the highest perfection. 'It gives luster to the sun,' he said, 'and water to the diamond. It irradiates every metal, and enriches lead with the property of gold. It brightens smoke into flame, flame into light, and light into glory. A single ray dissipates pain and care from the person on whom it falls.' Then I found his great secret was Content."—Success.

WISE WORDS.

In his charge to the grand jury, this morning, Judge H. C. Niles was strong and vigorous, as he always is. His reprobation of the blind-tiger evil was forceful, and deserves to be widely published for the good it may do and ought to do in making for better citizenship. He said: "The blind tiger is the worst man in any community. It has come to pass in some parts of the State that justices of the peace have been elected by this lawless element to cover up crime, and in some cases these men have been elected as law breakers.

"Men complain to me of their sons being debauched by this influence. We build churches and school-houses, and endeavor to give our boys the best surroundings possible, when a worthless fellow from another State comes into the community and sets up a still, and every lawless man gathers around him. Good men are afraid to take the initiative, saying to themselves that he will soon run his course.

"You might as well turn a lot of rattlesnakes loose and say that they are not poisonous and won't bite. Soon the young men of the neighborhood are gathered together in a band to regulate a few negroes. They are whipped, and, thus fired by the product of the still, they go in for whipping a white man. Some of the boys go with reluctance, but they go; nevertheless. The white man resists, and kills a few of them. The remainder of the boys scatter.

"The local grand jury inquires into the matter, and nobody knows anything about it. The community is torn up. Property values decline in that neighborhood. Yet, in view of this state of affairs, I have known men, when summoned to sit on a jury in criminal cases, to declare that they were against capital punishment, and then make one of a mob to lynch a man.

"When we are coming over on the other side of the hill, we like to think that we are leaving our boys in a good community, and on the road to good citizenship.

"It is within the power of the federal court to destroy these hateful institutions. The time was when there were few illicit stills in this State, but the thing is growing worse, and the stills are multiplying.

"These men are debauching our boys and ruining our State, and the time has come to call a halt. Gentlemen, I expect you to do your duty."—Special Correspondent of the Picayune (Jan. 17), Jackson, Miss.

We are indebted to a daily of this city for some interesting items concerning the temperance reform in the railroad business. It seems that the rules against railroad employees visiting saloons are being rigidly enforced, and with the best of results to everybody concerned. One high official on one of the biggest lines running out of Chicago says that the reform has done more for the railroads and the men than any other movement undertaken. The feeling is steadily growing that it is not safe to risk life and property by entrusting the heavy trains of to-day to men who drink. And the reform has not been confined to subordinates. Many of the higher officials have ceased to carry liquors on their private cars, because they feel that otherwise they can not consistently demand total abstinence from the men under them. One official reports that four years ago he visited a saloon in Chicago which was patronized by railroad men and found that fifty-four employees of one road were running monthly accounts ranging from $5 to $15 per month. He recently visited the same saloon and found that only six railroad men had accounts there. Further investigation showed that the money which before went for drink was being invested in homes.—Union Signal.

Overdoing is undoing. A cake burned to a crisp is as much a failure as a cake half baked. An audience wearied, confused and vexed with too many points in a sermon, or too many addresses at an anniversary, is an audience hindered instead of helped. It is a great faculty to "make things go," but one of the ways to do it is to stop before going too far.—Churchman.

It is not in the power of all the men on earth to make one man come to God by Christ, because it is not in their power to make men see their state by nature. It is a sight of what I am that must unroost me, that must shake my soul, and make me leave my present rest.—Bunyan.

SOME TIME.

BY BELLE M'KINNEY SWOPE.

Some time in the great hereafter
We shall know why the shadows fell,
Why the roses so soon were blighted
We had loved and cherished so well,
The sun had been shining brightly
When the deecy cloud appeared
And the shadows lengthened and deepened
Till our fondest hopes were seared.

Some time in the land immortal
We shall know why our listening ears
Caught no sound but life's long discord
As it filled the passing years.
Along the tiresome journey
There was gladness about the way,
But the flowers lost their sweetness
And we trampled them day by day.

Some time in the realms of glory
All our prayers will answered be,
And our doubts will be buried
In the depths of the crystal sea.
The things that tried us most
Will be strewn on the glistening wave,
And the selfish aims of life
Keep a watch in the silent grave.

Some time when the songs of earth
Have been blended with those above,
And the harps and the voices swell
To the chords of infinite love,
Our cares and crosses forgotten
And our hearts, though attuned to pain,
Shall awake to the notes of sweetness
In the glad angelic strain.

Some time when the sun and the stars
In their golden glory have set,
And our souls with the souls we loved
In the great beyond have met,
The shadows that touched our lives
As the tints on the white sea foam,
Shall illumine the beauty of heaven
When we rest in that blessed home.

AN OPEN LETTER TO DR ANSON WEST, OF THE NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

My Dear Friend and Brother: I read your paper in the Nashville Christian Advocate, of Nov. 24, 1898, with more than usual interest. Knowing yonr forcefulness as a writer, and yonr logical mothod of reaching "the reason of things," I really hoped to be able to find ont what I once thonght I knew, bnt now know that I never know it at all, viz.: that the M. E. Church, Sonth, has "Standards of Doctrine" other than the XXV Articles of Religion.

More than a quarter of a centnry ago I knew of all those meetings of Mr. Wesley and his preachers, and numerons Conferences prior to 1784, at which it was agreed "to follow Mr. Wesley in all matters of polity as long as he lives," and to accept Mr. Wesley's "Notes on the New Testament," his printed sermons (52 in number) and "The Minutes" as Standards of Doctrine; and all these years I have been asking for some proof that these pre-organized agreements had, at some time, by some authority, been incorporated into the governing rnles of the organized church.

Yon mnst allow me to express my snrprise when I saw that yon had followed all these "Conferences," from the first one down to the last one before the organization of the church, and given us all they ever said or did on the question of standard-making, but came to a "dead halt" a few weeks before the organization of the church.

Yon certainly proved beyond any doubt that the Societies, previous to the organization of the church in 1784, recognized "Standards of Doctrine" in the publications named above. But you failed to show us even a shadow of proof that the church, in its organized capacity, had ever enacted any law, or passed any resolntion, or issned any decree establishing snch Standards for the church as the Societies had for themselves. Seeing this failnre npon yonr part, I immediately wrote a review of your communication, and forwarded it to the Nashville Christian Advocate, bnt there was no room in that excellent paper for the other side of the qnestion, and I have, therefore, adopted this method of calling yonr attention to some facts which yon seem to have overlooked.

No one, so far as I know, denies the historic facts which yon present; bnt you seem to forget that the Societies, prior to 1784 (Dec. 26), were several things, each acting without a Constitntion or any code of laws, and the church, snbseqnent to the "Christmas Conference," was a separate and distinct whole, acting nnder a Constitution and code of laws adopted by the Christmas Conference for the government of the church in after years. Whatever the preachers from the Societies agreed npon at their often-recnrring Conferences was binding npon the Societies till repealed or amended by some snbseqnent gathering of the brethren from those Societies. When the church was organized these Societies were merged into another state, and lost their identity in "The Methodist Episcopal Church in America." Such of their rnles and regnlations as were deemed needfnl in the new state of being assnmed by the Sociotios were incorporated in a book called "The Discipline," otc. Instead of adopting Wesley's Sermons, his Notes on the New Testament, and The Minntes, this newly-organized church adopted "The General Rulos of the United Societies," the "XXV Artioles of Faith," three "Restrictive Ruies," and a "Ritnal." Nothing was said abont the "Standards" which the Societies had accepted as gnides of doctrine and polity, nor has anything been said or done by any legislative body of the Methodist Church from Dec. 25, 1784, to Jan. 5, 1899.

The latest action of any body of men in regard to standard-making was by less than a dozen preachers six months or more before the M. E. Church was organizod, and more than sixty years before the organization of the M. E. Church, Sonth. Yon have not shown us, Doctor, how an agreement entered into by individnals, as snch, can become binding on a corporation into which they may onter, except by express agreement of the corporation. These Societies, prior to December, 1784, had an agreement among themselves. At that time they went into a corporate organization without recognizing these former agreements, bnt with a new agreement embodied in the Book of Disciline adopted at the time of the organization of the corporate body. By what rnle of interpretation can you bind a corporation to certain agreements entered into by the corporators before the act of incorporation was perfected?

Bnt let ns go fnrther, my dear Doctor. Snppose the Baltimore Conference of 1784 had adopted the Standards which yon claim, and that the Lonisville Conference of 1845 did not recognize these Standards, wonld yon then insist that, althongh the M. E. Chnrch, Sonth, ignored them in its organization, and has continued to ignore them to the present day, that they are "Standards of Methodist doctrine" for onr church, notwithstanding this silent repndiation of them? Bnt this snpposition is of a possibility, and not a fact. The trnth is, as I read it, the church has, from the day of its organization, silently repndiated all standards, except the "Holy Scriptnres." (See Art. V.) What was done at the organization of the church, and all that was done towards the creation of "Standards of Doctrine," was: (1) The adoption of the "General Rules," (2) The adoption of "The Articles of Religion," (3) The adoption of the Restrictive Rules, and (4) The adoption of a ritual, or form of service. To reason that the first Restrictive Rule refers to something which the Conference had never done, nor, as a Conference, ever authorized, is, it seems to me, a very much twisted form of reasoning. The General Rules and XXV Articles had been previously adopted, and the General Conference, desiring to protect them from fntnre legislation, adopted the first Restrictive Rnle, referring to them as "Standards of Doctrine" existing "previonsly" to the Restrictive Rule.

Yon know, Doctor, that before the government of the United States was organized we were governed by laws emanating from England, because there were no law-making bodies in North America. We were governed by George III. through colonies—societies?—of his own making. Some of the "statntes of George III." are still binding in this country; bnt why still binding? Simply this: They have been recognized by the proper legislative or jndicial anthorities of our government. Not all the statntes of George III. are law in this country; only snch as have been recognized by proper anthority.

So of the Societies before there was a church. They obtained their laws from England; John Wesley was the rnler. Some of these laws—the General Rules, XXV Articles, etc.—are binding because we have recognized them through onr legislative body. We have recognized no other Standards since 1845, nor since Dec. 25, 1784.

In your communication to the Christian Advocate you snggest that, 'Opinions formed without investigation of the subject to which they pertain," and in "ignorance" of the facts in controversy, are of little worth. This is qnite true. Still, we should remember that not all "opinions" which are contrary to our own are the result of "ignorance," nor of want of information or "investigation of the snbject to which they pertain."

Allow me to ask you: Why did the Christmas Conference deem it necessary to formally adopt the General Rnles and the Articles of Faith if a thing, simply because of its previous existence, wonld become anthoritative without snch formal adoption? If it were necessary to give force and anthority to the General Rnles by formal adoption, why did not the "Standards of Doctrine" submit to the same necessity? We know that the Christmas Conference did adopt the General Rnles, and we know jnst as well that it did not adopt Wesley's Notes, nor The Minntes, nor Wesley's Sermons.

I meet a few people so intent for these "Standards" that they claim Watson and Clark and everything Wesley ever wrote; and a few go even so far as to claim Raiston, Snmmors, and all the books, first and last, placed in "the course of study"—"Edgar's Variations of Popery" and all. Well, when the church adopts these, or any of them, "though Israel be ignorant of us, and Abraham knows us not," yet we will be able to give the time, the place, and the persons involved in so important a matter.

We hope, Doctor, that when again yon "take yonr pen in hand," it will be to tell us what the church has done—not what the Societies did—to create "Standards of Doctrine." Please go to Lonisville in 1845, for we are not at all concerned about what some other church had before our church had an existence; bnt if the M. E. Church, Sonth, has ever recognized any Standards of Doctrine, tell ns so plainly, and keep ont of the pre-organized period of our history. With much esteem,

Your friend and brother,
J. A. Parker.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

Much trouble and confusion arises from a lack of correct bookkeeping in our church registers. The law of the church requires that two books be kept—one by the secretary of each church in the charge, and one by the pastor for the whole charge. Where this is done there is not much trouble in keeping the books straight. The secretary of the Church Conference is required to enter the full names of all who join the church on his register, and in chronological order. (See Discipline, paragraph 88.) This book, when correctly kept, ought to be well-nigh perfect. The preacher in charge is required to keep a similar register for the whole charge, no matter how many churches, secretaries and church registers there may be in the charge. This is bookkeeping by double entry—one entry by the secretary of each church, and one by the preacher in charge. As to the duty of the preacher in this regard, see paragraph 132. If the secretary's book gets wrong, it can be righted by the pastor's book; or if the pastor's book becomes twisted, it can be corrected by the registers of the several secretaries. This law requiring the preacher in charge to keep a register applies to stations, circuits, and missions.

The secretary of each church is required to report to the Quarterly Conference all the statistics which the Discipline requires to be reported to the Annual Conference. From these reports the preacher makes up his report. From all this it would seem that our statistical reports ought to be absolutely correct.

In charges containing more than one organized congregation the pastor is to record the names on his register under the name of each church in his charge. The reason, or reasons, for all of this will be apparent after only a moment's reflection.

The law is so simple, plain and explicit that it looks like it is needless to call attention to it, and yet a little experience in the field satisfies one that the law is not known, or is ignored by most secretaries and by a majority of pastors.

I have thought it would be a good thing to have a committee on the registers of preachers in charge at our Annual Conferences. It would, at least, stir the preachers to keeping such registers. In a ministry of forty years I have found only two such books in any of the many charges I have served.

Such laws and regulations as we have have been the outgrowth of wisdom and of long experience. They have been tested by time. There is a sound reason for every one of them. The best and quickest way to get rid of our unwise regulation is to enforce it rigidly. If it does not stand the test, it will be expunged.

Statistical tables are dry, but they are very important. They show at a glance, and in round numbers, what progress the church is making. We could not know very well where we are at, nor what doing, without them. Names are carried on our books for years that ought to be off. In all such cases the bookkeeping has been negligently done, or not done at all. A reported decrease in numbers is often a healthy sign—a sign of more accurate bookkeeping, if of nothing more. In some places the same names are on the records of two different pastoral charges, and in the aggregate the same member is counted twice. It might be well to clean up our records of all such cases, even if the totals indicated a decrease of one hundred thousand members. We appear to be more numerous, but we are really no stronger by carrying such names on our books.

The evangelists are said to be great counters, and some pastors have an unholy ambition of the same kind. They count all that are in sight, and many who are not in sight and have not been for years. When a member has been lost sight of for twelve months, let his name be dropped from the roll.

One of the best ways to keep the roll purged is to have the members assessed for the support of the ministry as required by law. This causes the voluntary dead-heads to forsake the ship. It tends to keep the eyes of the stewards on the church register, and they insist on getting rid of all nominals, unless, indeed, it be the names of persons too poor or too deeply afflicted to pay anything. It leads those who live elsewhere to call for letters, and to join and pay where they live. Gilderoy.

LATTER-DAY EVANGELISM.

There is a style of evangelism that has afflicted our own as well as other churches for the last fifteen years, and which has accustomed our people in many places to a style of preaching which no thoughtful, self-respecting pastor will give his people. Because an apparent success has attended such preaching, the people have the idea that only billingsgate, abuse, coarse wit, personal incident, dashed with allusions that violate modesty and the parental prerogatives, can obtain a hearing from the masses or effect the conviction of the desperate men in the community. Such a style will undoubtedly fill the pews, and may easily for a while command the money to foot the bills incident to the saving of "so many" precious souls. When the churches have fully realized, as they eventually will, that great sensation and great revivals are not convertible terms, and that "prosperity" does not consist in filling the church with the tainted, idle and disaffected members of other churches, or the curious and gossipy outsiders, another view of progress and piety and liberality will obtain. Many of these supposed converts have gone into Official Boards, and run well for a season, but have brought with them ideals and standards of spirituality and methods of preaching that are being insisted on as the methods and conditions of pulpit efficiency. Surely we can not long content ourselves with a lay-leadership of such a type if we hope for permanent prosperity, or care to maintain the polity or traditions of our church. Surely we are not ready for reorganization on basis of such ideas or character as are being furnished in this off-hand way.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

In the Advocate, of Dec. 29, Bro. T. W. Lewis has some reflections concerning the last session of the North Mississippi Conference which I appreciate. Bro. Lewis is one of our most gifted and useful preachers, and one that we delight to honor; but he has some things in his communication that I would like to call in question. He announces a questionable axiom, "That nothing succeeds like success," then refers to Bro. Raper's success on Montpelier circuit, and concludes by saying: "What Bro. Raper has done on this circuit may be done on almost any circuit if the preacher will put his life into the work. Some brethren do not succeed because they do not expect to succeed. Such men as W. M. Young, J. W. Raper, O. L. Savage, J. R. Countiss, and others, will succeed anywhere." But good Bro. Lewis seems to have forgotten that he said in reference to Bro. Raper and Montpelier, "Surely the man and the occasion have met." If the man and the occasion must meet to accomplish success, then there are no men who will succeed just anywhere. But I will offer no argument to set aside his assertions until I see whether he proposes to defend them. I delight for him to say nice, encouraging things about the brethren who accomplish some worthy task, but I do not like for him to jump at conclusions, and say, "If every other preacher would do like them, they would succeed, too," and thus disparage against some worthy men of God who are giving their whole life to the work, and because they, maybe for the time being, are not having just the same degree or character of success, to thrust at them with failure.

It is not like Bro. Lewis—cheerful, sweet-spirited, and kind—to say cruel things about the fellow-laborers; neither is it like the manly man that he is to keep bobbing up with assertions, and not try to defend them. Last year Bro. Lewis had some strictures on the unsuccessful preacher similar to this last. I asked him to defend them, and he hid away in mystic silence. I now charge that he come to the defense of his confident assertions, or else hereafter forever hold his peace.

Yours for truth and brotherly kindness,
J. H. Smith.

"THE TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND."

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

On account of various hindrances Carrollton station—Rev. H. T. Cunningham, P. C.—did not observe the first Sunday in January in the interest of this fund; but announcement was made, an address has been issued, and plans are being formulated to devote the fifth Sunday in January to that great interest. Every care will be taken to make the day a success, and those having the matter in hand feel no hesitancy in guaranteeing that Carrollton will pay her share—$150—of the one and a half million dollars. Indeed, they expect to pay more than one dollar per member before the opening of the twentieth century.

Since there is nothing of greater importance before the church, and since the success of the plan outlined by the General Board of Education depends upon the co-operation of each preacher and charge, it is hoped no preacher will neglect to make adequate preparation for a special day to inaugurate the plan. Let the presiding elders in the Quarterly Conferences give attention to this important work, and aid the preachers in securing the hearty co-operation of the Official Boards

This suggestion is made: At once fix upon a day, and make special preparation to begin the work in such manner that success will be assured. The amount can be easily raised if everyone will do his duty. Surely the end to be attained is worth the effort necessary to accomplish it.

Incidents like the following should convince us that in our cities we have the most important kind of missionary work to do. It is told in substance as follows by a superintendent of city missions: We learn from a reliable source that in one of the city courts a little girl was called on recently to testify against her father in his trial for the murder of her mother. The judge questioned her to test her ability as a witness, and about many matters she manifested a good degree of intelligence, but she told the judge that she had never heard of God, did not know what the Bible was, did not believe she had a soul, and expected to go to the cemetery when she died.

This being but one of hundreds of such cases that exist at the very doors of those who live in large cities, we can not afford to make city evangelization a secondary question from the standpoint of the church or of patriotic America. "May the drowsy be stirred, and those who sleep in dreamless indolence be awakened!"

HOW TO BECOME A BETTER CHRISTIAN.

A young friend of the editor is ambitious to be a literary man. What is he doing now? He is reading the best literature in the language. It is not necessary to say, "The best literature he can get," for the best is accessible to all in these days. He is studying the writings of the masters in English composition. He is at work earning his living, but he keeps up his study of literature. He also uses his pen considerably and spoils a good deal of white paper. But it is possible for him to succeed and he is in the right course.

Do you desire to be a better Christian? You must adopt a course similar to that pursued by the literary aspirant. Cultivate the acquaintance of God. Read the literature about him. Not only read, but study the Bible. Hold frequent conversations with God and with good men. Put in practice what you learn. You can pursue your legitimate callings, and at the same time learn more and more about God and his ways. You will become a better Christian by knowing God and by doing his will.—The Watchword.

IN THE SHADOW.

We must all go there sometimes. The glare of the daylight is too brilliant; our eyes become injured and unable to discern the delicate shades of color or appreciate neutral tints—the shadowed chamber of sickness, the shadowed house of mourning, the shadowed life from which the sunlight has gone. But fear not; it is the shadow of God's hand. He is leading thee. There are lessons which can be learned only there. The photograph of his face can be fixed only in the dark chamber. But do not suppose that he has cast thee aside. Thou art still in his quiver; he has not flung thee away as a worthless thing. He is only keeping thee close till the moment comes when he can send thee most swiftly and surely on some errand in which he can be glorified. Oh, shadowed, solitary ones, remember how closely the quiver is bound to the warrior, within easy reach of the hand, and guarded jealously!—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

PRAYING BETTER THAN WORRYING.

There is not much gain in thinking about the things over which one can have no control. It is better to leave them prayerfully with God. The man who tries to think of such things worries. He is worried about his health, and about the weather, and about his family, and about the wickedness of the world, until he has learned the lesson of prayer. Then he does the best he can each day and leaves the rest with God.—Sunday-School Times.

When a heathen artist was asked why he took so much pains with the back of the figures he was chiseling, since they would be against the walls and no one would ever see them, his noble answer was, "The gods will see them." Always we are working for God's eye, and should ever do our best. Not only are we working for God's eye, but it is God's own work we are doing. Whether we are carpenters, painters, stone-cutters, farmers, teachers or ministers, it is God's work we have in hand, and we must do our best. Old Stradivarius was right when he said that if his hand slacked, he would rob God. We rob God whenever we do anything carelessly. A writer says, "The universe is not quite complete without my work well done." We misrepresent God and disappoint him when we do anything in a slovenly way.—Wellspring.

We can honor Christ in no way so much as by bringing souls to him. There can be no higher service in the Christian life than this. This should be the all-absorbing theme with every child of God, the one object uppermost in every believer's heart. We who have tasted and found that he is satisfying ought not to rest until every weary, sin-sick soul has the knowledge of our blessed Redeemer.—Exchange.

The Bible is among books what Christ is among men; yet many hold the Bible in their hands and read and get no more out of it than the sparrow does of the message in the wire she sits on.—C. L. Goodell, D. D.

Clergyman's Statement

Nerve Strength Gained by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BRIGHTON, IOWA.—Rev. Bernard M. Shulick of this place, owing to weakness of the nerves, was for a time unable to attend to his duties. He makes this statement: "I have suffered for a long time from weak nerves. After I had taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I became quite well again. The weakness of the nerves has now wholly disappeared and I am able to attend to my duties again. I am therefore grateful to Hood's Sarsaparilla and I recommend it to everyone who suffers from weak nerves."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

HUMILITY.

BY M. L. OUSTINE.

If I a diadem might weave
To deck the brow of noblest worth,
I would not have it formed of gems,
Tho' gleaned from rarest mines of earth.
For tho' a flashing splendor shone
From the cold heart of each bright stone,
It could not add a lustre where
The soul had lent a light, its own.

Nor would I pluck the flaunting hues
From gaudy Fashion's bright parterre
To twine among my laurel leaves;
No place should they find there.
A royal purple is the shade
Of which my offering would be made,
And I should have to seek for it
Down in some cool, sequestered glade.

Then would I say to whom I love,
This now yet let thy emblem be,
For only merit that is true
Is covered with humility.
I culled it in a val'ey fair,
Lured by the fragrance on the air;
Sweet thing! tho' screened by leaflets green,
Its odor told me it was there.

Thus clothed with an unconscious worth,
The truly pure and peerless mind
Breathes thoughts, like incense, o'er the earth,
That bless and elevate mankind;
And even when the precious vase
Falls shattered, from th' accustomed place,
Leave memory's sweet perfume behind.

IN MEMORIAM.

(A memorial in respect of H. H. Hines adopted by the fourth Quarterly Conference of the First Methodist Church, South, at Jackson, Miss., Dec. 26, 1898.)

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches;" "is better than precious ointment."

When a good man dies his name is a priceless heritage to his family, but his memory belongs to all who knew him, and it is proper to perpetuate it, not only by a marble shaft rearing its top towards heaven, his abiding-place, but by recording upon the Minutes of any body of which he was a member a memorial giving expression to the appprecciation in which he was held, and the regret felt that these earthly ties have been severed.

Bro. H. H. Hines was, for a quarter of a century, a member of this Conference. When called to council he never failed to respond, unless providentially prevented. No mere indisposition, no business engagement elsewhere, ever caused his absence, but in sunshine or storm he was always at his post, till disease confined him to his home; and the records of this Conference, of which he was so long the "recording steward," bear silent, but enduring testimony to his fidelity to duty, and their neatness but exemplify his personal character.

"Bro. Hines" was a clean man—pure in conduct, speech; pure in thought, for the stream of his life was as clear as crystal, and such as could only flow from a pure fountain. The "cleansing blood" had been applied to his heart, and he lived a life of consecration to his Creator. Therefore, in his death we realize that we have lost a most faithful co-laborer in God's work, the church a consistent member, and all a true and tried friend. Lost? No, not lost; he has only gone up higher, and waits to welcome all who will follow him as he followed his Savior.

Resolved, That this memorial be recorded on the Minutes of this Conference, and a copy furnished to his widow, and that the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be requested to publish it.

THE MINISTER'S HOME.

Every church should have a parsonage, a minister's home, and that should be comfortably and respectably furnished. No pastorate without one is complete in its appointments. While it is not as important, yet it should be considered a convenience as necessary as a pulpit. If the minister must have a proper place in which to stand when he undertakes to preach, so, too, he should have a decent, respectable house in which to live. It should be located, as a rule, in convenient reach of the church. It should be easy of access, not in an out-of-the-way place, where strangers could not easily find it. It should be recognized and known throughout the congregation as the "parsonage."

There are many churches which seem to have no conscience on this matter. Year after year some pastors are obliged to hunt a house to live in. To say nothing of the time this house hunting consumes, the vexation and worry to which it subjects the pastor and his family certainly do not improve their amiability. It is awful! this annual or biannual moving, which many a minister must endure. It takes nearly six months to restore one's equilibrium after he has suffered the evil effects of one moving. If your church, then, dear brother, has no parsonage, stir them up about the matter. Doubtless the families of your congregation have homes of their own or are in a fair way of soon securing them. There is no reason why they should not at the same time help their minister to get one. If a people want their minister to feel at home among them, they should first provide one for him. Churches which have parsonages do not change ministers as frequently as churches which have none. The parsonage serves as an anchor to keep the acceptable pastor from floating elsewhere.—J. F. F., in Arkansas Methodist.

PARODY ON PALMS OF VICTORY.

BY JOHN A. LOWE.

I saw a way-worn preacher
In tattered garments clad;
He was on his way to Conference,
But it seemed that he was sad.
He'd passed though many a conflict,
He'd borne many a trial,
But he shouted as he journeyed,
"I'll conquer after while."

Chorus: "Palms of Victory," etc.

The circuit had been a poor one,
The people had been untrue,
The stewards had been neglectful,
And his compliments never few;
His pants were almost threadbare,
In his pocketbook was none,
But he shouted as he journeyed,
"Dollveruco will come."

Chorus: "Then Palms," etc.

The Conference now is over,
The good-byes are already said,
And our "hero" gone rejoicing
With ideas in his head.
In reading out the appointments
Of the medium, great and small,
He was made presiding elder,
And that atoned for all.

Chorus: "Then Palms," etc.

Nettleton, Miss., Jan. 7, 1899.

FROM THE WORK.

AFTER CONFERENCE.

Didn't the new Bishop scatter us? Whatever else he can, or can not do, at scattering he is a grand success. This itinerant moved four times in the year Anno Domini 1898. First from Opelousas to Natchitoches. Finding no parsonage at the latter place, we boarded a short time; then lived two months in our own hired house. Next, we lived the balance of the year in our own house, and between Christmas and New Year we moved from Natchitoches to this place, making four times in all. Pretty hard to beat, yet not as bad as movers that we have heard of. We heard of a family out West that moved so often that when the sound of a hammer was heard that indicated a move, the chickens would come toward the noise, lie down, and cross their legs. It is said that a "rolling stone gathers no moss," and that "three moves are as bad as a burn-out." We heard of another family who moved so much, and became so poor, that when starting on a move, they had only "to call their dog and put out the fire." We care but little for moves, or hard work, or self-denial, as long as we are sure that we have the love and sympathy of our ministerial brethren. While this is assured, we are willing to toil and work until we find rest in our grave. At our late Conference at Mansfield we almost despaired of that sympathy and love. We have a serious physical affliction which disqualifies us for circuit work, while we are strong and can do station work well. This was well known to three of our presiding elders, and yet they saw us put down, and heard us read out for this work with five appointments. The Lord of all knows how much we love the itinerancy, yet this year will close our itinerant work unless we can get a work that we can serve without so much suffering. May the Lord give us all a glorious year!

INDIAN LETTER FROM INDIAN MISSION.

MR. EDITOR: Will you give me a small space in the ADVOCATE? As most, or all, of the members of the Conference know, I have not preached in four years, but I feel that I must preach again among my own people, and desire to ask an interest in the people's prayer, that God may use me for his glory. I believe God will bless his faithful workers. I am so thankful to God for sending us good men to preach to us Indians, and hope the Bishops will continue to send us a preacher. We have heard it talked that the Conference was going to drop us, and let us go, but let me beg of the good men of the church: Don't, don't let us poor red men and our families go. We have souls to save the same as any other native, and I want to work for the salvation of my own race, and I pray God to bless our church, our Bishops, and presiding elder. We want to do the best work this year that has been done. Pray for us, that we may be faithful.

SIMPSON J. TUBBY.

PATTERSON, LA.

I want to say to my brethren that I feel once more at home with a charge of living souls on my hands, head and heart; and I am happier than I have been for a whole year. The past has seemed the longest and most restless year of my ministerial life. I am satisfied that the law providing for the superannuated relation is a wise arrangement in our church, and I am grateful to my brethren of the Conference for giving me a year's rest. I am sure I have been greatly benefited by it. If I had taken work last year, I might have been hopelessly disabled for life. In my present state of health and physical condition I hope to be able—through the blessing of God—to do many years of effective work in the Master's vineyard.

I have reached my new field (Patterson), have preached two Sundays, twice each day, with the old-time liberty, and feel no bad effects from the effort. My throat seems almost as strong and sound as it was fifteen years ago. I hope, under divine help, that the foundation for a successful year in saving souls is being laid. The kind people of Patterson have proven their sympathy and readiness to co-operate with the pastor by giving him a hearty reception. A nice dinner was set in the parsonage dining-room; and many good and necessary articles of food stored in the larder provides a living for the preacher and his family for many days. The dear sisters were exceedingly cordial in their greeting, and made us feel very much at home; each family seems vying with each other in considerate acts of kindness for our comfort.

Forty years ago I was stationed at this place. I was then almost a beardless boy. Many have been the changes since that time. I was married while in this charge. Nearly all of the settled families then have been broken up—many of them dead, and we trust are resting in their beautiful homes in the city of many mansions. Their children have grown up, married and have families of their own; but they keep up the old-time hospitality of the generation that has passed away. While some have strayed from the old paths, and forsaken the training of their fathers and mothers, many of them are in the "good old way," and are honoring their parents by serving the God of their fathers. Some of the survivors of the past generation are now great sufferers; infirmities and affliction have come with age; yet they are firm in their religious integrity and are confidently looking for their release from this life of tribulation.

Forty years ago Patterson was but a small village, and during the Civil War it was greatly reduced; but it adopted the doctrine of expansion long before the Spanish-American War, and where there were large cane fields is now occupied by beautiful cottages, dwellings and magnificent homes, several large saw mills, shingle mills, sash and door and blind factories doing an immense business in our own and other States. We also have an ice factory, with the advantage of the Southern Pacific railroad passing conveniently near, giving us direct communication with the outer world. If the lands around could be bought, it would soon develop into a city of no mean dimensions.

I am sorry to say that our church has not kept pace with the growth of the town; but we earnestly pray that the church may awake from its lethargy and that a new era may soon be recorded of Methodism in Patterson. Pray for us and our people.

JNO. A. MILLER.

Patterson, La.

The man is considered the most reckless of men who risks his life by putting his head into the mouth of a savage lion. The men who perform this foolhardy act are few and far between.

There are tens of thousands of men who daily do a much more rash and dangerous deed. They are the men who overwork and neglect their health. No man can do this with impunity. The inevitable result is serious illness and premature death. One of the most common results of carelessness in regard to health is consumption. There is one, and only one, unfailing remedy for this dread disease. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has a record of thirty years, during which time it has cured 98 per cent. of all cases of bronchial, throat and lung affections. It acts directly on the digestive and nutritive organism. It creates a healthy appetite for food, facilitates the flow of digestive juices and promotes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve-tonic. In cases of nervous prostration it builds up the nerve fibres and gives sound, refreshing sleep.

"I took a severe cold with sore throat," writes Mrs. A. S. Everhart, of Oard Spring, Scott Co., Ind. "Soon I began to cough. My right side became sore so that when I coughed it seemed as though my side would burst. The physician said I had pleurisy. I took his medicine for some time and got no better. All through the spring and summer I used mustard plasters and fly blisters on my side and over lungs. Finally I began to ache so badly between my shoulders that I could hardly endure it and at times almost smothered. My breath was so short that I could scarcely talk. Several of my near relatives had died of consumption. I thought I would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took two bottles of it, and two of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' and am a new person. I would not take any money for the benefit received."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to January, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to January, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to February, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

Be avaricious of time; do not give any moment without receiving it in value; only allow the hours to go from you with as much regret as you give to your gold; do not allow a single day to pass without increasing the treasure of your knowledge and virtue. The use of time is a debt we contract from birth, and it should only be paid with the interest that our life has accumulated.—Letourneur.

ENNOBLING THE COMMONPLACE.

Sir John Lubbock expressed a great truth when he said: "Whether a life is noble or ignoble depends not on the calling which is adopted, but on the spirit in which it is followed. The humblest life may be noble, while that of the greatest genius or the most powerful monarch may be contemptible." A railroad engineer or a brakeman may display the most heroic faithfulness in the discharge of duty, while the directors of the great corporation may show themselves to be actuated principally by selfishness and unscrupulous greed. The owner of a princely estate not seldom proves himself to be a churlish knave, while a servant in his employ exhibits all the qualities of a noble manhood.

We are all more or less inclined to imagine that greatness and worth can be attained only in the pursuance of great occupations and grand enterprises; but this is far from being true. Fame may be denied him; but he who in his toil, however lowly, feels the impulse of a noble motive, causing him to be honest, faithful and diligent, rises above his commonplace task, and is worthy to be enrolled among the great and the good.

To the majority of men labor in one's special calling is mere drudgery, utterly lacking in any worthiness. The student, forgetful of the priceless blessings of wisdom, oft looks upon his lessons as a task for his affliction, and, therefore, as a thing to be shirked, if possible. The clerk in a mercantile house, having to be up early and late, and to perform disagreeable duties, frequently looks no further than the dull routine of his daily life, and aspires to be no more capable or industrious than he is forced to be. The laborer, working under a boss, is often ambitious rather to do as little as possible than to do his work well. To all such labor has no dignity and but little blessedness, while life seems but a weary, unceasing round of duties and cares that must be endured from stern necessity.

To the man, however, who feels the thrill of a high and holy purpose, life is invested with an infinite meaning, and toil, however commonplace, affords opportunity for the display of noble traits, and the development of heavenly virtues. He who puts his heart into his work will be little disturbed by a sense of the unworthiness of his occupation, provided it be an honest one. People are prone to fancy that if they were but engaged in some lofty enterprise, or splendid business, they would accomplish great things; but in most instances they would be no more great or faithful in their new places than they were before. Well has it been said that "greatness consists not so much in doing extraordinary things as in doing ordinary things extraordinarily well."

It is one of the chief glories of religion that it touches life at every point, exalting the commonplace, and bringing conscience to bear upon everything we do. Christianity sets before men the loftiest motives to faithfulness, diligence, and honest toil, teaching us that even the most ordinary occupation, the most trivial act, may be made a means of glorifying God, and of receiving his favor. The Christian ought to feel that all that makes up life—its toils, its cares, its temptations, its responsibilities, its duties—are of divine appointment, and that his daily tasks, however humble, are a divine obligation. As George Herbert sings:

"A servant with this clause
Makes drudgery divine;
Who sweeps a room as for thy laws,
Makes that and the action fine."

So, then, every act we perform, every word we speak, has a religious character; and consequently the distinction between sacred and secular is largely imaginary and misleading. Piety that is confined to acts of devotion is hardly more than an empty form. The manner and spirit in which we perform our daily tasks, and in which we deal with our fellow-men, often indicates more truly whether we are the Lord's than do our acts of worship.

If we could only feel that the divine concern embraces all we do, and that it is possible for us to honor God in ordinary duties and menial tasks, as well as in affluences or greatness, how it would transform life, and invest its lowly and monotonous phases with a halo of glory! A devout washerwoman at the close of a hard day's labor sang as she ascended the stairway to her abode in a dingy attic, "One more day's work for Jesus." Though the world may make merry over such a sentiment, it is nevertheless divine in its origin. That humble disciple, engaged in her lowly avocation, knew more of the true philosophy of life, the secret of blessedness, here and hereafter, than can be found in all the ponderous tomes ever written from an anti-christian or unchristian standpoint. Every Christian ought to feel that in faithfully discharging his daily tasks, however humble, wearisome and monotonous, he is serving God. When the anxious mother, cumbered with many cares and the ceaseless round of household duties, comes to realize that her place in the home is a part of God's plan, and that her service is unto the Lord as well as unto her loved ones, then "every meal becomes a sacrament, and the commonest duty a burning bush flaming with the presence of God."

THE MORMON QUESTION.

At the November election Mr. Brigham H. Roberts, a resident of Utah, was elected as its member to the Fifty-sixth Congress, which will be called to order in March, 1899. This statement of itself, and without explanation, would have little significance, but becomes of general interest upon the explanation that Mr. Roberts made his candidacy as a Mormon, was elected by the voters of the Mormon Church, and goes to Washington for the express purpose of forwarding the interests of Mormonism in Utah and elsewhere. Even this, however, would not be so deeply significant were it not for the fact that Mr. Roberts is said to be a polygamist, and that his canvass in Utah was made with the understanding that he had a plurality of wives and that all his influence and labor would be directed toward maintaining the system which has made Mormonism a blotch on the civilization of this country.

There is a popular impression that polygamy was abolished in Utah by the vigorous action taken by the United States Government for its suppression, but it seems from the statements made in the press that the abolition of this disgraceful institution was only in name, and that, in a more or less disguised form, it is still practiced among the Mormons. If this is the case, it is evident that the real Mormon issue has not yet been met. So long as Utah was a territory, Congress could deal with the Mormon question as in its wisdom seemed best, but now Utah is a sovereign State of the Union, with a regularly formed State Government and the right to manage its own business as its citizens see proper. Its Legislature has full power to make all laws for the regulation of its affairs, and if polygamy is practiced openly or secretly and the local tribunals do not interfere, it is not easy to see how the United States Government can intervene for the suppression of the evil.

It is true that Utah was admitted with a distinct provision forbidding polygamy, but everyone knows how easily provisions of this kind may be evaded, and although the Mormon Church loudly professed its intention of mending its ways, if its leaders chose to go back into the old paths, it would not be easy to restrain them, and there is, therefore, a possibility, not to say probability, that in a few years Mormonism will resume all the revolting features which made it a stench in the nostrils of the world.

What action Congress will take with regard to Mr. Roberts when he presents himself for admission and qualification as a member is uncertain. Each House of Congress has the right to determine the privileges and election of its own members, and if Mr. Roberts has been properly elected and is duly qualified, it is possible that he may be allowed to take his seat, even though the fact be proven that he is a polygamist. There are persons who take the ground that so long as the election is in proper form and valid, Congress has no right to inquire into the morality of its members, and that if Mr. Roberts had a hundred wives, that fact has no concern for Congress.

On the other hand, however, and leaving out of the question the legal quibbles which are raised by casuists, the members of Congress should take the broad ground that polygamy has been forbidden by the laws of the United States, and that no lawbreaker should be allowed to occupy a seat in either House. If Mr. Roberts is a polygamist, as charged by the newspapers, even his appearance as a candidate for a seat in the House of Representatives is an insult to the decent people of this country, and the House will be justified in refusing him admission. To allow him to take his seat, with a knowledge that he is a violater of the law, is contrary to sound morality and public policy. The moral and Christian people of this country have made up their minds that no such institution as polygamy can be allowed within the limits of the United States. If the end can not be accomplished in one way, it can in another, and if the Mormons continue in their efforts to perpetuate a barbarous and loath some institution, they may ascertain the fact to their cost.

[We heartily endorse the above from the St. Louis Advocate. It is as good as if we had written it.—EDITOR.]

A WORD TO THE BRETHREN.

We request the co-operation of all our pastors and presiding elders in making known our $1 offer. Let it be known that this offer looks to a permanent reduction in the subscription price of the paper. There is no way in which a reduction can be brought about except by an increase of circulation. Our offer is intended to facilitate this result. A number of brethren have written us pledging their hearty co-operation, and several have sent in new subscriptions already. We hope all will do likewise. Every pastor ought to be interested in the circulation of the Conference organ. He who circulates such a paper as the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE in the homes of his people will confer a priceless benefit upon them and help himself by generating an increased interest in the institutions of the church.

PRACTICAL RELIGION.

Each one of our delinquent subscribers doubtless supposes that his small arrearage is a matter of no consequence. If there were only one delinquent, that might be true. But it alters the case very materially when the delinquents number a thousand or more. We hope each subscriber who is in arrears will look at the label on his paper and read the golden rule, "with the spirit and with the understanding." When this is done, true religion will materialize into that which will make glad the heart of the printer and the vender of paper and ink.

N. B.

Our $1 offer now running is made specifically to new subscribers. In it we state that when the required number of new subscribers has been secured, we will grant the same extension to old subscribers as to new ones. Let subscribers and agents take notice.

REV. A. J. JONES.

Rev. A. J. Jones, a superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference, died yesterday morning at nine o'clock, at his home near this place. It was a most triumphant death. A more extended notice will be given later. W. S. LAGRONE.

Water Valley, Miss., Jan. 16, 1899.

The above note from Bro. Lagrone will be read with painful interest by a large circle of friends in North Mississippi. Bro. Jones was a most excellent man, a good preacher and a diligent, faithful pastor. Though in the prime of life, he had been on the superannuated list for two or three years, being a victim of pulmonary consumption.

The fact is, the spirituality and success of a church can be more accurately measured by its missionary spirit than in any other way. No one will dispute the statement that the strength of a church depends upon the number of true believers which it contains; but believers are true only in so far as they resemble Christ and obey his word, and his word, above all other words, is to preach the gospel to every creature. The non-missionary church decays and dies; the missionary church lives and grows. All the way from Pentecost to the latest outpouring of the Holy Ghost every great spiritual awakening has been followed by a new departure in the field of missions; and conversely such departures have always been times of blessing in the home churches.—Missionary Outlook.

A SAD REVIVAL STATE.

No man in his senses can oppose revivals, but no man in his senses can fail to see that we are making some sad mistakes in conducting revivals. We want to emphasize the fact that, while we are not stressing the protracted meeting too much, we are stressing the continued, perennial revival too little. We are relegating the revival work altogether to the annual protracted meeting, and the consequence is that we have fewer conversions, and most of the year a backslidden church. We save our revival sermons for the special meetings, and the people do not look for any revival movements except during those services. Neither preachers nor people expect any conversions at other times, and hence they neither pray nor work for them.

Our church had a marvelous history when our preachers were in the revival spirit all the time, and all the time were talking, working, and preaching for immediate soul-saving results. They were all the time stirring up the people and urging them to seek salvation at once and to bring others to the cross. The church was then more or less in a revival state all the year, and when the protracted-meeting season came, they were ready for the onset without any long season of labor with the church.

Under our present system the church, for eleven months of the year, has nothing to do but to backslide, and she generally uses her opportunity in that way and to that end. Hence there are not only no conversions, or but few, during those eleven months, but when the protracted-meeting season comes, most of the time must be spent in trying to revive the backslidden church, and that task becomes harder and harder every year. Many have noticed that each year more and more time must be spent in bringing the church up to the working and soul-saving condition, and this is only because so little is done in keeping the church up to that condition. When church members do nothing for the salvation of others nine-tenths of the year, of course they will backslide, and of course it will be harder to revive them the next year.

We would not have preachers to abate any of their interest in protracted services, but it is of the first importance that they give more heed toward continuing the revival interest during the entire year. By that means people may be converted every week, the work done during the special meetings will be more efficient and productive, and the aggregate result in conversions will be far in advance of what it now is. A revival every Sunday and Wednesday night is the only way to keep the people at work and to insure success in the protracted meetings. It is the only way, too, to keep the church from lapsing into that condition where it will soon be impossible to have a revival at any time.—Wesleyan Advocate.

General Brooke was in command in Porto Rico, and he distinguished himself by his physical magnificence, his pompous concern for his own dignity, and his blunders of administration. Fortunately he was removed before he had time to do any great hurt, but unfortunately he was transferred to the position of military governor of Cuba. We suppose he was put there because his rank, to which he had risen by the succession of years since he was transferred, after the Civil War, from the volunteer to the regular army, seemed to require that some important place be given him. He had hardly come to Havana before trouble began, and every day adds to it. General Wood, at Santiago, is a much more efficient officer, and he is unusually popular. He had succeeded in making the people love the United States. He could feel with the people, and was evidently doing his best for them. But General Brooke has already, by his lack of tact, and by his heedlessness of the feelings of the Cubans, made the American name almost a stench with the people. Such a man is not fit to be put in authority; he ought to be immediately put in some honorary position of innocuous exhibition, and such a man as General Wood should be put in his place. To have the gift of popularity is now a first essential in Cuba, and even more in the Philippine Islands. There everything depends on this. A wise, tactful man could easily break down the disaffection of Aguinaldo and his followers; a tactless man may inaugurate a long insurrection. There is absolutely no need of any rebellion against our authority. The people can be made to want it and love it. Popularity is not policy only, it is sacred duty.—Independent.

There is no such Ithuriel spear to try our spirits as the little every-day occurrences of our habitual life, as its most common joys and sorrows. —Rev. John W. Chadwick.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valnable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, bnt only after research involving great expenditnre of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloqnent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religions press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The anthor has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular nse we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendinm in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valnable part of what is nsually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Jonrnal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

NOTICE.

Pastors desiring my assistance in revivals will please write me at once, as I am now making engagements for the year. I received more invitations last year than I could accept, but could have gone to several other brethren if some of their invitations had come in sooner. My desire is to respond to as many calls as possible, but can not do this when pastors wait till the battle is on before extending the invitations. Let's begin at once brethren, and make this the greatest year of our lives in the salvation of souls. Dying at the rate of sixty every minute, fifteen and one half millions of souls will have passed into eternity between now and the middle of next Summer—the so-called "revival season." Some of the greatest meetings I ever held were in January and February. God says, "Now is the accepted time; to-day is the day of salvation." Begin now.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

FROM REV. H. P. LEWIS.

We are having quite a tussle with la grippe. Myself and three of our children have been quite sick. It will be some days yet before I get able to go to my work. Our little grandson, Harold Tillorry Lewis, son of Rev. B. W. and Ella Lewis, was taken from us on the twelfth instant. It was one month and six days old; died of la grippe. We are sometimes called to wade through deep waters, but underneath us are the "everlasting arms." The little one is "safe in the arms of Jesus." May the Lord bless and comfort its grief-stricken parents and little sister!

God bless the dear old ADVOCATE and all connected with its interest this year. H P. LEWIS.

MUSICAL PEDAGOGICS.

The Georgia Female Seminary and Conservatory of Music at Gainesville, Ga., has made a new departure in musical lines. Normal training for teachers in literary schools has become very popular in the South, so that it is now considered almost necessary for one who wishes to teach to have normal training. Thus far, however, there has been no attempt to apply normal methods in the training of music teachers. This new departure on the part of the progressive young institution at Gainesville will be watched with much interest. That it will succeed there seems to be little doubt, for there is evidently much need for such work; and if reputation is any indication of ability and character, the institution at Gainesville is prepared to do such work in the best manner.

The first term will begin Tuesday, January 17th, and will continue twelve weeks.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

Dr. DuBose, the General Secretary of the Epworth Leagues, and editor of the Epworth Era, has just finished his round of the Annual Conferences. Subjoined we give some things suggested as a result of his peregrinations:

We may now give some of our slowly maturing views on the League situation. First, we are more than ever convinced of the providential coming of the Epworth League into organic Methodism. It has quickened the spiritual pulse of the church, helped to the compacting of the body, contributed to the working forces of Methodism, and infused into our whole system a spirit of aspiration and enlarged desire. We have carefully noted the effect of the movement on the church as shown in the reports submitted to the several Annual Conferences which we have attended. These reports amount to a demonstration of the wisdom of setting the League afloat. We are also impressed in this connection with the prophetic value of what has been accomplished. Nowhere have the plans of the League been strained. What has been done has been done in most cases by "the League on trial." The experiment has convinced every honest, patient pastor of its importance. The League has its life before it. Its largest victories are to be written in the records of the new century.

EPWORTH LEAGUE UNION.

The Epworth League Union held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, the tenth, at Carrollton Avenue M. E. Church, South. The meeting was opened with Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Dr. C. W. Carter.

After the usual routine business there was the election of officers for the ensuing half year. Rev. G. D. Parker, having ably served two terms as president, was re-elected. Mr. A. S. Daniels was elected first vice-president; Miss F. B. Patterson, re-elected second vice-president; Rev. J. F. Foster, third vice-president; Dr. W. S. Cushman, secretary, and Rev. P. H. Fontaine, treasurer. After some well-rendered songs there were refreshments served.

The League is doing much charitable and evangelical mission work. The next meeting will be held at Dryades M. E. Church, South.

A MALARIA POISONED LIVER will also cause as great a change in physical life. Sunshine will leave the face. The eye loses its sparkle; while the skin assumes a dull copper tint. These are least of the evils and merely bespeak the external cry that Nature gives when battling with Malaria germs. Headache, Nausea, dullness of thought, pain in the back and side, a coated tongue, a horrible taste, are among the danger signals which if unheeded portend CONGESTION, CONVULSIONS, SUPPRESSION OF SECRETIONS AND TERMINATION OF LIFE.

Far easier than the solution of the social problem is the remedy for Malaria—DICKS' CHILLIFUGE absolutely exterminates it. A Few Doses, and health spreads her wings over the grateful system, and the sun shines once more, while life is worth the living.

DOING WELL DEPENDS ON DOING COMPLETELY.

"If I were a cobbler, it would be my pride,
The best of all cobblers to be;
If I were a tinker, no tinker beside Should mend an old kettle like me."

It is a rule that a workman must follow his employer's orders, as a writer in "The Living Age" says, but no one has a right to make him do discreditable work. Judge M——, a well-known jurist living near Cincinnati, loved to tell the following anecdote of a young man who understood the risk of doing a shabby job even when directed to. He had occasion to send for a carpenter, and a sturdy young fellow appeared.

"I want this fence mended. There are some unplaned boards—use them. You need not take time to make it a neat job. I will only pay you a dollar and a half."

Later, the judge found the man carefully planing each board. Supposing that he was trying to make a costly job, he ordered him to nail them on just as they were, and continued his walk. When he returned, the boards were all planed and numbered ready for nailing.

"I told you this fence was to be covered with vines," he said, angrily; "I do not care how it looks."

"I do," said the carpenter, gruffly, carefully measuring his work. When it was done, there was no other part of the feuce as thorough in finish.

"How much do you charge?" asked the judge.

"A dollar and a half," said the man, shouldering his tools.

The judge stared. "Why did you spend all that labor on that fence, if not for money?"

"For the job, sir."

"Nobody would have seen the poor work on it."

"But I should have known it was there. No; I'll take only a dollar and a half." He took it, and went away.

Ten years afterwards the judge had a contract to give for the erection of several magnificent public buildings. There were many applicants among the master-builders, but the face of one caught his eye.

"It was my man of the fence," he said. "I knew we should have only good, genuine work from him. I gave him the contract, and it made a rich man of him."

It is a pity that boys and girls are not taught in their earliest years that the highest success belongs only to those whose work is most sincerely and thoroughly done.—Success.

TEACH OBSERVATION.

Busy mothers are apt to neglect to teach their little ones the art of observation. Thereby much is missed by mother and child, for who can teach anything, however simple or well known, without learning something themselves? Look at the children near you, while they are engaged in play, or take them for a walk and listen to their chatter, and see how they differ in the development of this faculty.

A successful professional man, when asked to what he attributed his success, answered, "To my attention to little things," and it is the little things that need to be brought to the notice of children. The big things they see for themselves. It is another case of looking after the pennies and letting the pounds take care of themselves.

I give this faculty of observation the credit for about half of my pleasure. I once took a walk into the country with two friends. One was of the observing kind, the other was not. When we reached a bit of wood, that, for us who could comprehend it, contained more than we were able to get the full pleasure of by merely passing through, the one who could not take in its beauties said: "Well, I'll sit here till you two are through going into raptures over every old weed you come to. Then we'll go on." Poor girl, the long, lovely ramble had only served to weary her. We were not conscious of fatigue, because our enjoyment was greater than our weariness.

Children who are observing are much easier to teach, in school or workshop, than those who are not. Therefore it is not simply a matter of enjoyment, but one of greater importance that they be taught to see the little things, for when they come to engage in business for themselves, the brighter boy or girl will be given the preference always.

A good way to sharpen this habit, and one which will help to while away many a rainy afternoon or evening, if pleasantly conducted, is to let the children sit before a window, or walk a certain distance (using the same window or walk), and then write out as best they can all that they have seen.

Each will try to report having seen more than the others, and, of course, keeping within verity, it will be good exercise.—Housekeeper.

PROFITABLE LOSSES.

The following good speech is nearly a verbal report of one heard at a temperance meeting:

"I have been thinking since I came into the meeting to-night about the losses I've met since I signed the total abstinence pledge. I tell you there isn't a man in the society who has lost more by stopping drink than I have. Wait a bit until I tell you what I mean. There was a nice job of work to be done in the shop to-day, and the boss called for me.

"'Give it to Law,' said he. 'He's the best hand in the shop.'

"Well, I told my wife at supper-time, and she said:

"'Why, Laurie, he used to call you the worst. You've lost your bad name, haven't you?'

"'That's a fact, wife,' said I. 'And it ain't all I've lost in the last sixteen months, either. I had poverty and wretchedness, and I lost them. I had an old ragged coat and a shockin' bad hat, and some waterproof boots that let the wet out at the toes as fast as they took it in at the heel. I've lost them. I had a red face, a trembling hand, and a pair of shaky legs that gave me an awkward tumble now and then; I had a habit of cursing and swearing, and I've got rid of that. I had an aching head sometimes, and a heavy heart, and, worse than all the rest, a guilty conscience. Thank God, I've lost them all.'

"Then I told my wife what she had lost.

"'You lost an old ragged gown, Mary,' said I. 'And you had trouble and sorrow, and a poor, wretched home and plenty of heartaches, for you had a miserable drunkard. Mary, Mary, thank the Lord for all you and I have lost since I signed the temperance pledge!'"—Chase City Progress.

WIDE-AWAKE BOYS.

When General Grant was a boy his mother one morning found herself without butter for breakfast and sent him to borrow some from a neighbor. Going, without knocking, into the house of his neighbor, whose son was then at West Point, young Grant overheard a letter read from the son stating that he had failed in examination and was coming home. He got the butter, took it home, and, without waiting for breakfast, ran down to the office of the congressman from that district.

"Mr. Hamar," he said, "will you appoint me to West Point?"

"No, so-and-so is there and has three years to serve."

"But suppose he should fail, will you send me?"

Mr. Hamar laughed. "If he don't go through, no use for you to try."

"Promise you'll give me a chance, Mr. Hamar, anyhow."

Mr. Hamar promised.

The next day the defeated lad came home and the Congressman, laughing at Uly's sharpness, gave him the appointment. "Now," said Grant, "it was my mother's being out of butter that made me General and President." But it was his own shrewdness to see the chance and promptness to seize it, that urged him upwards.—Christian Advocate.

DUSTING A ROOM.

The girl who takes as much pride in learning to dust a room properly as she does in learning to draw, who broils a steak with the same nicety as she embroiders a rosebud, who makes coffee as carefully as she crochets, is the girl who will make the economical, cheery wife, loving mother, and delightful companion. It is not a crime to know how to keep house. Every girl expects to have a home of her own some day, yet the girl and her mother, when circumstances permit, too often act as though there was no such thing as a servantless home, and food grew on bushes ready for the picking.—Selected.

HOW TO REACH THE BEST.

The way to get the best there is in people, is to give them your best. Don't expect others to be sweet, and polite, and thoughtful, so long as you adhere to the selfish principle that people must "take you as they find you." When your friends begin to grow careless and disrespectful, stop and ask yourself whether you are not getting back a reflection of yourself. A young wife complained to her husband that he smoked in her presence. "You never used to do it," she said. "No," was the significant rejoinder, "and you never used to wear curl papers in mine."—The Lookout.

CHEERFULNESS.

"Be cheerful," says the man who is easy in his circumstances, missing no loved face at the table, nor by the hearth. But does he ever consider how hard it may be to be "cheerful" when the heart aches, and the cup-board is empty, and there are little fresh graves in the churchyard, and friends are few or indifferent, and even heaven for the time being seems to have forgotten us; so desolate is our lot? How difficult for one man to understand another, in such different circumstances! How easy to say, "Be cheerful!" How hard he would find it to practice it were he stripped of all life's brightness!—Great Thoughts.

I shall never forget the impression made upon me during the first year of my ministry by a mechanic whom I had visited, and on whom I urged the paramount duty of family prayer. One day he entered my study, bursting into tears, as he said: "You remember that girl, sir? She was my only child. She died suddenly this morning. She has gone, I hope, to God; but, if so, she can tell him, what now breaks my heart, that she never heard a prayer in her father's house, or from her father's lips! Oh, that she were with me but for one day again!"—Norman McLeod.

By reading good books, by keeping one's self well informed as to the interesting events of the day, one may become a good conversationalist. Still, the most fascinating talkers are by no means those who know the most; but, instead, those who have the greatest amount of tact, are most sympathetic, versatile, and, most important of all, have that wonderful something that, lacking a better name, we call magnetism.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Remember that if anyone shies off from you and acts as if he does not like you, that it is your fault and not his. If there is nothing admirable or lovable about you, how can you expect others to like you? First, make yourself "likable" and "lovable," and then others will like you and love you.—H. M. Myers.

Dr. Parkhurst, in his "Talks to Young Men," says: "Thirty years ago, if a young man made up his mind to go to college, the first question he asked of himself was, 'How can I earn the money?' The first question he is likely to ask himself to-day is, 'Whom can I look to, to give the money?'"—Western Recorder.

Hygiene.

TEMPERANCE A PHYSIOLOGICAL NECESSITY.

The influence of all drugs which affect the nervous system must be in the direction of disintegration. The healthy mind stands in clear and normal relations with nature. It feels pain as pain. It feels action as pleasure. The drug which conceals pain or gives false pleasure when pleasure does not exist, forces a lie upon the nervous system. The drug which disposes to reverie rather than to work, which makes us feel well when we are not well, destroys the sanity of life. All stimulants, narcotics, tonics, which affect the nervous system in whatever way, reduce the truthfulness of sensation, thought and action. Toward insanity all such influences lead; and their effect, slight though it be, is of the same nature as mania. The man who would see clearly, think truthfully and act effectively, must avoid them all. Emergency aside, he can not safely force upon his nervous system even the smallest falsehood. And here lies the one great unanswerable argument for total abstinence; not abstinence from alcohol alone, but from all nerve poisons and emotional excesses.—David S. Jordan, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

THE WONDERFUL BOOK.

No matter what skepticism may allege to the contrary, or what difficulties may sometimes embarrass our minds, as points which are not yet wholly cleared arrest our thoughts, is it possible that a book so universal as this in its reach should not be divine? Divine in plan, and in special construction, as well as in the great system of thought which it presents? Did simply unaided human minds, from the narrowest and least sympathetic of the peoples, with no literary training, under the darkness of centuries earlier than of Solon or of Homer, prepare a book so cosmical as this in its fitness to the race? Bring all the other component parts of the world's literature to comparison with it—poetries, histories, treatises, orations, philosophies, sciences, codes of law, the utterances of men imperially endowed, the products of scholars, jurists, schools, whose names mark eras for their nations—put anything you choose, from the immense aggregate, in comparison with this, and how they fade, as lights of the earth before the sun, how they dwindle into littleness as turrets and spires beneath the stars!

Surely, unless all experience is a lie, and all argument a dream, but one mind that ever has wrought in the earth was competent to this: to make a book, through so many writers, which the Malay should love, as well as we; which Newton should cherish as of all most precious, and Pascal should accept as furnishing in its structure a new proof of Christianity, and which the ragged and unkempt child, picked out of the streets, or drawn from the depths of vilest slums, should find to him the most fascinating of volumes. The theophany Of Sinai was more striking than this; but even it was scarcely more vivid in its exhibition of the presence of God. And if now it were written in intelligible lightnings in yonder sky, "The Bible is from God," and underneath the declaration were stamped, in intervolved thunderbolts, the very signature of Jehovah, it could hardly be more demonstrative than this of his authorship in the Scripture. We meet the mind that built the earth when we open the leaves of this Book of the world.

And what an argument comes to us for the spread of it; what vast incitements to this rise upon us when we think, on the one hand, of Him from whom it comes to the world, and, on the other, of the race for which it has been prepared!

It is the one bond of intellectual unity between countries and centuries. Other books pass away, however brilliant, however great. Only this abideth forever. And the skin-clothed spearman of the woods, converted to Christ, is brought through it to intellectual sympathy with the highest of Christian statesmen and scholars. The earliest age is linked to the latest through its influence upon each, and the figures that walk before our thought amid the auroral dawn of history stretch forward their hands to join and grasp in common love for it those white-robed saints who shine before us in coming ages, cincture and crowned with millennial beauty.

It is a book full of stimulating force and purifying power. It is not like the magical sign in the Faust, across which, if it were accurately drawn on the threshold, Mephistopheles could not pass. It is not like a sacrament, given physically and accepted mechanically, which claims by its direct operation to ally men to God, and to make them safe without change in their character. It is a vast treasury of intellectual and moral appeal, by which, whoever lovingly ponders it, shall be impressed, impenetrated, transformed, made a son or daughter of the Almighty, and assimilated in spirit to all that is God-like. Its fruits are thus seen in public life as well as in private. All welfare comes from its inspirations, and the best civilizations are conditioned on its power.

It is a book that never will cease to be as perfect as now; as perfect in itself and in its interior fitness to the race; a book, therefore, of which no conceivable assaults will impair, though they may hinder its power to bless; a book that will abide till human nature has been made over. The present Archbishop of Westminster has affirmed, in a recent essay, that "the Scriptures separated from the church perish." But the truth is that the Scriptures preserve the church, and keep it from perishing; and that nowhere are they so omnipresent and so influential as where the church, in his sense of the word—as a vast organization of priestly function and prelatic prerogative—has never had or has lost its power. They will perish, not when the Roman hierarchy does, but only when the earth does, for which they were made, and the living souls of men on the earth to which they were adapted by God. And even then their influence will remain, in brighter effects, in grander spheres.—Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs.

PASTOR AND PEOPLE.

The relation between the minister and his people should not be merely a commercial one. The pastor is not an employee. He is God's servant and messenger, sent to warn, to admonish, to edify and instruct the men and women by whom he is surrounded. He is not a hired man, but a helper. The church member who forgets that the church is opened on Sunday that the people may worship God, and who goes to church in the mood which he attends a lecture or a play, all his critical faculties alert, is much to be pitied. He has yet to learn the meaning of the word "worship."

The people have a right to demand in their pastor piety, intelligence, knowledge, zeal, industry, and fair common sense. The ministry being a most important and responsible calling, he who engages in it should do so only in response to an unquestioned divine call. If there be in this work those who are insensible of its responsibilities and unequal to its duties, it is safe to presume that it was no heavenly voice which called them into this field. The real minister of the gospel never puts his personal welfare in the scale as the chief factor. He is the servant of Jesus Christ, and he gladly goes where Providence points the way.

Such a man is entitled to the cordial and prayerful co-operation of his flock. Christian people should honor him for the work's sake, should see that he lives by the gospel, and should deal with him kindly; yet fairly. They should endeavor to be sharers of his toils as well as his joys, and should help him even as he fain would help them. From the public congregation the critical spirit should be banished and the spirit of devout prayer and sincere worship invoked. It is surprising how rapidly one grows in Christian stature when he goes to the house of God with a sincere yearning after spiritual food. Yes, when one is in the right mood the humblest servant of God is a helper to riper Christian experience; but if we forget to come to the church in a prayerful spirit, an archangel's sermon would be wasted upon us.—Central Advocate.

Differences of opinion between persons have always existed, and always will exist. But our relation to those with whom we differ divides us into several classes. There are those, for example, who can honestly differ on many subjects, and yet maintain a generous and abiding friendship, and there are those who make the subject so personal to themselves that opposition is regarded as offensive and unfriendly. They believe and assume the worst about those who differ with them, and act as if they were personal enemies. Even in religious bodies there are men of this sort. All Conference action that is out of harmony with their views is interpreted as personal opposition and enmity. They can not gracefully accept a majority decision if they happen to be on the other side, and sometimes indulge in ridicule, irony and sarcasm at the obtuseness and stupidity of the majority. They assume the air of a martyr, and look the picture of injured innocence. But under the sanctified exterior there is the latent fire, and the first opportunity will burst it into a flame of consuming violence. It is an evidence of courage—manliness and nobility—to accept defeat gracefully; but from the man whose face grows long, and whose demeanor is that of a sanctified martyr, when the majority goes against him, good Lord, deliver us.—Methodist Protestant.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

In looking at the stars through a great telescope, it is necessary first to put out every light until you are left in total darkness. Every light sets the air in motion, and disturbs the focus, and blurs the vision of the stars. How often our vision of God is blurred and dimmed by the flames of self-consciousness and sordidness that float around us! How many times we have to put out the light of self-seeking, earthly ambition and false pride of position in order to look upward, and in the clear, still air to know whither God's lights are leading us, and what God will have us to do!—Rev. W. H. P. Faunce.

It is a good thing to practice what one preaches when one preaches good doctrine. But the failure to practice the doctrine that one preaches is no sign that the doctrine is not good. Moral ideals are not realized at a single bound, and the dereliction of him who holds them is in a measure a testimonial to their worth and elevation. Yet it is a fact that truth is often rejected simply because he who advocates it has not yet learned to practice it. The Christ is not on trial by the practice of his preacher, but the preacher is on trial by the standards of his Lord.—Sunday-School Times.

Charity indeed we owe to the dead as well as to the living; but not that erroneous charity by which truth is violated and undeserved commendation lavished on those whom truth could no longer injure.—Exchange.

EDITED BY WM. SMITH, LL. D.,

Classical Examiner of the University of London.

This great work prepared under the direction and superintendence of Dr. Smith himself contains every name in the Bible and Apocrypha of which anything can be said; gives an account of each of the books of the Bible; explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves; embraces the results of the most successful and approved biblical labors and researches, constituting an indispensable aid to ministers, teachers, families, Sunday-school superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

The simple explanations of this work, unlike the expositions of a commentary, admit of no denominational or sectarian coloring and it is therefore equally valuable to Bible readers of every diversity of belief.

This is, undoubtedly, the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The work contains 1024 large octavo pages, over 150 illustrations and maps engraved especially for this work and is handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. Publishers' price, $4.50.

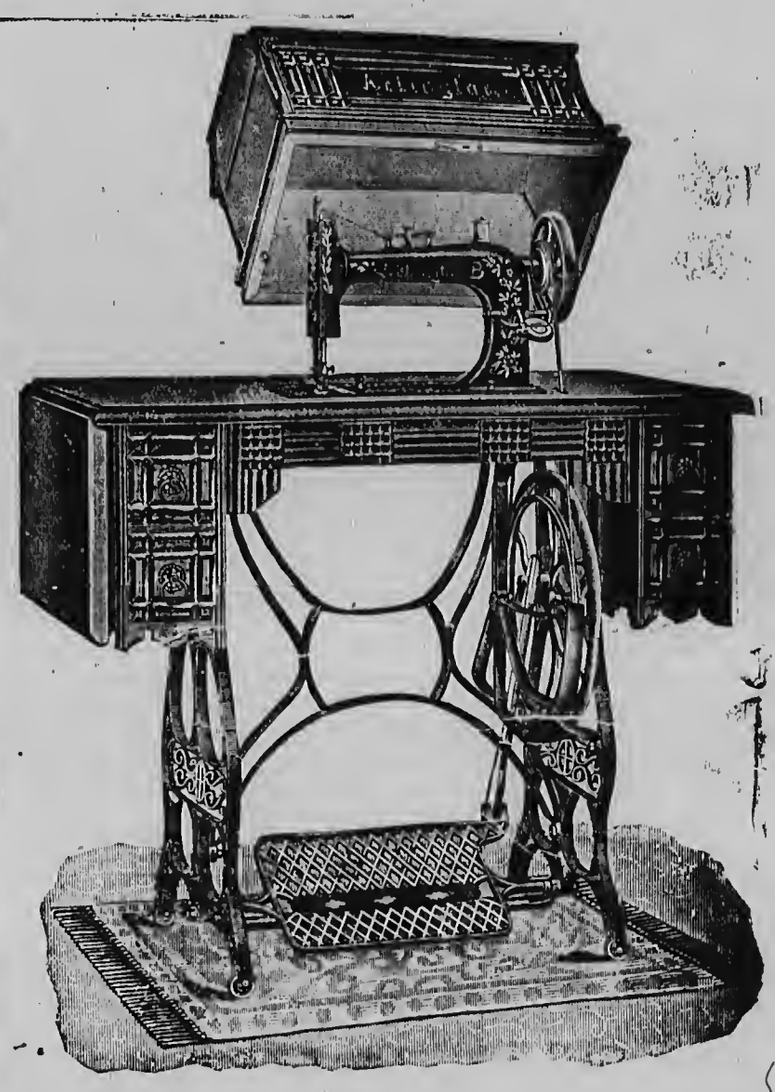
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. The savings banks of New York have deposits amounting to $766,684,916. This money belongs to no less than 1,805,880 persons, mostly poor.

The Massachusetts Paris Exposition Commission has about decided to include in the State exhibit at the coming international fair a working model of a Boston police station, showing the operation of the police signal system in all of its details.

There are 367 building and loan associations doing business in the State of New York. A bill is to be introduced shortly in the Legislature placing them under the supervision of the State Superintendent of Banking, in the same manner as the banks now are.

The American Government is now building and equipping a railroad in Cuba. Seventeen hundred men are at work. At least 1300 more will be given employment as soon as possible. The road runs from Trisconin around Guantanamo, giving connections with all railroads entering Havana.

On Saturday the new United States cruiser "Albany," which is building in England at the shipyards of Armstrong & Co., the noted shipbuilders, was launched from the ways. This cruiser, which is a sister ship of the "New Orleans," was purchased, together with the latter vessel, from the Brazilian Government just before the outbreak of the war with Spain.

The delay of the United States Senate in arriving at a decision upon the peace treaty is damaging American prestige in Manila. Two-thirds of the population would gladly support American rule, but dare not oppose Aguinaldo, who is backed by the army. The better class of Filipinos and the working classes fully understand that any form of purely native government would constitute a reign of terror.

That splendid marksmanship which characterized Yankee sailors everywhere in the war with Spain is not going to be neglected in these times of peace. The comfortable frigate "Lancaster" is fitting for sea at the Portsmouth yards, and will soon take fifty young seamen gunners South for a three months' term of practice. The monitor "Amphitrite," with her great 10-inch turret guns, is also preparing for this duty, in which she was engaged before the war.

Official dispatches just received from Iloilo, Island of Panaya, indicate that the natives are disposed to be friendly, although absolutely opposed to the landing of the United States forces without orders from Malolos, the seat of the so-called Filipino National Government. Some of the officials at Iloilo are not in accord with the revolutionary movement, but are willing to accept an American protectorate and to go to state the case to Aguinaldo if furnished transportation by the Americans.

It is said Brigadier-General Charles Eagan, commissary general of subsistence of the army, will be court-martialed by order of the President for the vituperative language employed by him on Thursday before the War Investigation Commission in his comments upon Major-General Miles and the testimony of that officer respecting the character of the beef furnished to the army which invaded Puerto Rico.

The War Commission will find in its report to the President that the charges of officers that the beef furnished to this army of invasion of Puerto Rico was "embalmed," chemically treated and unfit for use, are untrue, and that the meat supplied was good.

WORDS OF PRAISE bestowed upon Hood's Sarsaparilla by those who have taken it indicate that it is restoring health to thousands of people, and that it will help you also.

HOOD'S PILLS are easy to take, easy to operate. Cure biliousness, indigestion. 25 cents.

It is said that President McKinley is seriously considering the advisability of relieving Major-General Miles from the command of the army as a result of the beef scandal.

The commission to investigate the conduct of the war will place blame, it is said, as follows:

Secretary Algor—For weakness, especially in his relations with Major-General Miles.

General Miles—For his conduct before, during and after the war. For bringing unfounded charges that bad beef was supplied to troops in Puerto Rico.

General Shafter—For certain points which he admitted in his testimony.

General Breckinridge—For leaving his department to take part in the Santiago battle.

General Brooke—For conditions at Camp Thomas.

Medical Department—For lack of inspections. For failure to carry out proper sanitary regulations.

Congress—For failure to make appropriations for smokeless powder.

President McKinley will have in his possession the full report of the War Commission within the next ten days. This report, it is asserted, will not be a whitewash of the army administration. It will be unanimous on all essential points.

LITERARY NOTE FROM THE CENTURY COMPANY.

The Spanish War Series in The Century is proving a great success, and has very considerably increased the circulation of the magazine. In the February number General Shafter will tell the story of the Santiago campaign, and Lieut. Hobson will follow his account of the sinking of the "Merrimac" with a narrative of his imprisonment in Morro Castle.

THE MISSIONARY OUTLOOK.

Need we say how much depends upon an intelligent apprehension on our part in order to an intelligent forecast of our future? The century of missions is closing; and what inspirations, what resources, what preparations, what opportunities, has this century brought us! At the beginning of the century there were only two or three missionary societies in all Protestant Christendom; now there are upward of one hundred such societies, whose representatives are preaching the gospel to every nation under heaven. Then less than fifty versions of the Scriptures comprised the entire work of Bible translation since the days of the apostles; now the Word of God has been translated into more than two hundred and eighty languages, and the whole Bible made accessible to nine-tenths of the human race. In the beginning of the century £13 2s 6d was cast into the treasury at the house of Widow Wallace at Kettering for inaugurating the enterprise of modern missions; at the close of the century the societies which have sprung from that humble beginning are contributing $11,000,000 annually for evangelizing the heathen. A hundred years ago Woman's Missionary Societies were unknown; to-day there are nearly thirty such societies in America, along with twenty-five thousand auxiliaries, contributing $1,750,000 annually for the spreading of the gospel. At the beginning of the century, though the doors of several of the heathen nations stood ajar, hardly one had been securely opened; now every nation under heaven is to such degree accessible that missionaries of the cross have entered in. Well may we write the word "opportunity" over the closing decade of this nineteenth century, and well may we be admonished that opportunity is but another name for importunity, as though God were beseeching us by every open door to open our hearts and to open our hands and to open our purses, that we may worthily meet the crisis of missions which is upon us.

Now, measuring our fidelity on the scale of our opportunity, what estimate do we reach? The field is the world, and the whole world is accessible; and in all the world we have at the present time about seven thousand missionaries. But the same constituency which has seven thousand missionaries in the foreign field has a hundred and twenty-seven thousand ordained ministers laboring at home. The wealth of Protestant Christians has increased so enormously during the century that the evangelical Christians of the United States are credited with possessing $13,000,000,000; but, Do they possess this wealth, or are they possessed by it? is the question which must be raised when I tell you that these same Christians contribute annually only twenty-five cents per capita for foreign missions, and that this contribution is computed to be but one thirty-second part of one per cent. of their wealth. In spite of the meagerness of our contributions of men and money, missionaries have won marvelous triumphs. The converts from heathenism and their families are estimated at three millions—a result for which we should thank God and take courage. But, according to the statistics of Mr. Johnstone, in his "Century of Missions," the gain in heathen and Mohammedan population has been seventy times greater than this. Considering, then, that of earth's one thousand four hundred millions of population, a thousand million are yet destitute of any saving knowledge of Christ, and considering, moreover, that every success already won constitutes a new call for laborers and contributions and evangelical zeal, is it not clear that the demand upon us in the closing decade of this century is greater than ever before? What shall be our answer to this demand? In reply, I may disarm prejudice by saying that I repeat what many wise men thought at the beginning of the century, and what more think at the close, when I give this threefold challenge: Churches to the front, reserves to the front, and pastors to the front!—Review of Missions.

THE KAISER'S SUMMER RESIDENCE.

Among my acqnaintances in the Crescent City I nsed to nnmber a negro laborer, who was acenstomed to speak of an edncated man as one who had had his "head bleached against a college wall." During my stay in Germany, I have visited a nnmber of royal palaces, and, if their walls have the virtne corresponding to that of the halls of learning, there is ground for the hope that my cranium, which, for some reason, kind natnre has refnsed longer to shelter, will find itself adorned with a royal crown.

A few days since I paid a visit to the town of Potsdam, sixteen miles sonthwest of Berlin, where the Kaiser has his Snmmer residence. The town is of ancient origin, bnt was of little importance nntil the Great Elector fonnded his palace and park near by. It is situated on an island in the Havel river, which here divides into nnmerous branches, forming a network of charming little lakes. This lake district, snrronnded as it is by wooded hills, makes an ideal spot for a royal Snmmer home, and it is no wonder that, in the neighborhood of this little town of 38,000 inhabitants, there shonld be no less than seven palaces. We are not snrprised that Frederick the Great, whose life was by no means the happiest, shonld select this qniet spot for his favorite residence, and bnild there his famous palace, and give it the name of Sanssouci, meaning "without care." This palace is situated in a large park, which is adorned with fonntains and statnary. In front of the great fonntain is a marble bench, where the great Frederick loved to sit. Since I have not been as fortnnate as my friend, Thomas Carter, who succeeded in taking a seat on the throne of the Emperor of Anstria, I contented myself with a seat on this marble bench. From this point the most beantifnl view of the palace is had. It is approached by a flight of steps sixty-six feet in height, intersected by six terraces. The building is only one story high, is long and narrow, and has little exterior ornamentation. It is no longer occnpied, bnt is kept in perfect order, and shown to the pnblic.

The first room entered is that of Frederick's friend, the French skeptic and satirist, Voltaire, who felt he paid dearly for his residence with Frederick, since the monarch's attempts at literary work forced him to much time correcting and completing his productions. This room looks to-day mnch as it did when the French philosopher said farewell to Sanssouci. Its walls are covered with varions animals, carved in wood, and painted in bright colors. It was so arranged by Frederick dnring Voltaire's absence, for the pnrpose of informing the haughty Frenchman that his services were no longer needed, and that his room was more acceptable than his company. The monkey reminded Voltaire that his personal appearance was not altogether lovely; the parrot informed him that he talked too mnch; the stalk and crane insinnated that he traveled too mnch, and the peacock, embroidered on the window cnrtain, rebuked his pride.

The apartments of Frederick are preserved mnch as they were when he resided there. Attention is called to a small clock which Frederick was accustomed to wind himself, and which is said to have stopped at the precise moment of his death—2:20 P. M., Aug. 17, 1786. I expressed doubt as to the trnth of this story, but the Cicerone said it was really so, whereupon I proceeded to swallow one of the proverbial "granoinm salis."

Besides aspiring to literary fame, Frederick the Great was very fond of playing the flute. He had a concert room, where he was fond of gathering together the ladies and gentlemen of his conrt, and entertaining them with a few of his choice selections. An artist has pnt one of these scenes on canvas, and if it has been faithful in portraying the facts, the distingnished company did not have a royal time, thongh they were the gnests of the king. On the faces of some agony and long-snffering seemed to be portrayed, and one can imagine that when the last note of the king's mnsic fell on their ears, they heaved a sigh of relief, and said, "The king has kept the best note for the last."

On leaving the library one passes throngh a long, narrow hall, containing nnmerons paintings and pieces of statnary. It was here the king took his walks when the weather prevented his going ent. The gnide calls attention to the long, narrow seats here which, in former years, were mnch wider than they are now. Frederick's gnards fonnd they made comfortable beds, and slept on them while on dnty. To pnt a stop to this the king had their width redneed.

On leaving the palace one sees near by an old-fashioned wind-mill, made famons throngh the tradition that the owner refnsed to sell it to Frederick the Great.

A fifteen minntes' walk throngh Sanssouci Park brings one to the New Palace, or Palace of Frederick's Crown, which is known as the Snmmer residence of the present Emperor. Its decorations and frescoes are very rich. Its most striking featnre is what is known as the Shell Saloon—a large room with marble floor, arranged as a beantifnl grotto. This is accomplished by the nse of stones and shells for the lining of the walls. Snch skill has been employed in the arrangement of the large variety of beantiful shells and of the rare specimens of costly stones, that it reqnires bnt little effort for one to transport himself to the golden age of Greece, and see the nymphs dancing to the mnsic of the shepherds' reed. Honrs cenld be spent examining in detail the stones which prodnce so charming an effect. Immense pieces of agate, qnartz crystal, petrified wood, and the like, jnt ont everywhere. A shell is pointed ont whose pearl has not been removed. Two little stnffed alligators, or crocodiles, are in the attitnde of crawling down the wall. On tables rest two beantifnl specimens—one a piece of malachite, the other a lapis lazuli. One of these is a present from the Czar of Rnssia, and a large nnmber of the stones on the walls were presented to the Kaiser by the royalty of Europe.

Abont a half mile from the town proper may be fonnd many handsome villas overlooking the lakes. Here is the Kaiser's boat-honse, on the ontside of which may be seen the bones of a whale he helped to catch. Not far off is a park where he hnnts the wild boar, or, as one has said, the place where the Kaiser has somebody drive np pigs for him to shoot.

WEST POINT NOTES.

We are now nicely and comfortably domiciled in onr two-story parsonage. We are just abont as well sitnated here as we were in Grenada. We are perfectly delighted with onr new charge. We think we have abont the best in the Conference. This is the most progressive town, with the exception of Water Valley, I have visited in the State of Mississippi. It is not only becoming qnite a mannfacturing place, bnt it is also a city of schools. Not only the Southern Female College, with its large patronage, and presided over by that distinguished educator, Dr. Eshman, is located here, but it is said we have abont the best pnblic school in the State. Prof. Hayes has charge of the pnblic school, and a snperior gentleman I have not met in a long time.

We also have one of the best business colleges of which I have any knowledge. It is said to be the only incorporated school of the kind in the State of Mississippi. This school is presided over by Profs. G. A. Magon and A. A. Andrews. Any young man or lady desiring to stndy bookkeeping, stenography, or typewriting, wonld do well to correspond with these gentlemen.

Well, there have been two interesting church meetings held here since our arrival. One was the district stewards' meeting, and the other was the colored Conference. The district stewards' meeting was a very harmonions one, and the presiding elder was very mnch delighted because the stewards increased his salary over what it was last year. Bro. Bnrronghs has done a great work on this district dnring the last three years, and the brethren of the district fully appreciate his labors.

Bishop Merrill presided over the colored Conference, and, so far as I conld learn, gave very general satisfaction. We had the honor of entertaining the Bishop. It is a great blessing to come in contact with such a man, and a great pleasnre to have him in ynr home. He is the senior Bishop of the Northern Methodist Church, and for over a half centnry has largely fignred in shaping the History of American Methodism. He is not only a great preacher, bnt he is one of the most scholarly men I have met in a long while. It was a treat to have him and Dr. Curts preach for ns last Snnday. They gave ns two powerfnl sermons. The congregations were immense, and the effects of the sermons were very manifest.

Praying the blessings of God upon the ADVOCATE, I am,

Ynrs fraternally,

W. M. MCINTOSH.

GRAVE OF GEN. THOMAS HINDS.

MR EDITOR: I had the pleasnre of receiving to-day several valned sonvenirs from my friend, Mr. E. R. Jones, of Harriston, Miss.; a gavel and brick from the site of the residence of Rev. Newett Vick, in which the first Mississippi Conference of the M. E. Church was held Nov. 1, 1813, and a brick from the grave of Gen. Thomas Hinds, together with a copy of the epitaph on his tomb. From Mr. Jones' interesting letter I qnote as follows:

"As a loyal Mississippian and resident of the capital city and imperial connty, both located in the 'New Pnrchase,' and named in honor of the two men who effected it, I send yon a brick from the grave of Gen. Thomas Hinds and a copy of his epitaph. In a cotton field, with only a few oak trees abont it, fonr miles west of Fayette, on the 'Home Hill place,' with his wife beside him and his brother John near by, is his neglected grave. A low brick vanlt, with the foot end gone, snpporting a broken marble slab, marks the place. On the slab is the following:

"'In Memory of General Thomas Hinds,
Born in Berkley Co., Va., Jan. 19, 1781.'

"Removed to this State at the age of nineteen, he gave promise of the fntnre of the deeds of his yonth; was distingnished for his daring intrepidity in the last war with Great Britain, and verified pnblic expectation by the lofty stand he afterward assnmed and always snstained in the connoils of his State.

"He was an incomparable patriot, bold in conception and fearless in execntion. Covered with honors and with years, he descended to the grave on the twenty-third day of Angnst, 1840, aged sixty years seven months and fonr days.

"How sleep the brave who sink to rest,
By all their country's wishes blessed.

"Beside him is the grave of his wife, of like design in size and shape, and in a perfect state of preservation, as is also that of John Hinds. On the former is this inscription:

"'Lemenda Green,
Daughter of Thomas M. Green,
Died June 29, 1819, aged 28 years.'"

I am greatly obliged to Mr. Jones for these interesting relics and for this appreciated, historic information.

But here we have another illnstration of the nnwisdom of "family bnrying-grounds." In the progress of years these estates pass into other hands, and honored graves tended by loving hands are sadly neglected, and are often profaned by the rnthless plowshare.

Now, I snbmit that the grave of gallant Thomas Hinds shonld receive immediate and patriotic attention. It was to him and his brave "Dragoons," after a brilliant victory over the British, that General Jackson made the short speech which has gone into history, "Yon have this day been the astonishment of one army and the admiration of the other." And in every position he displayed the qnalities of eminent leadership. We owe it to onrselves to sacredly gnard his heroic dust. Wonld it not be well for his remains to sleep with other distinguished co-patriots in the cemetery of onr State capital and in the connty which bears his honored name? CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

A CAMPAIGN AGAINST CONSUMPTION.

The New York Board of Health has determined to carry on its fight against consnmption and tnberculosis more vigorously than ever. The Board reached the conclnsion some time ago that consnmption was very infections, and that it onght to be treated like other infections diseases. A nnmber of radical measnres, with this object in view, were adopted, bnt they proved so extreme as to draw forth vigorous protest. Consnmptives have not been accnstomed to being treated like persons snffering from other infections maladies, and resented all restrictions placed npon their liberty of action.

The Board of Health, althongh it found its regnlations nnpopnlar, has persisted in its campaign. "Consnmption wonld be practically stamped ont," said Dr. Hnbbard, of the bacteriological laboratory of the health department, "if consumptive people in the poorer districts wonld appreciate the necessity of taking one simple precantion, and that is not to expectorate npon the floors or any place where the matter can dry and the germs it contains contaminate the air. Consnmption is a cnrable disease nnder proper conditions, and it is not a communicable disease when sanitary laws are obeyed."

The plan of campaign which the New York Board of Health is now pnrsning is to inspect all dwellings in which a nnmber of cases of consnmption have occnrred in the last two years, and then to disinfect these houses; or, if they are considered too badly infected, to remove the inmates to healthy honses.

Whenever a case of death from consumption is reported, an inspector from the Health Board visits the house and issues an order compelling the owner to wash the walls and ceilings, if they be kalsomined or painted, with a solntion of washing soda and hot water. If the walls and ceilings be papered, the paper mnst be removed, the walls washed with the solution and fresh paper pnt on. All the woodwork, including the flooring, mnst be washed and repainted.

The inspection of honses for the pnrpose of determining which are infected is now well nnder way. It will be completed in two months. As far as it has proceeded it has shown beyond qnestion that certain honses, particularly in the poorer part of the town, are infected with tnbercnlosis. One house, No. 12 Pell street, was shown to have developed an average of five fatal cases of tnberculosis annually for a number of years past. And in one small ward (the sixth) forty-five honses were fonnd which had developed 260 cases of tnbercnlosis in the last three years. The New York Board of Health believes that it will be able to cnt down the amonnt of consumption in New York 50 per cent. by the very simple process of disinfecting honses in which cases of consnmption have been reported and in removing healthy persons from snch honses.—Times-Democrat.

THE DRINK BILL AND THE LABORING MAN.

Plenty of money evenly distribnted throughout the country insnres plenty of employment at fair wages for labor. Waste and extravagance render money scarce among the masses, and thereby injnre the laboring man.

That the rnm traffic, and its consequent waste and drnnkenness, render money scarce is a trnth patent to all who are willing to see. That the resnlt is the enrichment of the money kings, and the impoverishment and enslavement of labor, is a trnth that is being demonstrated by every year's history of onr conntry.

Look for a moment at the following fignres: The average annnal receipts from the customs of this connty for the three years ending Jnne 30, 1894, when the McKinley tariff law was in force, were only $171,000,000, or less than $2.50 per capita of the popnlation of the connty. The total ontpnt of silver in the country in 1894 was $64,000,000—an average of less than one dollar for every man, woman, and child. But it is reliably estimated that, at the very least, $1,000,000,000 is expended directly every year by the people of this conntry for strong drink.

The ordinary expense of the United States Government for all the departments dnring 1895 was less than $375,000,000; hence the drink bill of the conntry for that year was three times the amonnt required to rnn the general government, and the liqnor bill for that year was nearly sixteen times the amonnt of the entire valne of the silver prodnct of the conntry for the same period!

Now, it is definitely estimated that fnlly one-half of the drink bill of this conntry comes directly out of the wages of the workingmen. Can any power of legislation, and any power obtained by labor combinations, help the laboring man who spends his earnings for drink? Can the wage class snpport in idleness and lnxnry 232,295 of the liqnor dealers and their families, their bar-tenders and their families, and pay the enormons rents of their dram-shops, and hope to prosper themselves?

These are qnestions for the philanthropic friends of labor and for the laborers themselves to think abont, and think hard. The saloon is the first cause of poverty in this conntry, and the prime cause of the hardships nnder which labor groans to-day, and the men who devote their time and money to social reforms will do well to note the fact. To endeavor and hope to bring any real, permanent relief to labor, or to inangnrate for wage-earners a better condition of things without striking down the legalized liqnor traffic, is as insane as it wonld be to hope to bale the Caspian Sea dry while the Ural and Volga rivers are ponring their waters into it.

America is well recognized as the laboring man's paradise. In no other conntry in the world do common toilers have so good a chance as here. Were all snch to rigidly abstain from spending any of their earnings for strong drink, there is no reason why extreme poverty shonld afflict any of them. Why, then, is it that, as the socialistic reformers declare, "the poor are growing poorer"? The answer is, that so long as the laborers of this country expend or waste annually $500,000,000 for strong drink, so long must a large portion of them, with increasing families and decreasing ability to work (that decreasing ability caused by the debilitating effects of strong drink on the body), become poorer and poorer every year.

The late Dr. Howard Crosby, for many years a close observer among the poor, declared that in all his investigations he had never fonnd a family borne down by poverty that did not owe its fall to rnm. We are aware that to-day some sober, npright, indnstrions men are poor and ont of employment. They have never spent their earnings for rnm when employed. Nevertheless, onr conviction is, that if the ten billion dollars which, in the last ten years, have been directly snnk and drnnk in liqnor in this conntry had been nsed in the pnrchase and nse of lands, honses, fnrniture, clothing and provisions, the indnstries of the conntry wonld not have experienced snch a panic, honest labor would have had employment at living wages all the time, and there would have been no strikes nor strikers' riots.

The Hon. Carroll D. Wright, Commissioner of Labor, says: "I have looked into a thonsand homes of the working people of Enrope—I do not know how many in this conntry—and I never had to look beyond the inmates to find the cause of poverty. So far as my own observation goes, drnnkenness is at the bottom of the misery, and not the indnstrial system or the indnstrial conditions snrrondning the workingmen and their families."

Charles Booth, anthor of "Panperism and the Endowment of Old Age," says, "Strong drink is the most prolific of all the causes of poverty," and John Burns, M. P., and one hnndred and thirty-nine other British labor leaders, in an address snpporting the Veto bill, in 1893, said, "The chief cause of the present poverty and debasement is strong drink."

Speaking to workingmen, Chief Arthnr, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said, "If I conld, I wonld inaugnrate a strike that wonld drive the liqnor traffic from the face of the earth." And T. V. Powderly, former General Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, says, "The liqnor traffic is responsible for the misery of nine-tenths of the working classes."

So here we have the cause given by men who are anthority on the snbject, and that cause is: The chief cause of poverty in this conntry, after all, is that all-consuming, health-destroying, cnrse-inflicting demon, the liquor traffic. And do what we may, institute all the reforms and philanthropic measnres possible for the betterment of the condition of labor, yet nntil the legalized rnm traffic is completely uprooted and driven from the land, the real relief and ennoblement of the masses of common toilers can never be effected; never, never, never!—Religious Telescope.

"One of the saddest things which I have come across," said Mr. Irvine, of New York, "is the exposnre to vice to which many women are pnt. I referred to this in my sermon yesterday. My eyes were first opened to it by the remark of an agent of a house-owner. 'A man may have to say that he can not pay the rent, bnt a woman need never say so.' I pressed him for an explanation, and came near knocking him down when he told, with brntal frankness, how many agents took advantage of the defenseless condition of widows with small children, and gave them their rent as the wages of sin. I immediately began an investigation, and fonnd five women near my church who had fallen recently in this way. They were driven to it by nnprincipled agents. They conld not bear to see their children turned into the streets. I am making strennons efforts to keep these women ont of the power of these agents. A basket of groceries was taken to one of them this morning."—Woman's Journal.

WARNING.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

In the time of our fullness and thrift
Ere the time of our loss and our dole,
Let the angels who guard us uplift
A warning to every soul.
Or, lest we unclose to find all unaware
We waken some day to the gloom of despair.

We shall never be sorry for love
For the words that are patient and sweet;
For the hardness repressed
For the anger ungnessed,
For the grace that is swift to entreat.

We shall never be sorry for hope
That heartened the weak and the tried,
That made them the bolder to cope
With the evil one close to their side;
For the pity we've shown
To the souls that alone
Were stemming some fierce, rushing tide.

We shall never be sorry for care
To the old or the little ones given,
Nor ever regret the swift prayer
That went to our Father in heaven,
For meekness and cheer
When the outlook was drear,
For faith when our courage was riven.

In the time of our fullness and thrift,
Ere the time of our dole and our loss,
Let the angels who guard us uplift
A voice against cleaving to dross;
Let us hear it and heed it lest all unaware
We waken some day to the gloom of despair.

GO FORWARD.

This should be the watchword of every Christian. Ceaseless activity is the condition of all success. In every department of life to stand still is to stagnate. To hold our own is not enough; to rest upon our oars, trusting to the momentum already acquired to carry us forward, is to find ourselves very soon hopelessly left in the race. However brilliant the achievements of the past, they will count only as a valuable preparation for the duties and conflicts of the hour. These are pressing. They must be met; they may not be ignored. While there remains a battle to be fought, the Christian soldier may not be at rest; while there is work to be done, no worker may be idle. The race is before us. We may not, without eternal peril, loiter or turn aside. God's Word exhorts us to "run with patience the race that is set before us," to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Whatever we may have already accomplished, let us remember there is still more to be done, still more that we can do, and by as much as we have done, by so much are we better capacitated for service. The experiences gained is, in itself, a large result from the efforts we have made, and we are, therefore, prepared to do better work, and more work, than ever.

Our only safety is in progress. We must progress in our personal experience of grace, or we shall backslide; we must, day by day, grow richer in the things of God, or we shall sink into spiritual bankruptcy; we must exercise ourselves in work for God, or our spiritual powers will be paralyzed, and we shall be helpless invalids.

Let us bestir ourselves. Let us redouble our diligence. Let us go forward, remembering that Jesus Christ is the captain of our salvation; that over us is his banner of love, and that his divine hand is leading us to a kingdom and a crown.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

MR. EDITOR: We heartily indorse the "Twentieth Century" educational movement in Southern Methodism for the cause of Christian education, and we are ready to do what we can. But we are at a loss to know how to go about it. The books and leaflets sent out by the General Board, as far as they go, are all right, but they only give specific direction to twenty per cent. of the amount to be raised.

Bro. Bingham, our Conference Secretary, makes a special appeal to the pastors to unite in a determined effort to make the plan a success. What plan? If it is the plan suggested by the General Board, it is too indefinite to be worked successfully. Suppose I go before my congregation in the interest of Christian education, and grow eloquent over the "Twentieth Century" movement. Some brother will be sure to ask, "What are you going to do with it, and what is it for?" I answer, It is for Christian education, and twenty per cent. goes to the endowment of the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University; the remainder will be kept at home. But he asks me, "What are you going to do with the remainder?" Will some one please tell us what to say? There must be some specific direction given to this money if we are to succeed. To go before the church in North Mississippi and ask for $41,300, and not be able to state what we propose to do with it, is folly. We must determine what we will do with this money before we can expect the people to respond.

The last General Conference provided for this collection to be applied to the strengthening of the whole educational work of our church. One-fifth of the amount to be applied as stated above, and the remainder to be applied according to the direction of the Annual Conference within whose bounds it shall be raised. Now, if the Conference at its last session gave direction as to how this money was to be applied, we have heard nothing of it. If the Conference failed to give directions, what can we do? Some of us are exceedingly anxious to give our share of this fund to endow Grenada College. There may be some who would oppose. There must be concert of action, and a definite aim in this matter, if we are to succeed. Who will tell us what to do?

Capitol Street Church Auxiliary and First Church, Jackson, have more faithfully performed their duty in reporting to the editor than any in the Conference. We take great pleasure in forwarding for publication the following from Mrs. L. S. West, the zealous president, who wrote, "I hope you will hear from us more regularly this year." Will not every president say this?

Capitol Street Church Auxiliary, report from June, 1897, to November, 1898: Members, 33; honorary, 3; life members, 1897–1898, 4; average attendance, 10; W. M. Advocates taken, 9; Evangels, 24. Dues, $37.95; Conference expense fund, $3.60; thank-offering, $3.35; McNemar fund, $15; McGavock, $51.45; life members, $80. Total, $191.35. This is the largest amount reported from any auxiliary.

We frequently have the pleasure of meeting with these good sisters in their monthly meetings, and some time since had the honor of occupying the president's chair, she being providentially hindered, and found a new method used by them—that of using envelopes, with the printed dates and blanks for dues, and also for specials on the outside, addressed to each member. They are distributed at each meeting to receive the donation, then collected, and the contents noted. This insures accuracy, and is a reminder of the obligations. This, with other good methods used, is one secret of their success.

GLEANINGS.

Nashville Christian Advocate: "A letter from Dr. Lambuth, in regard to the work proposed by the Woman's Board in Cuba, says: 'I am now convinced, after visiting six of the most important cities of Cuba, that the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions should have three missionaries on the field as soon as possible—one to be located in Havana, another in Santiago, and the third to be associated with the first, but at liberty to travel to interior cities whenever occasion demands.'

"Provision has been made for carrying out the suggestions Dr. Lambuth made, and while the Board may not at once appoint three missionaries, one will soon open classes for Bible study. Cuba is looking to America for spiritual emancipation, as well as political, and our Board will have some part in presenting the gospel message of justification by faith in Christ. The way is open, the call has come, the responsibility is upon us. We will try to meet it with God's help."

Extracts from Mrs. Tuneheart in Review of Missions: "The creation of the best literature, unaccompanied by God's Word, will not avail, but with it, and the Spirit that will take the truth and apply it to the soul, thousands will move God-ward, and nations will be born in a day.

"At this time the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions is concerned much about an increase in telling literature. The plan to send out valuable books at minimum cost is resulting in the preparation of memoirs, biographies, short addresses, and maps showing the location of our missions. A memoir of Miss Dora Rankin, whose beautiful young life was given to China in the early days of the Woman's Board, has been prepared. It is an attractive little volume containing a cut of Dora herself, as well as of the school-buildings at Nantziang, so intimately associated with her and her sister, Miss Lochie. 'Pleasant College,' Lonise Home, and the church in which they worshiped, are all full of tender memories of them, as well as of Dr. C. F. Reid, now missionary in Korea. He planned, and, owing to his untiring industry and gratuitous services, the work of the sisters was made more easy. . . . Later a fuller sketch may be sent out."

For sale by our Woman's F. M. Board. Price, 25 cents. Address Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn. This is especially intended for our young people. "They will then learn that a beautiful young life given fully to God's service may be a very happy, bright life."

"'Dawn on the Hills of Y'ang,' by Mr. H. P. Beach, giving facts, pleasing and profitable, of China as a mission, has been issued by our Methodist Publishing House, and arranged in cheap form. The Woman's Board has paid for two hundred copies, which will be sold at 25 cents apiece. . . . The book contains a valuable introductory chapter by Bishop C. B. Galloway, giving the history of our work in China.

"'The Missionary Roll Call,' being prepared by Mrs. I. G. John, will soon be out, meeting a long-felt want. Everyone interested in the missionaries sent out by the Board wants to know something of their history, their call to service in the foreign field, etc.

"The news from the China Jubilee Conference causes thanksgiving. Miss Haygood writes, Oct. 28: 'Our Jubilee Conference, our Annual Conference, our Annual Meeting, are all over, and all have been very delightful. . . . We have all felt Bishop Wilson's presence and teaching a real benediction. He has a marvelous hold upon the heart of the China Mission. We are arranging to have a consecration service in the Hayes-Wilkins Memorial when he goes to Sung-Kiang. . . . Mrs. J. W. Lambuth's presence was a very great joy to us all, and her memories of the China Mission, extending back more than forty years, made by far the best part of our jubilee reminiscences. In calling to mind the fact that she was the mother of all our boarding-school work, we felt that it was to be desired that her name should be permanently associated with one of our boarding-schools, and so, as the name of the Snchow boarding-school, 'East Side,' was purely local, we resolved in our general meeting that it should hereafter be known as the 'Mary Lambuth School,' and so reported.'" OUR VOWS.

"Vow, and pay unto the Lord your vows."

"To perform a vow means to do at once the Master's bidding. The secret of faithful keeping of our vows to him is to keep ourselves in the love of Jesus," says Dr. Cuyler.

I wonder if every woman in our church knows or thinks she is pledged to the work of a missionary? That what our foreign work is to foreign lands our "home mission" should be to our own? That, as members of this Home Mission Society, we renew our vows to our Master to tell by words and deeds "the old, old story of Jesus and his love"?

I wish we could get into our souls the full force of the word "salvation." If it means anything to us, is it not worth telling to others? If it has done so much for me, shall I not help my brother or sister to find the same treasure?

It has been said that in the study of botany or geology we are to begin at our own door-step. What a suggestion to us as Visiting Committees! How many of us keep the promise to visit in his name, to read his Word to his poor, to seek out and help the sick or neglected ones, many of them near our own homes!

Keeping our vows is only to practice our religion. We are not merely to say, "Be ye warmed and filled," but we are to help warm and fill them. Are we women of the Home Mission Society doing this? Are we making any sacrifice for him who gave up all for us? Are we willing to wear plain clothing that another may wear the robe of righteousness? Do we dispose of our jewelry that a sister or brother may secure the pearl of great price? Do we furnish our tables with plain fare that others may be given the Bread of Life? God help us to know that it is not what we intend to do, but what we do, that counts with our Lord. "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me." And we can no longer say, "No man hath hired us; there is nothing I can do."

This society has opened up avenues for service or sacrifice that none but the hopelessly blind will fail to see. Passing by our schools, orphans' homes, and city missions, in other places, we have in Meridian a direct appeal to the love and sympathy of every mother and sister in our Conference. This heaven-inspired rescue home calls for prompt and generous thank-offerings to God from every woman who, from her sheltered home, will heed the message, "The Master is come, and calleth for thee." Lord, help us to so keep ourselves in the love of Jesus, that we may know the secret of faithfully keeping our vows to him, and, like many of old, at once arise to do his bidding.

THE SERPENT IN THE GLASS.

Many of the famous advocates of temperance are dying off, but there is one trumpet-tongued orator who continues to sound his tocsin in every house that contains a Bible. It is the divinely-inspired preacher who utters this tremendous warning: "Look not on the wine when it is ruddy, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it goeth down smoothly; for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder!" Young man, listen to that loud and loving voice before you touch that glass of champagne; good woman, stop and think what you are about before you mix that bowl of punch for your party; father, be careful how you put that sly serpent on your table, for some of your boys may get stung to death!

To break the terrible habit, and to shake off the serpent, requires such effort that few are permanently reformed. Some surrender to the inevitable and go over the cataract with eyes open to their doom. A young man said to a friend of mine: "This awful drink has used up my money, ruined my health, and almost killed my parents. It will soon kill me and send me to hell! I know it, and yet the habit is so strong that I can not stop." And he did not stop; yet when he began to sip his wine he never dreamed that he would die a wretched sot. Of all the deceivers that betray body and soul to damnation, none is so alluring and ensnaring as the glass.

It is strange that parents—many Christian parents—will allow it to come into their homes, and will provide it for guests. It is strange that, in spite of all the miseries suffered by drunkards' wives, so many young women are willing to marry young men who are in the habit of taking a social glass. They are playing with a viper. If their hearts are stung with agony, it is their own fault. If the above-mentioned things are strange, it is stranger still that churches, Sunday-schools and pulpits do not ring out oftener and more vehemently this heaven-sent tocsin: "Look not on the wine! look not on the wine! it stingeth like a serpent and biteth like an adder!"—Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D.

CANT AN ABOMINATION.

Cant is not hypocrisy, but it is very closely allied to it, and may very easily pass into it. Hypocrisy is a conscious and deliberate assumption of a false character with a view of deceiving others; cant is unconscious self-deception leading to the affectation of a virtue or a feeling not really possessed. It is often very difficult to distinguish between the two, and their effect in creating distrust of the genuineness of religious professions is very often the same. Indeed, it is a question whether cant is not more hurtful to religion than hypocrisy, for the discovery even of many hypocrites does not seriously give rise to the suspicion that all religious professions are hypocritical, while cant may induce the feeling that while the alleged experiences of religious people may not be consciously false, yet they may be delusions. And it is this admixture of cant in religious services and in the conversation of Christian people that, perhaps, more than anything else, prejudices the minds of observers against Christianity.—Northwestern Advocate.

THE MEANEST MAN.

He claimed to be a Christian man and to love God's house. Some years ago he drifted West from New England. He tarried in Minneapolis for ten years and then returned to his Eastern home. One of his old neighbors, who had never been West and had vague notions about our civilization, asked him about the churches of this city, intimating that he supposed they were poor and weak. In substance his answer was as follows: "Churches I should say we had churches out West, and good ones, too; large and strong, and just like those in New England! They have many eloquent preachers and fine music, and the people are friendly and sociable. If you ever go to Minneapolis, be sure and go to the —— Congregational Church. That church is all right, and they will take good care of you and make you feel at home. I went to meeting there for ten years, and had a good seat, and attended all their picnics and social meetings, and it did not cost me a red cent."—Christian Intelligencer.

The Christian Life.

HAPPINESS.

Dreams of happiness we all indulge. But too many of us seek this happiness outside of ourselves—in riches, in learning, in adventure, in excitement, in fame, in novelty, in friendships, flying to the very ends of the earth in search of it, when lo, it was to be found all the time at home. "The kingdom of God is within you," and the happiness men desire can only be found under that kingdom. Happiness is not something that can be manufactured and then pressed upon one as a bargain. It is not obtained from the outside; it is from within, and in this fact lies the great desirability of being a Christian, and the highest type of a Christian, coming entirely under the dominion of the spiritual.—D L Moody.

"If Clara Barton ever had a motto or watchword, she has kept it so modestly in the background that I have never heard of it," writes her niece; "but her idea of life, I often think, lies in what she once said to me when, with feverish haste and impatience of youth, I was longing for great things to do: Keep yourself quiet and in restraint; reserve your energies, doing those little things that lie in your way, each one as well as you can, saving your strength so that, when God does call you to do something good and great, you will not have wasted your force and strength with useless strivings, but will be ready to do the work quickly and well." Enter into the sublime patience of the Lord. Be charitable in view of it. God can afford to wait; why can not we, since we have him to fall back upon?—George Macdonald.

There is a great deal of pious nonsense in the idea that one should be so busy saving others that he will not have time to think of his own soul. We have seen a great many people of this sort—people who are busy as bees working in meetings, and all the while developing great ugly bumps that are destroying the symmetry of their Christian character. A man may profess religion, talk religion, give eighteen hours a day to the subject of religion, and yet drift into all sorts of unchristian habits of speech and conduct—habits which make his own home people wonder if religion is anything more than a more profession after all. A little wholesome selfishness that will lead a man to devote an occasional half hour to his own soul is a needed corrective in many fevered lives.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

The late Dr. Thomas Armitage was once consulted by a young minister as to the line of study which would contribute most directly to his efficiency as a preacher. After a few searching questions the Doctor replied, "I should advise you to make a thorough study of the New Testament miracles." The answer appeared a strange one, but the Doctor explained his meaning by adding, "The great lack of modern preaching is a deficient sense of the supernatural, and you may quicken your own faith and gain power of presenting the things of the Spirit to other minds by making the New Testament miracles the subject of your study and meditation for a series of months."—Presbyterian.

Life's loneliness—there are times when we all have to go into it—there are chambers in the soul where no foot can fall, no dearest friend can come. There are circumstances that reveal to us this loneliness and intensify our sense of it. Who will show us any good at such times? There is nobody, there is nothing that promises any hope. Life is a thing empty and forsaken, with no hand that can lead us, no voice that can speak to us, no light breaks through the haunting gloom. There is but one answer to that cry of the heart, "Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us."—Rev. Mark Guy Pearse.

Of intellectual and social passion there is enough in the pulpit, and one has even been amazed at the most strange of all enthusiasms, critical passion, when a preacher has become quite hot over the authorship of the Pentateuch. What is wanting, and what can not be wanted, is the sense of the unseen and eternal—of the everlasting love of God, the atoning sacrifice of our Lord Jesus Christ, the unspeakable value of a single soul, the infinite pathos of human life, the tenderness of the Holy Ghost, and the graciousness of the Evangel.—Ian Maclaren.

It would be better for us all, sincerely and reverently and promptly, to recognize the truth that the God of the Universe—the God in whose hands we are, and with whom we have to deal—is not an Infinite Sentimentality, but an Infinite Moral Energy. God is love. Woe to us if he were not! But God is also Righteousness, and the man who fancies he can do just as he pleases because God is love—be just as impure, unjust, cruel, disloyal, hateful—will find himself brought up with a round turn.—Dr. F. A Noble.

To serve God. Herein lies true happiness, the happiness of yesterday, the happiness of to-day, the happiness of all days. But we must know this, and when we know this, we must act. Many never know it, and of those who know it, many never commence to act; of those who commence, many do not continue, or else continue so feebly that their search for happiness serves merely to weary and disgust them still more with their false happiness—that is, with their real unhappiness.—Louis Venillot.

The best evidence of Christianity is furnished by the Christian. If it is not found in the personal life, it is not found at all. Without this fruitage the gospel is but a form of sound words, the teaching of Christ only beautiful sayings, and the church naught but a human organization. Christianity was instituted for man, and it either means all to him, or it means nothing. It is not simply something to believe and profess, something to admire and defend; but it is Truth, it is Life.—Exchange.

The Master does not say to us, "Go and do everything," but he marks out a special path for each one of us, and gives to each one of us a special duty. There are diversities of gifts in the kingdom of God, and these gifts are divided to every man according to his several ability. I may have five talents, or two, or only one; I may be called to do twenty things, or only one. My responsibility is simply to do that which I am called to do, and nothing more.—Hannah Whitall Smith.

Is there much real, true, disinterested kindness in this world? Take your own daily life and examine into the motives that lie behind your generous actions. How many of the good turns you do for others are done to add to your reputation as a good fellow, or a sweet girl? How much good we all do to gratify our vanity, even if we reap no more tangible results, only God knows. But how beautiful is that love which seeketh not itself in any form or in any manner!—Uplook.

A PREACHER'S REPORT

Interesting Statement by Elder Joel H. Austin of Goshen, Ind.

"I was a victim of catarrh and had almost constant pain in my head. The trouble was gradually working down on my lungs. I was weak and irresolute. My wife had the grip and Hood's Sarsaparilla cured her. After this I had the same disease and resorted to Hood's. In a short time the aches and pains were relieved and I also saw the medicine was helping my catarrh. In six weeks I ceased to have any further trouble with it and I am now a well man. The pains and bloating I had in my limbs are gone and I am relieved of a heart trouble. I am thankful for a medicine so intelligently compounded and so admirably adapted to the needs of the system." REFLECTION.

BY W. H. HUNTLEY.

"The Sun of righteousness shall arise."

What tho' before the sight the frequent blur
Of tears makes all things dim, demur
Eclipse a one full occasion, in the din
Of twilight shadow-filled, let me be taught
How from within and not without the thought
Of mists and storms are born, and how
When clear the eyes are grown peace opens now
Before, above, about, because
Of need and promise and of shining laws
From Him the Son, the Sun

Lord, I've been learning that behind the lids
Of earth eyes red from weeping springs the bids
To bitterness and weary stumbling, none
Other cause, so come I now in trust—
"Thou knowest the frame, that we are dust."

. . . . . .

Dust—dust, trampled, dull, then must
This knowing quiet all—the silence rust?

. . . . . .

But jewelled facets has the dust, each fleck
Light flings in myriad lances from the wreck
Of matter, from the grind of nature's bones—
Brighter and less blue the air because of dusty zones
Outspreading from the earth away
Where day is on the search of Day,
Where shines the Son, the Sun.

SERMONS THAT FEED.

Dean Stanley preached his first sermon in a little village church near Norwich, and an old woman was heard to say after the service, "Well, I do feel rather empty like." "Yes," replied another venerable dame, "that young man did not give us much to feed on." Those two old saints understood what nutritious preaching is, and they had probably come to church with good appetite. Their comment on the maiden effort of a man who was yet to become famous was very different from the remark of a devout Christian who told me that the sermons of his pastor were "roast beef and plum pudding to us for a whole week." That was high praise, and it bespoke honest work and a full larder. What are some of the characteristics of nourishing sermons?

1. They must have a great deal of Bible in them. Not an occasional scrap, or a text introduced to beautify a sentence or round out a period. The strongest sermon is that which is most saturated with Scripture. The minister who never wears out, or wears out his congregation, is the spiritual miner who digs deepest into the golden ore beds of divine revelation. It was said of Chalmers that his discourses "held the Bible in solution." The same thing may be said of the sermons of Spurgeon, Maclaren, F. B. Meyer, and Dr. William M. Taylor. All these strong men had a strong faith in the perfect and plenary inspiration of the Book; they felt that when they spoke the Holy Spirit was speaking in every line of Scripture which they were weaving into their discourses. "Thy words were found," said the ancient prophet, "and I did eat them; and they were unto me a joy and the rejoicing of mine heart."

2. Nutritious sermons have a great deal of prayer over them. It is not only devout Quakers who hold that a person can not preach aright unless "the Spirit moves him." Prayer is the ladder by which this divine power descends into a godly minister's study when he is preparing his beaten oil for the sanctuary. This same power fires his soul in the pulpit. Feeding the intellect is not enough; the conscience and the affections must be quickened, purified, and made strong. A very eminent minister wrote to me forty years ago, "I am convinced that, even esthetically considered, one hour of prayer is a better preparation for sermon writing than a whole day of study." A sermon that will not bear to be prayed over is not worth preaching.

3. The preaching that feeds people has a great deal of what may be called every-day religion in it. It is in the best sense practical, for it controls the daily practice and teaches people how to live. There is a lamentable lack with many ministers of knowledge of human nature and of the wants, temptations, and trials of their parishioners. These men are well up in theology and biblical criticism and religious literature of all kinds; some of them are walking encyclopedias, but to the living, acting, working, laughing, weeping, and sinning world around them they are well-nigh strangers. During the week their parishioners have been driving a pen or a plow, hammering an anvil, or pleading in a court room, or up to their eyes in stocks or sugar casks or cotton bales. The women have been busy with their needles or their nurseries. When the Sabbath comes they bring their every-day wants with them to church, even though they wear their Sunday clothes. They want preaching that tells them how to live and what to believe. They want plain, portable preaching that they can carry home with them. Doctrinal sermons? Yes, provided that it is stiff, vital, Bible doctrine, not in dry flour barrels, but baked into gospel bread for every-day consumption. Truth, all divine truth, they want, but not in hard, scholastic technicalities. Young men sometimes deliver "trial sermons before Presbytery" when they apply for licensure that smell strongly of the class-room and are garnished with such words as "predicate," "subjective," and "ratiocination." When they have learned to preach they will do with such fodder what Dr. Edward N. Kirk did with his first "six splendid sermons"—they will stick it into the grate.

Sermons for every-day use will not only be scriptural and spiritual; they will be simple in language. There lay one of the great elements of Spurgeon's world-wide popularity and power. A discourse that a minister would not be willing to read to his boy of twelve years old or to an intelligent servant in his kitchen is not generally a safe sermon to take into his pulpit. There may be exceptions to this rule, but the average preaching must be to the average mind of young and old, rich and poor, cultured and ill taught, in the congregation.

A poor woman in the congregation of old Dr. Ashbel Green, of Philadelphia, once asked her pastor:

"Dr. Green, what do you think is the great business of the shepherd?"

"To feed the flock, madam," was his reply.

"That is my notion, too, sir," said she, "and therefore I think that he should not put the hay up so high that the sheep can not reach it."—T. L. Cuyler, D. D.

A GREAT PASTOR.

Remarkable as Dr. Cuyler is as a preacher, he has other characteristics that appeal to his parishioners with an equal force. He has a remarkable executive ability, and every detail of his magnificent church organization was guided by his unerring judgment. Combined with this, he has a wonderful faculty for remembering persons and their names. Every man, woman and child of his congregation of over two thousand members was personally known to him, and the hearty welcome, hand-grasp and shoulder-pat by their pastor made them feel that their individuality was respected and that their interests were in his keeping. The stranger that came within the gates was welcomed and not forgotten. Those only who have felt the sense of loneliness that a large city inspires, and the lack of that friendly companionship so grateful to all that the customs of a city forbid, can appreciate the marvelous value of the warm, sincere and loving hand-grasp of such a man as Dr. Cuyler.—John I. Covington, in Herald and Presbyter.

We never know for what God is preparing us in his schools; for what work on earth, for what work in the hereafter. Our business is to do our work well in the present place, whatever that may be. —Lyman Abbott, D. D.

Many have yielded to go a mile with Satan that never intended to go two. He leads poor creatures down into the depths by winding stairs, and does not let them see the bottom, where they are going.—D. L. Moody.

NATURE'S EXPENDITURES.

Nobody is richer until somebody is poorer. Evermore the vicarious exchange is going on. The rock decays and feeds the moss and lichen. The moss decays to feed the shrub; the shrub perishes that the tree may have food and growth. The leaves of the tree fall that its boughs may blossom and bear fruit. The seeds ripen to serve the birds singing in all the boughs. The fruit falls to be food for man. The harvests lend man strength for his commerce, his government, his culture and conscience. The lower dies vicariously that the higher may live. Thus nature achieves her gifts only through vast expenditures.—Dr. N. D. Hillis, D. D., in Golden Censer.

The mere fact that a minister draws a great crowd to hear him is no proof that he is preaching a sound gospel. It may be a proof that he is doing nothing of the sort. Human nature is controlled by a great complexity of motives, and is open to appeals of many sorts. The correctness of all preaching must be determined by one test. If it is in harmony with the letter and spirit of the New Testament, it is all right. If not, it is all wrong. Let it not be supposed, for one moment, that we think it a small matter to draw the people. On the contrary, we esteem it a great matter. But it must always be done by the use of right methods.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

FROM THE WORK.

NEWS FROM BOYLE, MISS.

New Year has come and gone, and leaves in its wake those ever-ready resolves. These, alas! are too easily forgotten and crowded out by temptations.

The people whom it is my pleasure to serve this year have given an example well worth patterning after. On Jan. 6, 1899, my Boyle and New Salem congregations came together in the church at Boyle and began their noble work for the year by giving a reception and donation party to welcome their first resident preacher. It seemed that the hearts of the people beat as one, as they will in no cause save Christ's. There was hardly a man, woman, or child, who did not give according to their means to the cause of him who appreciates the widow's mite. In a very condensed form I give a list of the donations:

One set of dishes, 56 pieces; 1 set of knives and forks, 1 washstand, 1 washstand set, 1 barrel of flour, 10 hams, 5 bushels of corn, 5 gallons of molasses, 5 gallons of coal oil, 2 table cloths, 1 dozen napkins, 4 towels, 2 shirt waists for Mrs. McKeown, 1 gingham wrapper, 5 bushels of sweet potatoes, 28 pounds of coffee, 36 pounds of sugar, 11 dozen eggs, 3 pounds of butter, 10 pounds of lard, 3 bottles of communion wine, 6 cans of baking powder, 3 pounds of macaroni, 1 pound of mince meat, 26 cans of fruit, 24 boxes of matches, 21 pounds home-dried fruit, 5 pounds rice, 16 pounds of sausage, 2 tin buckets, 1 egg beater, 1 kitchen fork, 1 spoon, 3 papers of pins, 1 loaf of bread, 1 paper of needles, 11 spools of thread, 1 box of toilet soap, 2 pairs of pillow cases, 3 pounds of soda, 2 boxes of oatmeal, 1 basket of spare-ribs, 11 pounds of salt, 3 bottles of fruit flavoring, 4 pounds of starch, 10 bars of soap, 1 stick of bluing, 2 pairs of socks, 3 pounds of black pepper, 2 live hogs, 7 chickens, 1 cake, 1 large box of groceries, 9 cans of condensed milk, 2 sacks of table salt, 1 can of oysters, 1 can of corned beef, 1 can of salmon, a generous package of cheese, crackers, rice, sugar and coffee. Ten dollars and seventy-five cents cash.

Looking down the long vista of years, I see a noble future for a town that gives thus liberally to the cause of Christ. May he reward thee openly! With the Psalmist David, I can say, "Surely goodness and mercy will follow me all the days of my life."

L. A. MCKEOWN.

Jan. 14, 1899.

Rev. Jas. O. Bennett, Keatchie, La., Jan. 16, 1899: "We begin the year's work on this (Caddo) circuit under encouraging prospects. We came into the parsonage on the fourth instant. Were cordially received, and on the night of the fourth were vigorously pounded. We feel very much at home with these good people, and are constantly receiving tokens of their appreciation of the one who comes to minister to them in spiritual things. For all this we devoutly thank God and take courage. In conclusion, let me say that I shall do my best to give the ADVOCATE a wider circulation during the year. I think the ADVOCATE grows better with every issue. It is one of our very best church papers."

Rev. R. M. Blocker, Lake Arthur, La., Jan. 16, 1899: "I am glad to say we are settled for the year. We have a good home on Lake Arthur, yet it is a rented home, and not a parsonage. We have been kindly received. I have two churches, about twenty miles apart, and all the missionary work I can do. I am just in from Lacasine. I had to swim my pony twice about a hundred yards. The woods are in awful condition since so much rain. We had one bright conversion on our first Sunday at Lake Arthur. Bro. Howell left this work in good condition."

When a Japanese girl marries, she blackens her teeth, thus to a great extent marring and spoiling her beauty. American husbands would not dream of such barbarism, but on the contrary, want their wives to remain beautiful and attractive just as long as possible. In fact, every woman owes it to herself and society to preserve her beauty, attractiveness and amiability to the very end.

Thousands of women fail of this for one great prevalent reason. While they resort to every device to preserve their beauty of complexion by external applications and possibly take the best care of their general health, they are too frequently utterly neglectful of their health in a special womanly way. No woman can remain beautiful, attractive or amiable, who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important feminine organism. A woman who suffers in this way will lose her clearness of complexion, her eyes will become dull, worry and pain will mark her face with wrinkles and she will become nervous, sickly, fretful and despondent. There is a sovereign remedy for all troubles of this description. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"My illness was caused by lack of medical attention during childbirth. It lasted for a period of three years, during which my suffering was almost indescribable," writes Mrs. Edith Petty, of Texanna, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ter. "Owing to the injuries received—rupture, internal displacement, etc., I became a physical wreck. I was in a constant state of pain and nervous collapse. I became so nervous I feared insanity. My heart was affected and I had spells of palpitation and smothering. Was reduced in strength and could take no solid food. The doctors told me that recovery was impossible without a surgical operation. My monthly periods ceased entirely. My mother bought a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took twelve bottles. Thanks to an All-wise Providence and Doctor Pierce's medicines, the symptoms have all disappeared. I can now do a hard day's work, eat anything and everything I wish. I regard my recovery as permanent, for it is nearly two years since I stopped taking Dr. Pierce's medicines."

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names, Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory; and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to March, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

Out of sight and out of reach they go—
These close familiar friends, who loved us so;
And, sitting in the shadow they have left,
Alone with loneliness, and sore bereft,
We think with vain regret of some fond word
That once we might have said and they have heard.

—Nora Perry.

It is not a sin to be wealthy, nor a virtue to be poor.—Exchange.

Place your work high; always work with a will and never be satisfied with mediocrity.—Selected.

The man who has sense enough to hold his tongue is very nearly as wise as the man who knows what to say and how to say it.—Selected.

God never does anything for us that we can do for ourselves. If we could have saved ourselves, Jesus would never have come.—Exchange.

Some one has beautifully said that we should give God our last thought at night that he may be with us in our dreams, and our first waking thought that we may keep him company all day long.—Selected.

Line upon line, precept upon precept, we must have in a home. But we must also have serenity, peace, and the absence of petty fault-finding, if home is to be a nursery fit for heaven's growing plants.—Exchange.

No man or woman of the humblest sort can really be strong, pure and good, without the world being better for it; without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of this goodness.—Phillips Brooks.

The shortness of life is bound up with its fullness. It is to him who is most active, always thinking, feeling, working, caring for people and for things, that life seems short. Strip a life empty and it will seem long enough.—Phillips Brooks.

The present time—youngest born of eternity, child and heir of all the past times, with their good and evil, and parent of all the future—is ever a "new era" to the thinking man. . . . To know it, and what it bids us do, is ever the sum of knowledge for all of us.—Thomas Carlyle.

Too long have we been willing to put that kingdom which Christ came to found away beyond the stars; to interpret all his glowing words about it as the description of some visionary state which has no relation to this world. That was not the purpose of his mission; that is not the meaning of his gospel. In his prayer there is not intimation of a wish that we may go to heaven; it is a prayer whose sole burden is that heaven may be brought to earth.—Standard.

A man may have the most dazzling talents, but if they are scattered upon many subjects, he will accomplish nothing. Strength is like gunpowder—to be effective, it needs contraction and aim. The marksman who aims at the whole target will seldom hit the center. The literary man or philosopher may revel among the sweetest and most beautiful flowers of thought, but unless he gathers or condenses them in the honeycomb of some great thought or work, his finest conceptions will be lost or useless.—Southern Advocate.

SEEKING, AND ITS REWARD.

In every realm of human activity finding is conditioned upon diligent search. Riches seldom fall into the lap of the sluggard. The earth yields but a poor harvest to him who sows sparingly and tills indifferently. Well-filled barns come to the husbandman not by accident, but as the result of diligent, wisely-directed toil. Most great inventions are the product of earnest effort directed to a specific end. It was thus that Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin, Morse the telegraph, and Edison the phonograph. Each set himself a definite task, and went to work at it with might and main. It was Sir Issac Newton, the tireless seeker after scientific truth, who discovered the great law of gravitation. Random, half-hearted seeking rarely amounts to anything.

This truth has significant spiritual applications. Many believers serve God in a general way, with little thought of making definite progress, or performing specific acts of service. They pray, not because they realize special needs and opportunities, but because of a conviction that prayer is a good thing, and ought not to be neglected. Hence, though they go through the form, they derive small benefit therefrom. Their prayers being entirely vague, it is not strange that they are lacking in joy and strength. Prevailing prayer is accompanied by introspection, and involves continual supplication for specific blessings—the expression of specific wants and aspirations. Before bestowing his best gifts upon us, God waits until we perceive our woeful lack of strength and goodness, and earnestly seek the riches of his kingdom.

The aim of preaching should be higher than the utterance of beautiful thoughts and forceful truths. It should be such as to show the sinner his lost condition, and point out to him the way to Christ. It should cause the believer to see his personal defects and duties, and teach him how to lead a life of constant holiness.

The hunter does not wait for game to wander near his home, or to cross his path; but he roams through the forests and over the fields in search thereof. Likewise, the Christian worker must not tarry for the unsaved and the unfortunate to seek him out, but must go where they are. Nor can he hope to reach the masses by shouting truth and sympathy to them from a distance. He must mingle with them, and show how he longs to help.

The sinner, too, can not hope to receive pardon and peace while wandering with profligate companions in paths of sin. He must first forsake his evil ways, and go where he can honor God, and where God is honored. To find God fully he must seek him in the sanctuary, or pray to him fervently in secret. It is useless for any man to seek God while he remains on the devil's grounds. In the kingdom of grace finding without seeking is impossible. As the precious gold is obtained from the rugged mountain-side only by patient, persevering toil, so the rich nuggets of promise and hope enrich only those who delve for them in the exhaustless mines of divine truth. It was to Abraham alone in Ur of the Chaldees and in Canaan, living in the midst of idolatry and unbelief, that God revealed himself, and to whom he made exceeding great promises because of the tenacity of his faith and the ardor of his search for heavenly wisdom. It was to the devout and hungry-souled eunuch of all the travelers who journeyed through Palestine in apostolic days that God sent his evangelist, Peter, to show him the way of salvation. God never fails to bless the waiting Simeons, the devout Cornelinses, and the wrestling Jacobs, but those who make no effort to draw nigh unto him, he knows afar off. "He that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened."

God has ordained that they who would inherit eternal life must seek him and serve him with the whole heart. Only those who hunger and thirst after righteousness shall be filled. Not until there is agony of desire and importunity in prayer does God pour out the fullness of his Spirit. While our heavenly Father graciously bestows far more than we ask, the intensity of our yearning for grace largely determines the measure of its bestowment. No man has any more religion than he longs and prays for. If Christians would seek the power and favor of God as earnestly as men seek riches, honor, and enjoyment, the tempter would assail us in vain, and life would be harmonious with the music of heaven. Thousands are literally burning out their lives in the vain pursuit of fame, fortune, or pleasure; but no soul ever yearned and sought after God without finding him.

REV. L. A. REED DEAD.

Rev. L. A. Reed died in this city on Friday, the twentieth, of pneumonia, preceded by an attack of la grippe. He was the oldest member of the Louisiana Conference, being about eighty-seven years of age. He was buried from Burgundy Street Church on Saturday, the funeral services being conducted by the presiding elder, Rev. S. S. Keener, assisted by several of the city pastors. He was universally respected and esteemed as a man of sterling integrity and a faithful minister of the gospel. At the recent session of the Louisiana Conference he was granted a superannuated relation. A suitable memoir will doubtless be prepared soon.

A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN.

The campaign for an increase of circulation has begun most auspiciously. Every mail brings a batch of new subscriptions. Many thanks to the brethren for their prompt and energetic action. With the hearty co-operation of all the preachers of the patronizing Conferences the ADVOCATE can be put into thousands of homes within the next few weeks. "So mote it be."

"THE BOOK OPENED."

This valuable work is a ready reference-book concerning the Bible and concerning many matters the Bible speaks of. It is a most desirable book for the library of any minister, religious teacher, or Christian worker, being ready at hand with information in most convenient form to aid in understanding and defending the Word of God. It is a manual to which recourse may be had for knowledge concerning Scripture teaching, which, without it, one might be compelled to spend time and money in searching out from many books. Of convenient size, bound in cloth. Price, $1.50.

See our special offer in this issue.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Patronizing Conferences—

DEAR BRETHREN: You have doubtless noted Dr. Black's offer in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, of the twelfth instant, to receive new subscriptions at $1 for eight months, to be extended four months when seven thousand five hundred new subscribers have been secured. I write to urge you to special effort now in order to have our Conference organ in all our homes. A paper for one dollar is what we want. This plan will enable us to have it within the next year.

"In a sovereign's need it is every League-man's duty to be bold!" So I am, and so let us all be at this opportune time. Let us take the paper to our pulpits and our homes till we have covered the field and secured the number!

Very truly yours,

W. L. ANDERSON.

Chester, Miss., Jan. 16, 1899.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Louisiana Annual Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: You have doubtless received the earnest appeal of our Missionary Secretaries and their plain statement in reference to their present pressing claim. Early collections alone can save them the heavy expense of interest on borrowed money. Let them have our hearty co-operation. Kindly forward to me your collections not later than the fifteenth of March, in time to have the funds in the hands of the General Board before the end of the month. Very sincerely,

W. B. THOMSON,
Treas. La. Conf. Board of Missions.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 20, 1899.

Some preachers fail to notify this office of their change of habitat, and then complain because they do not get the ADVOCATE. Our subscription clerk makes no change on the mail list without instructions to do so. If a preacher chooses to let his paper go to his last year's charge for several months, that is his privilege.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

APPLICATIONS FOR CHURCH EXTENSION AID.

MR. EDITOR: Have the kindness to announce through the columns of your paper that: "Every application for aid to be presented to the General Board of Church Extension at its annual meeting (April 27, 1899) must first receive the approval of the Conference Board of Church Extension of the Conference from which it comes, and such approval must be given at a regular meeting of such Board, or its Executive Committee, held in the first half of March."

All applications should be in the hands of the secretaries of the Conference Boards before March 1. Their names and addresses within your territory are as follows: ——— Louisiana: [Will some one give us in time for our next issue the name of the secretary of the Louisiana Conference Board of Church Extension?—EDITOR.] Mississippi: Rev. R. W. Bailey, Jackson, Miss.; North Mississippi: Rev. T. W. Lewis, Corinth, Miss.

The undersigned will furnish application blanks to all who request them.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The second term of the current session will begin Monday, Feb. 27, and continue until June 20. This will be a favorable time for new students to enter.

It will be gratifying to the friends of our college to know that the work of the session is progressing finely.

W. B. MURRAH, Pres.

THE CASE OF CONGRESSMAN-ELECT ROBERTS, OF UTAH.

1. Polygamy is contrary to the law of Utah.

2. It was contrary to the law of the United States at the time that Utah was made a State.

3. Utah would not have been made a State if the Mormon hierarchy had not affirmed that polygamy was to be no longer practiced with the approval of the Mormon Church.

4. Polygamy is counted a crime and an immorality in all the States of the Union, in all the Territories, and in the District of Columbia.

5 Congressman-elect Roberts is an avowed and open polygamist.

6. In electing him under the circumstances, Utah has treated the government of the United States most discourteously.

7. The House of Representatives is the judge of the qualifications of its own members.

8. The seating of this man will give great encouragement to all secret and semi-open polygamists in Utah and the other States where the Mormons exist and grow.

Mormonism has the same right to exist and practice its principles in this country as Christianity or any other religion has, but it has no right to break any law of the State or promote the breaking of the same.

The preceding points contain everything pertinent to the subject, and some things which perhaps would not naturally control the result, but are necessary to a full recognition of all that may follow from seating or unseating this man. We have no doubt of the full power of Congress to unseat him, and that his flagrant course fully justifies it.—New York Advocate.

A communication from our Missionary Secretaries conveys the information that the receipts of the Board for the year ending Jan. 1, 1899, are $10,040.97 less than for the previous year.

This statement should receive careful attention from every pastor and presiding elder. Let the collection for foreign missions be taken at once in every charge, and let the money be forwarded to the treasurer at Nashville. This is a case where promptness will be of incalculable service. Should the church fail to respond to this call, the result will be either another debt, or diminished appropriations, which would mean retrogression at a time when "Forward" should be our motto.

At the recent session of the Western North Carolina Conference, Rev. James Needham, who lacks only a few months of being one hundred years old, preached to a congregation of two thousand people, says the North Carolina Christian Advocate.—Midland Methodist.

The Executive Committee of the Louisiana State Epworth League held a meeting on Monday night, and took important action relative to the approaching League Conference at Crowley. The time for the Conference has not yet been fixed, but will be soon. An excellent programme will be arranged, and a large attendance is anticipated.

A brother complains that the ADVOCATE gives very little news from his immediate vicinity. Yet our files show that he has not sent in a report from his charge, or reported a single item of church news for years. His complaint is founded in—what?

Prof. C. B. Snyder, musical director in the Conservatory of Music of Whitworth College, has been appointed examiner of all applicants from the State of Mississippi for admission into the New England Conservatory. This is the best possible evidence of the excellence of Whitworth's musical department.

Bro. A. said he could not circulate the Conference organ in his charge, though he did circulate other papers extensively. When the itinerant wheel moved Bro. A. to another field, his successor secured about forty subscriptions to the Conference organ within a short time. Is there any point in this?

Rev. R. W. Vaughan, writing from Downsville, La., under date of Jan. 16, says: "We have had very bad weather since Conference, but have filled most appointments, and find the outlook very promising. The people and preacher are confidently looking forward to the best year in the history of the work. Pray for us."

We clip the following from a recent issue of the Daily Clarion-Ledger, Jackson, Miss.:

Rev. J. S. Parker and wife, of this city, left to-day for Caseyville, Lincoln county, where Mr. Parker has been assigned to the pastorate of the Methodist Church. This esteemed couple have resided in Jackson for several years, and their departure is sincerely regretted by a host of friends. Wednesday afternoon the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church gave a delightful farewell reception to Mr. and Mrs. Parker. Many members were present, and all wished them success and happiness in their new home.

We commend the following to the consideration of pastors and presiding elders. What is true in the latitude of St. Louis is true in the latitude of New Orleans. If you want an intelligent, wide-awake membership, alive to every interest of the church, see to it that the ADVOCATE circulates among them.

A presiding elder puts an important fact, which is worthy of consideration and comment, into one of his telling sentences as follows:

"The charges on this district that showed an increase in the circulation of the Central Christian Advocate last year also showed an increase in all the benevolent collections."

This fact might be duplicated many times by the testimony of our best workers. A pastor said not long ago: "I can pick out in my congregation the subscribers to the Central, off-hand, without referring to my list. I recognize them by their increased intelligence, their enlarged liberality, their generous and appreciative spirit. Whenever the paper goes into a home I begin to expect certain results to follow, and among these results one is almost invariable—more liberal giving." Every wide-awake pastor is alert just now to enlarge his list of subscribers to the church papers. The above testimonies ought to furnish them with arguments and motive power in the canvass.

People who make mistakes are those who quarrel with one another before their children, or who allow the latter to grow up in idleness those who talk about their troubles before strangers; the father who tells his children to go the way he does not go himself, and the young woman who does not make a confidant of her mother.—Lutheran Observer.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

During a recent visit to Texas Avenue Church, Shreveport, we had the opportunity to attend a business meeting of the League. The president and secretary were at the table—the one nearly seventy, the other not quite seventeen.

It was refreshing to see the older members thus interested, and at work with and for the young people. They seem to pay little attention to the almanac; but, young in spirit and hopeful, they are marching forward together to the music of celestial song.

The League at this church is alive, and under the leadership of their new pastor, Rev. P. O. Lowrey, they propose to do more and better work during the present year that they have ever done in the past.

Recently we were permitted to peruse a copy of the Methodist Episcopal Advocate, the organ of the West Virginia Conference. It has an Epworth League Department, with Rev. Lyman F. Jackson as editor. Bro. Jackson was formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, and stationed at Alexandria.

It was our privilege to spend Sunday, Jan. 15, with the good people of Minden. Their new pastor, Rev. Courtland Prentiss Smith, who had, a week before, arrived from Laurel, Md., is an active Leaguer. He attended the International Conference at Toronto, and will (D. V.) visit Indianapolis this Summer with the Louisiana Leaguers.

A goodly member of the Leaguers and their friends were present in the afternoon to hear this scribe talk about the aim and work of the Epworth League. We hope they will send delegations and good reports to Crowley and Indianapolis.

Preparations are being made in the Columbus, Winona and Aberdeen districts for District League Conferences some time in the early Spring. The main object is to rally the forces and get ready for the State Conference by May 18.

Joe Ramsey, the blind boy from Tennessee, will attend the State Conference and deliver two addresses. He will also make an itinerary of Mississippi in the interest of the work. The Tupelo League No. 406 observed Epworth League Day, Jan. 8. Bro. Myers, the pastor, made a capital address, and subscriptions were taken for the Era.

Prof. W. A. Hemphill, of Texas, who will have charge of the music at the International Conference at Indianapolis in July, has also signified his willingness to direct the music at the Mississippi League Conference at West Point, provided he can arrange to leave his school at that time.

The Tupelo Leaguers are pleased with their new pastor, Rev. S. B. Myers, who has shown himself to be in hearty sympathy with the young life of his church.

There is no more active a League in the State now than the one at Central Church, Meridian. The benefit of a State League Conference was received there in full measure.

Bro. Burton reports thirty-three orphans now in the Home, and their appeal is one that calls for our tenderest sympathies. Our pledge must be redeemed.

The Starkville League has bought eight or nine sets of the reading course, and, it is needless to add, is in a prosperous condition. We recommend to these Leaguers their new pastor, Rev. R. A. Meek, as one who will materially aid them in their work.

Five Leagues from the Jackson district have paid shares on our special fund, which entitles it to be called the banner district. Four from the Vicksburg, and also four from the Columbus district, have paid, which places these districts second in this important work.

The Macon, Lauderdale and Port Gibson Juniors are the only Juniors that have paid a share on our special fund. We hope the Junior Superintendents will note this, and let the Juniors help in this work.

In recent issues of The Epworth Era were published two poems from the pen of Miss Annie Estelle Boothe, district secretary of the Sardis district. These poems are tender, touching, and beautiful, and it is claimed by the authoress that these and other poems are the result of encouragement and help received at the Sardis District League Conference, held in July last.

The Leagues at Inka, Corinth, Tupelo, West Point, Columbus, Macon, Starkville and Central Church, Meridian, have each bought a missionary library. Doubtless other Leagues in the State have done so; but we have heard only from these.

INSURE YOURSELF against the attacks of fevers, pneumonia, and other serious and prostrating diseases, by taking a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla now.

HOOD'S PILLS are the favorite family cathartic. Easy to take, easy to operate.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the charges of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

Some of our readers would, no doubt, find it to their interest to read the ad. of Civil Service Bureau.

MINISTERS' RELIEF ASSOCIATION OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The members of the above association will please take notice that Rev. J. C. Park, Rosedale, Bolivar county, Miss., is now secretary and treasurer.

Though a member of another Conference, I shall still hold my membership with your association, as change of Conference relations does not vitiate membership in the association. In 1893, when you elected me as secretary and treasurer, we had 39 members. I have recently sent Bro. Park the names of 79 brethren who are members in good standing. Bro. A. J. Jones, who went to heaven on the fifteenth of this month, was a member of the association. It will be a privilege and pleasure for me to pay my mortuary fee for the benefit of his faithful family.

Yours affectionately,

THOMAS B. CLIFFORD,
Sec and Treas. from 1893-1898.

Mansfield, La., Jan. 20, 1899.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

If my friend, Bro. J. H. Smith, can point out one "ornel" thing that I said in my letter, then I am ready to apologize to him or to any other aggrieved brother. As to defending my assertions, I only need to say that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating." If a brother succeeds along a given line of church work, isn't that defense or proof enough? Far be it from me to offend one of the least of Christ's disciples; I only wanted to show what one brother in particular had done. No, my brother; I do not disparage the work done by the worthy men who are giving their lives to the work of the church; nor do I believe that a brother must succeed in a certain way to succeed at all, but I am glad to know that our preachers are all faithful to their Lord, and that he does honor them.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

PRAYER SERVICE AT THE W. C. T. U.

We wish to call the reader's attention to the daily prayer service, from 12 to 1, in the room over the W. C. T. U., No. 303 St. Charles St. This room is open every day from 11 to 2 for those who desire to spend a few moments in secret prayer. Strangers coming to the city and all others are given a cordial invitation to come to the daily prayer service.

NOTICE.

Pastors desiring my assistance in revivals will please write me at once, as I am now making engagements for the year. I received more invitations last year than I could accept, but could have gone to several other brethren if some of their invitations had come in sooner. My desire is to respond to as many calls as possible, but can not do this when pastors wait till the battle is on before extending the invitations. Let's begin at once, brethren, and make this the greatest year of our lives in the salvation of souls. Dying at the rate of sixty every minute, fifteen and one half millions of souls will have passed into eternity between now and the middle of next Summer—the so-called "revival season." Some of the greatest meetings I ever held were in January and February. God says, "Now is the accepted time; to-day is the day of salvation." Begin now.

NATCHEZ, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: We are in our parsonage home in Natchez. We arrived at 7:40 P. M., Jan. 12. We were kindly received at the train and conveyed to the parsonage, where a number of elect ladies and gentlemen were in waiting to receive and welcome us. Our home is nicely furnished, every want having been anticipated. An elegant reception was given us last evening in the Sunday-school room, where we met many members of our church and of other churches. No one can appreciate our pleasant surroundings in this delightful home and pastorate more than an ex-presiding elder who, for five long years, has been without the kindly attentions of the good men and women of the pastorate. You know Natchez, having once enjoyed a stay of four years among this noble people, and hence know what has fallen to our lot. We shall be glad to have you among us this year.

"I give your 'Combination' Bible my commendation and endorsement without one qualifying word."—Bishop Searborough, Trenton, N. J.

"Just what the people want."—Rev. Russell H. Conwell, Philadelphia.

"It should be in the hands of every clergyman."—Bishop Leonard, Cleveland, O.

"One of the most valuable forms in which the Holy Bible has been presented to the public."—Bishop Clark, Providence, R. I.

"Unique in plan, extraordinary in scope and exceptional in value. The arrangement of the two editions is most helpful."—Bishop Huntington, Syracuse, New York.

"Eyre & Spottswood's Bible is good—Bagster's has some points in its favor—the new and improved Oxford is excellent—but each of the above, and all others, fall far short of the 'Combination' Bible. The type is large and clear."—Southern Christian Advocate, Greenville, S. C.

"I have carefully examined it from end to end and find it complete in all things. I give it my unqualified and emphatic endorsement."—Bishop Mallalieu, Buffalo, N. Y.

"There are great advantages in it for students, and especially for teachers. I give the plan of combining the two versions my most cordial approval."—Bishop Merrill, Chicago, Ill.

"The Combination and self-pronouncing features make it the most practically useful Bible that has ever been published."—Bishop Spalding, Denver, Colo.

"I consider it as a great gift to every Bible student, and I hope that it will find a place in the hands of every Sunday-school teacher in our country."—Bishop Dudley, Louisville, Ky.

"It is a most valuable contribution to biblical typography and literature, a mine of information."—Bishop Atwill, Kansas City, Mo.

"The handsomest and most serviceable edition of the Holy Scriptures that has come under my notice. The Bible Helps contain all that is essential."—Bishop Ninde, Detroit, Mich.

"The best, for use of teachers and students, ever published."—Bishop Wilson, Baltimore, Md.

"It deserves a place in every home."—Bishop Vincent, Topeka, Kan.

"This is by far the best Bible ever offered to the public, better than the Bagster's or the Oxford edition. Its Helps are admirable and copious."—The Truth, Chicago, Ill.

"This is a Bible no pastor, teacher or student of the Holy Scriptures can afford to do without. It is a valuable and convenient time-saver."—Christian Herald, Detroit, Mich.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

A Ragged Coat and An Empty Pocket Changes the Aspect of the World.

Walter Wycoff, a student of social problems, abandoned his station in life and assumed the garb of daily toil(?), taking his place among grimy handed workers in order to test the change. A MALARIA POISONED LIVER will also cause as great a change in physical life. Sunshine will leave the face. The eye loses its sparkle; while the skin assumes a dull copper tint. These are least of the evils and merely herald (the external cry that Nature gives when battling with Malaria germs. Headache, Nausea, dullness of thought, pain in the back and side, a coated tongue, a horrible taste, are among the danger signals which if unheeded portend CONGESTION, CONVULSIONS, SUPPRESSION OF SECRETIONS AND TERMINATION OF LIFE.

Far easier than the solution of the social problem is the remedy for Malaria—DICKS' CHILLIFUGE absolutely exterminates it. A Few Doses, and health spreads her wings over the grateful system, and the sun shines once more, while life is worth the living.

THE WORTH OF LITERARY CULTURE.

In his "Talks on the Study of Literature" (a volume of lectures delivered under the auspices of the Lowell Institute), Prof. Arlo Bates, of the Boston University, finds something new and important to say on such well-worn themes as "The Value of the Classics," "Fiction," and "Poetry." The lectures are chiefly concerned with methods of acquiring a knowledge of the world's best books, traversing much the same ground that most text-books on the subject traverse; but incidentally Mr. Bates gives us instructive comments on contemporary literature and on the value of the art of letters to national development. Beginning with a definition of "literature," which is affirmed to be "genuine emotion, adequately expressed," Professor Bates considers how far the experience of emotion through reading can be profitably substituted for the realities of actual life. To most of us in modern civilization circumstances deny the possibility of experiencing even a small part of all the varied sensations of which we know ourselves capable. Fate condemns us to humdrum existences, which for the wise can only be relieved by finding in art the emotional gratification which is unsatisfied by outward reality.

The lectures on "Methods of Study" and "False Methods" contain many helpful suggestions for the reader who wishes to know and appreciate the works of the writers who have best expressed the wide range of human experience. Some of the defects in what passes for the study of literature—the hurried cramming of innumerable miscellaneous volumes, the perusal of large numbers of books giving petty personal details of the lives of great writers, and close devotion to the history of literature—are condemned as having nothing in common with the real purpose of literary study.

Stress is laid upon the importance of careful training in order to enjoy the books which are really worth attention, for while one may be born with a love of the best in art, the full appreciation of the work of the master-mind comes only with patient effort. The highest function of literature is its appeal to the intellect as a means of touching and arousing the imagination. To read sympathetically, therefore, is as fundamental a condition of good reading as is to read intelligently. The final suggestion as to methods is:

"It may seem that enough has already been required to make reading the most serious of undertakings; yet there is still one requirement more which is of the utmost importance. He is unworthy to share the delights of great work who is not able to respect it; he has no right to meddle with the best of literature who is not prepared to approach it with some reverence. In the greatest books the master-minds of the race have graciously bidden their fellows into their high company. The honor should be treated according to its worth. Irreverence is the deformity of a diseased mind. The man who can not revere what is noble is innately degraded. When writers of genius have given us their best thoughts, their deepest imaginings, their noblest emotions, it is for us to receive them with bared heads. He is greatly to be pitied who, in reading high imaginative work, has never been conscious of a sense of being in a fine and noble presence, of having been admitted into a place which should not be profaned. Only that soul is great which can appreciate greatness. Remember that there is no surer measure of what you are than the extent to which you are able to rise to the heights of supreme books; the extent to which you are able to comprehend, to delight in, and to revere, the masterpieces of literature."—Literary Digest.

DON'T HURRY.

Haste makes waste. If you have but five minutes to do a thing, it may pay to take one minute to plan how it shall be done. Hurry and worry go together, and they often result from idleness and carelessness.

"You didn't run fast enough," said a bystander to an Irishman, who came puffing into a railway station just after the train glided out.

"Yes, I did run fast enough," said Patriek, "but I did not start soon enough."

Dawdle in the morning causes hurry at night. The man who is up betimes, and gets an early start, does not need either to hurry or worry.

"Time enough" is always little enough, and the time lost in idleness and neglect is not to be made up in frantic haste. Says a judicious writer:

"We can spoil more work, do more damage to all concerned, and create more needless delay, by anxious, unseemly, and precipitate haste than in any other way. Our powers of perception become dimmed, our spiritual discernment becomes less acute, our reason is more sure to be at fault, our memory refuses to fulfill her office, our tempers become unmanageable, our whole nature—physical, mental, and moral—becomes incapacitated for the best quality of work. So much that we have so done would be so much better left undone, and still more will require to be done over again, that we will find that the old motto will repeat itself in our hurried experience, 'The more haste, the less speed.' So there is a profound truth in John Wesley's apparently singular statement, 'I have no time to be in a hurry;' and an older writer than Wesley, conscious of a self-poise of the trusting soul which rests upon a sure foundation, has said: 'Thus saith the Lord God, Behold I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner-stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste.' (Isaiah xxviii, 16.)"—The Christian.

DANGER!—SCATTERATION.

A danger which every young man must strenuously avoid is lack of concentration. When a youth enters an institution he is usually examined to see that he can keep up with the classes he wishes to enter. After that he drops out of sight, so far as the professors are concerned. They see him in the class-room and ask him questions. If he happens to answer well that day, he gets a good "mark," and passes for a good student; if he fails just that time, the reverse happens. No account is taken of why he succeeded or why he failed. He is rushed from one class to another, from French to Greek, from Latin to mathematics, and is expected to know each lesson. The result is, he studies to recite well, and not to master the subject. He becomes a master in memory and a babe in thought. Memory fails him, and he grows timid and uncertain as to what is really his. His education, at best, is a partial failure—his life its counterpart. This will, in a measure, give account of the expression so often heard concerning certain men found in nearly all communities: "They have a fine education, but have never amounted to anything." They have the necessary mental capital, but not the power and industry to invest it. Ideas do not come to them, and they may even hold strong positions on some subjects, but their thoughts do not move. They do not think to definite conclusions. They pass through life like men on a street-car. They see persons and objects along the way, but before one impression is duly made, another takes its place, and they really think of nothing. Their minds become passive, instead of growing more and more vigorously active, as their Maker intended they should. At best, they are only fitfully active.

It is true that one must receive the impressions, but he must then or later think of them and get all the lessons out of them they can teach. "Scatteration" is a blood-sucker. Success is attained only by a oneness of purpose that fires the whole being of the youth, and by a concentration of every faculty toward its accomplishment.—Success.

TO SPOIL A CHILD.

1. Begin young, by giving whatever he cries for.
2. Tell him he is too much for you; that you can do nothing with him.
3. Have divided counsels as between father and mother.
4. Let him learn (from father's example) to despise his mother.
5. Do not know or care who his companions may be.
6. Let him read whatever he likes.
7. Let the child, whether boy or girl, rove the streets in the evenings—a good school for both of them.
8. Strain at a gnat and swallow a camel; chastise severely for a foible and laugh at a vice.

These rules are not untried. Many parents have proved them, with substantial uniformity of results. If a faithful observance of them does not spoil your child, you will at least have the comfortable reflection that you have done what you could.—Christian Commonwealth.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

Thousands of Families Have One in the House at All Times.

The Same Exceptional Opportunity Offered Here to All Readers of This Paper.

A prominent citizen remarked recently, to the editor of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: "It may seem surprising to you, but in my house we have a family doctor there all the time. Nor am I the only one who has this great blessing," said he, "I know of many families who have this same doctor always on hand, always within reach."

"Do I mean a man, a physician, in flesh and blood?" he asked. "No, not exactly that; the family doctor that I refer to is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. We have not had to call a doctor to our house since we have used it."

This is the testimony of thousands who know Swamp-Root for what it is. This famous medicine is the absolute conqueror of kidney and bladder diseases, and many a man and woman who walk the streets to-day in the complete possession of health owe their lives to the power of this great discovery over kidney and bladder ills and uric acid disturbances. In diseases of the blood, no matter from what source they arise, Swamp-Root goes right to the source of the trouble, and cures by first removing the cause, and sends the blood leaping and bounding away in quest of bright eyes and rosy cheeks.

Constipation and liver troubles, urinal weaknesses and the torture that goes with them, rheumatism, stiff joints, in fact, diseases arising from any wrong condition of the blood, liver, bladder or kidneys, are promptly overcome by Dr. Kilmer's famous discovery, Swamp-Root.

None but those who have made a study of the subject realize what an immense amount of work the kidneys perform every day. They are the sewer of the system, and once they become clogged up, poison runs riot and disease has full sway. Just as a choked sewer breeds pestilence in a city, so do weak and unhealthy kidneys breed disease in the human body.

Swamp-Root clears out all the impurities, helps the kidneys to perform their work properly, drives the poison out of the blood and system, invigorates and regenerates you and adds tenfold to the pleasures and comforts of life.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, who have not already tried it may have a free sample bottle of Swamp-Root and thus test for themselves its wonderful curative properties.

If you will send your name and full address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., a sample bottle will be sent absolutely free by mail post-paid, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root.

This great remedy is for sale at most drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. Don't make any mistake, but make a note of the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember that it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you take advantage of this generous offer and write for a free sample bottle be sure and mention the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Hygiene.

THE EMOTIONS ARE SCULPTORS.

Every emotion tends to sculpture the body into beauty or into ugliness. Worrying, fretting, unbridled passions, petulance, discontent, every dishonest act, every falsehood, every feeling of envy, jealousy, fear—each has its effect on the system, and acts deleteriously like a poison or a deformer of the body. Professor James, of Harvard, an expert in the mental sciences, says: "Every small stroke of virtue or vice leaves its ever so little scar. Nothing we ever do is, in strict literalness, wiped out." We look with pity and distrust upon the man who vitiates his vitality, pollutes and ruins his body by alcohol, while we ourselves may be changing our own bodies into hideous forms by what seem to be "innocent sins." A fit of anger may work a greater damage to the body and character than a drunken bout. Hatred may leave worse scars upon a clean life than the bottle. Jealousy, envy, anger, uncontrolled grief may do more to wreck the physical life than years of smoking. Anxiety, fretting, and scolding, may instill a more subtle poison into the system than the cigarette.

OBITUARIES.

CLARK—Mrs. OLLIE CLARK, daughter of Oliver W. and Isadore L. Price, was born Sept. 21, 1869, and died Dec 18, 1898, making her twenty-nine years two months and twenty-seven days of age when she died.

It was near Thomastown, Miss., where her parents lived, where she was born, and where her father died. Some years after her father's death her mother married Mr. J. T. Shivers. They then moved to the Delta, and settled on Tchola Lake, where, with her four brothers and one half-brother, she grew up to womanhood.

She was converted and joined the Methodist Church at Silon under the ministry of Rev. W. W. Hoskins, when quite young, and lived a faithful member until death. She was married to Mr. Chas. T. Clark, Feb. 26, 1880, on Walton Bend plantation, in Holmes county. She was a faithful and devoted wife, and the mother of four children—three boys and one little girl. She adorned the doctrine of her Master in all the relations of life; an obedient daughter, a loving sister, a devoted wife, a good and self-sacrificing mother, a true friend, and a consistent member of the church.

She was taken on Dec. 14 (Wednesday) with la grippe and pneumonia, which soon developed into a severe case of hematuria, and she died on the following Sunday at 5 A. M. She soon became conscious that her time had come, and asked those who waited about her bed not to grieve after her. All that could be done by a devoted husband, loving brothers and a faithful doctor availed nothing. Her time had come, and she must go. She committed her children to her mother and their father and to her heavenly Father, and kindly admonished her husband and brothers to be Christians, and then, with a peaceful and triumphant smile, she resigned her spirit to Him who gave it, and passed out and up to be with God. She leaves a mother, husband, three brothers and four children on this side of the narrow sea that divides the heavenly land from ours. May it be their happy lot in the end to pass over and all join in a happy reunion around the great white throne!

The writer had the pleasure of being Mrs. Clark's pastor for four years, and always found her faithful and true. "Sure, when her gentle spirit fled with outstretched arms to realms beyond the azure dome, God's angels said, 'Welcome to heaven, home, sweet home.'"

MRS. MATTIE IRELAND CARTER.

Seldom indeed has the hand of friendship had the privilege of sketching a life more beautiful, more excellent. Great amiability, and love for literature and high culture, were prominent characteristics of her youth. Intellectually, she was unusually alert and discriminating. She achieved high honors at Whitworth College. As a young lady, she was an ornament to the social life into which she entered. I loved her for her beautiful transparency of character, her modesty and gentleness. Amid all the fascinations of life she turned not aside, but, looking steadily onward, pursued the path which leads through the pearly gates into the beautiful city of God.

She loved her church, and labored in it with untiring zeal. She was always concerned about the comfort of her pastors, many of whom will read these lines with tear-stained eyes as they remember the many happy hours spent in the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister Carter. She was tenderly reared in a pious home.

Nine years ago she was married to Bro. L. M. Carter. Two children were born unto them, but these both died in infancy.

She was the last of her family to take yellow fever. She was an angel of mercy by the sick-bed of her loved ones for several weeks. When anxious hearts were drooping like the willow she stood as a comforter between the living and the dead. She suffered intensely for five days, but bore her suffering with Christian resignation. She died Oct. 15, 1898.

Dear ones at home, while we weep she is wrapped in celestial joys in the presence of our God; and while our Father has called her to a sphere of more exalted services and pleasures, she loves you still; and while you long to find her again, she is watching with holy interest over you, and is alluring you, by sweet, mysterious influences, into a participation with her of celestial joys, and ere long you will join her. We should find comfort in the knowledge that our dear one is waiting to spring the pearly gates ajar to let us in.

EMMA R. WITT.

SHEPPARD—WM. ROLAND SHEPPARD was born in Atlanta, Ga., April 11, 1846, and died at his home in Greenwood, La., Dec. 12, 1898. He came to Louisiana in 1869, and settled in Caddo parish, where he was married Nov. 8, 1871, to Miss Mary T. Jones, who died Aug. 28, 1892. Eleven children blessed their union, four of whom awaited him on the other shore.

By those among whom he lived for twenty-eight years he was held in the highest esteem. He was always the preacher's friend. At one time the church at Greenwood went down to almost nothing. During this period he and his good wife held things together, and it was to them the preacher would look for a cordial welcome and a hearty God-speed.

During the last six years of his life he filled the double position of father and mother to seven children, four of whom were very young when his wife died; yet he was faithful in his attendance upon all the services of the sanctuary. If for any reason he was absent from church, he was always careful that his pastor should know the cause.

His death has left a vacancy in the life of this delightful little village which will be sorely felt. Unconsciousness during the last hours of his illness prevented a dying testimony; but those who knew him needed it not to be assured of his eternal safety.

We commend the bereaved children to the God of their parents, and pray that their sore bereavement may be so sanctified to their spiritual good as to result in an unbroken family in the home beyond.

PAUL M. BROWN.

JONES—LARDON GARLAND, son of P. B. and Lula Jones, of Cockrum, Miss.

On Christmas Day little Lardon was stricken with the membranous croup, and the following day his young and innocent soul winged its way to heaven.

Born Feb. 3, 1896, Lardon was scarcely three years old when the summons came on Dec. 26, 1898; yet in those few months he had endeared himself to loved ones by his sweetness and gentleness of disposition, and by his bright, active young mind, which was thus early manifest. He was a cheerful and a happy boy, full of the childish joys of Christmas, playing happily with the gifts of "Santa Claus," which makes the child's heart merry, when God took his soul. As his broken-hearted mother says, "He was truly a Christmas present to the Father in heaven."

Grieve not for Lardon, for he is beyond the pale of harm, and he is at home, where he awaits the coming of loved ones left behind. Mourn not, for earth's loss is heaven's gain, and after a season we shall meet the baby boy where there is no more parting and no more death.

INABNET—Mrs. ELIZABETH INABNET (nee Bryan) was born in Coosa county, Ala., Oct. 11, 1831, and died at her home near Lapine, La., Jan. 3, 1899. She came to Louisiana with her parents in 1845, and settled with them in Jackson parish, where she was married to Mr. John D. Inabnet, May 23, 1850. Seven children—six boys and one girl—were born of this union. John Inabnet died Nov. 5, 1870, and only two of the children all survive: Jas. A. Inabnet, of Alexander, Texas, and Rev. W. B. Inabnet, of Lapine, La. She was staying with the latter at the time of her death.

Our mother was very dear to us, and we were loath to give her up. Her prayers and good counsel, which had helped to steer our course thus far, will be missed; but we are consoled by the fact that she was a Christian, and ready for the change, having been converted in her thirteenth year. She joined the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consistent member until her death. Her home was a home for the preachers, and many a weary pilgrim has she sheltered. She loved her church, and was always at divine services when her health would permit. We mourn for our mother, but she has crossed over the river to wait for us there.

HER SON.

FOSTER—MORRIS LOYD, son of Rev. Wm. M. and Mattie Foster, was born in Chickasaw county, Miss., Aug. 30, 1888. He came with his parents to Texas in November, 1893, and died of pneumonia near Tyler, Texas, Dec. 17, 1898.

Morris was a noble, good boy; said his prayers, read his Bible, and often told what the preacher said in his sermon. Oh, what a blessed thought that Jesus has gone to prepare a place for us, where we shall meet, and our hearts will know sorrow no more! We shall see him again. Happy thought!

HIS PARENTS.

Religion is no assent of the lips; it is no mere conclusion of thought or conviction of the understanding. It is first a sense of duty, leading to the embodiment of the highest powers in daily acts. In the end it is a ready service rendered to every good cause.—John Learned.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

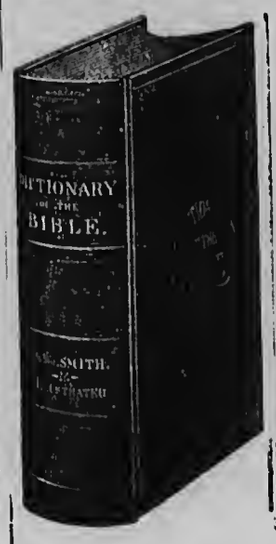
Smith's Dictionary



—OF THE—

BIBLE.

Comprising Its Antiquities, Biography, Geography, and NATURAL HISTORY.

EDITED BY WM. SMITH, LL. D.,

Classical Examiner of the University of London.

This great work prepared under the direction and superintendence of Dr. Smith himself contains every name in the Bible and Apocrypha of which anything can be said; gives an account of each of the books of the Bible; explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves; embraces the results of the most successful and approved biblical labors and researches, constituting an indispensable aid to ministers, teachers, families, Sunday-school superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

The simple explanations of this work, unlike the expositions of a commentary, admit of no denominational or sectarian coloring and it is therefore equally valuable to Bible readers of every diversity of belief.

This is, undoubtedly, the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The work contains 1024 large octavo pages, over 150 illustrations and maps engraved especially for this work and is handsomely and strongly bound in cloth. Publishers' price, $4.50.

To any person who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: To February, 1900, we will sell this magnificent book postpaid for $2. Send in your order at once, as this offer may soon be withdrawn. Address

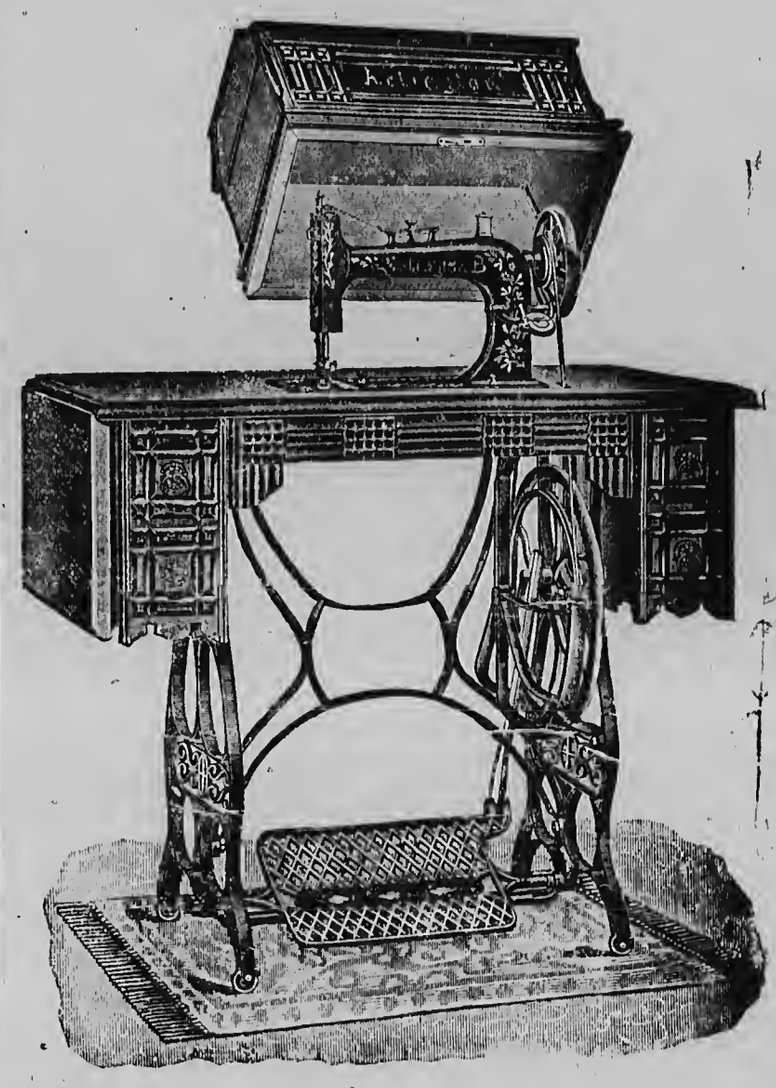
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one fast hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one guage, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

By a unanimous vote the Minnesota Senate has declared in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people.

Maryland is to erect a $10,000 monument at Antietam in memory of the soldiers of both the Confederate and Federal Armies.

Indiana expends annually for poor relief through country and township officials about $1,000,000. About one-half this sum is paid for the care of persons in institutions.

Mrs. S. J. Atwood, who runs a labor bureau in Denver, has hired over 40,000 men in the last thirteen years for work on Western railroads. She is said to be the only woman railroad employment agent in the country.

The annual report of the New York State Board of Charities shows that the inmates and other beneficiaries of the institutions and associations of the State number more than 2,500,000 in the aggregate, and that the expense of their maintenance amounts to nearly $232,000,000 annually.

A bill aimed at the Standard Oil Company is pending in the Kansas Legislature. It declares "non-enforceable all evidence of indebtedness given in whole or part for any commodity or commodities produced or manufactured by any trust dealing in or producing petroleum or any of its manufactural products."

Mrs. Frances S. Lee, a member of the Lower House of the Colorado Legislature, presided over the House as acting Speaker the other day. She was called "Mr. Speaker," "Mrs. Speaker," "Mme. Speaker," etc., and if she discovered that the Speaker had less talking to do than anyone else, she manifested no surprise. When it became necessary to call members to order she used the gavel.

Serious consideration will be given by the Cabinet to the critical conditions existing in the Philippines, as recently reported by Major-General Otis. It is claimed that the President is handicapped in dealing with the situation by the inaction of the Senate with respect to the ratification of the treaty of peace. In any event, some of the officials of the administration are convinced that the procrastinating and hesitating policy which the Senate is pursuing will bring about the result which the President is so anxious to avoid, conflict with the insurgents.

The nearer the time for the meeting of the Czar of Russia's disarmament convention approaches the more apparent it becomes that no results are likely to follow from it. It is now admitted, even by the Russian Government, that disarmament, in the sense that military service was to be abolished or the present armies of Europe reduced, was not at any time contemplated. The most that was expected was the stoppage of the further expansion of the armed forces and the adoption of a general agreement to restrict the use of explosives, submarine boats, and the like.

After patiently awaiting her opportunity for more than a decade, Great Britain has at last found a safe excuse for tightening her toils around Egypt. By virtue of a convention, formally signed several days ago at Cairo by representatives of the Egyptian and British Governments, the government and control of the Soudan is formally intrusted entirely to a governor-general selected by Great Britain. Egyptian laws are not to apply to the Soudan provinces, nor will the mixed tribunals which existed in Egypt by international agreement exert any jurisdiction whatever in the reconquered provinces.

By request of the Secretary of the Treasury, the War Department has ordered the American officials in Porto Rico to enforce the Chinese exclusion laws of this country in Porto Rico. Under this regulation, no Chinaman can be admitted to Porto Rico without compliance to the laws of the United States. Chinamen can go back and forward between this country and Porto Rico without restriction. They will not be allowed to go from Cuba to Porto Rico. Treasury officials ascertained that Chinese agents were preparing to flood Porto Rico with Chinamen from other countries, who hoped thereby later to get into the United States.

It is declared that Secretary Alger is to be removed from the War Department. It is also declared that General Miles is to be removed for two reasons. First, that when, as he alleges, he found the beef bad, he did not report to the government; second, that he does not work harmoniously with the administration. If reports are true, this will be the result of the investigation by the War Commission. It will report against the charges that "embalmed" beef was supplied to the soldiers, and that the canned and otherwise prepared meat was bad or poisonous; also that the charges that soldiers did not have proper food are untrue. With General Eagan court-martialed and as gracefully as possible relegated into obscurity, and Alger put out of the War Department, and General Miles removed, the administration will have a chance to return to its more important work of getting its numerous islands upon a business basis. Millions of capital and the representatives of the chief interests of the country are anxious to begin drumming up trade in the new possessions of tropical American.

How I Made $200 a Month in a New Enterprise.

I want to tell you of my wonderful success. Being a poor girl and needing money badly, I tried the Dishwasher business and have cleared $200 every month. It is more money than I ever had before and I can't help telling you about, for I believe any person can do as well as I have if they only try. Dishwashers sell on sight; every lady wants one. The Household Mfg. Co., Second and Locust Sts., St. Louis, Mo., will give you all necessary instructions, so you can begin work at once. The Home Dishwasher has the latest improvements and does splendid work; yes, so wash and dry the dishes in two or three minutes without putting your hands in the water at all. I would recommend any reader wanting to make money. Write at once.

MY PSALM.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

All as God wills, who wisely heeds
To give or to withhold,
And knoweth more of all my needs
Than all my prayers have told!

Enough that blessings undeserved
Have marked my erring track;
That wherescoe'er my feet have swerved,
His chastening turned me back.

That more and more a Providence
Of love is understood,
Making the springs of time and sense
Sweet with eternal good;

That death seems but a covered way
Which opens into light,
Wherein no baffled child can stray
Beyond the Father's sight;

That care and trial seem at last,
Through Memory's sunset air,
Like mountain ranges overpast,
In purple distance fair;

That all the jarring notes of life
Seem blending in a psalm,
And all the angles of its strife
Slow rounding into calm.

And so the shadows fall apart,
And so the west winds play;
And all the windows of the heart
I open to the day.

J. O. KEENER, D. D.

The strongest and sturdiest specimen of massive manhood in the Methodism of Alabama has gone from us, and gone unto God. It is hard to realize it. A few weeks ago he stood before us, the picture of physical strength, and mental and moral might swept full-tided through him and from him. Now no more on the earth shall we behold him. Strange and mysterious are God's dealings, yet he "doeth all things well."

I first met Dr. Keener at Memphis in 1894, and from that time to the present friendship and affection and admiration have increased, until today I feel a sense of personal bereavement in his death that I can not express.

J. O. Keener was a MAN—every inch of him. Upon every question presented to him he had an opinion, firm, fixed, decided—aye, he had convictions, and for them, if needs be, he was ready to die. None of the things he did were done in "a corner." Frank and firm, candid and courageous, and at times caustic, there was never any doubt as to where John Keener stood. He was a hard hitter and a fearless fighter, yet he always faced the foe, and never struck an unmanly blow. If in the heat of discussion he wounded a brother's feelings, he had courage sufficient to instantly apologize, and religion enough to put it out of heart and out of mind. It ended then and there. As a friend, he was always found faithful, and though in body and mind rugged and stalwart as a mountain cedar, yet his heart was tender and true. His religious experience was clear and indisputable. He was not loud in profession, but he loyally lived the life of the Son of God among men. He dreaded seeming the thing that he was not. He would be real and not profess too much. This trait ran all through his life, and it was well. "A good man is holier, as a great man is greater, than he thinks himself to be." His development showed more of fruit than foliage. He grew as he well wrought the work God gave him to do. In all that work there was a moral weight, a spiritual force, and a clear definiteness of character that carried all before it. His life was not rooted in any mere earthly ambition, or self-centered effort to "make his way in the world," but it was rooted in the grace that "wrought the work of God" in his heart. As a preacher, Keener was always clear and forcing, strong, and yet persuading at times he was overpowered and saw into the heart of things Saved read out their meaning. minister as seals to his moving and oth gone up before him, will one ar in love here, and man, as a rtake him. As a as a preacher, as a college president, he was a growing man. It was his nature to grow, and he was always natural. His Conference delighted to honor him, and the General Conference heard him gladly, but his holy humility kept pace with his high honors. All of his accumulating influence was laid on God's altar. "To spend and be spent" for God was the ruling passion of his soul. He gave his means, his time, himself (all of himself), a trinue offering "holy and acceptable unto God." In Baltimore, last May, when he made that superb speech on the limitation of the term of presiding elders, many said that he ought to be even more highly honored than he had been, and he is. Heavenly honors are now his—high exaltation and eternal enthronement with "the saints in light." J. O. Keener fully possessed and ever exhibited,

"Honor to Love; Sincerity in Thought:
Delight in Virtue; Joy with Purity:
The fight of faith; the good fight firmly fought,
The purpose honest, and the standard high."

Dr. Keener's reverence and love for and admiration of his distinguished and honored father was a marked feature in his life. Sometimes it appeared to the thoughtless hearer that he was too prone to publicly praise that father; but it should never for a moment be forgotten that filial fondness was fixed in the son's heart in all the firmness and fullness that belonged to his whole-souled nature. He could do nothing by halves. Then, it has been the good fortune of but few sons to have had such a father to love and honor, and it has been granted to but few fathers to give to the church and to the world such a son.

Of Dr. Keener's home life let others, who have been privileged to enter the precincts of that happy home, and have witnessed his thoughtfulness and kindness and tenderness and love, speak. Early in December paralysis placed its stiffening hands upon him. The stroke was sudden. For some days he lingered, cheerful and contented to suffer God's will. Christmas, with its sweet song and story, came. We heard he was better, and how happy were the hopes that were born with the glad tidings! But soon in saddest sorrow we had to push those hopes out of our hearts. The sombre shadows surely settle. The frosty fringe of the cold cloud close hung around his couch. Death's dart struck home, and dire dismay filled full many a loving heart. On the thirty-first of December, 1898, John Orman Keener, with the Winter's winds whispering his requiem, went out with the "old year." Hear him! "What is that light I see?" Blessed brother, it's the day-dawn of the "new year" on the hill-tops of glory. We are in the darkness, thou art in the light. Good-night, my friend. God give us a glad good morning "some sweet day."

TRIBUTE OF THE SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY FACULTY TO PRESIDENT J. O. KEENER.

John Orman Keener, A. M., D. D., president of the Southern University, died Dec. 31, 1898.

We, the faculty, his co-workers, deem it highly proper that we give some expression, though feeble it may be, of the deep sense of loss that we feel and that this institution sustains in the untimely death of our honored president. Although we can not understand the strange providence which has called him from his great work among us, yet by faith we acknowledge the wisdom and love of our Father in a dispensation which, from every human standpoint, seems so fatal to the great interests which he represented.

We would place upon permanent record the ineatimable service which he has rendered this institution in extending and making more thorough its course of study, in strengthening and enforcing its discipline, in systematizing and establishing its financial status, in improving and beautifying the grounds and buildings, and in holding up in his life and practice the highest type of Christian manhood.

It is with feelings of inexpressible sorrow and bereavement that we record here our sad farewell. We shall miss his manly and heroic form, his genial face and cheery words, his wise counsel and strong guiding hand. His beautiful ideals, memorialized in shining and skillfully wrought timbers that meet our eyes everywhere, are but faint expressions of the still more beautiful and lasting work which he has wrought for time and eternity in the lives of those entrusted to him as the higher and nobler architects of human character.

We offer our sympathy to his sorrowing loved ones, and would soften their grief by reminding them of the all-pervading and ever-present influence of his precious life and memory, a heritage rich with blessings to all who would share the glories of his immortality.

FROM ST. LOUIS.

MR. EDITOR: When a man gets the grip, or the grip gets a grip on him, it does not easily let loose, but often continues for weeks to make him feel uncomfortable, weak, and good for nothing. It brings out, probably as clearly as any experience I ever had, the pertinence of the query, "Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" And who knows but the epidemic now raging here and elsewhere is an instrument used in the hand of Providence to teach men to be humble?

I take recess every week immediately on the arrival of the ADVOCATE, laying aside everything, and mentally transporting myself through its columns to the Southland, to meet old friends and visit familiar places. The two dearest spots on earth to me are in your territory. One is Jackson, La., where two of the happiest years of my life were spent; the other—well, never mind! I wonder if men ever forget their college days! I wonder how many in after life regret the boyish folly and pranks and fun, and then, upon reconsideration, conclude that there is enough of the serious and solemn and care-wearing when college days are over, and 'twere just as well they let overflow their surplus fun before the time when the penalty for it was greater than a reprimand or demerit!

If it should be my lot—my undesired lot—to be relieved of my harness by any other hand than that of death; if there be any days between my laboring and my going—days of waiting, of reminiscence and anticipation—I want those days to be spent in Dixie. From there I want to start on my last journey, for I think heaven must be nearer to Dixie than to other parts of earth, and the journey will be sooner ended.

I am glad to see the success with which Dr. Cooper is meeting at Centenary; but he ought to have even more. He ought to have every Methodist boy in Louisiana, and every other boy whose parents want to make a Christian gentleman and scholar of the highest type of him. Other colleges in Louisiana may be good. I don't know anything about them, but I know what Centenary is.

The reports of the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences were interesting reading to me. I thought I had arrangements perfected to migrate South last Fall, but Bishop Candler took matters into his own hands and sent me to Mt. Auburn Church, St. Louis. I have a most delightful charge in the western portion of the city, away from the smoke and mirch of the noise. Seventy-five per cent. of the membership are young people who are devoted to their church. The building is a very pretty brick, and, together with the large pipe organ and comfortable fixtures, is valued at $17,000. Plans for buying or building a six-room parsonage are on foot.

Our new Wagoner Place Church, which cost $25,000, was cleared of debt last month, and will be dedicated on the twenty-ninth by Bishop Candler. The dedicatory services were preceded by a week's preaching by some of the city pastors, and will be followed by protracted services.

Our church here in Southern Methodism's largest city is keeping pace, I think, with the rest of the church. We have started at least one new church each year for several years. There is now under consideration the establishment of an Institutional Church—in fact, our good ladies have already begun some departments of it.

Bro. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., who succeeded Bro. W. H. Lewis at Immanuel Church, is held in high esteem by his people, and is having a good year. Dr. Patillo, who succeeded our own Dr. Werlein at Lafayette Park Church, had two additions last week, which made me envy him. They were Bro. and Sister Sloan, from the Shreveport Church, who are now St. Louisans.

Our Preachers' Meeting last week was honored with the presence of Dr. John F. Goucher, of the Woman's College of Baltimore, who made us a splendid talk.

The two leading topics of conversation in the city now are the "Lexow" Committee from the State Senate, who are investigating charges of corruption in the city government, and the World's Fair to be held here in 1903, commemorating the Louisiana purchase. Of course, it's going to be the biggest thing of the kind ever held, and you will want to come. That will be my fourth year (maybe!) at Mt. Auburn, and you are cordially invited to make that new parsonage, of which I wrote, your headquarters. That makes a very good sentence with which to end, I think; so, wishing you and the ADVOCATE continued success, I am,

Sincerely yours,
HAMPTON R. SINGLETON.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28, 1899.

LET US GO FORWARD.

Dear Brethren of the North Mississippi Conference, Preachers and Laymen: Our church, through her General Conference, has called her members to a forward movement in the field of education. What Methodism has done in this field in the past century and a half makes a glorious record of self-sacrifice, persistence, and scholastic achievement. The spirit of devotion here marks a Christian heroism scarcely at all surpassed. The treasure thus gained is a precious heritage, which the church will use under the new arrangement of established organization. What has been done to put our educational forces into organized system is so eminently proper and needed that we may not halt now to parley with difficulties, discouragements, and oppositions. Forward to victory ought to be the voice of every member of the church. The plan adopted by the General Board under the new law, both in the system of correlated schools, and in the methods of establishing and operating them, will insure success if our people actively and heartily co-operate. A supreme opportunity has come to us in this great movement of the church, and lays upon us responsibilities which we can not escape.

The first practical step taken in the new movement is the raising of the Twentieth Century Fund—a million and a half dollars; one dollar for each Southern Methodist in the world; a thank-offering to God for his signal blessings of providence and grace to our church in the nineteenth century, laid on the altar of Christian education. Can we make a less contribution to this cause of our Lord, and go unblamed out of this century into the next, or out of this world into the eternal one?

A million and a half! What is that compared with the actual needs of our schools? Vanderbilt University alone needs for her legitimate work more than this whole sum. The colleges need larger equipment and endowment, not alone those in which young men are graduated, but also those for our young women. A million and a half is a small fraction of the need, and should be in hand for service by sunrise on the morning of Jan. 1, 1901. Let us not fail.

If Southern Methodism is to keep her place in ministering the gospel to a hungry world, she must bring out of all treasures the adequate supply. In addition to the necessity and the obligation resting upon us in behalf of this century fund, we may be stimulated in the great work by examples in other departments of Methodism. The Wesleyan branch in England, with less than half the members we have, will raise $5,000,000. Our Northern sister, with something over double our membership, will lay twenty million on the Lord's altar. Half of this will go to help the schools.

The Secretary of Education, Dr. J. D. Hammond, has sent out an excellent plan for putting every charge to systematic work in this great enterprise. Let us respond promptly with all energy and heartiness, abating nothing on any other claim. This is a thank-offering—the note with which we greet the twentieth century.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

MR. EDITOR: I have just read the note published in the ADVOCATE, of this week (Jan. 26), from Bro. W. S. Lagrone, and venture a word concerning the subject-matter of his inquiry.

1. Our Conference took no action in reference to the specific appropriation of its part of the Twentieth Century Fund. That will be done at the next or the following session, when the money comes in hand.

2. Meantime contributors may designate, I presume, under ¶ 412, Art. VIII., page 167, of the Discipline, to what school they wish their money to go.

3. Only it seems that this condition should rule in the distribution of money, to-wit: that the beneficiary school shall fall legitimately under the scheme of correlation and arrangement provided for in ¶ 416, page 170, Discipline.

Of course, this scheme includes schools for both sexes, and each Conference may have one school for each sex, or two or more Conferences can combine on one, or make the school co-educational.

The secretary, Dr. J. D. Hammond, has sent out blanks for lists of members in each pastoral charge, and therewith two leaflets giving explanations and directions. With these in hand we need not hesitate to enter with vigor and consistency on the great work before us.

The Conference Board, through its Executive Committee, is taking action to render to the preachers the best aid practicable.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The last General Conference having changed the order and added to the business of the Quarterly Conference, it is necessary for every pastoral charge to begin this Conference year with a new Quarterly Conference Record adapted to the Disciplinary changes. It costs only $1 postpaid, and is provided for a quadrennium. Pastors should attend to this at once. Those of Grenada district can be supplied by their presiding elder, who has a lot on hand. Others may order from their colporter.

It has been customary for some years past to hold in several of the districts annually a Preachers' Meeting. These meetings have been profitable, and should be continued; but they might hereafter be substituted by or combined with the Missionary Institute, which each presiding elder is duty bound to hold in his district. (See Discipline 1898, par. 356.)

The following is our aim in Sunday-school work for this year: 1. A Sunday-school in every congregation; 2. A qualified superintendent in every school; 3. A trained teacher in every class; 4. An adequate supply of literature and a circulating library in every school; 5. The Holy Ghost using all for the salvation of the pupils and the glory of God. For these ends let all labor and pray.

The Epworth League and Sunday-school at Columbus, and the Epworth League at Starkville, have each recently ordered through their colporter a good lot of books. Let others act accordingly.

Rev. J. S. Oakley, by reason of personal affliction, is unable to meet his appointments. We hope that this will be of short duration, and that he will soon be able to resume his district work.

Columbiana Church, Yalobusha charge, was accidentally burned recently. Rebuilding is already being planned.

This writer is sick in bed, but he hopes to be able to be up and out again ere long.

"TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND ROLL BOOKS."

A month ago Dr. Hammond and I sent roll books to the preachers of the North Mississippi Conference. To-day I have a card from a pastor saying the book sent him has not been received. Another has been forwarded to him. If "there are others," and they will drop me a postal card, the deficiency will be supplied at once.

J. R. BINGHAM, Sec.

Carrollton, Miss., Jan. 30, 1899.

The first true sign of spiritual life, prayer, is also the means of maintaining it. Man can as well live physically without breathing, as spiritually without praying. "Let me breathe," says a man gasping, "or else I die." "Let me pray," says the Christian, "else I die."—Guthrie.

MOMENT BY MOMENT.

Dying with Jesus, his death reckoned mine;
Living with Jesus, a new life divine;
Looking to Jesus till glory doth shine,
Moment by moment, O Lord, I am Thine.

Never a trial that he is not there,
Never a burden that he doth not bear,
Never a sorrow that he doth not share,
Moment by moment, I'm under his care.

Never a heartache, and never a groan;
Never a tear-drop, and never a moan,
Never a danger, but there on the throne,
Moment by moment, he thinks of his own.

Never a weakness that he doth not feel,
Never a sickness that he can not heal;
Moment by moment in woe or in weal,
Jesus, my Savior, abide with me still!

Correspondence.

AN URGENT APPEAL TO THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

For the following good reasons every preacher and loyal layman ought to work faithfully together to raise the entire assessment for foreign missions within the next six or eight weeks:

1. Our missionaries need their salaries to be paid in the beginning of the year more than the pastors, as they are among strangers and heathens, while the pastors are among friends.

2. Our missionaries' support for this year comes from the funds raised this year.

3. It will save thousands of dollars in interest on borrowed money to raise and send in our assessments early in the year.

4. Experience and observation show that those who always try faithfully in the beginning of the year invariably pay in full on this and all the assessments.

5. Experience and observation show that the people are as able and more ready to pay to these claims in the beginning of the year than any other time.

6. Procrastination is not only the thief of time, but also of opportunities and the missionary treasury.

7. It takes a good year's work to collect the Lord's money from some of his servants.

8. The secretaries of the Board of Missions are embarrassed more in the beginning of the year for lack of funds.

9. To give liberally and early is to give cheerfully, and our Master loves a cheerful giver.

10. God is pleased with righteous rivalry. Let every pastor, charge and district strive to excel.

I am anxious to make a first-class report the first quarter of the places and amounts reporting.

Selections.

THE IDEAL GOSPEL MINISTER.

BY REV. A. J. MERCHANT, D. D.

1. His bearing is dignified. Springing from dignity of soul, it is real, not assumed. Buffoonery and charlatanism he does not exhibit. The tricks of a mountebank are not compatible with his sacred calling. With gravity, not gloominess, his behavior is marked by a seriousness becoming his mission. With a happy mien, not lightness, his very countenance bespeaks a joyous soul. He rejoices with those who rejoice, and weeps with those who weep. At home, among the people, and in the pulpit, he bears himself as a messenger from heaven. He has true dignity of soul and true dignity of manner.

2. Another characteristic of the ideal gospel minister is naturalness. Affectation is carefully guarded against. Monotonousness, stiffness, formality, awkwardness, bashfulness, are not exhibited in his manner. The subject-matter of his discourse is clear in his mind, so that he expresses it without embarrassment. His own soul is stirred with emotions, inspired by his subject, and his audience catches the inspiration. He yields to no fear of criticism. Vastly higher motive power controls his soul. His self-possession is complete. Conscious of reserve force, he is ready for any emergency. Straightjacketed declamation is an abomination to him. His style is colloquial, fervent, elevated, vehement, as occasion demands and his own heart's experiences suggest. His gestures are not studied and mechanical. They are as spontaneous as the thoughts and emotions of his soul. Thought, voice, emotion and gesture flow on in one harmonious stream, carrying the truth to the minds and hearts of his hearers. A pure heart, a pure life, a pure mind, earnest study, much prayer, reliance upon divine help in preaching, a longing to save souls, are found in the basis of the ideal gospel minister's naturalness.

3. Earnestness is an element in the personality of the ideal gospel minister. The interests involved, eternal destinies at stake, souls to be lost forever, unless won to Christ, these realized by him, he is inspired with an earnestness alone peculiar to him. His warmth is an intense white heat. His love for souls is a consuming passion. Whether in the mild, pathetic tones of pitying persuasion, or in the clear expression of truth, or in the warning voice of danger near; whether at Sinai or at the cross, whether at the riven tomb or on the mount of ascension, whether at the resurrection morn or amid the scenes of the judgment day—all believe him to be in earnest, because he makes them feel that he is himself deeply moved. An intensely earnest preacher, he is surrounded by a people like himself. Success crowns his labors. The unsaved throng to his ministry; "the common people hear him gladly."

"He preaches as never sure to preach again,
And as a dying man to dying men."

4. The ideal gospel minister has crucified all timidity and disinclination to do the work of a pastor. He counts it an essential part of his work to "instruct the people from house to house." So fully is he consecrated to the work of saving souls that this part of his service is a joy and a delight. Nothing short of providential hindrance prevents his regular day-by-day pastoral labor. Neither inclement skies nor unpleasant walks interrupt his course. Whatever a business man would brave for business ends, he braves, and more, to be found faithful in his Master's business. He is a good pastor. He is not simply social among his people. "A hail fellow well met" he never is. But he is social, he is cordial, he is friendly. His pastoral calls do not pass in commonplace chit-chat. He is the religious guide and counselor of the people committed to his care. His speech, then, savors of heaven.

5. The children, "the lambs of the flock," receive special regard and care. He makes them feel that in him they have a true friend. He is able to call them by their names. At their homes, on the street, at the Sabbath-school, before and after the church service, he recognizes them. Thus he wins the way to their hearts. Having their hearts, he easily leads them. Both in the Sabbath-school and in the church services he "teaches them the way of eternal life."

6. He visits those who need his visits, and, first of all, those who need them most. Chief among these are the poor and unfortunate of his flock. These, so generally neglected by the rich and prosperous, are the objects of his tenderest solicitude. They know him to be sincere in all his attentions. By his wise counsels they are led to lives of frugality and religion. The insignia of wealth and fortune do not tempt his feet from the doors of the poor. He remembers that now, as in the days of his Master, the true token of the Messiahship and of the Messiah's ambassador is, "To the poor the gospel is preached."

"He is a faithful pastor to the poor;
He thinks not of himself: his Master's words,
'Feed, feed my sheep,' are ever at his heart.
The cross of Christ is aye before his eyes."

7. Another class needing his kindly care, and who receive from him evidence of his interest in their welfare, are the wanderers from the fold. These lie "near his heart." He rests not till he returns, bearing on his shoulders "the sheep which was lost."

8. The sick and bereaved find in him a sympathizing friend; one who brings to them the consolations which are in Christ Jesus. When their hearts are opened by affliction, he is ready to implant therein the seeds of divine truth.

9. The indifferent, the careless, the abandoned, those who seldom or never attend the services of the sanctuary, hear his knock at their doors. His pastorate embraces all the people. From among these he gathers many into the church who become useful members and ornaments to the cause of Christ.

HELP YOUR PASTOR.

A minister who is worthy of the name can stand an empty purse better than an empty pew or an empty prayer meeting. It is a disgrace to a church that failure to pay an honest salary would straiten a pastor's purse; but the spiritual emptiness affects his heart the most keenly. Perhaps your pastor is wondering what has become of you on the evenings of devotional meetings. The better man or woman you are, the more you are missed; the worse you are, the more you need to go. It may be that your pastor is disheartened by the emptiness of your pew on the Sabbath. He has carefully prepared a discourse for your benefit; you have lost it; both he and you suffer from that absence. For one, I am ready to confess that I have never made any converts to the truth in an empty pew, and never have delivered a sermon loud enough to awaken a parishioner who was dozing at home or had strolled off to some other church. If a good reason keeps you at home, try to send a substitute; invite some friend who seldom hears the gospel to go and occupy your seat; your minister gets a hearer, and that hearer may get what will save his soul. Church members sometimes complain that their minister does not "draw" a larger congregation; yet they do nothing to draw outsiders to the house of God by a cordial invitation to come. Help your pastor to fill the house.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

UNITED STATES MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

[It is a conceded fact that yellow fever existed last year in many localities where its presence was never officially declared. It would be wise, therefore, for every family in which any fever existed last year to follow the suggestions made in the following official notice, which was issued some time since.—EDITOR.]

First—The greatest danger of recurrence of disease lies in the houses, and especially in the bedding, clothing, bureaus, trunks, boxes, etc.

Second—Hence the utmost importance for people in whose houses fever of any kind has occurred to apply most rigorously, in spirit and in letter, the following recommendations:

Third—All bedding, upholstered furniture, and especially packed clothing, should be taken out of doors and spread in the sun and wind.

Fourth—This should be done in bright, clear, cold weather.

Fifth—A single airing is not generally sufficient.

Sixth—The house should at the same time be thrown open as far as possible.

Seventh—It is better to be without fires, but it is better to have fires and keep the house open than be without fires and shut up the house.

Eighth—When practicable, leave bedding, etc., out during cold nights, but this is not essential.

Ninth—Pay special attention to clothing, bedding, etc., packed away in trunks and boxes.

Tenth—The armoirs, bureaus, boxes, trunks, etc., should be opened, and contents spread out as above indicated.

Eleventh—This should all be done six or seven times, in succession, if possible.

Twelfth—The yards, alleys, etc., must be kept thoroughly clean and drained.

President Louisiana State Board of Health.

RULES FOR THE JOURNEY OF LIFE.

The following rules, from the papers of Dr. West, according to his memorandum, are thrown together as general waymarks in the journey of life.

Never to ridicule sacred things, or what others may esteem as much, however absurd they appear to be.

Never to show levity when people are engaged at worship.

Never to resent a supposed injury till I know the views and motives of the author of it. Not any occasion to relate it.

Always to take the part of an absent person, who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.

Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing from me in political and religious opinions.

Not to affect to be witty, or jest so as to wound the feelings of another.

To say as little as possible of myself and those who are near me.

To aim at cheerfulness without levity.

Never to court the favor of the rich by flattering either their vanities or their vices.

To speak with calmness and deliberation on all occasions, especially in circumstances which tend to irritate.

Frequently to review my conduct and note my feelings.—Christian Standard.

EXTENDED INFLUENCE.

Here is a true story, very encouraging to all who believe in spreading good books:

A Puritan minister named Sibbs wrote a booklet called "The Bruised Reed." A copy of this was given by a humble layman to a little boy at whose father's house he had been entertained over night. That boy was Richard Baxter, and the book was the means of his conversion. Baxter wrote his "Call to the Unconverted," and among the multitude led to Christ by it was Philip Doddridge. Doddridge wrote "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," and "the time would fail to tell" its blessed influence. By it Wilberforce was converted, and of his life and labors volumes could be written. Wilberforce wrote his "Practical View of Christianity," and this led not only Doctor Chalmers into the truth, but also Leigh Richmond to Christ. Richmond wrote "The Dairyman's Daughter," which has been published in a hundred languages, and many million copies have been sold.—Selected.

Life to him (Phillips Brooks) was one great unity. He did not separate the religious from the secular life. He did not sharply distinguish between religious duties and the duties of common life. The obedience called for in the university, or in the professions, the institutions and vocations of life, was a religious principle as much as prayer or worship. He knew only one distinction—between good and bad, right and wrong. Life was the good and the right; all that ministered to these was religious and sacred wherever it might be found, in art or literature, philosophy or science. Whatever increased vitality was of divine origin. It was not things in themselves that were worldly or injurious, but the spirit or temper with which the world and the things that are in the world were followed. Worldliness was simply the absence of the love of God. He who loved God possessed the world in its fullness, and his life became ever more rich and full. Thus, as far as it was in his power, Phillips Brooks was a man of the world, because he was first a man of God. He gave us, therefore, in himself the type of modern sainthood. It is consecration, not renunciation, which makes the highest character.—Alexander V. G. Allen, D. D.

The Christian Life.

TWO VIEWS.

What have you done to-day? I asked a rope-maker. "Oh, sir, ten hours of hard work, just twisting tow, my fingers sore, my lungs choked with dust. I did not come to the prayer meeting last night, I was too tired; I went to sleep when I was trying to say my prayers. I sometimes think if it were not for Mary, I would end it all—nothing but work, work, work. I am so tired, and I only make enough to keep body and soul together." This is one side. See the other. A ship with eleven hundred souls on board is being driven upon the shore—a land of crags, like giant teeth, stretching up sheer and sharp. One anchor after another is dropped, each checking the speed of the vessel's drift. The last anchor is down. Will it hold? Yes, the ship is saved! Go tell the rope-maker not to think of the toil and the dust and the monotony, but of the eleven hundred men and women saved. These things are written in the Lamb's Book of Life—the ring of every hammer, the click of every needle, the whir of every loom. They who truly wait upon the Lord shall hear his angels strengthening them as they strengthened Christ, with songs of peace and good-will to men.—Rev. Dr. W. Burnett Wright.

Men who love right and righteousness do not find it difficult to serve the Lord," although there may be many obstacles and difficulties in the path that they travel.—Exchange.

"This one thing I do," said the most marvelous Man of history. He had a mark. He aimed at it. He hit it. Nothing could move him from his purpose. But this oneness of purpose came from his entire and personal consecration to the cause which filled and thrilled his whole being. Mr. Moody reiterates the idea when he says: "The first thing a man must do if he desires to be used in the Lord's work is to make an unconditional surrender of himself to God. He must consecrate and then concentrate. A man who does not put his whole life into one channel does not count for much, and the man who only goes into work with half a heart does not amount to much. We are living in an intense age, and if a man is to succeed, he must set himself apart for the work and throw all his energy into it."—Religious Telescope.

You often see beautiful fruit displayed behind a plate-glass window or in some shop, and the hungry little boys look and long for it, but they can not reach it. If you were to tell one of them who has never seen glass to take some, he might attempt it; but he finds something invisible between him and that fruit. Just so many Christians can see that God's gifts are beautiful, but they can not take, because the self-life comes in between, even though they can not see it. What glorious blessings we should have if we were only willing to give up the self-life and take what God has prepared for us—not only righteousness, not only peace, but the joy of the Holy Ghost.—Rev. Andrew Murray.

Some would have us think that fewer eyes are looking upward in reverent gratitude than in other days. But, however this may be, I feel sure that more eyes are looking around in loving desire to help the needy than at any previous epoch. And the happiest thought of all is that these eyes are young, observant and unwearied. To endeavor along Christian lines to increase the sum of human happiness seems to me to be not only the greatest, but the most evangelical, thing in the world. To begin to do is an end of controversy. The severed body of Christ comes back to unity the moment it ceases to preach and begins to practice.—Frances E. Willard.

It may be that God need to give you plentiful chance to work for him. Your days went singing by, each winged with some enthusiastic duty for the Master whom you loved. . . . You can be idle for him, if so he wills, with the same joy with which you once labored for him. The sick-bed or the prison is as welcome as the harvest-field or the battle-field, when once your soul has come to value as the end of life the privilege of seeking and finding him.—Phillips Brooks.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. M. L. White, Carthage, Miss., Jan. 24, 1899: "I was appointed to Carthage circuit at the last Conference, held at Hattiesburg. We left the parsonage at Decatur on Jan. 11 to go a distance of 38 miles. We got within 5 miles of Carthage by two o'clock on Jan. 12; stopped with Uncle John Langstone, a Primitive Baptist preacher, until the evening of Jan. 14, when wagons from Carthage came for us, Pearl river being so swollen that we could not cross; hence our delay. We arrived at the parsonage late Saturday evening. We found a number of the good men and women awaiting us at the parsonage. They gave us a royal welcome, and left many tokens of love and friendship. A preacher feels more like serving people who treat him as these have treated us. Preached here last Sunday to large congregations. Meeting was quite good and spiritual, a number of people committing themselves to more faithfulness. We are expecting many good things of the Lord this year."

Rev. R. T. Nolen, P. C., Cumberland, Miss.: "At the last session of the North Mississippi Conference, I was assigned to Cumberland circuit, Durant district. I arrived here at Cumberland, Dec. 23, and my family Jan. 3. Several of the good brethren in and near Cumberland met us at Mabeu Station with conveyances, and brought us up to Cumberland, where a good dinner was awaiting our arrival. Two of the brethren assisted us in setting up our stove and bedsteads, and that night a good, warm supper was sent in to us, and we have been receiving tokens of our appreciation ever since; and the night of the twenty-third instant we gladly received a pounding of canned goods, sugar, coffee, soda, starch, soap, shoes, and other valuables, that we appreciate very much. We are praying and trusting in God for great blessings. Up to the twenty-fourth we have made 62 pastoral visits and traveled 187 miles. We are building a new church at Cumberland that Bro. Cogdell began last Summer. We expect to have it ready by the time of our second Quarterly Conference. We invite you to be with us."

Rev. J. M. Huggin, Big Creek, Miss., Jan. 24, 1899: "I wish to acknowledge through the ADVOCATE the obligations I am under to friends for liberal assistance rendered me and my family in our recent misfortune. We are indebted to the following brethren for contributions in cash: Rowan Thayer, Esq., Greenwood; Rev. — Lallance, San Marcial, New Mexico; J. P. Featherstun, Senatobia; Rev. J. C. Mimms, Shelby; J. R. Bingham, Carrollton; C. P. Huggin, Gaffney, S. C.; and one brother who does not wish his name published in this connection. The following charges have sent me financial contributions through pastors or others: Carrollton, Minter City, Corinth, Senatobia, Black Hawk, Wall Hill, Arkabutla. Boxes of clothing, etc., have been sent, one from each of the following places: Slate Springs, Gunnison, Greenwood, Senatobia, Sardis, Black Hawk. May our Lord's richest blessings rest upon the brethren and friends who have been so very kind to us! I would say to the readers of the ADVOCATE that we are comfortable again; so others need not send us contributions. If I have omitted any place or friend in this communication, will the brethren please notify me? I lost some of the letters, and write from memory."

Rev. J. W. McGee, Rolleville, Miss., Jan. 19, 1899: "I want you to send me several copies of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. I am going to do all I can for you this year in getting subscribers. I must confess I did very little along that line last year, but we have all got to learn. I returned from Conference, and found a great many of the 'saints' glad to see me, and they gave me a hearty welcome. There was a goodly number of the worldlings that received me heartily also. Bro. Jack and Sister Sallie Harbin, of Sandy Bayou, gave us a good pounding of fresh meats, such as ham sausage, spare-ribs, back-bones, butter, eggs, etc. Sister Terrel brought us most delicious fruits. Then comes Bro. Roe Hanna, of Lehrton, with a load of corn and a nice, fat hog. Bro. B. F. Watts, of Lehrton, has just brought us a load of corn. So you see the dear people do not intend that we shall starve. The weather is so very inclement, and the roads so muddy, that our congregations are very small. Our beloved presiding elder, Bro. Dorman, has enlarged our work. We will, by the grace of God, shell the woods at Morehead on the second Sunday of each month, beginning with February. The Rev. D. M. Miller, who withdrew from our church last Summer, and is not a member of any church at this time, leaves in a few days with his family for the Woodland School, east of Winona. He goes there for the benefit of the school. He has a large family of children. We welcome Bro. W. F. Wilson back to our midst. He is a loyal Methodist, and we are sure it won't be long ere he will have the Sunday-school in fine shape. Doctor, we expect to do a great work here this year. We want your prayers and, if possible, your presence also at some time during the year. Doctor, I turned over a new leaf this year. I am going to pray more, work harder, and not lend my horse to anybody except to presiding elders, Rev. Editors, and Bishops. Bro. Jno. B. Whitten, who lives on Quiver, had the misfortune to lose his only son, Fred, last week by drowning. It was a sad blow to the family. We will miss him so much. He was a good boy, and we had the pleasure of taking him into the church a few Sundays ago, Uncle Summer during our meeting. May God's comforting angel to spread his wings over that sad home. May the bereaved ones so live that they may meet their loved one in the beautiful city of God! God bless you, Doctor, in your noble work."

A Minister's Son

Face was a Mass of Sores—Advice of an Old Physician Followed with Perfect Success.

"Our eldest child had scrofula trouble ever since he was two years old and the doctors pronounced it very serious. His face became a mass of sores. I was finally advised by an old physician to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and we did so. The child is now strong and healthy and his skin is clear and smooth." REV. R. A. GAMP, Valley, Iowa. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Insist upon Hood's; take no substitute.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla. 25c.

Rev. John W. Ramsey, Pontotoc, Miss., Jan. 23, 1899: "During the Summer of 1897, while engaged in revival work, my voice gave way, and I have since been hindered in my work by a serious throat trouble—relaxation of the vocal cords. I was not able to hold my own meetings the past Summer, and so am under obligations to several brethren who so kindly came to my aid. I was also prevented, by sickness in my family, of attending the last session of Conference. Wife was, at the time, down with the typhoid fever, from which she suffered for eight weeks, and is only just now getting strong again. The Lord has been with us through all our trials. By the appointment of the Bishop, I have been returned to this charge, and, all things considered, we trust we have started off well, and are hopeful of the future. My first Quarterly Conference is just over. Our faithful young presiding elder, full of love for men, zealous and earnest in all his labors for the kingdom of the great Head of the church, was on hand. He made a lasting impression on the hearts of all who heard him preach. The influence of his Christian spirit found its way also into the homes of our people. May God bless him wherever he goes! This charge has begun well in support of the pastor, paying more the first quarter of this year than the first quarter of last year. Pray for us, that God may bless us abundantly."

Mrs. D. P. Bradford, Meridian, Miss., Jan. 21, 1899: "On Wednesday, the eleventh instant, after bidding adieu to our Newton friends, we left on the noon train for our new work, 'East End,' Meridian. On our arrival we were met at the train by three of the brethren, one of whom accompanied us to the parsonage, which is, by the way, one of the nicest, prettiest, and most comfortable in this part of the Conference, and reflects credit on our church. Here we found quite a number of good ladies, who gave us such a cordial Christian welcome as to make us feel that we were in the midst of an appreciative people, and that the lines had fallen to us in pleasant places. After a short time pleasantly spent, they retired, giving us full possession; not, however, before delicately suggesting that we would find dinner on the table, which we did—a delightful one, and in such abundance as to lessen the labor of cooking for several meals. Our first Sabbath was bright and pleasant; congregation large and attentive. After preaching, Mr. Bradford made a proposition to those who would promise hearty co-operation in the 'Master's work.' The response was enough to inspire any preacher. The evening service was conducted by our presiding elder, Dr. Andrews, who preached a fine sermon, after which an opportunity was extended to those who desired the prayers of the church, and a goodly number came forward. Our Board of Stewards are godly men, who propose to do their work as the Discipline directs. We are expecting a good year."

Rev. H. W. Newman, P. C., Mooringsport, La., Jan. 23, 1899: "Five weeks ago to-day Bishop Morrison read this scribe out for Mooringsport circuit. We arrived here Dec. 28 in due and ancient form. We found a nice, comfortable parsonage, furnished from the front room to the kitchen. The larder contained provisions for several days. (Thanks to my worthy predecessor and wife.) We have not received my pennddings, but there have been eatables sent in that would bespeak an hospitable people. This is my eighth appointment from the hands of our Bishops. For seven years I have labored in the East Texas Conference. It was there I began my ministry, and it has been seven happy and profitable years. There are many ties of friendship that we had formed among the brethren in the Conference and the people we were sent to serve. During the recent session of the Conference at Mansfield at first we felt a little lonely, but soon the warm handshake and hearty welcome from many that we became acquainted with made us feel that we were among friends—yea, brethren. We are glad to be with you, we hope that our acquaintance may ripen into warm and lasting friendship. I am assured that I shall be well pleased and greatly benefited by my association among the brethren of the Louisiana Conference. Mooringsport circuit consists of four appointments, viz.: Mooringsport, Zion, Blanchard, Myrtis, and Mt. Pleasant. The first three are on the K. C., M. & O. R.; the fourth is in the country. We have made one round, and have only preached to two congregations. The weather being cold, and there being no stoves in the churches, it was inexpedient to hold service. There are about one hundred members in the charge, mostly females. We have only learned of two male members that will pray when called on. There are no Sunday-schools, no prayer meetings, and, as far as I have been able to learn, no family altars. In fact, the signs of disintegration are evident on every side. Some may say, Has not the circuit built a nice parsonage? We have a nice parsonage; but if I have been correctly informed, neither preacher nor the circuit are due much credit. The material and means for the parsonage were contributed from outside sources, through the influence of one of our official members. This is a source of disappointment to this scribe, inasmuch as we had looked upon the building of the parsonage as evidence of interest in general advancement of the church. There has been but one protracted meeting on the circuit since 1896. This was due to circumstances over which the pastors had no control. We are praying for a mighty awakening and rising among the 'bones of the house of Israel.' We are endeavoring to profit by the sermon Bishop Morrison preached at Mansfield. We are already awake to our need, and we desire to become so earnest that our bones will seem to be on fire for the salvation of our people. We shall work to increase the circulation of the ADVOCATE. May the blessings of God be upon all departments of the church, and may all the institutions partake of the wave of prosperity that is rolling over our land!

TRIP TO RALEIGH.

Having been appointed by Bishop Galloway to Raleigh circuit for the present Conference year, I hastened back to my former place of abode—Philadelphia, Miss.—adjusted my affairs, and on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 10, I started in my buggy to Raleigh—a distance of about 70 miles. But owing to quite a hard rain the night before, I had not gone two miles before I encountered a swollen stream, so overflowing its banks that the water run into my buggy box. And some six or seven miles farther I came to another creek, which would have been frightful had I not crossed it previously and became acquainted with it. For three or four hundred yards the road was covered with water. I drove, with valises on the buggy seat, to prevent submersion in case of plunging into a wash-out, though, fortunately for me, I found none.

Night found me near Union, Newton county, stopping over with Bro. Hagan, whose house is always open for the Lord's prophets, and whose most estimable wife knows just how to make a preacher comfortable.

Wednesday morning I traveled onward to Decatur, where nine years ago I assisted Bro. J. S. Parker in a protracted meeting in their splendid new church. This was at the time when "come-outism" was most flourishing in these parts. Several of these "come-outers," so-called, on hearing a sermon preached during our protracted meeting, said, "If Methodism teaches sanctification that way, it is good enough for us," and quite a number united with our church. Some of these, however, did not "come out," but were "cast out" of the Missionary Baptist Church at Decatur for professing holiness.

At even-tide I reached Newton, and lodged with Bro. Bleakley, a farmer—one of Newton's best citizens and a Methodist, who, together with his lady "of affairs," cheery girls, and manly boys, made it in more ways than one "good to be there." For they not only refreshed the inner man, but talked and laughed away the ghost of fatigue; but that which I most enjoyed was their willingness to talk of heavenly things, and to note their hungering for perfect holiness of heart.

On Thursday I had gone only a few miles when I encountered what is known as the "prairie mud." Persons not acquainted with it can have but a faint conception of what it is. Through this streak the roads are exceeding bad. From two to two and one half miles per hour is about all a team can make as these roads now are. But, thanks be to our Father above, I came through without breaking harness or buggy, or any bones of mine or those of my horse. Getting through the worst of it, nightfall found me at the gate of Bro. Samuel Weems, the father of Dr. J. M. Weems, of our Conference; Hon. Wm. Weems, ex-member of the Legislature of Mississippi, and Bro. Robt. Weems, whose habitation, together with that of his nice family, is that of the "old folks," taking care of them in their advanced age who are indeed "a father and mother in Israel." The father eighty-five and the mother seventy-five years old, both of whom were regenerated at ten years of age.

It pleased the Lord during the month of September last to give to our elder brother "an experience" in the fullness of his grace never before received and felt by him. He had been taken with a hard chill which lasted three hours or more. The family deeming his case more or less dangerous, hastened for a physician, which caused him to suspect his case to be more serious than he had thought, and the thought came to him, "What if I should die; am I ready?" Then he prayed, "Lord, thy will be done." Then such a halo of heavenly nature flooded his soul, and such divine power accompanied it, that he likens it to a flash of lightning, and the impression as if some one had laid their hands upon him. And for three days and nights his soul was so filled with this heavenly light that he often shouted aloud God's praise, and ever since his heart has been "fixed;" for before he often "vacillated" in his mind, so he says, but not now, glory be to His Name! May our later days be like his!

Friday morning I found myself loath to leave so pleasant surroundings; the "boys" to discuss interests of both Church and State, and the old people to entertain and sometimes startle me with their recollections of the past in the first settling up of this part of the State. Among the many things of note was the finding by them of skeletons of almost incredible length and size in this streak of prairie—one of which was the spinal column of some enormous fish, supposed to have been a whale, measuring approximately 65 feet in length, and each joint of which is 12 or 14 inches in length and 8 or 10 inches in diameter. One joint is now used as a block under one corner of his house. Like bones are found at various places in this streak of prairie.

Taking my leave, I sped onward toward my destination at the rate of two miles an hour, and noon found me pleasantly seated by a good fire at Bro. McKinzie's, whose excellent wife is the daughter of our patriarch Weems, just mentioned. Bro. McKinzie, I am told, has amassed quite a little fortune as a farmer and money-lender, which shows what can be done with mother earth, especially in this land of whales. After dinner, having reached the boundary of this portion of mother earth which sticketh closer than a brother, I increased my speed a little, and the setting sun found me hailing at the home of Bro. F. A. E. Corley, one of my stewards, who in past years filled offices of trust and responsibility in this (Smith) county, but is now retired to private life and settled in as fine a forest of yellow pine as ever grew, and is converting it into lumber.

Saturday morning I began afresh my trip and reached Raleigh at high noon, and to my pleasant surprise found Bro. T. L. Mellen, P. E., holding divine service. While but few of the official members of the circuit were aware of the Quarterly Conference, yet we had fairly a good time. Bro. Mellen preached with zeal and unction; greatly to the delight and edification of all; the stewards reporting $17.30 for the support of the ministry. Though the people are grieved over Bro. Forman's removal, they have given me a cordial reception, and conferred upon me, in connection with our presiding elder, the honor of performing the rite of matrimony between Mr. J. E. Rodgers and Miss Nannie Ward, Sunday night, as the first official act of my pastorate. I think the way is open for me to do the greatest year's work of my ministerial life to date. May the Lord order it so!

J. N. TUCKER.

There are many who would die for Christ, but in these times he calls for men willing to live for him. What is needed to-day is a higher heroism, a nobler, more costly martyrdom—that of the living sacrifice, the sustained resolve, the renewed self-giving, the daily consecration.—Josiah Strong, D. D.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." That is the richest promise in the whole Bible. "The pure in heart." Such a condition is indeed difficult in a world of sin, but it is possible, and it means blessedness here and felicity in the world to come.

"On Guard."

When disease shoots the first arrow the truly wise man will come instantly on guard. He will not wait for the attack. He will not hesitate until the full force of disease and misery and death comes crashing about him.

When a man begins to feel "out of sorts," when his appetite is failing and his energy is not up to the mark, when he has bilious attacks and a feeling of lassitude and incapacity, if he is wise, he will take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery right away. It will bring his appetite back again, and what is more it will bring back his digestive powers. It will give all the assimilative functions the edge and power to extract abundant nourishment from the food he eats. It will make good, pure, healthy blood and send it coursing rapidly through his veins and arteries into every organ and tissue of the body. It will put flesh on his bones and force in his muscles; it will give him strength and courage and cheerfulness, in a word it will give him complete health.

It excretes from the system every particle of dead, useless, flabby tissue. It even reduces the weight of the corpulent man at the same time that it builds up his strength and working power. The weight it adds to people who need it is the kind that comes of pure blood and every organ doing its work properly and thoroughly;—what pugilists call "fighting weight."

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures, showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to March, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

"The mills of God grind slowly,
But they grind exceeding small
Though with patience he stands waiting,
With exactness grinds he all."

To believe in the heroic makes heroes.—Disraeli.

A golden character is of more value in God's sight than a mine of gold.—Exchange.

The youth who does not look up, will look down; and the spirit that does not soar, is destined, perhaps, to grovel.—Selected.

Men grumble because God puts thorns on roses. Wouldn't it be better to thank God that he puts roses on thorns?—Exchange.

As for our opportunities, we can make a heroic life out of whatever is set before us to work with or upon.—Anna Robertson Brown.

Do not dare to live without some clear intention toward which your living shall be bent. Mean to be something with all your might.—Phillips Brooks.

Time is like a ship which never anchors; while I am on board, I had better do those things that may profit me at my landing, than practice such as shall cause my commitment when I come ashore.—Feltham.

The requests we make of God interpret our character. They show us as we are. God reads our character in our prayers. What we love best, what we covet most, that gives the key to our hearts.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

We make unlovely all our every days by the little soul we put into our efforts, by the way in which duties push us forward, by lack of that electric something which makes all word, all deed, quiver and glow.—J. F. W. Ware.

It is a perilous thing to separate feeling from action, to have learned to feel rightly without acting rightly. Feeling is given to lead to action. If feeling be suffered to awake without passing into duty, the character becomes untrue.—F. W. Robertson.

Why on earth do people think it fine to be idle and useless? Fancy a drone superciliously desiring a working-bee to stand aside, and saying: "Out of the way, you miserable drudge; I never made a drop of honey in all my life."—A. K. H. Boyd.

The grand difficulty is to feel the reality of both worlds, so as to give each its due place in our thoughts and feelings, to keep our mind's eye and our heart's eye ever fixed on the land of promise, without looking away from the road we are to travel toward it.—Augustus Hare.

Duties never conflict. God has but one duty at a time for any child of his to perform. If we are doing the one duty God has for us to do at the present moment, we are doing just right. If we are not doing that one duty, we are at fault, no matter how good or how important the work we are doing. And we need have no question as to what is our duty in God's plan for us.—Selected.

CONTENTMENT.

Ceaseless and anxious longing for what we have not, and probably never can have, is one of the most frequent and prolific sources of unhappiness. Most of us are prone to imagine that what we have not is far better than what is already in our possession; and this notion, long entertained, kindles the fires of discontent. Many are unhappy because they can not live as stylishly and luxuriously as some of their neighbors. Others are wretched through envy of the honors that fall to the lot of a few. All such anxieties are a veritable "thorn in the flesh." "Man never is but always to be blest," sings the poet, and his words apply not only to the poor and the afflicted, but oftentimes to those most favored of fortune.

In almost every community there are chronic grumblers, in whose eyes there is always something wrong with the weather, with their neighbors, with the church, with their food, their business, their physical condition, or their environments. Those who wait to enjoy the blessedness of contentment until they have realized that which they have set their hearts upon will never know its wondrous peace. One man fancies he will be satisfied when he gets into a good business and has a thousand dollars in bank; but if he reaches that point, he is sure to want five or ten thousand more, and so he is still discontented. The man who is bent on gaining a hundred thousand dollars, if successful, is almost certain to long restlessly for still greater possessions, and happiness is still as far off as before. The millionaire is not satisfied until he becomes a multi-millionaire, but again contentment eludes his grasp. And so it goes in all the various walks of life. On every hand men are seeking happiness in mere material things—in wealth, in costly apparel, in sumptuous fare, in shows and entertainments; but, despite all this, satisfaction of soul comes not.

It is hard indeed for men to realize that it is not what they have, but what they are, that makes them happy or miserable. If you were to bestow upon some men every temporal blessing, they would still be unhappy, while there are others who, because of their faith in God, and mastery of self, enjoy the sweetness of contentment amid great poverty and misfortune. Well do the Scriptures say: "Better is a little with the fear of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith." Ahab, though king over Israel, and the controller of rich revenues, on one occasion fell into the deepest discontent because Naboth refused to sell him his vineyard, and ere long a monstrous crime was the result of his covetousness. Thus how little it takes ofttimes for discontent to feed upon. Dr. Talmage draws a true picture when he says, "Many of those who fare sumptuously every day are waspish, dissatisfied, and foreboding, while many a time in the Summer evening you see a laboring man going home in his shirt-sleeves, with a pail on his arm and a pick-axe over his shoulder, his face bright with smiles, and his heart with hope, and the night of his toil bright with flaming aurora."

Perhaps the most frequent source of discontent is the desire for wealth, which in this country seems to have become an overmastering passion with the vast majority. Multitudes act as if money were the only thing worth striving for. Health, character, self-improvement, and the gift of eternal life—all are sacrificed in the mad rush for wealth. And yet gold is impotent to procure the things upon which happiness most depends; it can not buy character, or love, or true friends, or peace of mind, or the hope of heaven. These can not be measured by monetary standards. How sad it is that so many of those who sacrifice the noble things we have mentioned in the pursuit of wealth fail utterly to gain their heart's desire, and are left penniless, hopeless, and utterly miserable.

The spirit of contentment is not incompatible with earnest striving for fortune and for success in any laudable pursuit. In fact, it is a help thereto, because it involves making the best of things, the banishment of useless anxiety, and the maintenance of self-control. The truly contented man is not unduly disturbed by any of his needs or misfortunes, but calmly pursues his way amid what ever comes, realizing that the Lord is his shepherd, and that what he chooses for us is best. There is profound significance in the saying that "we are to be content with what we have, but not with what we are." If to be content means to be satisfied with what is improvable in our condition or surroundings, if it means complacency as regards our mental and spiritual state, then it is an undesirable and dangerous thing. Contentment, however, does not signify either laziness, or fatalism.

"There is a jewel which no Indian mine can buy,
No cheole art can counterfeit;
It makes men rich in greatest poverty,
Makes water wine, turns wooden cups to gold,
The homely whistle to sweet music strain;
Seldom it comes, to few from heaven sent,
That much in little—all in naught—content."

JUDGE FOOTE DEAD.

Judge H. W. Foote died at his home in Macon, Miss., on Jan. 29, in the eighty-ninth year of his age. He was one of the most prominent and influential citizens of his section of the State. He held at different times many important offices. During the war he was colonel of the First Mississippi Regiment of Cavalry in the Confederate Army. He was on the bench for several years. As an attorney, he had a large and lucrative practice, by means of which he accumulated a considerable fortune. He had been a thoroughly consistent and devoted Methodist since his early manhood. He was superintendent of our Sunday-school in Macon continuously for fifty-six years—a record without a parallel within the range of our observation. After the introduction of lay delegation into our economy he was regularly chosen as a delegate to the various councils of the church until disabled by the infirmities of age. He was a man of most admirable character, and was universally respected wherever he was known. The memory of his life of spotless integrity and devotion to duty is a heritage of priceless value to his family.

HELP NOW.

MR EDITOR: The following is a letter from Bishop Morrison to me:

Rev. B. T. Crews, Arcadia, La.—

DEAR BROTHER: You have received or will receive a communication from the Missionary Secretaries at Nashville, asking for immediate collections and remittance to the Conference Treasurer.

I take the liberty of asking you personally to see that your preachers take this collection at once, if possible. It is imperative that this be done. I wish all the Conferences which I serve to respond promptly, and I trust that your district may be among the first to answer this earnest call.

Most cordially, your brother,
H. C. MORRISON.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 20, 1899.

With the above request of our Bishop before you, and your knowledge of the needs of the Board of Missions, I need not exhort you to take your collections on your next round, knowing you to be true, loyal and faithful to all the interests of the church. I feel sure you will do it, and I trust that there will not be a single exception in the district. To raise this collection now will reduce the amount to be collected in the Fall so much that we can hope to meet all assessments for this year in full. Will not all the official members and others that read this call help their pastors to raise the foreign missionary assessment, so it may reach the Conference treasurer, W. B. Thomson, New Orleans, in time for him to send it to the Treasurer of the General Board before the third day of March? Let the brethren call on me for any assistance I can render in raising this assessment.

Fraternally yours,
B. T. CREWS.

FROM THE MISSION ROOMS.

DEAR DR. HOSS: The following statement has just been handed us by our Treasurer, J. D. Hamilton:

Receipts from April 1, 1897, to Jan. 1, 1898	$191,733 90
Receipts from April 1, 1898, to Jan. 1, 1899	181,692 99
Deficit	$ 10,040 97

It is clear from the comparative view given above that we have to face a considerable falling off in our collections. Various causes have been given by our preachers; such as the demoralizing influence of the war, of yellow fever, and the very low price of cotton. These have all had their effect, and will largely explain the shortage; but the fact remains that we are in danger of a deficit.

We feel ourselves under obligation to give you this information in order that you may understand the exigencies of the situation now, and the difficulties under which we may labor at our annual meeting. In the meantime we will expect your hearty co-operation in the effort we shall put forth to reach our pastors in securing early collections and full returns before the end of our fiscal year, March 31. Above all, let us have your prayers.

Yours respectfully,
WALTER R. LAMBUTH,
J. H. PRITCHETT.

Jan. 10, 1899. —Nashville Advocate.

JIM W. FRANKLIN.

MR. EDITOR: We buried yesterday, at Ft. Jessup, La., Jim W. Franklin, a son of our brother, J. M. Franklin, of Bienville, La., formerly of Ft. Jessup. He was called from his work to his sick boy (having not yet moved his family), but before he reached home his boy had passed away. Let us pray for our dear brother and his bereaved family in this hour of grief. Jim was eighteen years old, and a boy of great promise.

J. S. SANDERS.

CHURCH DESTROYED.

MR. EDITOR: On last Friday our church at Columbiana, on the Valden circuit, was consumed by fire. A total loss; defective flue. We feel ourselves too poor to rebuild, but will make a strong effort. We have taken steps to this end.

Yours truly, J. F. EVANS.

Valden, Miss., Jan. 27, 1899.

NOTICE.

Rev. L. L. Roberts has been appointed preacher in charge at Pineville, Alexandria district, Louisiana Conference, in place of Rev. R. S. Colier, who could not serve the charge. J. A. PARKER, P. E.

Alexandria, La., Jan. 24, 1899.

DON'T.

The following, from the Nashville Advocate, fits our columns exactly. Let all our subscribers "read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest."

"Don't get impatient of our urgency for the early payment of all dues to this paper and the prepayment of subscriptions desired to be continued. We want to offend nobody. It is obviously to our interest to conciliate everybody. We have no desire to lose a single subscriber to the Advocate. We have a very strong desire for the addition of many names to its lists. But it takes money and much of it to pay the running expenses of the paper. It takes but a small sum from each individual subscriber to pay for his paper for the year. To send it to all on credit would be a policy against which all sane men would protest, and yet all have equal claim to such indulgence. What for it then, but for all to pay up, and prepay as often as their subscriptions expire. And may all current and renewed subscriptions be continued far into the next century, with large increase to their number as the years go by."

A "BABY EVANGELIST."

New York has been the scene recently of the efforts of a "baby evangelist" named "Lonnie" Dennis. The child is a mulatto, five and a half years old, and he is certainly precocious. His mind seems to be stored with Scripture texts, which he uses with wonderful power. He appears also to possess gifts of oratory, though not unlike such as are often seen in children of even younger age when at play or when imitating others. Since he left his home in Georgia, a few weeks ago, he has addressed more than two hundred thousand people. His foolish parents are proud of his notoriety, and are imperiling the health and intellectual future of the child by encouraging him to preach every night, thus subjecting him to the intense nervous strain which such efforts and the excitement of addressing large audiences necessarily causes. If his parents can not be induced to withdraw him from the platform, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children should take the case in hand and appeal to the courts.—Northwestern Advocate.

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the Revised Version of the Bible, though it will never displace the translation made by King James' scholars, is equal in value to the best commentary. In some passages it throws a perfect flood of light upon the meaning of the inspired writers.—Nashville Advocate.

BOLIVAR COUNTY DRY.

Bolivar county has just passed through one of the most earnest fights on the question of "saloon or no saloon" in her history. Every advantage possible was taken by the "saloon men." Election was ordered in the Winter season, when roads were impassable; placed in thirty days after petition was filed, and two of the three commissioners were aggressive "wet" men. Yet the county has gone dry to-day by a "handsome majority."

The preachers of the county—J. W. Dorman, P. E.; W. C. Harris, T. H. Dorsey, J. C. Mimms, L. A. McKeown, J. R. Countiss, J. H. Holder, and J. H. Deavenport—worked unstiringly and wisely, while many noble laymen "laid themselves out" for the homes of the county.

Now the county has had four elections in six years; shouldn't the Legislature extend the time to four or six years? J. C. PARK.

Rosedale, Miss., Jan. 28, 1899.

STATISTICS OF METHODISM FOR 1898.

The Independent prints in the issue of Jan. 5 its annual review of the churches, including the tables showing the present number of members.

The increase in the membership of the seventeen branches of Methodism is given at 162,196

A pleasing episode at the close of the memorial service of the Alabama Conference occurred. A strange young man arose in the back part of the church and asked the privilege of saying a few words with reference to Dr. A. S. Andrews. It was Lieutenant R. P. Hobson. He told us how much Dr. Andrews had helped him when a student in the university, and how he had thought of Dr. Andrews when on the sea, and even when performing the perilous task of sinking the "Merrimac." What a blessing to young men presidents of colleges and their professors may be!—Alabama Christian Advocate.

Edward W. Harden, who went with Admiral Dewey's fleet to the Philippines, and remained there until a month or two ago, when he returned home to make some special reports to the government, will give in the February McClure's an account of Dewey and all his operations in Manila down to the present time. The article will be fully illustrated, mainly from photographs taken during and soon after the battle at Manila by J. T. McCutcheon, who was also with the fleet.

The business of the Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South, for the month of December, 1898, exceeded by $3,000 any former month of its history. Is there a Methodist south of Mason and Dixon's line who does not rejoice over the fact that Methodist literature, which is the best on this planet, is more in demand now than ever before?—Midland Methodist.

Bishop Bowman, of the M. E. Church, and Bishop Hendrix, of the M. E. Church, South, had charge of a union meeting in Grand Avenue Church, Kansas City, on Monday, Jan. 16, in which about a hundred ministers, of both Methodisms, and many laymen, were present, the gathering being called to cultivate fraternal relations.—St. Louis Advocate.

Dr. J. W. Lee and Dr. N. Lincoln (the latter of the Northern wing) will start a Methodist magazine in St. Louis. Men of culture, with money to burn, naturally like to burn it in the ideal way.—The Richmond Advocate.

Dr. Z. A. Parker, president of the North Alabama Conference College for Young Men, has been paralyzed, and the physicians say his case is hopeless.

The postoffice of Rev. H. S. Spraggins has been changed from Tibbee to Mayhew, Miss.

THE STANDARDS.

MR. EDITOR: The article in the ADVOCATE, of week before last, on the Standards, is worth to most Methodist preachers five times the price of the paper for one year. It has settled the question in my mind about the Standards of the M. E. Church, South. The question is not what ought to be our Standards; whether we believe that Wesley's notes and sermons, or anything else, should have been accepted as Standards by our church; but the question is, What has the church endorsed as Standards since our organization as a church? Why do not the brethren write on these things and exchange thoughts on such subjects in our Conference organ? This is what makes a live paper.

J. W. HONNOLL.

Holly Springs, Miss., Jan. 30, 1899.

We entirely agree with Bro. Honnoll in regard to the article of Dr. J. A. Parker. If there is an editor or other magnate about Nashville who thinks himself competent to refute Dr. Parker's position, the columns of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE are open to him.

The chief pang of most trials is not so much the actual suffering itself, as our own spirit of resistance to it.—Jean Nicolas Grou.

NOTES.

Dr. Morgan Calloway, of the faculty of Emory College, died a few days since.

Rev. G. P. White begins his second year at St. Francisville, La., with favorable prospects.

Rev. C. F. Emery, Edwards, Miss., writes: "The people here gave us a hearty reception, and the outlook is favorable for a good year's work."

The pastors and workers of the Mississippi Conference will do well to give attention to a notice in this issue from their Conference Secretary of Education.

Our church at Newton, Miss., was destroyed a few days since by fire. As usual with Methodist Churches there was no insurance. An effort will be made to rebuild soon.

Rev. W. M. Williams, Gallman, Miss., writes: "Our first Quarterly Conference at Bethesda, last Sunday, was very pleasant and profitable. We are much pleased with our new presiding elder, Dr. H. W. Featherstun."

Dr. S. A. Steel's famous lecture, "The Pioneers of Methodism," is published in full in the December issue of The Rambler, which can be had of the author at Nashville, Tenn. This note should have appeared several weeks since, but was inadvertently omitted.

Many thanks to the brethren who are pushing the claims of the ADVOCATE. It is chiefly through the instrumentality of our pastors and presiding elders that our circulation is to be increased. Yet laymen can render valuable assistance. Several laymen have already lent a helping hand.

Dr. J. M. Weems, in a letter enclosing money for subscriptions to the ADVOCATE, says: "We received a most cordial welcome to our new home and field of labor, and are hopeful of a good year. Come up and see us, and preach for us. There are not a few here who love to talk of your stay among them."

From a letter from Rev. R. O. Brown, of the North Mississippi Conference, we quote as follows: "I am well pleased with my new charge. Have had a hearty reception, a vigorous pounding, and a raise in the salary of nearly a hundred dollars; and at the first Quarterly Conference salaries were paid in full and overpaid."

From a private letter from Rev. T. B. Holloman, presiding elder of the Jackson district, we quote as follows: "The preachers are all at their posts and write hopefully of the work. I find them working for the ADVOCATE under your recent proposition, and have faith to believe that they will greatly increase the number of subscribers on the district." His reception from the family have had a most ple[illegible] ception from the good [illegible] Jackson.

JUNIUS HART, "Piano Emporium of the South," 1001 AND 1003 CANAL ST.

FROM REV. J. A. PARKER.

Have been about half 'round the district. Everything seems to move off encouragingly. So far the provision for the support of the preachers has been a little more liberal than appears in the last Minutes, though the salary of presiding elder has been cut down to about 12½ per cent. on preachers' allowances, instead of 15 per cent., as heretofore. I am making the first round hurriedly in order to get matters "under way," and receipts scarcely pay traveling expenses, because my want of strength forces me to travel by rail wherever I can. All the preachers are taking hold of their work earnestly. Dr. McVoy is especially active, though the senior among them all. He has received several members since Conference.

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Ministers' Relief Association of North Mississippi Conference—

The mortuary fee on the death of Bro. A. J. Jones, who was a member of the Association, is now due. As soon as I can get the "postoffice address" of the members, I will give personal notice. The constitution provides that each clerical member shall pay $5 within 60 days, and each lay member $1. A remittance will be acknowledged.

NOTICE.

To Mississippi Conference Brethren:

The New Century Education is a monthly published by the General Board of Education at Nashville. The first issue is now being mailed. I will have this paper sent during the educational campaign free of charge to all official members and workers whose names come into my possession. Let pastors send me the addresses of their committeemen, stewards, League officers, and others who will read. Send at once if you want their names included in the first list. HENRY G. HAWKINS.

NOTES FROM CORINTH.

I have been here 40 days. Have made 200 visits, and found 150 non-affiliating Methodists. Have a membership of 360. Dr. Sullivan's name is held in high esteem here. Our church-building is too small.

TOO EVIDENT DENTISTRY.

We make crowns and bridge work without the least show of gold when desired. This work is extremely natural in appearance, as all gold is hidden by porcelain matching the tooth in color, giving no hint of gold band or crown attachments. This feature is highly appreciated, particularly by dainty women who abhor TOO EVIDENT DENTISTRY. Good dentistry preserves and improves the expression, particularly of the mouth, makes eating a pleasure, and should—to insure the best results—be quite painless.

We guarantee to fill, treat, crown or extract teeth without pain.

Our offices are the most elegant and perfectly equipped in the South. Our operators are men of skill and integrity, who will be pleased to examine your teeth and advise without charge, even if you are not ready to have work done. Call and let us show you some of the devices owned and controlled by us that enable us to do the HIGHEST CLASS of work at prices usually asked for barely average dentistry.

Beautiful set of the best teeth made to restore or improve the expression and warranted to fit,

$10.00,

And your teeth extracted free, absolutely without pain.

Gold and Porcelain Crowns and Bridges (teeth without plates), either permanently adjusted or the removable kind

$3 AND $5 PER TOOTH.

Every case of feature restoration, etc., is considered confidential, and it is not necessary to meet anyone but the operator and lady attendant in either consulting or operating rooms.

FREE TO MILLIONS OF SUFFERERS.

THE NEW CURE FOR KIDNEY, BLADDER AND URIC ACID TROUBLES.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of Swamp-Root.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring scientific research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful powers in curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid diseases.

Kidney trouble is responsible for more sickness and sudden deaths than any other disease, and is so deceptive that thousands have it without knowing it.

Your kidneys filter your blood and keep it pure, that's what they are there for. You are well when your kidneys are well.

Thousands owe their health and even life to Swamp-Root and thousands more can be made well who to-day think themselves beyond help if they will take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

By special arrangement with the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and to prove for yourself the wonderful and prompt curative powers of this great discovery, every reader will be sent by mail, prepaid, a free sample bottle and with it a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured.

Please mention that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can get the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes at the drug stores or of medicine dealers. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the changes of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

SOCRATES died from a cup of poison administered by the hand of a friend. How many in this age have died by poisonous remedies given by friendly hands to combat diseases? It is quite a comfort to know that when giving DICKS' CHILLICIDE there is not a drop of poison in a bottle full of this beneficent remedy.

THE DRUM BEAT

of consumption is a hacking cough. It sounds a melancholy dirge in the march to the coffin. How many swell the ranks of this gloomy procession who could have been saved by a timely resort to the King of cures, Marsden's Balm.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

We ask the Leaguers in Louisiana and Mississippi, as we have asked them often before, to send in notes for this column.

We read some items of interest in the Era, of Jan. 19, from the Arcadia League, by Miss Gussie B. Tooke, the president.

We would be obliged to Miss Gussie if she would send in some League news occasionally to the editor of this department.

The resolutions passed at Meridian, calling for this department, set forth the fact that it was to be a medium of communication for the Leagues in Mississippi and Louisiana.

We happened to see a notice somewhere of a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Louisiana League Conference. We have been anxiously waiting to hear from them anent the meeting at Crowley.

Will the pastors kindly call attention to this department, set apart for the Leagues of Louisiana and Mississippi? Let each League appoint a correspondent, and we will make these columns interesting and helpful.

The League at Whitecastle, La., is composed as faithful a band of young people as we have found anywhere. Bro. H. L. Baker, the president, is a model young man, true to God, loyal to the church and a great help to the pastor.

It was our privilege recently to attend one of their Sunday evening meetings. It proved to be a genuine experience meeting. What an inspiration in a country where Rum and Romanism run riot to see young men and young women thus stand up for God and for the right.

Bro. C. C. Wier, the pastor of these young people, takes a great interest in them, and has done a work in this difficult field that perhaps few men could have accomplished.

The Mississippians are planning for big things at their coming Conference at West Point. Let not Louisiana be behind. Begin now to plan for Crowley.

BISHOP FITZGERALD "EXHORTS."

Your probation, Dr. DuBose, as our Epworth Editor is passed. Up to this date your success has been marked. Everybody has a good word for you. If you love such things, your face ought to be as bright as was the New Year's issue of the Epworth Era. If compliments counted, your subscription list would already have climbed to an altitude that would make you dizzy. But actual subscribers are worth more than mere good wishes; cash is better than mere compliment. Therefore, beloved Leaguers, while you do not withhold the kind words, let your action speak louder than your words. That is to say: Send in at once long lists of subscribers with the cash. The editor can not do your part and his, too. He is making a superb paper—give him a superb backing. The figure to be reached is 50,000. If all that ought to be in the League were in it, and all in it would work for it, the next New Year's issue would be a jubilee number. Why not? What say you all?

O. P. FITZGERALD.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

"GOOD TIME COMING."

There is a good time coming, boys,"
So runs the hopeful song
Such is the poetry of youth
When life and hope are strong;
But when these buoyant days are passed
And [illegible] are men,"
I hope were not so when I was young;
The best of times was then."

There is a good time coming, boys,
And many a one has passed,
For each has had his own good time,
And will have to the last.
Then do thy work while lingers youth,
With freshness on its brow,
But mindful of life's greatest truth,
The best of times is now.

—Author Unknown.

SUCCESS.

Success is not excelling or equaling some one else, but coming up to the level of your best. He who is faithful is also successful. The wife of an Englishman, who, in spite of his blindness, had become eminent as a musician, philanthropist, and mathematician, replying to some complimentary allusions to her husband, said: "He is not more clever than other men; but this he has done: he has made the most of his capacities and opportunities." In that reply she had given a full definition of true success.

This is beautifully illustrated in the allegory of the king's garden. On entering it one morning he found nearly every tree and plant murmuring enviously because it could not do something that some other plant or tree could do. The vine complained because it could not stand alone like the pine; and the pine, because it could not bear fruit like the vine. So it was with one and another, until at length the king saw a heartsease that, almost alone in the general unrest, looked up happy and contented in his face. "How is this?" said the delighted king; "you welcome me with a smile, while all about you are grumbling at their lot?" Heartsease replied: "When you planted me, O king, I knew you wanted a heartsease, and not a pine or a vine, and so I have determined to be the best little heartsease that ever I can."

Though the heartsease can do nothing to affect its growth, we, for whom the allegory was made, can do much for ourselves. "Self-made men" are apt to worship their creator, and to forget that God gives seed and soil, sun and shower, while man's part in self-development is only the cultivation. But others are too apt to forget that without self-culture a man will be only a weed. God takes us into partnership in the making of a man by enabling us to influence heredity, environment, and character. That American boy was not wholly wrong who, being asked, "Who made you?" replied, measuring a baby's size between his hands, "God made me so long, and I growed the rest." Growth depends partly on ourselves, and, therefore, the Bible commands us to "grow." Whether the boy of twelve shall grow to be strong and fair depends largely upon his habits of thought and action, what attitude he takes toward cigarettes and beer, what use he makes of study hours, and, most of all, of leisure hours.—Success.

DON'T TAKE OFFENSE.

Look here a moment, my friend, just listen to my words: Don't be so willing to be offended. I have noticed you are very sensitive and quick to suspect a fancied wrong. There are many reasons why you should not be thus.

One is: It makes you very unhappy. You know how much you brood over some fancied injury you received. You think about it when alone. You wake in the night and recall how somebody has ill-treated you. This ruffles your spirit, destroys your inward peace, nurtures in you unpleasant feelings and sometimes thoughts and schemes of retaliation and revenge. The effect of such a spirit is at last seen in the face, discerned in less kindly eyes, and even the voice loses its melody and sweetness. The connection between spirit and body is so close and vital that the interactions are sure and effective.

Then, again, this makes you less agreeable to others, and what you in an evil hour fancied become realities. Offenses and slights will be given because many will not be so anxious to please you. You know when we have a sore on foot, or hand, or arm, some one all the while jogges us and hurts us right on that sore spot. So exactly if we carry sore feelings, sore spirits and a sore heart into society, some careless one or cruel one will surely manage to hurt us—and sometimes I think on purpose.

Now, if that spirit injures you so much in respect to yourself, and unfits you for a social life, it must be very injurious to your Christian life; for that involves all other of life's relations, and takes more. You can not be a happy, trustful, amiable and congenial Christian when you are fermenting with a sense of injuries received. Hence your influence and power for good are very much weakened. Just read Paul's description of an opposite spirit that should govern a Christian soul: "Love suffereth long and is kind, envieth not, ... is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, ... beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." What a happy person he must be who is governed by such a spirit!—H. O. Rawlands, D. D., in Standard.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

ON THE FARM.

The country boy may sometimes long for the stirring scenes and exciting events of the city. He may think that destiny has been unkind to him and partial to his city cousins. He may rebel against the long hours of toil, the dreary and monotonous routine to which he is tied, and may cherish vague resolutions to strike out for himself and become a part of the metropolis—that great human hive which has captured his imagination. Let him stand in his lot with a brave heart and a contented spirit. He may be just where God wants him to be. The fresh air, the hard labor, the unconscious communion with nature, the freedom from certain very dangerous and seductive temptations, all these ought to work together for his good. If he remains at his post, doing his duty patiently and honestly, he may go to the city some day as a leader of men. But whether he does or not, he will in due time arrive at the comfortable knowledge that Providence was kind to him and not cruel when it was determined that he should grow up in the wide spaces of the country, a stranger to the wretchedness, the squalor, and the sin of city streets. A childhood spent in the country, where one learns how things grow, where he comes into close friendship with the domestic animals on the farm, and learns a thousand things not to be found in books or taught in schools, is fraught with precious privileges.—Central Advocate.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

Hygiene.

THE WATER CURE.

When your physician advises you to go to the Springs, he invariably tells you to begin by drinking a certain quantity of water per day, and to increase the quantity daily. When you begin to improve, you believe it is through some medicinal property of the water. Nine times out of ten you can effect the cure at home by drinking the same quantity of pure water a day. For two reasons hot water is preferable—boiling destroys any germs it may contain, and, being hot, it cleanses more effectively. It flushes the bowels and kidneys, and cleans out the entire system more thoroughly than purgative nostrums. It is better to drink before eating just as large a quantity as can be forced down.

It is singular that so few people realize the possibilities of hot water. The skin needs a liberal dose twice a day—on rising and just before retiring. It is impossible to keep the pores of the skin open without it, and the cold plunge or sponge bath following makes the skin firm and is a certain guarantee against a cold.

Hot water is cheaper to the pocket and constitution, and besides is of value in other cases. If you have insomnia, drink before retiring enough to cause the blood to flow from brain to the stomach, and the effect is as instant as an opiate, without the injurious results. When you have the sort of nervous headache that refuses to submit to bromides and the usual remedies, if you will put your feet in a hot mustard bath for fifteen minutes, drink a pint or more of hot water, and lie down, you will be surprised to find yourself falling asleep. Later, you will wake minus the headache. Any agent that carries the blood from the brain to the lower extremities relieves the pressure and induces sleep.

If you are contracting a cold, you can check its course by inhaling, for ten minutes or longer, steam from a vessel of boiling water. If you have dyspepsia, drink a large quantity of hot water before and after eating. It restores normal circulation in the stomach, and, with proper diet, it will unquestionably in time cure the most stubborn case. Some of these days weak humanity will admit that Nature works best with a corps of natural assistants, and that the only lasting results are to be derived therefrom.—A. E. Shaw.

OBITUARIES.

KADS—Col. JOSEPH D. KADS died at Carthage, Miss., Jan. 5 1899, aged eighty-one years nine months and twelve days. He was born near White Sulphur Springs, Va., and descended from one of the first families of that State. Some of his ancestry date back to the royalty of Scotland. He emigrated from his native State to Indiana. He came to Mississippi in 1843 and to Carthage in 1845, of which place he was an honored citizen for fifty-three years. He was admitted to the bar in Indiana, and when he came to Carthage he went into the practice of his profession, and proved himself to be a conscientious, high-minded Christian gentleman, and was an honor to his profession. He was several times elected to local offices, which he always filled with great credit. He was thrice married, and was a model, loving husband, and an affectionate father. He leaves his last wife, three children, a number of grandchildren, and a host of friends, to mourn his loss. He was converted at the age of ten years. He joined the M. E. Church when he was twenty-one years of age, and lived a useful, faithful, devoted member thereof until his death. The Methodist Church at Carthage has lost one of its strongest pillars, for he was always ready to contribute to the Lord's cause. His home was truly a home for preachers. He was my close friend, and I have many times received from him most valuable counsel. He was in every respect a model man. He was "temperate in all things." He was an enthusiastic, consistent Mason, and often represented his lodge in the Grand Lodge. He was a very charitable man, and being a man of means, he was ever helpful to the worthy poor. He died in peace. His mind was clear, and his children and grandchildren, for the most part, were gathered around his bedside; also his loving wife. He gave them some words of admonition, requested the reading of a chapter from the Bible and prayer, after which he peacefully "fell on sleep." IRVIN MILLER.
Walnut Grove, Miss.

PARKISON—GEORGE WASHINGTON PARKISON was born April 28, 1811, in Heygood county, Tenn. He was married to Miss Margaret E. Latta, Jan. 7, 1840. She died Sept. 5, 1845. He was married a second time Feb. 24 1853, to Miss Jane B. Porter. She died Aug. 5, 1893. The time of his conversion is not distinctly known, but he was a converted man and a consistent member of the M. E Church when twenty years of age. In January, 1844, he removed to Panola county, Miss., where he settled and lived on the same spot until he died. He had the implicit confidence of all who knew him. He was ever at the front in every religious movement. He struck the first lick toward building the first Methodist Church ever built in what is now known as Panola county, Miss., of logs, and gave the name of "Hermony." He lived to see this replaced by a handsome chapel. Built his tent with the first testers on Hermony Camp Ground in 1838, and regularly occupied it up to 1891. For thirty years he was a class leader of the old-time species. He was a successful leader in all the social meetings of the church; was able and effectual in prayer, and happy in his talks and exhortations. In 1872 his vision so completely failed him that he could no longer read his Bible in leading his brethren in their devotional services. This difficulty with the increasing infirmities of age gradually retired him from leadership in these services, but he did not cease to be in his place at church until within ten months of his decease, when an accident deprived him of the ability to walk. In his last intelligent conversation, a few days before his death, he spoke calmly of his approaching end. He died Dec. 18, 1898, in his eighty-eighth year. For sixty-eight years his daily life was a power for good among his people. J. D. NEWSOM.
Hogtown, Miss.

HINES—LILLIE DORA HINES (nee Sherrard) was born near Longstraw, La., Sept. 26, 1875, and died at her home near Vernon, La., Nov. 18, 1898. She was married to S. W. Hines, Dec. 15, 1895. She was baptized by Rev. J. M. Brown. Ministry. She was converted at Longstraw under the always at his post. S. Collier, in July, 1888. She was a quiet spirit. She was duty—at church, Sunday-school, and prayer meeting; was often called on to lead the singing in grove and prayer meeting. She would read and pray around the family altar. She died of peritonitis; was sick two weeks. She bore her sickness with Christian fortitude. She was in her right mind until one hour before dissolution. Her last words were that she was prepared to go; all that she regretted was leaving her loving husband and her two precious little ones. She requested us to take her children and raise them as we had raised her. She said she had thanked us many times for the religious training we had given her.

A few hours before she died Bro. W. A. Clarke, her pastor, called and prayed with her. Being asked if there was a favorite hymn she would like them to sing, she said, "I think 'I am thine, O Lord,' is pretty," and raising the tune herself, she sang it through in a clear, distinct voice.

Though her sufferings were great to the last, she passed away easy. She lived a Christian every day; always obedient to us, and kind to her brothers and sisters. She never gave us an hour's trouble in her life. She read the Bible every day, and prayed every night, from childhood till her death. Her last request was, "Have my dear little babe baptized." She sleeps in Jesus. HER MOTHER.

AUSTIN—Dr. R. P. AUSTIN was born in Mocksville, N. C., March 4, 1835, and died at his home in Harperville, Dec. 2 1898. The fifth of March, 1868, Dr. Austin was happily married to Miss Susan Diane. To them were born eight children. Five of them still live, with their mother, to mourn the loss sustained in the death of a kind father, a noble husband. Dr. Austin joined the M. E Church, South, in 1872. He was faithful to the hour of his death. I was for two years his pastor. I think he was as true, as faithful as any man I ever served.

Dr. Austin served his people as a statesman, and he was faithful to the trust committed to him. As a physician, he was eminently successful; as a neighbor, he was loved and esteemed by all, as a Mason, he held sacred his obligations; as a Christian, he was cheerful, happy, and hopeful. He said to this scribe a few days before his death, "I can not talk much, but I know that my Redeemer liveth." Looking at his wife and children a few hours before going to his reward, he said, "Glory! glory! glory!" This scribe and Rev. Geo. W. Liddledeaton conducted the funeral. He was buried with Masonic honors. His end was peace. "God bless his family."
W. M. SULLIVAN.

LEWIS—Died on the thirteenth of January, 1899 at Fannin, Miss., HANOLA TILLERY LEWIS, infant son of Rev. H. H Lewis.

The sweet little life only extended over thirty-seven days, yet of sufficient length was it to draw around it the sweetest and tenderest of earthly love.

Bro. and Sister Lewis have the deepest sympathy of many sorrowing friends on account of their sad bereavement. One more sweet bud has been plucked from the sorrows of earth to bloom in joy in heaven; one more sweet voice has been hushed on earth only to join the heavenly choirs in singing songs of Jesus and his love; one more earthly tie has been broken, but a new tie has been formed in heaven, and as the bereaved ones look through their tears toward the gates of the celestial city, they can realize that there is one more amid the hosts of earth's redeemed who is watching and waiting for loved ones to come home.

May the loss of this little one be sanctified to the glory of the Father and the eternal welfare of the bereaved ones! is the prayer of J. W. C.

ROBERTSON—Mrs. PRUDENCE L. ROBERTSON (nee Kemp) was born March 17, 1831, and died at Independence, La., Nov. 17 1898, at 2 o'clock A. M.

Sister Robertson united with the M. E. Church, South, in early childhood. She was always true to her church and to her pastor. She made many friends wherever she went. She was married to Mr. Pearce Robertson, Dec. 16 1875. She had no children born to her, but raised an adopted son, Marshall Killian, whom, with the husband, survive her.

Sister Robertson was a woman of great faith. When she married Bro. Robertson he was unconverted, but through her earnest prayers he was brought into the church and converted. And never was there a husband more devoted to a wife than Bro. Robertson was to her. May God bless him in this time of sorrow, and may he nor Marshall ever forget her counsel! F. N. SWEENEY.

BARNES—SAMUEL M. BARNES was born Jan 25, 1850, married Miss S. A. Bland, June 29, 1871; joined the church about the year 1874, and died at his home near Hurricane Church, Copiah county, Miss., of swamp fever, Nov. 25, 1898.

By the death of Bro. Barnes a good and true man has gone from us. He was a good citizen, a kind friend, a tender, loving father, a devoted and affectionate husband, and a consistent church member. We are sorely bereaved. He did not profess conversion until his last affliction, but we believe he became satisfied, and is now in heaven. God bless his bereaved ones, and help them to meet him where parting will be no more.
His pastor, A. D. MILLER.

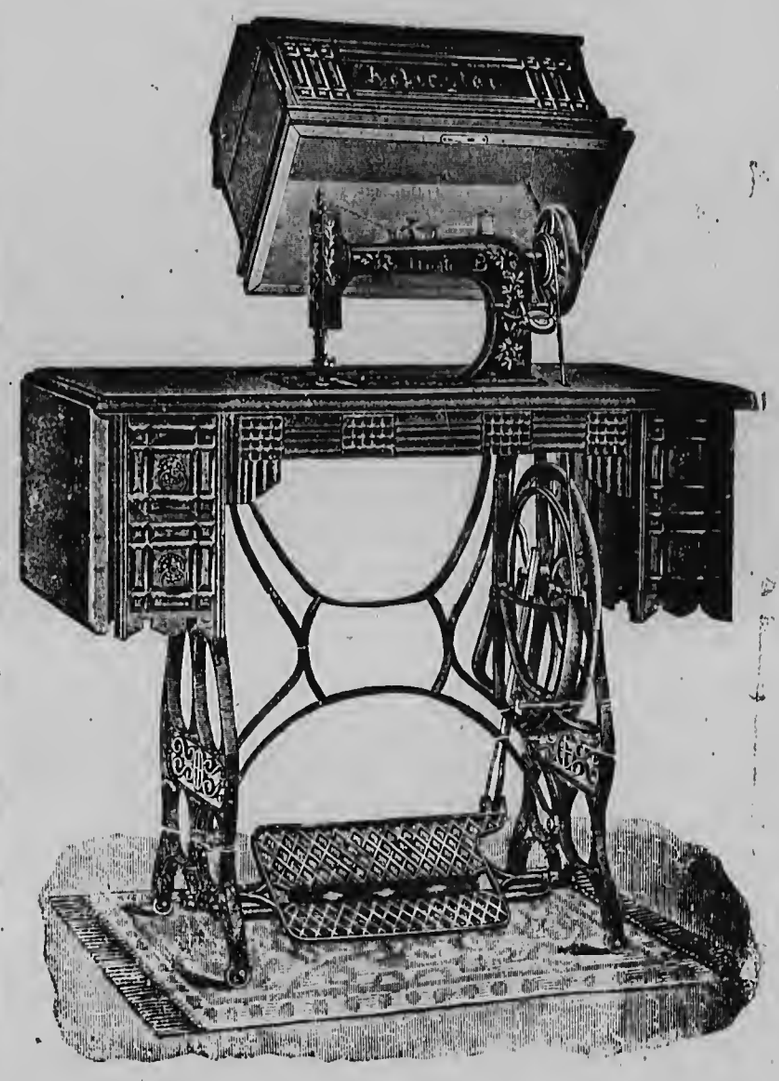
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has as few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The semi-centennial of the entrance of Methodism into Europe as an evangelizing agency will be observed next year.

The North Dakota House is another legislative body to adopt resolutions in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people.

The Arkansas House has voted to bar women from positions in the gift of the Legislature. As originally drawn, it also excluded sons of members, but the representatives struck that out.

Opponents of capital punishment in Massachusetts have formed an organization with the avowed purpose to influence the Legislature to repeal the present law for the infliction of the death penalty.

Among the many men of all parties who have approved of the project to erect in Richmond a Confederate Memorial Hall, and many of whom have contributed thereto, are President McKinley and Ex-Presidents Cleveland and Harrison, Secretaries Gage, Alger, Long, Bliss, Smith and Hay, and Ex-Secretaries Sherman, Whitney, Carlisle, Lament and James.

In the Montana Senate a bill has been introduced providing that the $30,000 turned over to the State treasurer by the Investigation Committee, and alleged to be bribe money, be made a fund out of which to build a home in Helena for the Children's Home Society, over the door of which, cut in granite, should be the words: "Dedicated to purity in politics in Montana."

The customs receipts in Cuba for January, including Jan. 27, were $724,000, and Collector Bliss expects them to reach $800,000 at the end of the month. This is at the rate of $1,000,000 a year more than Spain collected annually during the last twelve years of her regime, under a tariff 60 per cent. less. These figures give an iden of the extent of Spanish official peculation.

President McKinley will have in his possession on Thursday the complete report of the War Investigating Commission. The report will comprise about forty thousand words. Attached to it will be an appendix of five hundred printed pages setting forth all of the testimony taken by the commission during its investigation.

Next to the ratification of the treaty and the reorganization of the army, the Nicaragua Canal bill is the most important matter before Congress. A bill to acquire the property of the company that holds the franchise and the work done on said canal, and to provide for its completion under the control and with the money of the United States, recently passed the Senate. To get it through the House is now the problem to be solved.

The very strong sentiment against the annexation of the Philippines which is developing in Congress should encourage our sugar producers to hope that the competition from Cuban and Manila sugar, which they dreaded so much, may not be encountered at all. Whatever may be the ultimate destiny of Cuba and the Philippines, it is evident that a long time must elapse before either country can be admitted as an integral part of the United States.

Senator Frye, chairman of the Committee on Commerce, and Representative Payne, chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, are preparing to make a hard fight for the passage during the session of the bill to pay navigation bounties to American shipping. The bills reported by the Senate and House Committees are practically identical, and represent the conclusions reached by Commissioner of Navigation Chamberlain and concurred in by most of the shipping interest in this country, as to the best means of building up the American Merchant Marine. The advocates of the measure contend that its enactment and the annual expenditure of from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 will within twelve or fifteen years bring the merchant service of the United States up to a rank second only to that of Great Britain.

SUCCESS COMES to those who persevere. If you take Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently, according to directions, you may depend upon a cure when a cure is possible.

HOOD'S PILLS are easy to take, easy to operate. Cure indigestion, sick headache.

Gen. Eagan's trial has closed. The verdict of the court is guilty under both charges, and the sentence is dismissal from the United States Army. No recommendations for mercy or executive clemency were made. The court reached a verdict without long deliberation.

According to the present outlook, Feb. 15 will pass without any tribute being paid in Havana to the memory of the "Maine" and its dead. Patriotic American ladies had planned solemn ceremonies in honor of the heroes lying in Cristobal Colon Cemetery, but Commodore Cromwell has negatived those plans, and the ladies feel they have been censured for their act. At a meeting held last week it was reported that Commodore Cromwell had said Admiral Sampson should have full charge of any ceremonies which might be held over the "Maine" graves, and it was impertinent to propose anything previous to his arrival at Havana. Moreover, the admiral is said to have declared the Bishop of Santander had been insulted because the ceremonies had been planned to be held in the cemetery without first consulting him.

RED RIVER.

After a delightful Christmas spent among the kind friends of Patterson, we left the next day for our new home on Red River. While waiting for our boat we spent two very pleasant days in the home of Rev. H. H. Ahrens, who could hardly be blamed if he did not want to go to heaven. It was good to be there and enjoy sweet fellowship in such a lovely circle. May God's richest blessings rest upon them always!

From Wednesday evening until Sunday afternoon we were very pleasantly cared for on the steamer "Valley Queen," whose officers are all gentlemen as well as skillful managers of one of the neatest river craft afloat.

We were met at the landing by my predecessor, Rev. N. S. Cornell, who took us to the parsonage, where we were soon made very comfortable. We found him in the midst of packing, preparatory to his move; yet while the house was somewhat disordered on that account, it was plain to be seen that he was to leave a clean house. We were fortunate to come up on the same boat with our household goods for Sunday, as it was we must of necessity heed the scriptural injunction, "Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house." Adequate provision had been made by the people to meet all our needs for many days, and up to the present hour their care for us continues to abound.

Brother Cornell was much in favor with the people here; whether on his own account or on the account of his two young lady daughters, who are very much treasured in the hearts of the people, I don't know. He would have been gladly welcomed back; and had not the Bishop ruled otherwise, there is no doubt but that he would have returned. I sympathize with him very much, and hope that he has been as well provided for by his predecessor as I have been by mine.

I have now seen most of this field, and while I find that others have labored well and have left names that will be long remembered, yet there is work in abundance for me to do. This is specially true on the east side of the river where the new Red River Valley railway passes through a part of the charge. I am planning, praying and laboring for a profitable year of ingathering and upbuilding on Red River circuit.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP IS PLEASANT to take. Children never object to it. This medicine positively cures cough and cold.

Heaven is. Already its atmosphere touches this lower firmament; already the heavenly-minded breathe its air. The same love throbs in their hearts that stirs in the souls of those who have passed on beyond all mortal hindrances. A little while, and the realities in which they both live will be fully unveiled.—Lucy Larcom.

How I Made $200 a Month in a New Enterprise.

I want to tell you of my wonderful success. Being a poor girl and needing money badly, I tried the Dishwasher business and have cleared $200 every month. It is more money than I ever had before and I can't help telling you about, for I believe any person can do as well as I have if they only try. Dishwashers sell on sight; every lady wants one. The Household Mfg. Co., Second and Locust Sts., St. Louis, Mo., will give you all necessary instructions so you can begin work at once. The Home Dishwasher has the latest improvements and does splendid work; you can wash and dry the dishes in two or three minutes without putting your hands in the water at all. I would recommend any reader wanting to make money. Write at once.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT,

Malaria creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BILIOUS URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste that children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun; brings as a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living.

The Electropoise

ITS VALUE AND USES AS TOLD BY TESTIMONIALS.

One of the effects of the Electropoise treatment is to stimulate the nerve centers to increased activity, thus building up the nervous system. This is proven by the letter given below from Rev. Mr. Bell, the well-known evangelist:

We have had an Electropoise in our family for almost two years. I can highly recommend it for all nervous troubles. I believe in success.

REV. H. H. BELL.
Monmouth, Ill.

Another equally important result is the building up in flesh and tissue resulting in additional strength and vitality, and furnishing a reserve to fall back on in time of need. The letter from Mr Rockwell, a successful merchant, gives his experience; it follows:

I am doing considerable talking for the Electropoise, as it has put fifteen pounds of flesh on me since July. Yours truly,

H. H. ROCKWELL.
Wellsville, N. Y.

Unless a person enjoys sound and restful sleep, there is some weakness, which in time is sure to be followed by a well-defined form of disease. Almost the first beneficial effects noticeable from this treatment is a feeling of exhilaration and strength experienced after a sound night's rest. Mr. Pritchard, editor of a prominent religious weekly, gives his experience in the editorial that follows:

. . . But I hold up before you the power of the Electropoise to put a person quickly and naturally asleep, and keep him asleep until satisfied nature awakes refreshed. In my own family, in this one respect alone, it has been an inestimable blessing. In this way the Electropoise is a preventer of sickness, and prevention is better than cure.

JOHN W. PRITCHARD,
New York City. Editor Christian Nation.

Persons suffering from poor circulation will find in the Electropoise a remedy sure and simple. Quick and lasting results follow. Oftentimes by the use of this little instrument cold feet can be warmed quicker than by an open fire. The experience of Miss Wright is given in a grateful letter:

I have taken two courses of treatment with the Electropoise, and have been marvelously benefited. My circulation is so invigorated that I feel a glow and warmth in my veins to which I have been a stranger. I have suffered much from cold feet and hands all my life, but now I am troubled no longer, and an inward trouble of many years' standing seems to have vanished also. I believe in the Electropoise.

As a rule, physicians look with skepticism on all patent and advertised remedies. This is as it should be, as many concoctions, the benefits from which are only temporary—injure the lungs of the stomach permanently. That the Electropoise can not be classed among such remedies is clearly and convincingly proven by the following paragraph taken from an article written by Dr C. Colgrove, of Holland, N. Y., a graduate of the Medical Department of the University of Buffalo; he says:

My prayer is that the time may quickly come when the spectacle of thousands dying needlessly may no longer be witnessed, and when the heart, keenly sensitive to the suffering of others, and filled with latter anguish upon the loss of loved ones, shall cease to be wrung with unavailable and unspeakable grief. Without a doubt the Electropoise has the gift and power to cure multitudes, who, without it, must surely die, and that, too, in early life or in the very maturity of strength, when their loss is most severely felt and the mystery of their untimely death is most terribly difficult of solution.

C. COLGROVE, M. D.,
Holland, N. Y.

We all know that drugs kill more people than disease, that the best doctors no longer give powerful medicines in the quantities they once did, but rely more upon good nursing and pure wholesome food. The Electropoise cures without medicine, lasts a life time, can be used on every member of the family, and for any disease.

Mrs. Bishop Wilson finds the Electropoise almost a necessity.

2412 Madison Ave., BALTIMORE, MD.

I find the Electropoise almost a necessity. It is, indeed, of great importance to my comfort. I experienced relief from neuralgia, which at one time threatened to keep me a constant sufferer. I take pleasure in speaking for the Electropoise, and hope these few words will induce those who read them to make trial of this "years all."

MRS. A. W. WILSON.
(Wife of Bishop Wilson, of M. E. Church, South.)

After six years' use, the instrument has proven its value to a well-known divine:

1601 S. Eighth St., WACO, TEXAS.

I gladly testify to the truth of the Electropoise. It is all the manufacturers claim it to be. Have used it for over six years.

REV. F. SIEVERS.

Rev. Mr. Little tells his experience. First ridicule, then toleration, and last by conviction. His letter follows:

LITTLE'S MILLS, N. C.

There have been three stages in my experience with the Electropoise. Before using it I was disposed to ridicule the idea of any good being derived therefrom, except through the imagination. After using it for a short while for indigestion, I was ready to say that there was power in it; but after having given it a thorough test I have become convinced that there is great power for good in the Poise. Am fully assured that it has been a prominent factor in my restoration to health. It has also been of great benefit to other members of my family. Wishing you much success in your good work, I am, sincerely yours,

REV. LACY L. LITTLE.

IMMEASURABLE LOVE.

BY THOMAS C. UPHAM.

Go, count the sands that form the earth,
The drops that make the mighty sea;
Go, count the stars of heavenly birth,
And tell me what their numbers be;
And then shalt know Love's mystery.

No measurement hath yet been found,
No lines or numbers that can keep
The sum of its eternal round,
The plummet of its endless deep,
Or heights to which its glories sweep.

Yes, measure Love, when thou canst tell
The lands where seraphs have not trod,
The heights of heaven, the depths of hell,
And lay thy finite measuring-rod
On the infinitude of God.

ALABAMA METHODISM IN SANTIAGO.

BY WALTER R. LAMBUTH.

Alabamians in the land of the cocoanut and the pineapple! Our Southern boys from Birmingham, Montgomery, and other towns! What a pleasure it is, after weeks of travel among strangers speaking a strange tongue, to meet one's own countrymen, and hear words and the very tones of voice that are familiar in every Southern household! In Santiago—and, in fact, all over Cuba—it is customary for Americans to accost each other upon the street, and for gentlemen it is the appropriate thing to do, since it is both an act of courtesy and a relief from a sense of remoteness from home which is never entirely absent from one during the earlier months of residence abroad.

We had not been in Santiago two hours before we set out for the camp of the Fifth United States Volunteers, of which Rev. W. K. Simpson is chaplain. We could see from the deck of our steamer "Old Glory" floating in the breeze over the snow-white tents of the regiment pitched upon the high hills two miles from the city, in the direction of old Morro Castle, which is still five miles farther out. Bro. H. W. Baker, of Key West, and I had not waited long in the adjutant's tent before Bro. Simpson walked in with a vigorous stride, which indicated as good health as when we last met at the session of the North Alabama Conference, 1897. A little tanned by a tropical sun and considerable exposure incident to horseback riding to and from the military hospital, but with a gain of fifteen pounds, there was no indication of the ill effects of climate or miasma. He reported the health of the regiment as being good. There were some cases of malaria, dysentery, and typhoid fever, but these were principally due to exposure, or to intemperate eating and drinking. The yellow fever, earlier in the season, was of a mild type, and not so much dreaded as the enteric forms of fever. Indulgence in tropical fruit, bad whisky, carelessness in exposure to the chill of night, will easily account for ninety per cent. of sickness among our troops.

Five minutes' walk brought us to the chaplain's tent, where we had an unexpected treat in meeting his wife (formerly Miss Ransom, of Murfreesboro, Tenn.). Sister Simpson has been here six weeks, having followed her husband via Porto Rico. It does not take much to make a Methodist preacher and his wife contented. A table, a half-dozen chairs—all picked up in town—canvass cots, a goods box or two for book-cases, bureau, etc., and a good stout tent with peace in it and a conscience void of offense. Abraham hardly had more when he started out, and I am sure some of the fathers of Methodism did not have as much, for our brother told me his table was solid mahogany—nearly as cheap in Santiago as pine in Mobile. It is said the butchers frequently make their chopping blocks of it, and even the wharf on which we landed is mahogany. I forgot one thing necessary to happiness—something to eat. But even this essential was not lacking.

The culinary department does not lose all its mystery, even in a camp. We knew something was going on, for our brother had been for some time making Masonic signs to his wife, who suddenly disappeared. Soon the little table just large enough for four was spread by the muchacho—the Cuban boy they had picked up—and we gathered about it to sample an American meal. Few who have not been for two weeks on a diet of rice and sweet oil, garlic and minced liver, varied occasionally by "grumbled eggs" and rancid butter, can appreciate what a luxury that dinner was. What if the chicken soup did come out of a can, and the peas and corn were transported three thousand miles!—the food was from the United States. Then, besides, there was fresh beef, Irish potatoes, and excellent coffee. Sister Simpson knows how to get up a dinner, and dispense Tennessee and Alabama hospitality. But, like all Marthas, she wasn't satisfied. "Oh, if I could only give you some real corn-bread!" We were willing to forego that pleasure, but, for the sake of our fat hostess, who likes a corn-pone for dinner, will not some of my readers take her a sack of corn-meal when they go to Santiago?

Together with our host and hostess we visited San Juan hill this morning, and looked down upon the battle-field where so many of our brave soldiers lost their lives. Standing upon the ruins of the block-house around which the battle raged so fiercely, the city of Santiago lies a mile and a half to the west, distinctly visible, with its scarred and weather-beaten buildings and yellow tile roofs. Prominent among the buildings were the barracks where the heroes of the "Merrimac" were confined. Between the city and the block-house is the gigantic ceiba tree, under which Hobson was exchanged and the terms of capitulation signed. In front, looking towards the east, is the valley, or rather the ravine, on the far side of which the Rough Riders, the Ninth United States Infantry and the New York Seventy-first formed preparatory to action, the latter, excepting two companies, being held in reserve. During the previous night the Rough Riders had crept up the hill, cutting their way through barbed wire fences, and dug shallow rifle pits within easy range of the block-house. They and the Ninth Regulars—negro troops—bore the brunt of the action. The latter pushed up the hill in the face of a terrific fire, singing, "There'll be a hot time in the old town to-night." It seems incredible that a body of men could survive such odds, for, in addition to the steep hill and heavy fire from the block-house, they were subjected to an enfilading fire right and left from Spanish redoubts. The result is known. The Spanish fought well, but concluded, and rightly, that it was useless to resist the onslaught of a body of soldiers who charged as though each man thought himself responsible for the success of the American army.

From San Juan hill down to "bloody ford" in the ravine was one mat of tangled grass and barbed wire. A moment's pause by our soldiers, even to use the wire nippers carried in their boots, and the thud of a Mauser bullet would speak of the Spanish sharpshooter and how he got in his work from some royal palm or cocoanut tree. The white head-boards told the rest. They were in the most unexpected places, and on not a few was the single word, "Unknown." Brave fellows! They went down into nameless graves, but not in vain. The fall of Santiago meant the day-spring of Cuban liberty. Shackles stained with the blood of four centuries of oppression were stricken off, and the Pearl of the Antilles caught the first gleam of civil and religious liberty. Can there be any doubt as to the result?

Last night Bro. Baker and I met a little band of thirty in a rented hall, one end of it being a shoe-shop. Twenty of these were women who had come to hear in familiar language the story so old to us, but new to them. Before Santiago fell this company would have been suspects and heretics; fit subjects for the Inquisition and purgatorial fires. Now, with heaving bosoms and tear-bedewed cheeks, they hung upon the speaker's words, which were to them life and hope and immortality.

Bro. H. B. Somellian was sent here in September from Tampa to prospect, but had not funds to open a preaching-place. It was Bro. Simpson who stood by him, pledged out of his own salary the rent of a hall until the Board could take the matter up, and then wrote to Nashville urging us to do something for the people so anxious to hear the gospel. We have consulted over the situation, and have rented a more commodious place centrally located. It will cost $75 per month. Bro. Simpson and wife generously pledged $10 of this, and we see where we can secure $25 more, but there will still be a balance of $40 per month to meet, or, in round numbers, $500 for the year 1899. Is there not in Alabama a Sunday-school, or Epworth League, or church, which will assume this amount? This is an emergency, and must be met as such. When God opens the door the church must enter.

An organ is much needed. Including freight, it will require $125 to lay the instrument down in Santiago. Sister Simpson makes an appeal through me for the Cuban women. Let not this appeal be in vain. Out of your abundance devise liberal things for the poor children of our Father, who, for generations, have been deprived of their heritage.

CENTRAL LOUISIANA.

Nothing is more gratifying to a presiding elder than to look over his territory and find "a place for every man, and every man in his place." At present such is the condition of affairs on the Alexandria district.

Beginning at the tub (or radii) of the district, Dr. McVoy is starting out with the energy of a much younger man. He was a "classmate" of this scribe in the Alabama Conference in 1860, and has worked right on through all these years either as pastor or college president. Already his activity in his new charge is bearing fruit. Six or seven new members during the first month is good work. That number he has gathered, and others are being brought in. The odor of an old church certificate attracts him like as the scent of a rat does the terrier. Few escape his efforts.

Neglecting these musty old certificates costs our Zion many members every year. This is the reason for that ominous entry, "Lost sight of," which marks so many of our church registers. All blame for this neglect, however, does not rest upon our pastors. Our members do not look out for newcomers in the community, and learn of their former church relations, in order to report to the pastor. Every pastor should exhort his flock on this question, and close this point of waste.

At Boyce and West Alexandria, Bro. Turner has a big job on his hands in rebuilding the church destroyed by fire just before Conference. He has the matter well in hand, and Messrs. Miller, Sandidge, and B. C. Dean, though not members of our church, are working finely as members of the Building Committee. I commend this enterprise to the brethren outside of Boyce, and hope our friends will "lend a helping hand" to that little burthened flock.

Bro. L. L. Roberts has just reached Pineville. He has the year before him in a large field. He is hopeful, young, and strong, and, no doubt, will make his work to "abide."

At Lecompte and White's Chapel, Bro. W. T. Woodward has his plans for the year, and if he does not do a good work—as he will—he will break a heretofore unbroken record.

Rev. R. Randle, one of the older men of the district, and a well-known member of the Conference, has an exceptionally fine field at Simsport. His labors there will be seconded by as fine a corps of laymen as any preacher need want.

Bunkie and Marksville is, as to the latter place, a new field for our planting, opened up last year by Bro Woodward. Bro. Haney has the sickle there, and his intelligence and energy lead to hopes of great things.

At Melville—Big Cane, Melville, and Rosedale—our young brother, late from the Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge—J. W. Lee—has charge, and a wreck on the Avoyelles railroad was the cause of my getting into one of the most terrific storms I ever witnessed—of the kind. I was due at Simsport on Thursday, and was expected at Melville at noon Friday. Being prevented getting to Simsport, I hurried on to Melville a day in advance of announcement. The good people saw a rising barometer, and arranged for the storm to pass before the "beloved" came within its path; but, as is usual with prognosticators, their calculations miscarried, and soon after the arrival of the presiding elder missile after missile was seen passing through the air, and a second glance assured the observer that a "storm" was on. On it came. The parsonage doors gave way, and soon the whole room was strewn with the debris. Although there were scores of missiles—some weighing more than a hundred pounds—flying right in among the "children of the manse," not one was hurt! Sister Lee and Bessie will not get that "stuff" out of their home for weeks to come. (Put this in small letters.) Several parcels of this "stuff" struck the presiding elder next morning—between the teeth.

At Natchitoches I found Bro Isbell planning largely. If he can have his way, the next pastor there will not have to live in a "hired house." A number of excellent laymen, "zealously affected unto every good work," are at his elbow, and I trust will, before the end of the year, have the initial work of a parsonage completed—if not the parsonage itself.

Bro. Johns, at Montgomery and Colfax, is much among his people, as usual, carrying the gospel from house to house and from shop to shop. Last Sunday morning a granddaughter of the late Philo M. Goodwin applied for membership in his church. He is in favor with his people. This is the only charge so far visited which paid in full the presiding elder's salary for the first quarter. So Bro. Johns has the banner charge.

Twenty years ago I was considered too feeble to do district work, and sent to the pastorate. Now I am older by twenty years, and (let it be hoped) wiser, I am thrust out on one of the most difficult districts in the Conference. And why not? Some one must fill the place, and having been so long favored, I take it as my reasonable lot. I am now more than half over on my first round of appointments, having held as many as seven quarterly meetings in nine days. Where I have been the prospects are, generally, encouraging.

At Washington and Chicot, Bro. Hill had not started out when I was there, having been unable up to that time to secure a horse. He will move up his work when he gets mounted.

May the Lord bless them all!

J. A. PARKER.

AN INCIDENT.

MR. EDITOR: By earnest solicitation of the pastor, Rev. C. C. Wier, I have for the past nine days conducted a series of services at White Castle, La. There were several conversions and accessions, among them being a man who had been a hard drinker; also a lady from a certain Southern city who had not been to church in five years. During the meeting it was my privilege to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to a goodly number (the pastor not being an elder). In the personnel of the communicants the following churches were represented: Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopal, Campbellite, Lutheran, and Roman Catholic. Some were present during the meeting who had never before attended services in a Protestant Church. "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth."

I am at Centenary for a few days. Three boys have arrived this week, and they will continue to come. The present enrollment is 127. A more enthusiastic and better-pleased lot of boys I have never seen.

Yours in the work,

THOMAS B. CLIFFORD,
Agent for Centenary and Mansfield Colleges.

$161 70 FOR THE "TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND."

Yesterday (Jan. 29) the Methodists of Carrollton, Miss., according to previous purpose and plan, inaugurated the work of raising their quota of the Twentieth Century Fund. Special songs had been selected with care and practiced with diligence, and were admirably rendered by the choir and congregation. The pastor preached a thoughtful and inspiring sermon suitable to the occasion. Papers were passed throughout the congregation, and in just a few minutes seventy-two people gave one hundred sixty-one and 70-100 dollars. The people gave cheerfully, many of them coming through the fast-falling snow to attend the service. This work was easily accomplished, because thorough preparation had been made in advance.

The above amount has been forwarded to our Conference treasurer, and meets Carrollton's part of the fund, one dollar per member, and goes eleven and 70-100 dollars over; but steps are now being taken to reach the other eighty members not present yesterday. Carrollton will send yet more on the one-dollar proposition, and efforts will be made to secure larger gifts from individual members.

I greatly wish I could secure the co-operation of some layman at each church to undertake this work, but I am compelled to ask the pastors to take up this additional duty.

Any pastor who permits a local need, however urgent, to thwart this great connectional movement, will not only do a grievous wrong, but will make a serious mistake—a mistake as great as that made by him who fails to urge the foreign missionary collection, for fear it will decrease his own salary. What we need is to quicken the benevolent impulses of our people. If we can secure intelligent interest in, and liberal contributions to, our connectional enterprises, the reflex influence upon all our local interests will be entirely wholesome. Every pastor and member who, through indifference, fails to aid in this work (of course, none will oppose), will thereby contribute toward the failure of a movement which means well-nigh everything to Methodism. If any pastor has not read the really startling article by Dr. Muckenfuss in the January-February number of The Methodist Review, he should do so at once, and induce members of his church to do likewise. The facts given and arguments deduced make a most powerful appeal to every intelligent Methodist, and should arouse greatest zeal and largest liberality. The issue is upon us, and must be met. The recent General Conference, through its Committee on Education, said: "... There is imperative necessity ... for materially strengthening the educational institutions of our church to meet the requirements of the approaching century. ... It is important that we advance. We have only the alternative to advance or abandon the field? ... To abandon our educational work to immediate collapse or gradual decay would be to prove recreant to our mission, and would tend to the paralysis and disintegration of our hitherto vigorous organization." This is a clarion call in words that breathe and thoughts that burn, and "May the sparks strike out on those steeples in their night

Kindle the church into [illegible]"

J. R. BINGHAM, Secretary.

P. S.—The Board of Education, soon to meet in Jackson, may take some action suggesting the disposal of that part of the funds to be used in our Conference. "The Plan" given by the General Conference expressly says: "The balance" (after sending twenty per cent. to General Board) "shall be reported to the Conference at its next session for such application as it may order, provided, that no appropriation shall be made to any institution which is not the exclusive property of the M. E. Church, South." Anything indefinite about that? We have but two such schools—Grenada and Milsaps. We forward the money raised yesterday to our Conference treasurer, being perfectly willing for the next Annual Conference to direct its use. It never occurred to us to withhold contributions till informed how much would go to each. Just as we have forwarded our foreign mission assessment, not knowing how much would go to China, to Japan, to South America, to Mexico, or to Cuba, in which some of us are much interested. Just as we have been paying our assessment for church extension, not knowing nor caring how much would go to Post Oak circuit or to Oxford station. Just as we have been paying our assessment for domestic missions, not knowing nor caring how much would go to Black Jack circuit or to Water Valley.

There is complaint in some quarters of the division of the Conference fund, but we have not thought that justified us in withholding contributions till we knew how much would be paid to each claimant. We were, and are, content to do what we can toward answering the call of the church for money, leaving the disposal thereof to the Boards and the Conference.

Let us put the forty-five thousand dollars into the hands of our Conference treasurer, who will forward twenty per cent. to the treasurer of the General Board, and report the remainder to our Annual Conference. We can trust the Conference to make a proper division of the amount between Grenada and Milsaps.

J. R. BINGHAM.

The Central Christian Advocate, of last week, contains the following paragraph: "A presiding elder whose report is found in this issue puts an important fact, which is worthy of consideration and comment, into one of his telling sentences as follows: 'The charges on this district that showed an increase in the circulation of the Central Christian Advocate last year also showed an increase in all the benevolent collections.' The same result is observable in the circulation of all the church papers. How can it be otherwise? Permanent benevolence must always rest upon intelligence, and Methodist journalism helps our people to be intelligent upon all these important causes.—Central Methodist.

The Methodists of the Tennessee Conference have undertaken to raise $35,000 with which to purchase the property of the Peabody College for Young Ladies, at Nashville, to be converted into an annex to the Vanderbilt for the benefit of girls.—Central Methodist.

FAITH.

O strange infirmity to think
That he will leave my soul to sink
In hopeless darkness and distress,
Who has appeared in times of old,
Who saved me while the billows rolled
And cheered me with His loving grace.

What surer pledge could God bestow
Of help in future scenes of woe,
Than grace and joy already given?
Vile unbelief, that hateful thing,
It makes me sigh when I should sing
Of peace and confidence in heaven.

MY FIRST TRIP IN 1899.

The first appointment I met after coming to this new field of labor was, so I was told, eight miles away. I started ont Sunday morning bright and early; crossed the bloody river just above the city on a ferry. I proceeded in a good jog of a trot in order to allow for bad roads and to correct any mistake I might make in taking the wrong road. The long rainy season had softened the ground so that, as much space as I had, I hardly had standing-room. The cypress brakes, tupelo gum-brakes and palmetto brakes I passed in succession, but not rapid succession. I saw a new country, sparsely settled, with everything as still as death, save now and then the whistle of the wing of a wild duck, or the swish of the lazy old crane as he went up and down propelled by the hope of finding better fishing-ground. I was thinking upon this broad, fertile delta, and the sermon I wished to preach, and the prospective congregation which was an unknown quantity, and suddenly I came in sight of a scene which changed altogether my meditative cogitations. There before me was a bayou or slough, and for the many resemblances it bears toward a slough good old John Bunyan described, I prefer to call it a slough. There it was yawning in my face; the bridge gone. What shall I do? was the silent, but distinct question I was rapidly putting to myself without an answer. I reined up my horse, whose ears were pointing directly forward, and he was champing his mettled bits in no uncertain way. He seemed to be in the same dilemma I was. We paused and thought awhile. There appeared a way below the bridge through the water and the mud, but they were both deep and forbidding. Others, I noticed, had gone in, but the tracks were not right fresh, and I could not tell whether they went out on the other side or not, and this was the question that bothered me most of all. Well, we couldn't weigh difficulties too long; the morning had almost worn away. We thought of Waterloo and Tours and Valley Forge, and then gave the reluctant steed the word, "Go forward," which he did after we repeated it and emphasized it with a quick succession of thumps in the side with the heel of our No. 10, and a keen cut or two with a switch. In we went, under we went, up we came, forward we pitched, and just two little words express all the balance of the program—"under" and "up;" but to give an adequate idea of all the proceedings, you must put down a good long string of these two words. We soon arose on the opposite bank like the full moon, but in eclipse and nearing the last quarter. As soon as we could replace the blanket, and adjust the saddle, and recover from palpitation of the heart, we onward urged our way, not sorrowing over what had happened as much as rejoicing over what didn't happen. But a little distance, and we fell into a meditative mood again. What a wise and beneficent providence that the mind will turn from darkness to light, and from sorrow to joy! We began again: This is a great country after all. How rich in soil, in fine timber, and all agricultural possibilities! Trackless thousands of acres of land as rich as the proverbial valley of the Nile; but the Nile valley was the cradle and nursery of the human race, and this seems to be the grave. Then we came upon a cross road, or rather where a road made into the one we were traveling, thus making it broader, and in this particular bearing a striking analogy to a broad road we had read about in an old book. This is a malarial country, full of lakes and bayous, ponds and sloughs. Some one says it will take two frogs to live a season here. Another says he has known a whole family of black snakes to become extinct in a season. Every pore of the land seems to be chocked with the fatal miasma struggling to escape till you feel it, we taste it, and almost imagine you can see it, and we look up, and there is a large signboard with this significant inscription, "Coffins and caskets for sale." Coffins from $12 to $10; caskets from $35 to $125. This started a train of thoughts on the brevity and uncertainty of human life. "Be ye also ready." We were warned to be earnest; and, after all, it is not a mere weakness which prompts the minister to speak of death and death-bed scenes with a touching pathos that stirs the emotions of the congregation. Death is the most common thing in the land.

We reached the little chapel on time, feeling mellow and spiritual, and ready to preach an earnest, loving sermon; but, to our astonishment, we were the only soul in sight. We alighted, strolled into the cemetery, looked at the fresh mounds, read the epitaphs on the tombs, counted the graves, took notice that of the goodly number there nearly all of them were children. I could hear the wail of broken-hearted mothers weeping for their children, and refusing to be comforted because they are not. Then the light broke on the desolate scene. The Savior was speaking, 'Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Still we waited, and nobody came. Presently we saw a wagon, old and dilapidated, with wheels full of black mud, moving slowly toward the church. Our thermometer suddenly rose to Summer heat, for we would have somebody to hear our message. I hitched my steed, pulled off my overcoat, and got ready to preach, as I knew we were near the noon hour. Imagine my feelings when that fellow, with a lady sitting by him, and a small boy with his pedal extremities dangling from the open end of the wagon-body, passed by. I thought, "All's well that ends well;" but this is an awful ending! Overcome with dismay and defeat, I mounted my horse and started in a bit of a hurry. I had not proceeded far, however, when I met a man coming in the direction of the little church. I stepped, introduced myself to him as cordially as I could. He grasped me by the hand in a hearty way, and, looking up, benignantly said, "Is this Bro. ———, who is our new preacher here?" I informed him I was. He said, "There are three or four other fellows on behind, and we come to hear you preach." We exchanged words till the other fellows came up, and we turned and went back to the church. There was no Bible, no hymn book, no pulpit, no organ, and no choir; so we had no operatic airs and solos that day. I asked one of the young men to get on my horse, and go to a house close by and get a Bible. He was good-natured, and soon returned, and I knelt as usual to ask God's blessing and the unction of the Holy Spirit upon the preacher and the hearers. As I rose I began one of the good old songs with theology and fire in it, stepped forward to the pulpit (which in this case was a box stood on end), and opened what appeared to be the Bible, and, behold! it proved to be Hitchcock's "Analysis." The sermon I had prepared, and was so anxious to preach, was gone the way of all the earth. I read and contrasted the difference in the estate of the righteous and wicked.

FROM MANILA.

[The following private letter has been placed at our disposal, and we gladly give our readers the benefit of it. The writer is a member of the First Tennessee Regiment, U. S. V. He is a brother of Rev. P. O. Lowrey, of the Louisiana Conference.—EDITOR.]

We have come into the city at last. We had been lying at anchor over a week in Manila Bay waiting for our quarters to be comfortably fixed up. You have no idea what a contrast Spanish ways are to American. You seldom ever see a plebian ever walking here—they all ride, mostly in a two-wheeled vehicle, or "one-horse shay." The royal caste go in a four-wheeled vehicle drawn by two ponies instead of one—ponies just a shade larger than shetlands. The Spanish maids are girls of fabulous beauty—all brunettes and fascinating ways. But it has to be "life for a look," for the American can have no communication whatever with them. They say we are all hobos and shop-keepers, and not gentle folk.

I am sitting now where I can see ships sunk by the Immortal Dewey, and walls crumbled by his penetrating shells—so typical of the monarchy, or oligarchy, which they represent. Of course, the downfall of all such governments is only a question of time. A friend who has been here some time carried me over the city last night, where we saw the Spanish prisoners, to the number of fifteen thousand, quartered mostly in a mammoth cathedral. They are fed by the United States, but have more liberty almost than we do, except they are locked up at night. The officers are out on parole, and, of course, live as citizens.

The first Spanish sentence I learned was: "Liberty is one of the most precious gifts that heaven gave to man. With it can not be compared the treasures which the earth contains, or the sea hides. For liberty, as well as honor, one may and ought to venture life, and, on the contrary, captivity is the greatest evil that can fall upon man." Of course, I got the above out of a book in which I am studying, but it contrasts so with Spanish principle that it hardly seems Spanish. The excessive cruelty practiced by their hostlers here on their brutes is outrageous. When any kind of a vehicle, no matter of what description, starts up hill, the driver goes to pouring on the whip with all his might, and goes up the hill at a long gallop. They do this because their horses are so small they could not get up otherwise. When a street-car starts up, always with three horses, an extra man is needed to run along by the horses and whip as they run. The streets are crowded more with passenger-vehicles than any American city I have ever seen. A stop of five minutes from any cause will make a blockade a hundred yards long. The streets are just wide enough for two to pass on the right coming down and left going up.

Everything here is on the very ancient plan. The city is enclosed by great stone walls containing mammoth stone building, castles and cathedrals that persons could be imprisoned in for years without anyone knowing it.

The Astor Battery, fitted out and equipped by John Jacob Astor, of New York, passed us this morning going for the "Senator," in which they were going home. They were in the highest spirits, and cheering every step. Every band, from either the North or West, plays "Dixie" every time it passes these "hot-headed Southerners." And every time they receive cheers from us.

We are located on a place where they say was to be a great stone castle—a Morro Castle. The ground is paved with stone for several acres, and there are about a thousand stones 6x8 feet, and some ten, lying here ready to be put up; but I can't see how they handle them.

I enclose a New Year's card containing an exact likeness of the vehicles and their propelling power, which brought our army supplies from the lighters on the Pasig river to this camp. Natives and Chinese only use this means of locomotion. We have to boil all the water we drink, and always wear a bandage on our stomach. All well.

Very truly,

FRANK M. LOWREY.

SELF-EXAMINATION.

II. Cor. xiii, 5.

(A Talk at Prayer Meeting, Minden, La., Jan. 26.)

Our prayer-meeting topic is one of vital interest to every Christian. The duty is imperative. We can but fail in the Christian race if we neglect this command. It is pleasant to imagine ourselves drifting with the gentle zephyrs onward toward heaven—"carried on flowery beds of ease"—but we must lose if we do not make each day of our life an effort at introspection.

The full power of this examination would be better conveyed by the modern meaning of the word "search." It is our duty to examine our souls through and through, that each affection and motive may pass in review before us as a military officer sometimes calls out individual soldiers for close inspection. Affections must be right, for they control the motives, and the motives give meaning to words and actions. Do not satisfy yourself with a hurried examination. Something may be wrong. Find it! Two persons were standing on the shore of a coral reef. One was simply a transient visitor; the other was a diver employed by the East India Company. The visitor took a hurried, cursory examination of the gently splashing sea, the coral formations, and the shells cast by the rolling waves at his feet. He turned to the diver and said, "This must be a perfect place to ply your trade." "No," said the plunger into ocean depths, "the sea is full of dangers, and much that I bring up is simply waste material."

The lesson is plain. Let us not be content with an outside examination and pronounce everything to be good. Let us not cry "Peace!" when there is no true peace, but diligently search for the pearls of truth incarnate in our inner selves, like the diver, who, seeking for sea pearls, holds to the line above him, while he holds the mirror to catch the images of pearls or "crabs"—the one to carefully gather, the other to shun.

Dive into the depths of your inner self with the searchlight of God's Spirit and the mirror of the Word. Catch an image on this pure mirror of incorruptible truth, whatever may be there, that, like the diver, you may cast away "crabs"—anything impure, disobedient, false, ere it can curse you or harm others.

Paul certainly did not mean that we should engage in morbid self-examination. When we look away from Jesus to our own imperfections, and neglect the life-line, we may be lost, or misled by our own morbid self-introspection. Keep your eyes on Jesus, for only in his light can you see both false and true, and discriminate as he would guide you. But I think the safeguard of this passage is the sentence which follows, "Prove your own selves." The word "try" is appropriate here. It carries with it the idea of testing, as the ancient refiner tested silver or gold. Let us take up our own souls and test them; burn them in the pure fires of the Holy Spirit. Oh, may no scar show the tarnish of brass! May the pure gold come out through this radical self-trial! It's drastic, but it's improving!

Perhaps another idea may be held in solution in this passage—the plumb-line test. Hold the gospel plumb-line right up beside your soul! This will satisfy your own queries about yourself, and will give you time for correction. We have read somewhere of a peculiar individual who had a plumb-line at the eastern end of his house to test changes of his house in twenty-four hours. He soon found that it was not then plumb, and never would be, without rebuilding on a more substantial foundation. So good architects and builders made such a dwelling possible as would stand the test of any plumb-line.

Brother, hang up the plumb-line of truth. If your life is "out of plumb," rebuild! Yes, rebuild on the solid foundation, Jesus Christ, whose divine person, as a mighty rock, shall ever abide!

COURTLAND PRENTICE SMITH.

PROHIBITION POINTS.

The returns in the recent local-option election show 112 majority "against the sale," yet the whisky men thought they were in for a great victory. Things may look wet, but when an intelligent citizen goes into the booth with the power to act for the homes and citizenship of the land, it is hard to check, "For the sale."

The ministry (I might write it, the Methodist ministry) is the establishing and conserving power of prohibition in Mississippi under our local-option policy. This scribe, stationed at the county headquarters (and the home of our attorneys), naturally became secretary in the contest. As such, I copied the electoral poll, maintained a correspondence with all parts of the county, sent out instructions on legal points. Nearly all the letters of inquiry, suggestion and information bear the signature of one of the nine Methodist preachers holding charges in this county. However, many noble laymen of all churches, and courageous countrymen of no church, labored with us. Special mention is due the prominent law firm of Moore & Clark, of this place, who, without any fee or charge, but at a personal expense, represented us in the conflict.

Are the negroes the enemy of prohibition? Let an incident worthy of record answer. In east Bolivar, on the "main line," is a negro town. The municipality is not only under the control of the colored people, but the town is inhabited by negroes alone. Mound Bayou, in the count, shows, "For the sale," 11; "Against the sale," 45. Four to one against the saloon!

The cudgel in the hand of the whisky men was "the curse of the blind tiger." This is the weapon with which the whisky men are waging war against our prohibition policy throughout the State. It becomes the special charge of every citizen of our commonwealth to drive these vile venders of outlawed rum from our State. The blind-tiger man, whether he peddles the poison from his pocket, or hides his stock under the cloak of some other business—club, society, restaurant, or soda fount—by his business classes himself with the train robber and the highwaymen. He is the greatest enemy—the legalized saloon excepted—to our civilization. His future is in the hand of the citizenship of the country. The responsibility for his existence must (largely) lie at the door of the men who killed the legalized saloon at the ballot-box.

Let us organize in every "dry county" in the State a "Law and Order League," whose function it shall be to bring every tiger out of his jungle-home and expose him to the fury of AROUSED courts. An organization of this kind will accomplish its purpose by creating sentiment against the accursed business, by strengthening the force of the courts, by urging the grand jury to a performance of its duty, and by furnishing this body such evidence as will convict the offenders in the courts. If need be, let professional detectives be employed to catch these old, sly professionals, who, if they had applied as much genius and energy to some legitimate trade as they have given to plans for evading the law and covering up their dens of infamous poison, would have been crowned with the glory of a large success. Let Mississippi settle the blind-tiger question, and she stands in the forefront of the sisterhood of States on this question of the rum curse. Are we always to be harassed and disturbed by ever-recurring elections in dry counties? Let the Legislature so amend the law as to change the duration of an established condition from two to six years. Bolivar county has had four elections in the past six years; has gone dry each time. These elections cost several hundred dollars, disturb the public mind, etc. We need a longer period between the same. J. C. PARK.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

I am obliged to Bro. Lewis for his last. He says if I can point out one "cruel" thing he has said, he is ready to apologize. After referring to Bro. Raper's success, he says: "What Bro. Raper has done on this circuit may be done on almost any circuit, if the preacher will put his life into the work." "Some brethren do not succeed because they do not expect to succeed." And after naming some other worthy preachers, he says, "Such as these will succeed anywhere."

Now, Bro. Lewis, is it not real cruel, after a preacher has done his best with a low-pressure, stingy people (for it is financial success you refer to), and gone up to meet the brethren (if, perchance, he is able to get there), where he really expects the strong support of a brotherly sympathy, and then to be thrust at with?—"You did not succeed because you did not expect to; your life was not in the work. There are men who could have succeeded right where you have been, for they will succeed anywhere."

If this is not cruel, I confess I do not know just what would be.

Bro. Lewis says he does not disparage. I suppose he means to say that he does not intend to disparage, for the comparisons or contrasts he makes between preachers will surely injure some in others' appreciation of them, if his statements are accepted.

Bro. Lewis thinks to state his assertions is proof enough; that it needs no defense; that if a man succeeds along a given line of work, that is proof enough. He does not seem to realize the full import of what he has said, or the point in question. What I want him to do is to establish, by some kind of proof, his confident and repeated assertions that some men will succeed anywhere, and that the reason others do not succeed, is, "Their lives are not in the work, and they do not expect to succeed."

I deny these statements, and as assertions from nothing, and as he has the affirmative side of the question, I ask him to prove his assertion. It is yet to be seen whether he will try to defend his assertions.

Do not make any apology to me, Bro. Lewis. Your strictures do not touch me, neither am I afflicted personally, but I am in defense of the noble, self-sacrificing, cross-bearing men who, without comforts or sympathy, are preaching the blessed gospel of our Lord. J. H. SMITH.

The Christian Life.

WINNING SOULS.

A strange reluctance comes over many when they try to talk about the soul and its relations to God. It is felt alike by converted and unconverted persons. Very often the gay girl whose heart is running over with fun and mirth, and whose speech sparkles with wit and humor, has deep in her consciousness the feeling that she is unsatisfied; that she wants something better, purer, and higher. She wishes that the Christian who is talking with her would ask her a question, would give her a hint, would lead the conversation to the subject of personal religion. The other has no thought of the kind. She has even a faint, undefinable dread that any effort on her part would be received coldly or made occasion of ridicule.

There are two ways of defending a castle—one by shutting yourself up in it, and guarding every loop-hole; the other by making it an open center of operations from which all the surrounding country may be subdued. Is not the last the truest safety? Jesus was never guarding himself, but always invading the lives of others with his holiness. There never was such an open life as his; and yet the force with which his character and love flowed out upon the world kept back more strongly than any granite wall of prudent caution could have done the world from pressing in on him. His life was like an open stream, which keeps the sea from flowing up into it by the eager force with which it flows down into the sea. He was so anxious that the world should be saved that therein was his salvation from the world. He labored so to make the world pure that he never even had to try to be pure himself.—Phillips Brooks.

We should studiously cultivate a contented frame of mind. Practice makes perfect here as well as elsewhere. To complain of the weather is to impeach the wisdom and beneficence of God. To rail at human life is to arraign the administration of the Most High. If we do not like our lot, let us make it better. If we can not make it better, let us submit to the inevitable. When we reflect how little we deserve and how much we have, we ought to cease our foolish and wicked repining. The grace which breathed a serene contentment into the heart of Paul can tranquillize our own.—Texas Advocate.

So the opportunity passes. The souls have been within speaking distance, but they have failed to communicate with each other. Each goes on its way. The friend of Christ, who might have won a soul to him, has been silent, afraid, ashamed. What wonder if to that too faithless friend there comes the sad experience that the beloved has withdrawn himself and is gone; that, seeking the Spirit, finds him not, and calling there returns no answer! Can there be perfect serenity and full sense of communion with God to one who refuses or neglects so important a duty?—Margaret E. Sangster.

The people in all lines of duty who do the most work are the calmest, most unhurried people in the community. Duties never wildly chase each other in their lives. One task never turns another out, nor ever compels hurried, and, therefore, imperfect, doing. The calm spirit works methodically, doing one thing at a time and doing it well, and it, therefore, works swiftly, though never appearing to be in haste.—Rev. Dr. R. Miller.

A man often gets what he wants but he seldom finds that it is still what he wants after it is obtained. We should be thankful always that God's choices for us are much better than our choices for ourselves could possibly be.—Selected.

A MISSIONARY'S WIFE

Interesting Letter from India—A Long Summer Season.

The following letter is from the wife of an American Baptist missionary at Nowgong, Assam, India: "After living here for several years I found the climate was weakening me. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla every summer. This I found so beneficial that I now take one dose every morning for nine months in the year, that is, through the hot weather. My general health is excellent and my blood is in good condition. My weight does not vary more than one pound throughout the year. I find Hood's Sarsaparilla indispensable in the summer and recommend it for use in a debilitating climate." MRS. P. H. MOORE.

The above letter is similar to thousands received and constantly coming in.

THE DRUM BEAT

of consumption is a hacking cough. It sounds a melancholy dirge in the march to the coffin. How many swell the ranks of this gloomy procession who could have been saved by a timely resort to the King of cures, Mursdev's Balm.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. R. A. Tucker: "The prospects are flattering for a good year on Prairie circuit. The people have accorded me a warm reception. We found, on our arrival at the parsonage, provisions, fuel and corn enough for several weeks. We have received twelve members into the church service Conference by letter and profession of faith. These our royal good people. Pray for us. Success to the ADVOCATE."

Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, Simsboro, La., Jan. 31, 1899: "The Simsboro circuit consists of the Old Vienna circuit, with Simsboro added. The work has been declining for several years till the last three. Within the last three years three new church-houses have gone up. We have a fair prospect for another to be built this year. The antheritics imposed us again on the good people of this circuit. Our reception was much better this year than it was last. The good women of Simsboro recently gave us a pounding; the sisters of all denominations participating. I have not missed an appointment this month. Preached nine times, attended three prayer meetings, visited thirty-nine homes. In many of those homes I have been able to press my Savior's business, but in others I have had to manœuver for an opportune time. When the people have the money I can get a subscriber for the ADVOCATE. I have taken seven new ones this month. I can see a great field of labor before me for the year. I am striving to make good use of my time. The bad weather has been but little in my way. When I can't do one thing, I can do another. I am following Bishop Morrison's advice in sermon-making. Let us labor and pray that the number of subscribers may be procured to place the ADVOCATE at one dollar."

FROM REV. JNO. D. ELLIS.

I reached this work with my family the next week after Conference adjourned. The road was long and muddy and the trip tiresome. On our arrival at the parsonage we were met by Sister Rutledge, an elect Methodist, who carried us to her home, where we found plenty of good things to eat. We are now domiciled at the parsonage, and, with a few additions in way of furniture which will be made, we will be comfortable enough. The people have received us kindly and are constantly remembering us with good things to eat and substantial tokens of appreciation.

A good beginning has been made and the prospects for a successful year's work are most encouraging. However, we are sorrowful over the death of "George," our faithful horse. He departed this life yesterday about 1 o'clock. Just behind the parsonage are some precipitous gullies, fifteen or twenty feet deep. A shower of rain had made the ground slick and George slipped over one of the embankments, falling about fifteen feet before striking, and then rolled twenty-five feet before reaching the bottom. His "frolicking" was the occasion of his death. He lived about an hour after the tragic leap. Were it not that the "spirit of a beast goeth downward," we would expect to meet him in heaven. He was faithful indeed and always carried the pastor in time for his appointments. Circumstances make it necessary to trust the Lord for another one. Pray for us.

Mt. Carmel, Miss., Jan. 30

ETTORA AND MABEN.

We have been kindly received and have been greeted with the largest congregations it has ever been our privilege to expound the Word unto. The multitudes of bright young people would inspire even a dull man.

Our predecessors, Bros. Gibbs and Cogdell, are held in high esteem, and their works do follow them. The large and flourishing Sunday-school attests their wise administration. But these brethren always leave their works in every charge they serve. This preacher has begun where they left off. We have papered two rooms in the parsonage and have put paint where it was needed most. Our desire is to make this the nicest parsonage in the district. We have organized an Epworth League, sold several Bibles, and have put eighteen weekly religious papers in the different homes, and hope to put thrice as many more where they can do the most good.

Bro. Oakley made us only a brief visit. As he was suffering from the effects of a recent fall, he had to return home, leaving two of his quarterly meetings in the hands of Bro. Bachman and myself. Bro. Oakley makes as good a presiding elder as he does secretary of the Conference.

Bro. Bachman is magnifying his office, bearing the best books to the homes of our people. No one mair among us, perhaps, is doing more than he in carrying the light into dark places.

Rev. A. H. Mitchell and Rev. R. T. Nolen, our near neighbors, are proving to be workmen that need not to be ashamed. They are in high favor with the people they are serving so well.

The prospects are bright for abundant harvest in this our new field of labor.

R. H. B. GLADNEY.

MADISON, MISS.

Crystal Springs is a great tomato-growing point; Madison is the great strawberry point. The farmers here raise tomatoes and other fruits and vegetables; but the largest crop, and the one most unfailing in financial return, is the strawberry. Last year was a rather discouraging one to the vegetable growers; but they are not fainthearted, and will try again. Worse than this discouragement was the yellow-fever scourge that beat this way, bringing death to five persons at Madison Station. The Sunday-school here is just being reorganized again, having been closed ever since the epidemic.

There are on this charge four preaching-places besides Madison, viz.: Madisonville, now only a country neighborhood, though once the seat of the chief town of this (Madison) county; Pearl River, which has the largest membership of any church on the charge (a sister of the elder Lambuth, whose body lies in Japan, lives here); Pocahontas, a pleasant village a few miles from Jackson, on the Yazoo railroad branch, and Wesley Chapel. The last-named was a very flourishing church during the time that W. C. Black, B. Carradine, and others served the charge. A. F. Watkins preached his first sermon there on "The Little Maid." But the members have moved away to railroad points, and the signs of the times, as recognized by some that remain, are that it ought to be moved to Ridgland, a village on the railroad just below Madison.

The people of this charge are, in intelligence and refinement, much above the average of villagers and country people. Our first Quarterly Conference will be held to-morrow. Many of the members already know Bro. Holloman, the new presiding elder, and I can say in advance of his coming that they believe he will attend to the duties of his office.

H. G. HAWKINS.

Jan. 27, 1899

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT NOTES.

Rev. H. L. Hughes writes that he has arrived at Dry Creek, and the prospect is good for a successful year's work for the Master.

Rev. W. G. Roberts is in high favor with his flock at Glenmora, and the year will doubtless mark an advance in all lines. He has many good people to co-operate with him.

Rev. A. D. McVoy, at Alexandria, is taking hold with great vigor, and has already won a warm place in the hearts of the kind people there. His sermons have been spoken of as of the highest order. He has gathered up several church letters which had previously been stored in the bottoms of trunks. We hope to see Alexandria "blossom as the rose" this year. Why not?

Rev. R. S. Collier has been relieved owing to ill health of his wife. He will probably take her to Texas, where, under the good treatment of specialists, we hope she will be restored to health. In the meantime Rev. Luther L. Roberts has been appointed to the Pinoville circuit. He is a brother to Rev. W. G. Roberts, of Glenmora. We wish him a good time.

Rev. George D. Anders has arrived at Columbia.

Rev. J. W. Lee has decided to live at Melville, that being more the center of his charge. He was cordially received—yea, even pounded with boxes, barrels, as well as pound packages. There are some good things for some preachers after all.

Bros. Turner, Hill, Haney, Woodward, Randle and Isbell are at their posts respectively and are hard at work. We hope to hear of revivals all around soon.

Our presiding elder, Dr. J. A. Parker, has up to this writing held nine Quarterly Conferences of the first round. He was with us at Colfax, preaching with great acceptability to the people. He expects to secure the services of a Bishop (probably Bishop Key) to hold the District Conference at Lecompte this Summer. Brethren of the district, let us urge our delegates to attend and have an old-time Conference of power.

As for ourself, we arrived at Montgomery on New Year's Eve, by the steamboat "Valley Queen," with all aboard, horse, buggy, wife, children and plunder. Through the kindness of Bro. Lee, our predecessor, and that noble Christian gentleman, Major McCain, the parsonage was ready for us, and everything needed to go to housekeeping. So we took possession. This place and Colfax constitutes the work, with some small places near by. I have been very kindly received, and the presiding elder says our circuit has the banner so far on his round. We hope to be able to hold it.

The work is running smoothly. Nothing has transpired out of the ordinary except the howling of a wolf on a cold night about ten miles above here, near Saline river, as your scribe was returning at a late hour through the pine woods from a wedding. It had the effect of quickening the pace of old "Charles" a little by the cussing of the driver! This is the same horse your scribe began with when he joined the Conference in 1886, and is still able to "get over the ground," especially when the wolves are near.

May the good Lord give us all a good year!

Brethren, pray for us!

H. S. JOHNS.

One of the most eminent and skillful specialists in the United States is the author of a great home medical work that every woman, whether young or old, should read. That physician is Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. This is one of the greatest medical institutions in the world. In his capacity as head of this institution, Dr. Pierce is surrounded by a staff of nearly a score of able physicians. With the assistance of this staff of physicians, during the past thirty years, Dr. Pierce has prescribed for many thousands of ailing women. His "Common Sense Medical Adviser" contains 1008 pages and over 300 illustrations. It contains several chapters devoted to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women. A paper-covered copy is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing, by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. French cloth binding 31 stamps.

Every woman should read it. It tells about a medicine that cures all disorders and irregularities from which women suffer. This medicine is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, stops debilitating drains and soothes pain. It is the greatest of all nerve tonics. In the "Medical Adviser" hundreds of women tell their experiences with this medicine. The "Favorite Prescription" is for sale by all good medicine dealers.

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to March, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full-year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

Our home is not this mortal clime,
Our life has not its bounds in time.
And death is but a cloud that lies
Between the soul and paradise.
—Exchange.

Distrust thyself ever to the last moment of life.—Selected.

Nature has placed nothing so high that virtue can not reach it.—Rufus.

The finest fruit earth holds up to its maker is a finished man.—Humboldt.

Be loving, and you will never want for love; be humble, and you will never want for guiding.—D. M. Mulock.

Nothing of worth or weight can be achieved with half a mind, with a faint heart, with a lame endeavor.—Barrow.

Are you building for eternity? The master mechanic may want to overlook your work one of these days.—Selected.

Nature has given to men one tongue, but two ears, that we may hear from others twice as much as we speak.—Epictetus.

Never fret about what you can not help, because it will not do you any good; never fret about what you can help, because if you can help it, do so.—Our Little Ones.

Religion can not pass away. Be not disturbed by infidelity. Religion can not pass away. The burning of a little straw may hide the stars, but the stars are there and will reappear.—Thomas Carlyle

One of the greatest blessings that could come to our churches would be the introduction of the rule of giving one-tenth to the cause of God. The tithe would add vastly to the income of all churches and of all denominational societies.—R. S. MacArthur.

The poisonous breath of alcohol passes over the home; it is the passage of death. Alcohol's hellish work goes beyond the drunkard's home. There is physical and moral contagion, other homes are smitten, and alcohol lifts up its sceptre within their enclosure.—Bishop John Ireland.

Overmuch religion is irreligious. Anyone who destroys health by fasting, or neglects home duties for church work, or makes people doubt his soundness of mind because of his wild extravagances in religious manifestations, has too much of wrong religion and too little of righteousness and Christian temperance.—Florida Advocate.

Elijah Brown, I think it is, has given a wonderfully true definition to character. Many people speak of a man's character as being what people say of him, but this writer has expressed it most aptly by saying, "Character is what a man is in the dark." I wish that statement could be impressed upon every young man as he enters life. It is in the lonely night watches that men become defaulters and deceivers; that is truly where the will's consent is obtained. The outward action is only a result of what the man is.—D. L. Moody.

A FORWARD MOVEMENT IN MISSIONS.

More and more it is becoming evident that the church that is not fully awake to the grand importance of helping to evangelize the world, and of enlarging its missionary operations, is doomed to stagnation and decay. Only as we endeavor to Christianize mankind do we show that we have in reality the mind of Christ, who came to save all, whose gospel is meant for all, and who commissions his disciples to go and teach all nations. It is not a work that we can slight with impunity, or that we can neglect without loss. If we, as a church, sow sparingly abroad, we shall reap sparingly at home as well as in the foreign field. If the supreme duty of the individual and of the church is not to assist diligently in the spread of the glorious gospel, then the New Testament is but a myth, and Christianity was meant only for a favored few. If we are not aggressive, enthusiastic and liberal in the work of Christianizing the world according to opportunity and ability, then "sin lieth at the door," for we are disobeying our marching orders, and are criminally deficient in love to those for whom Christ died. "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you," said Christ to the twelve, and his words apply with equal force to the church and to believers in all ages.

It is tremendously true that "the more gospel you export, the more you have for home consumption." Over and over again it has been demonstrated that "a Christianity which is not aggressive is regressive. A reclining church soon becomes a declining church."

It would be folly to assert that Southern Methodism is doing all she can do and all she ought to do for the evangelization of the heathen abroad and the semi-Christian at our doors. If but a third, or even a fourth, of our membership realized the degradation and dire need of the Christless millions, and felt the thrill of Christ's constraining love as those among us who are fully consecrated feel it, our missionary collections would be doubled and, perhaps, quadrupled.

Along with the territorial expansion of our country and our governmental guardianship over a number of fair and fertile islands come new political responsibilities and splendid commercial opportunities. But greater than all these are the obligations to and the opportunities for religious work in Cuba and other isles. Never before in the history of Christianity has there been such a providential occasion for a forward movement in missions as now opens up before the churches of Christendom, especially the Protestant denominations of America. Unless there is expansion of effort and of liberality on our part to meet the Macedonian calls that are coming to us from Cuba and other regions, we shall not be guiltless in the sight of God or man. We can not afford, for the sake of humanity or for the sake of our own welfare, to be indifferent to the changed conditions in heathen lands and to the "open doors" that everywhere invite us. Methodism must go forward and help to take those new lands for Christ, or be untrue to her past history.

Says the Rev. H. B. Somoillan, writing to the Review of Missions from Santiago de Cuba, where he has recently gone: "The people are hungry for the gospel, and I don't see how we can afford to let them starve. Oh, if we could only build a church in this city! The lot can be bought in a central location for about $2,000, and a comfortable and neat brick church would not cost more than $5,000. Why can't our grand church erect the first Protestant Church edifice on the Island of Cuba? Ten thousand dollars would build the church and support a missionary two years."

Chaplain R. N. Price, D. D., of the Holston Conference, who is now at Trinidad, Cuba, in an interesting letter to the Nashville Advocate a short time ago, wrote: "There is an open door here now for the Protestant Churches of America. Oppression and starvation have weakened the ties that bind native Cubans to the Papacy. Church and State will be divorced here, and Catholicism will be thrown upon its merits. The American churches, all of them, should send missionaries here at once. The gentleman who owns the house where the regimental officers mess is anxious to give land for a Protestant Church. He says he is a Catholic, but he wishes to be a Protestant. He was some years in America, and he likes our sort of religion. He says: 'In America it is God; in Cuba it is money.'" Nowhere are American missionaries surer of a hearty welcome and of opportunities for immediate service than in Cuba.

In Brazil, Mexico, and China, as well as in Cuba, the times are ripe for a forward movement in missionary enterprise. As the editor of the Central Methodist well says of China: "She is passing through the most eventful crisis of her history, and there are millions of Chinese who are ready to shake off the old fetters of an effete conservatism, and accept the freedom offered by a new and better civilization. They realize that Western civilization is Christian. Missionaries in that country say that thousands are inquiring about the Bible, and that there is a great demand for Western books. The missionary is regarded as the exponent of learning as well as of religion, and he has access to the people as never before. There are openings for hundreds of laborers in that field 'white to the harvest.'" To disregard such unparalleled opportunities is to disregard the voice of God. Let every Methodist pray with heart and hand and purse, "Thy kingdom come."

THE CANTEEN ABOLISHED.

During the discussion of the Army Reorganization Bill in Congress, a few days since, the following amendment was offered by Mr. Johnson, of North Dakota:

That no officer or private soldiers shall be detailed to sell intoxicating drinks as a bartender or otherwise in any post, exchange or canteen, nor shall any other person be required or allowed to sell such liquors in any encampment or fort or on any premises used for military purposes by the United States.

The amendment was agreed to without division. The chairman's announcement of its adoption was the signal for an outburst of applause.

This is a triumph for the right which will cause universal rejoicing among the friends of temperance. That this amendment should have been adopted without division, and that its adoption should have been greeted with a storm of applause from the galleries, is evidence of a growth of public sentiment in the right direction.

ANOTHER BATTLE.

As will be seen in our news column, there has been a battle of considerable dimensions between our forces and the Philippine insurgents. As was to be expected, the American army was victorious. Whether the insurgents will now capitulate, or whether an attempt will be made to carry on the war, is not yet known. The duty of the United States is plain. The Peace Treaty having been ratified, our government owes it to herself and to the civilized world to suppress the rebellion and establish order. The final disposition of the islands is a question for future consideration.

MISSIONARIES POISONED.

A Chinese cook recently poisoned our Chinese missionaries, Dr. J. B. Fearn and his wife, and a number of other persons, by putting arsenic in a can of baking powder. All parties who partook of the poison were made exceedingly sick, so that they expected to die, but all have recovered. A full account of the atrocious affair will appear in our next issue, the article having arrived too late for this issue. But for an attack of fever which delayed him, Bishop Wilson would have been with Dr. Fearn at that very time, and as he has passed the meridian of life, the poison in his case might have proved fatal.

WISDOM TRIUMPHS.

During the consideration of the Army Reorganization Bill, Mr. Cummings, of New York, offered an amendment prohibiting the use of troops to suppress riots in any State except upon application from the governor of the State. The amendment was defeated by a large majority. This was a triumph for the right. The people of every State should be protected from riotous mobs, and no semi-anarchist in a gubernatorial chair should be allowed to deprive them of that protection.

A QUESTIONABLE METHOD OF JOURNALISM.

The St. Louis Advocate is behind the times. Usually it keeps up with the procession, but it has fallen to the rear once in its life. It is evidently not aware of the fact that the writer of these lines was taken out of the pastorate of First Church, in this city, some months ago and placed in the editorial chair of the Texas Christian Advocate. As a result of this stupid ignorance, Dr. Palmore has addressed to us a circular marked "Personal and Confidential," which he has likewise sent, no doubt, to many other Texas preachers, in which he discloses a scheme for placing his paper in as many of the homes of our Texas people as possible. His purpose is to use the accredited agents of the Texas Advocate in his attempt to accomplish this result. In this confidential circular, he says:

"By the inclosed prospectus you will see our desire and hope to place a live church paper in every Methodist home. If you will co-operate with us we will make you the following offer, which is strictly confidential and limited to this last year of the century—1899.

"If you will canvass your flock and field thoroughly, for every new subscriber you get to the St. Louis Advocate at the regular cash price of $2 a year, we will give you one-half, or one dollar each. In no case must the subscriber be allowed to think the paper can be had at less than the regular price, except in clubs of six for $9."

There is a good deal more said in this circular about this scheme, but the above is enough to show its inwardness. Dr. Palmore starts out with the assumption that we are not in possession of "a live church paper" in Texas, and expresses a desire to supply the felt want among our people. Then he wants this plan to be worked in the strictest confidence. It must not be made public, and his reason for wanting to keep the thing private is not hard to divine. Having gone this far, his next step is to mislead the unwary subscriber. "In no case must the subscriber be allowed to think the paper can be had at less than its regular price," notwithstanding the fact that only one dollar is to go into the coffers of the St. Louis Advocate. This is virtually publishing the paper at one dollar a year—though "in no case must the subscriber" be let into this little secret. Now, for the past few months the St. Louis Advocate has been burning its cheeks with tears of deepest grief over the insincerity of a few other church officials; and for that and other reasons it is the last paper in which we had any right to expect anything but transparency in its dealings with the editorial brotherhood. Yet here is this champion of unvarnished sincerity, away down here in the Lone Star State, secretly trying to win over to its support, by confidentially offering them one dollar for each new subscriber sent in, the very men who are pledged by Conference action to the support of the Texas Christian Advocate! Now, we have not been in journalism very long, but if this is one of the tricks that we have to learn in order to make our career a success, we beg to be excused! Our "vocation" is of such a nature that our "avocation" will not permit that sort of sharp practice. So we now wish to inform Dr. Palmore that we are not in the pastorate, and it is not safe to put confidential literature into our hands when said literature contains a scheme to supplant the Texas Christian Advocate. We want to further inform him that it is the common impression that Texas has "a live church paper," as little as he is aware of that fact. And, in consolation, we want to add that Texas preachers can not be bought up by him to become his agents in circulating his paper in territory that belongs to their Conference organ. They are men of principle, and they can not be reached by that sort of inducement. If he wants that sort of work performed, let him go to work and hire some agents belonging to his own territory and send them openly down here to canvass for his paper, and we will then know exactly how to deal with his methods. Until he does something of that sort and ceases to do that which is indicated in his "personal and confidential" circular, his prating about the sincerity of other people will by-and-by make us just a little weary.—Texas Advocate, of Feb 2.

[The circular referred to has been sent to preachers in our patronizing territory, many of whom (to quote from a leader in one of our Conferences) "regard it as an impertinence that deserves public rebuke." For months Dr. Palmore has been severe in condemnation of Barbee & Smith, insisting that they should be removed from office, and even claiming that a cell in the penitentiary would be their proper place. Let it be noted that the charge against Barbee & Smith was deception. Well, granting the fact of deception, if it was a crime to deceive the U. S. Senate, is it any the less a crime to deceive thousands of unsuspecting Methodist people? No one has ever claimed that Barbee & Smith received personally one dollar of the War Claim money, or that they ever expected to do so. But Dr. Palmore deliberately asks preachers scattered over a number of States to unite with him in deceiving the people for his own benefit. We are anxious to see the Doctor's next philippic against Barbee & Smith, his next eulogy upon Nathaniel-like transparency of character and life. Shall we see it in next week? or shall we have to wait until a few moons have waxed and waned?]

HAS DENIED THE FAITH.

On April 2, 1739, John Wesley preached for the first time in England in the open air. About a month later (May 12th) the foundation was laid for his first "preaching-house." A month later (June) the corner-stone of Kingswood School was laid. Here are evangelism, organization, and education—the three great instrumentalities of Methodism for that time, this time, and all time. He who neglects evangelism, calling sinners to repentance, has denied the faith. He who neglects church organization and church building consents that the noblest things shall be wasted and weakened. He who neglects education adopts a policy which, if followed by all, would identify Methodism with ignorance and incompetency, and thus destroy it.—Bishop Candler, in Epworth Era.

THE URGENT NEED OF METHODISM.

The urgent need of Methodism to-day is not a million guineas, although I believe we shall get them; not a million new converts, we are not ready for them; but that we ourselves, and especially our ministers and lay officers, shall give ourselves afresh and more absolutely than ever to the service of God. We must return to first principles; we must recall our original vocation, which is to spread scriptural holiness throughout the world. I have had a growing conviction of this sort for the last ten years.—Hugh Price Hughes.

The officers of the American Sabbath Union, of New York city, who sent a letter to Gov. Roosevelt, soliciting his good offices in defense of the American Sabbath, have received this reply: "Permit me to express my hearty thanks for your petition, and to say that I think you can count on me in every struggle for morality and decency."—Central Methodist.

NOTES.

Dr. M. B. Chapman has resigned the editorship of the Central Methodist.

Rev. J. B. Kent, of the Louisiana Conference, has been quite ill, but is now convalescent.

Bishop Galloway has returned from Texas, but will soon begin an educational campaign in Virginia.

On account of his wife's health, Rev. R. S. Collier, of the Louisiana Conference, will make his home for a time in San Antonio, Texas.

Rev. J. S. Oakley is improving in health; but will not be ready for work for two or three weeks. His appointments are being filled by Rev. N. G. Augustus.

From a private letter from Rev. C. C. Wier, White Castle, La., we quote as follows: "Bro. Clifford was here for a week, and he did some very faithful preaching, resulting in the confirmation of believers, the reclamation of backsliders and the conversion of sinners."

The Magnolia Gazette speaks of a sermon preached by Dr. W. B. Murrah in the Presbyterian Church at Jackson, Miss., as exceedingly "eloquent, edifying and comforting."

Rev. B. H. Rawls, writing from Tylertown, Miss., under date of Feb. 3, 1899, says: "I have organized an excellent Epworth League since I returned from Conference in this place. Prospects good for a successful year."

Prof. Weber, of Millsaps College, has issued an appeal to the teachers and pupils of Mississippi for a fund to erect a memorial to the memory of the Mississippi poet, Irwin Russell. The form and site of the memorial are yet undetermined.

Rev. D. L. Cogdell, writing from Mt. Pleasant, Miss., says that the people have given him a most cordial reception. He has already put some important repairs upon the parsonage and expects soon to repaint both the parsonage and the church.

A newspaper in English is now published in Havana, with G. E. Bryson, formerly of the New York Journal, as editor and publisher; and, marvelous to tell, it is said to be doing well financially. Brother Jonathan is an energetic, enterprising individual.

Rev. W. J. Dawson, writing from Escatawpa, Miss., says that he has been very kindly received, and that he is pleased with the prospect for the year. He thinks the ADVOCATE improves with the years, and he expects to send in many new subscriptions.

Rev. H. H. Ahrens made a visit recently to Jackson, La., in the interest of the State Epworth League. He gives a glowing account of Centenary College. The pupils are studious and orderly in a remarkable degree. The attendance is about 130 and is constantly increasing.

From a letter from Rev. W. B. Van Valkenburgh, of the Louisiana Conference, we quote as follows: "Our new work moves hopefully forward. The Winfield people, after twenty years of service, have decided to repair and reseat their church. If any friends wish to help us out, any such favors will be appreciated and acknowledged."

The Board of Education of the M. E. Church, South, has started a monthly paper, entitled "New Century Education," the first issue of which appeared Feb. 1. It is edited by Dr. Hammond, our Secretary of Education. It has a field all its own, and we predict that it will be vastly serviceable to the great educational movement inaugurated by the last General Conference. The subscription price is only ten cents per annum.

On the evening of the first, at the Methodist Church at Hattiesburg, Miss., Mr. Seth Lamar Heidelburg, a prosperous merchant of Hattiesburg, was married to Miss Mattie Hawkins, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Gabriel Hawkins, of the Mississippi Conference. The happy pair left the same evening for Chattanooga and Nashville, whence they will also visit the bride's brother, Rev. Ira L. Hawkins, at Decatur, Ala. We extend hearty congratulations.

Under the aggressive leadership of Rev. G. P. White, the Methodists of St. Francisville, La., are struggling to complete their parsonage and to build a house of worship. Our membership there, however, is small, and its resources are meagre, so that the burden resting upon them is really beyond their strength. Those whom the Lord has prospered, and who wish to honor him with their substance, can do so by rendering aid to this praiseworthy enterprise.

Under the laws of Louisiana, as recently interpreted by the Supreme Court, all church property, except houses of worship, is subject to taxation. This includes parsonages, schools, colleges, etc. The ADVOCATE building belongs to the same category, and as the taxes must be paid for four years past, the entire income from rentals for the current year will go for taxes, thus depriving the widows and orphans of deceased preachers of any revenue from that source.

PUBLISHER'S NOTES.

We invite special attention to the advertisement of the Boston Dental Parlors in this issue. This firm has the patronage of leading professional and business men in this city, a number of whom have given testimonials as to the excellent character of its work. This we state as a matter of personal knowledge.

We invite the attention of our readers to the ad. of Frantz Bros. & Co., Jewelers. This firm has been in business in this city for a number of years, and has justly earned a reputation second to none for integrity, a fair-dealing and up-to-date business methods. Having had personal dealings with them, we take pleasure in commending them to the public.

A VISIT TO WATER VALLEY.

I have just returned from a visit to our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, Miss., where I carried two little orphan girls, Lulu and Christine Boren. This home is so much more than I expected to find that no words can express my appreciation of it. It is a home indeed—a home in the fine sense of what the word "home" signifies. How I wish every Methodist in the State would visit this Home!

Bro. M L. Burton, that unique man of God, met and conveyed us from depot, one mile away, to the Home, situated upon the brow of a beautiful little hill east of the railroad. He took pleasure in conducting us all through the different departments, everything as neat as the neatest of neatness. Bro. Burton, no doubt, is the right man in the right place, and will do a work here that Heaven will smile upon.

I also met that grand man of God, Rev. H. C. Morehead, presiding elder of Grenada district. Bro. Morehead is a pleasant and sweet-spirited man. No wonder the church thrives in that district under the supervision of such a man as he. I also met the good and noble pastor of Main Street Church, Rev. H. P. Gibbs, who is doing faithful work there. I also met and dined with the great, the immortal Rev. W. S. Lagrone, pastor of Wood Street Church. Bro. Lagrone was my pastor in my boyhood, twenty-five long years ago, and he can truly be called one of the true heroes of North Mississippi Methodism, serving the church as pastor and presiding elder. A nobler heart never throbed in a breast than that of William S. Lagrone, whose hair is beginning to grey, but he has lost none of that natural power that has characterized him all these years.

I came home, thanking God in my heart for such grand men of his who have and will continue to hold the church up until all the great battles have been fought with them and the last victory has been won, then lay down their arms on earth and receive a crown in heaven.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Harriston, Miss., deserves honorable mention. In spite of her sore affliction by yellow fever, she not only paid all her church dues last year, but has already paid one-fourth of an increased assessment for this year. No place in the district is [illegible] more in proportion to ability.

They will hold a memorial service next Sunday in commemoration of all who died of yellow fever there last year.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

The probable date for Crowley will be May 11.

Let the Louisiana Leaguers look that way, and pray and work for a great gathering.

Let not Louisiana be behind in the training of her young soldiers for active service.

A young lady—a member of the Whitecastle, La., League—who was converted in a recent meeting was baptized last Sunday evening at the regular devotional meeting of the Chapter, just before the preaching service.

It was our pleasure to meet recently Bro. H. H. Ahrens, State president of the Louisiana Leagues. Bro. Ahrens represents the Southern Pacific railroad, and is doing everything in his power to stir up an interest in the Crowley meeting.

The citizens of Crowley propose to do big things for the Leaguers. They are asking for a good programme, and are willing to "foot all bills" the committee may deem proper for them to settle.

We appreciate an invitation to attend the Arcadia District Epworth League Conference, to be held at Arcadia, La., March 22, 23, 24.

The Columbus District Epworth League Conference meets at Starkville, Miss., Feb. 23 24.

Brother pastor, will you not help this editor? Send in a postal-card report of the state of your League. If no news, ask a question; if too hard for this scribe, he will readily acknowledge his inability.

Our people at Whitecastle, La., have no church-building of their own, but they have a good League, and take ten copies of the Epworth Era.

Be careful what you read, and do not believe everything you do read. Some time ago a Philadelphia paper stated that President McKinley drank champagne at a banquet. A gentleman who was present read the announcement and denied it. The paper in question then acknowledged that the item was copied from a New York paper.

If the New York man had been interviewed, I suppose he would have said that he also copied from some other paper. And thus the name of a good man is often used in connection with some inconsistency for which he is not responsible.

"He who steals my purse steals trash,
But he who robs me of my good name
Takes from me that which enriches him not,
But makes me poor indeed."

We hope the Leaguers of Louisiana and Mississippi observed the "day of prayer for colleges." Dr. J. M. Buckley, in the New York Christian Advocate, of Jan. 26, refers to the above in an editorial headed, "Pray for the Coming Centers of Influence."

Let every Christian man and woman who may read these lines pray for the men and women who now have charge of the young men and women of our Methodism in the Christian colleges under our fostering care.

Let every League chapter resolve itself into a "college agent" to canvass in the immediate neighborhood for boys and girls for our own church schools. Eternity alone can record the results.

The Epworth League Union is postponed, and will be held at Dryades Street M. E. Church, South, Tuesday, Feb. 21

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Louisiana Conference:

Since some of the brethren have written to me with reference to the Sunday-school Fund, desiring aid, I take this way of answering their letters:

Bro. J. I. Hoffpauir was elected the president at the last Annual Conference, and all applications for aid for schools, for Children's Day programs, for song books, Bibles, etc., should be sent to him at his postoffice, Greensburg, La. Respectfully,

JNO. F. FOSTER.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1 50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the changes of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

WHAT STATISTICS HAVE PROVEN!

What Medical Science Has Accomplished.

THIS GREAT DISCOVERY IS OFFERED FREE TO "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" READERS.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

Kidney trouble is in itself so insidious and deceptive that thousands have some form of it and never suspect it.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made. Doctor Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proved such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" who have not already tried it, may have a free sample bottle of Swamp-Root and thus test for themselves its wonderful curative properties.

If you will send your name and full address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., a sample bottle will be sent, absolutely free by mail post-paid, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from people who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root.

Home Circle.

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

BY KATE J. FIELD.

They talk about a "woman's sphere"—
As though it had a limit!
There's not a place in earth or heaven,
There's not a task to mankind given,
There's not a blessing or a woe,
There's not a whispered "yes" or "no,"
There's not a life, a death, a birth,
There's not a feather's weight of worth,
Without a woman in it.

WOMAN AND THE HOME.

Here is a greeting for those at home—the home which many of us possess, some of us have missed, but for which each of us longs. The wretch who makes the doorstep his bed does not desire it more than many a luxurious wanderer in foreign lands, whose very prosperity, it may be, has divorced him from the place he called by that dear name. The child who strays from the familiar doorsteps till he finds it again; the man who leaves it feels himself a suppliant to Fate till he can once more speak the word "my home"; and to the woman it is a concomitant of life. Deprived of it, she misses her best happiness and her finest digestion. Even her beauty suffers, and it is true (is it not?) that part of a woman's loveliness lies in her environment, and that in her chosen and fit surroundings she has a charm which is lacking when she is otherwhere. Home is, moreover, her field of achievement; her position around the [illegible] she properly tests her strength and her abilities, as men test themselves in business or in battle. However brilliantly she may succeed elsewhere and in other things, if she does not succeed at home, she is, in a sense, a failure, nor will her heart let her deny this fact, however passionately she may protest against it.

True, many women are deprived of a home through no fault of their own. Such may lament their deprivation, but they have nothing for which to blame themselves, and many of them, it would seem, from the atmosphere they create wherever they are, keep a home in their hearts. They have no roof of their own to which they may bid their friends welcome, yet their smile is a hospitality and their sympathy a sort of benediction. Home is, after all, a condition of mind, and so it may be logical, though the conclusion was reached circuitously, to reiterate that the woman who does not succeed at home is, in a sense, a failure, however distinguished she may become.

The time has passed, to be sure, when a woman must needs have a home and a husband in order to hold the respect and admiration of her friends; she can now live her own life in any honorable fashion she chooses, and will be granted more or less ungrudgingly all she can win for herself in the way of place, honor, and emolument. But the time will never pass when home will not be her best seat of endeavor, or when she will cease to be most gratefully regarded there.

The sweetest part of all this is, that the happiness which men and children derive from the home is exceeded by the joy the woman has in conferring it. She feels, with a delicacy and delight beyond theirs, the full spiritual significance of the word "home," though it is undeniable that she sometimes devotes herself to those immediately belonging to it, to the exclusion of others near at hand who perish for lack of its hospitality.—Self-Culture.

THE PACE THAT KILLS.

In looking up a word in the dictionary several days ago my eyes fell on the definition of "emulation"—"the act of attempting to equal or excel in qualities or actions; rivalry; desire of superiority, attended with effort to attain it."

Only the evening before we had been talking about a little woman who was once pretty, but now has a harassed and anxious expression of countenance.

"What is the matter with her?" asked one. It was a physician who answered:

"She has no disease. She is wearing herself to death by emulation of other people. The strain will kill her if she keeps it up. Nobody in this world can stay first."

His words and the dictionary definition set me to thinking. Are not many women killing themselves by this same process? And how drearily unprofitable it all is, when one considers the truth of the physician's statement that "nobody in this world can stay first"!

Nobody! For, strive as we may, there is always some one with a little more money, a handsomer house, more influence, or perhaps more brains. There is merit in the desire to make the best of ourselves and of the talents given us. There is no credit due her who, because of "a desire for superiority" over another, wears herself out in attempting to do that which she can not perform. Is this not one reason for the nervous, anxious look on the faces of our American women? They strive to dress as well as neighbors with double their income; they give entertainments that empty the never-too-full purse, and they buy furniture for which they can only pay by rigid self-denial.

Were we only content as women to do just that which we can easily afford, how much more peaceful our lives would be, how much better our children, how much more care-free and youthful our men—these American husbands, the best in the world, who can not bear to have their wives long for things that by an additional strain they might give them. And would not our lives be longer in the land?—Harper's Bazar.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

FAMILIARITY WITH THE BIBLE.

The late Dr. S. F. Smith, at one time in his early life professor in Colby University, showed himself equal to the occasion. The president of the college was accustomed to conduct each morning the chapel worship, but being ill for several days, he requested Dr. Smith to lead the service. The students, not knowing his great memory for exact biblical history, thought they would have a little fun at the expense of the youthful professor, and spirited the Bible away from the chapel pulpit. Dr. Smith took in the situation, and losing no time in looking for the hidden book, repeated from memory an entire chapter. The next day, the Bible still not appearing, the doctor repeated another chapter from memory. On the third morning, there being no Bible on the desk, he repeated a longer chapter, without apparently noticing the absence of the book. On the fourth morning, the Bible still in its hiding place, the professor thought he would be even with the boys, and repeated entirely from memory seventy-one verses from one of the longest chapters in the Gospel of Luke. He spoke with great deliberation, taking very much more time than was usually allotted to Bible-reading. The students found that Dr. Smith was too much for them, and suspended further operations. Not a word was said, but the Bible reappeared next day on the desk.—The Evangelist.

THE ART OF NOT HEARING.

The art of not hearing should be learned by all. There are so many things which it is painful to hear, very many which, if heard, will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness. If a man falls into a violent passion and calls all manner of names, at the first words we should shut our ears and hear no more. If in a quiet voyage of life we find ourselves caught in one of those domestic whirlwinds of scolding, we should shut our ears as a sailor would furl his sail, and, making all tight, scud before the gale. If a hot, restless man begins to inflame our feelings, we should consider what mischief the fiery sparks may do in our magazine below, where our temper is kept, and instantly close the door. If all the petty things said of a man by heedless and ill-natured idlers were brought home to him, he would become a mere walking pincushion stuck full of sharp remarks. If we would be happy, when among good men we should open our ears; when among bad men, shut them. It is not worth while to hear what our neighbors say about our children, what our rivals say about our business, our dress, or our affairs.—New York Ledger.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

Again, it was but a little while ago a lady was speaking of the gentle manner and unusual ability in entertaining shown by a young gentleman who had recently come into the community.

"Oh, well," said a friend, "I'll tell you where he learned his ease and acquired such finished manners; he grew up with a lot of sisters, and they always depended on him to help them when they had company, and they consulted him about their fancy work and the arrangement of the room or tea-table, just as if he were another girl."

According to the New York World, the six richest women in the world with the amounts of their fortunes are: Isidera Consino, $200,000,000; Hetty Green, $50,000,000; Baroness Burdett-Coutts, $20,000,000; Mme. Barrios, $15,000,000; Mary Garrett, $10,000,000, and Mrs. Woleska, $10,000,000.

"Let your aim be high. Let some great object fire your whole being. Our country holds out a thousand situations which you might fill honorably. Seek to be such that the present generation and all posterity will hold you in the sweetest remembrance."

Hygiene.

HEADACHE POWDERS CONDEMNED.

A word of warning has been issued with regard to the indiscriminate use of headache powders, to which so many people fly for relief during the dog days. In his quarterly report on the health of the Borough of Chorley, Lancashire, Dr. J. A. Harris, the medical officer for the district, calls attention to the sale and purchase of these remedies. He states that under his direction the county police obtained six or seven samples from different shops in the town, and had them submitted to analysis. In every case the quantity of the active ingredients was found to be in excess of the maximum dose of the drug allowed in the British Pharmacopœia. The subject was brought up and discussed at the recent British Medical Congress at Edinburgh, and there was a general consensus of opinion that these drugs required to be handled with the greatest possible care, and that a slight error of judgment with regard to a dose might be followed by disastrous results.—London News.

Sick headache is often caused by eating too much and too rich food, and too little exercise. Substitute a simple, plain meal and a dessert of fruit for so much meat and so many rich dishes, followed by rich pastries and puddings, gravies, and cake, and earn what you eat "by the sweat of the brow," and you will have less headaches and other disorders. Nature abhors lazy folks, and still more, laziness accompanied by gormandizing. They whose work is sedentary do not require so much food as hod-carriers, and they can not digest such rich food.—Selected.

The King of Greece has an odd way of spending some of the Summer months. He turns farmer, and works as hard as though he were a land laborer. He can plow a field, cut and bind corn; in short, keep a farm going from start to finish, as though it were his livelihood.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT, Malaria creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BLOODY URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste that children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun; brings as a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living.

Too Evident Dentistry.

We make crowns and bridge work without the least show of gold when desired. This work is extremely natural in appearance, as all gold is hidden by porcelain matching the tooth in color, giving no hint of gold band or crown attachments. This feature is highly appreciated, particularly by dainty women who abhor TOO EVIDENT DENTISTRY. Good dentistry preserves and improves the expression, particularly of the mouth, makes eating a pleasure and should—to insure the best results—be quite painless.

We guarantee to fill, treat, crown or extract teeth without pain.

Our offices are the most elegant and perfectly equipped in the South. Our operators are men of skill and integrity, who will be pleased to examine your teeth and advise without charge, even if you are not ready to have work done. Call and let us show you some of the devices owned and controlled by us that enable us to do the HIGHEST CLASS of work at prices usually asked for barely average dentistry.

Beautiful set of the best teeth made to restore or improve the expression and warranted to fit,

$10.00,

And your teeth extracted free, absolutely without pain.

Gold and Porcelain Crowns and Bridges (teeth without plates), either permanently adjusted or the removable kind,

$3 AND $5 PER TOOTH.

Every case of feature restoration, etc., is considered confidential, and it is not necessary to meet anyone but the operator and lady attendant in either consulting or operating rooms.

OBITUARIES.

WILSON—BRYANT and WALTER WILSON, aged twenty-six and twenty-eight years.

Bryant and Walter, the only two brothers in a family of seven children, were called from labor to reward in November, 1898, near the same time; Walter on the eleventh, and Bryant on the nineteenth, following. Being raised to love the Lord, they made the good choice early in life, and had for several years been members of the Methodist Church. They were noble young men, such as any parents should be proud of. Bryant, the older, had been in Texas for several years, engaged in the mercantile business; but for some time has been suffering with pulmonary consumption. He spent a part of 1898 in traveling for his health. Realizing in the Fall that his end was near he returned home that he might spend his last days with the family. Walter had been faithfully waiting at the bed-side of his sick brother when, with but slight notice, he was seized with a severe chill, and for a few days suffered most intensely, but bore it patiently. On Friday night, just before he died, while passing through the valley of the shadow of death, not alone, but led by the angel of light, he was heard to say, "The way is clear."

O may I triumph so
When all my warfare's passed,
And dying, find my latest foe
Beneath my feet at last!"

He was interred at Bethel Church on the thirteenth. Bryant, who survived his brother only a few days, passed away on the nineteenth, and was buried beside his brother on the twentieth, at which time the writer preached the funeral of both.

May the angel that bore them away comfort the sorrowing family until some sweet day in that bright city above, they meet their loved ones and make an unbroken family in the kingdom of heaven! J. J. GARNER, Pastor.

SMALLWOOD—JOHN A. SMALLWOOD, one of the best men I ever knew, died in great peace at his home in New Albany, Miss., Dec. 12 1898. The following day we held his funeral service, and buried him at Ebenezer Church, near Cotton Plant. He had lived forty-two years; had been married twenty years to a day. His very excellent wife and promising children deeply mourn his "untimely death." In the business circle he was wise, prudent, industrious, kindly firm, and the servant of integrity. He was a model merchant, a success in the lumber business, and the capital president of the bank in his growing town. He commanded the respect and the implicit confidence of all who knew him. He despised petty niggardly ways and acts. "Live the truth in all things" was his purpose. Indomitable energy was one of his chief characteristics. Idleness is a sin that found no lurking place about him. The doctrines of the Methodist Church were wholly and heartily endorsed by him, and he liberally supported her institutions. When seventeen years of age he earnestly knocked at her door for membership, willingly took her vows, and continued a very useful member until called higher.

Our increasing, developing church at New Albany has lost an active, influential, fruitful worker in every department—a really good steward. We treasure his memory as an affable Christian gentleman, a warm friend, thoughtful husband, affectionately concerned father, and a man who builds up the country. God graciously bless his precious memory to loved ones and friends. May his noble example be emulated by many! Oh, how he will be missed! The richest mercy of God rest upon and abide with the sweet home he made and left. J. M. WYATT.

Aberdeen, Miss.

SMITH—CLARK LANGFORD SMITH, son of J. D. Smith, of Tryus, Miss., was born June 7, 1881, and died of pneumonia Jan. 18, 1899. He was always a good boy, in the general sense; and, besides, about four years ago he was converted and joined the church. He was a pious and faithful member. His was a very triumphant death. He was conscious of the end, and bade those present an affectionate goodby. He was named for Rev. D. C. Langford, who baptized him in his infancy. May God's grace comfort the sorrowing ones!

C. MCDONALD.

Tryus, Miss.

KEENE—MRS. STEELE KEENE (nee Smith) was born March 18, 1851; joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of fifteen; lived a happy, consistent Christian nearly thirty years, and died Jan 25, 1899.

It has not been our lot to witness a sadder scene than was the funeral service held at Pisgah Church, where Sister Keene had lived and was buried. The unusually large concourse of mourners bore living testimony, with dampened eye and bleeding heart, to the high esteem in which she was held by her numerous relatives and friends. Such tribute as was paid her is worth living and dying to receive.

Her only expressed regret, when the subject of death was mentioned, was of so sorely grieving her family. She met the end bravely, saying she was safe and ready.

To the dear ones who mourn her loss we recommend the abiding grace divine, so truly embraced by her, your sure and only strength in these surging hours. And though your loving hands could not slake the burning thirst or cool the parching fever, yet now she awaits your coming inside the pearly gate beside the ever-flowing river of life that proceedeth from the throne. She can not come to you, but you can go to her. HER PASTOR.

Chester, Miss.

FORD—CARL FORD was born June 2, 1885, in Homer, La., and died Oct. 13, 1898.

It was the pleasure of the writer to be associated with Carl in the relation of teacher to pupil. It was never our pleasure, our experience, to teach a pupil of greater promise. His powers, for his age, were wonderful, and had he lived, must, in the years to come, have become a useful servant to his community.

For one so young his Christian experience was beautiful indeed. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of ten years. He lived up to his privileges as a servant of Christ, and in time must have become a great power for good. To ponder over the Word of God was his delight, and especially did he love the study of Revelations.

But it was in his home that his life shone brightest. He was a comfort and cheer to his parents and relatives. Ever thoughtful of others, he never failed to do a kind turn, to relieve "mama" of an unnecessary step, or to run an errand for "papa." His place can not be filled, and ever after there must be a void; but he has gone to a brighter reward, to "the house" not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. LONAM S. JOHNSTON.

BRACEY—MRS. JOSIE JOHNSON BRACEY, wife of Mr. Joe M. Bracey, and daughter of Dr. Harvey and Mrs. Margaret Johnson, was born at Raymond, Miss., the ninth day of May, 1861, and died in Little Rock, Ark., the ninth day of January, 1899. She moved with the family to Arkansas in 1886, where she has since resided. She was very intelligent, genial and good, and made many friends. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life. She grew to be a strong Christian character. She manifested great patience, fortitude and resignation through a long sickness, and in great peace passed to her reward, leaving a devoted husband, three loving children, a mother, sisters and brothers to join her in the sweet by-and-by. May the Divine Comforter sustain and keep them to the end!

In loving sympathy, A. O. EVANS, Pastor.

Little Rock, Ark.

BARNES—MRS. MISSOURI KIRK BARNES, wife of P. L. Barnes, died at Gulfport, Miss., Jan. 2, 1899, aged fifty-four years. She was born in Hardeman county, Tenn., and was converted at the age of thirteen.

It was the privilege of the writer to be with her a few hours before her death. Her face was radiant as she told me she was peacefully trusting in Him who had conquered death and the grave. She told her sister a short while before passing away that she saw Jesus so bright and beautiful, and expressed surprise that she could not see him, too. She said that he had washed her in his blood, and that she was so happy. She left a blessing for her husband and children and sister, praying that they all might meet in heaven, and with this grand testimony to the comforting and sustaining power of the Savior as her soul was on the eve of its departure from earthly scenes, she sweetly fell on sleep. C. F. ENERY.

PAQUINETT—The subject of this notice, B. H. PAQUINETT, was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., July 4 1829; married Feb. 13 1873, and died at Natchez, Miss., Jan. 8, 1899.

Early in life he joined the Methodist Church at Bethel Church, in the above-named county. The last years of his life were days of suffering, which confined him to his bed, and, doubtless, prepared him fully for the "Well done, good and faithful servant!"

T. H. H.

JETER—On the ninth of October, 1898, the spirit of Bro. W. H. JETER left us. In early life he resided in Franklin county, but after the war of secession he moved to the city of Natchez and engaged in the boarding-house business. In 1851 he was married to Miss Anna J. Cobb. Of him it may be written that he "served his day and generation, and fell on sleep." T. B. H.

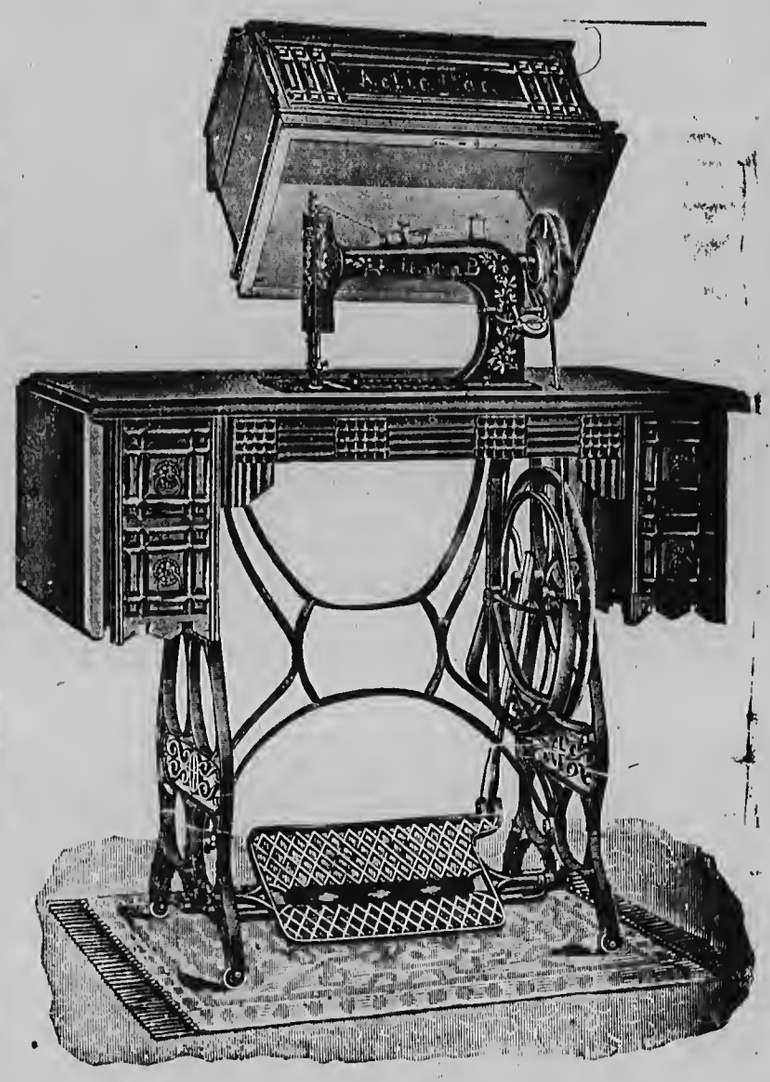
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one guage, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.
To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.
We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

MISS ELLA V. HAINES, Box 34 Springfield Ohio.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The several committees engaged in creating a State Fair to be held in this city next Spring have been working with commendable energy and intelligence, and have accomplished a very great deal.

A Chicago tailor the other day sent out a thousand checks, each drawn for two cents, as an advertisement. But the collector of internal revenue has decided that he will have to put a 2-cent stamp on each of them.

The Czar, who recently gave 500,000 rubles (about $250,000) from his private purse for the relief of the peasantry who are suffering from famine, has now given 1,000,000 rubles ($500,000) more for the same purpose.

Lieutenant Governor Crane, of Massachusetts, has become interested in the work of the Boston "slum missions," and the other night, accompanied by Ex-Mayor Curtis and a superintendent of police, he made a complete tour of the poorest quarters of the Hub.

A movement has been inaugurated looking to the securing from Congress of an appropriation for the construction of a postoffice building in this city. The local postmaster and his assistant are active workers in this movement, and the Board of Trade has also promised its co-operation.

The Peace Treaty was ratified on Feb. 6. One more vote than was needed was cast in its favor. Senators McEnery and McLaurin joined the majority at the last moment, when the Treaty seemed defeated. Senator Jones, of Nevada, also voted for ratification. Secretary Hay will notify Spain of the action of the Senate.

Rear Admiral Dewey has notified the Navy Department that he has seized another schooner loaded with arms and ammunition intended for Aguinaldo and his followers. Information in the possession of the authorities is to the effect that the German consul at Hong Kong was concerned in the sale of the arms to the Filipinos, and this fact may account for their action in keeping the matter a secret.

Instructions have been sent to Major-General Otis directing him to follow up his victory over the insurgents and to crush the power of Aguinaldo in the Philippines. This was the decision reached at an important Cabinet meeting held at the White House, which was attended by the President, Secretary Hay, Secretary Alger, Attorney-General Griggs and Adjutant-General Corbin.

A bill is to be introduced in the New York Legislature to create a censor of public amusements and exhibitions. Senator Grady, who will introduce the bill, declares that too many of the theatrical performances in New York City are degrading and immoral, and ought to be prevented. He proposes that the censor shall, eight days before any new performance is given, receive a copy of the play or a description of the proposed entertainment, and can then permit or forbid the performance.

Secretary Alger has cabled to Major-General Brooke directing him to communicate with the commanding officers of the Cuban departments and inform the War Department of the number of troops which can be spared from the island after next month. This action is preliminary to the inauguration by the administration of its proposed policy to leave the island practically in the hands of the Cubans. Before adopting it, however, the President wishes to ascertain the views of General Brooke and his subordinate commanders, who, being on the ground, will be able to report the conditions existing in their respective departments, and whether in their opinion it would be advisable to reduce the force of United States troops.

Defeated in a desperate effort to break through the American lines and enter the city of Manila, the insurgent forces, after fourteen hours of continuous fighting, have been driven from the villages of Santa Anna, Paco and Santa Mesa. They have been compelled to retreat to a position quite a distance further out in the suburbs than the one they held before attacking the city. Although it has been impossible thus far to accurately estimate the number of Americans who fell, it is believed that few of our men were killed and upward of fifty have been wounded. The losses of the insurgents are heavy, the American troops having gone into the engagement with great enthusiasm and determination.

Careful estimates place the Filipino losses up to date at 2000 dead, 3500 wounded and 5000 taken prisoners.

Several of the vessels in Admiral Dewey's squadron participated in the fight, firing on the natives in Malate and Coloacan, and succeeded in driving them inland from both those places.

This engagement was brought about by three native scouts, who, advancing close to the American lines near Santa Mesa, made a feint to go through. One of the natives was killed and another wounded. This affair was followed at nine o'clock by a general attack on the American outposts. The insurgents advanced all along the line from Coloncau to Santa Mesa.

CATARRH AND CONSUMPTION

I have spent nearly fifty years in the treatment of the above named diseases, and believe I have effected more genuine cures than any specialist in the history of medicine. As I must soon retire from active life I will, from this time on, send the means of treatment and cure, as used in my practice, FREE and post-paid to every reader of this paper who suffers from these annoying and dangerous diseases. This is a sincere offer which anyone is free to accept. Address, Prof. J. H. Lawrence, 114 W. 32d St., New York

FREE

A positive, quick and lasting cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Poor Blood, Rheumatism, Corpulency, etc. Thousands of testimonials from grateful people who have been cured. We send the Medicine free and post-paid. You Save Doctors' bills and get well. Good Agents wanted. Write to-day. Address EGYPTIAN DRUG CO., Box O, New York.

NOTICE.

Three pastors report that the Roll Books have not reached them. This fact indicates their interest in this work. Indeed, they evidence their interest by saying, "I would be very glad to have the Roll Book;" "I will gladly co-operate to the extent of my ability," etc. This is encouraging. Books have been sent to these brethren. If any others have not received the books sent them, a postal card to me will supply them at once.

J. R. BINGHAM, Secretary.

ORGAN

IF YOU need an organ for home or church, write us for catalog of Epworth Organs. No matter where you live or what organ you have in mind to buy, or what price you expect to pay, we want you to have our catalog. It explains many things about making organs and about buying organs important for you to know. You want the best toned, best made organ that you can get for the price you pay, and you want to make sure that you will be fully suited. That's just the kind of organs we make—and the very way we deal.

We make sixteen styles (parlor and church) at the following factory price: $40—$45—$58—$63—$73—$85—$100—$131, etc. No money need be sent us until organ arrives and is found satisfactory (sometimes we grant time on part of the price if our customer desires).

WRITE TO-DAY for catalog. If you want time on part, tell us about it. If you can pay cash, tell us that. No harm in telling us frankly what you want. There may be good in it.

PAINT TALKS—XIII.

PAINT AS AN INVESTMENT.

In the whole field of domestic economy there is nothing that yields better returns to the property owner than paint. Paint costs less than repairs and paint avoids the necessity of making repairs.

All of the wood work of the house, including the roof, should be protected by paint, obviating the necessity of constant repairs and making the material covered practically indestructible by the ordinary action of the elements, while increasing the renting or selling value of the house by making it attractive.

The sanitary value of good paint is also very great, as it preserves a smooth and impervious surface on which disease-breeding microbes can find no lodgment. This is an important reason why the walls of living and sleeping rooms should be covered with paint instead of paper. Besides, a painted surface remains cleaner and more wholesome than paper, as it can be washed and disinfected without injuring it.

Paint and plenty of it is always a profitable investment, particularly if the paint be a durable one. The combination paints based on zinc white are the most durable, and as they usually contain a larger bulk of paint and cost less per pound than pure white lead paints, there is double economy in their use. A properly compounded zinc combination containing only pure linseed oil and the necessary driers, will usually stand in excellent condition for eight to twelve years without requiring renewal, and one coat at the end of that time will put it in its original condition. A pure lead and oil paint will have deteriorated after standing a year; it will need renewal within three years, and if let stand five or eight years without renewal, will require two coats to put it in good condition.

The addition of twenty per cent. of zinc to the last coat of the original work will retard this deterioration to some extent; but a good combination paint containing a fair proportion of zinc white thoroughly incorporated with lead or barytes or both in pure linseed oil is preferable and will prove the best investment the owner can put into his property.

MUL-EN-OL.

Makes cuts, wounds and bruises heal;
Undertakes to kill germs and succeeds;
Liberates mankind from aches and ills of all sorts;
Earns a place in every house by its efficiency in emergency cases;
Needs no recommendation after the first trial.
Offers prompt relief for stomach troubles;
Lives in one's memory as the conqueror of pain.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wineglass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE SPANISH WAR.

BY REV. J. A PARKER, D D.

It is not often that the officials of the Romish Church speak out in plain words, and tell the world in plain, undiplomatic language what they have done, and what they purpose doing in the future; yet, according to the Times-Democrat, of Feb. 8, 1899, Cardinal Gibbons, "the primacy of honor of the Catholic Church in the United States," has crawled out of his Jesuit shell and spoken to the people in unmistakable terms.

The attitude of the Catholic Church anent America's new possessions is no longer a matter of doubt. "The primacy of honor" of that church in the United States has set all speculation at rest.

There are a number of admissions by this primate of honor—the real head of the Catholic Church in the United States—which, to most Americans, will bring a blush, and among them at least one which should make every liberty-loving citizen of a free country blush in very shame.

Take this for an example: "During the Cuban war . . . vast sums of money were, in this way, loaned the Spanish crown which have not been refunded."

How does this strike the reader at the dawn of the twentieth century? An organization claiming ecclesiasticism in a most superlative sense receives money of which the people whom it claims to serve have been ruthlessly and wrecklessly robbed, and "loans" that money to a nation for the purpose of enabling it to continue its robbery of those people, and to strengthen the fetters of a most abject and degrading slavery—slavery under two masters: one over the conscience, and one over the bodies of the victim!

"VAST SUMS OF MONEY"

loaned by the Catholic Church to Spain for the purpose of keeping Cuba and Porto Rico in bondage to the Spanish crown and the Catholic Church!

These "vast sums of money loaned the Spanish crown have not been refunded," and in view of the utter bankruptcy of Spain, it is a question as to where this money is to come from.

THE UNITED STATES

or Spain must, one or the other, refund these "vast sums of money." Cardinal Gibbons said to the Times-Democrat reporter: "The collection of this debt due the church has become a serious matter, and the passiveness on the part of the Spaniards, or their inability to make payment, has given the Bishops food for serious thought."

This is the plan outlined by the cardinal after "serious thought." It will "be necessary to convene the representatives of the United States and Spanish Governments and of the church, and in this way define the debt and devise the means of payment."

"From which of the two governments the money will come," says the reporter, "the cardinal could not say; but as the debt is of Spain's making, Spain will be looked to for payment."

Here is a little of the usual Jesuitical diplomacy. The cardinal evidently looks to Spain as the principal in the loan of "vast sums of money," and to

THE UNITED STATES AS SECURITY.

"From which of the two governments" this money is ultimately to come "the cardinal could not say."

If the Catholic Church does not foster a design to bring about some complications by which the United States is to refund to the church "these vast sums of money," why does the cardinal not know "which of the two governments" is to pay this money? Spain could not pay it if she would, and likely will not if she can.

"The representatives of the United States," as such, have not, and can not have, any interest in this business.

In this interview Cardinal Gibbons says, "The church, even though possessing much valuable property, the gifts of the State and the bequests of private individuals, now feels the need of ready money greatly." It is worth while to inquire into these "gifts of the State," and ascertain when "these gifts of the State" were made.

It is currently reported, and generally believed, that the foulest theft of Spain—the greatest robbery of the Cubans—was in the gift of State property to the church in Cuba and Porto Rico. Will the same condition of things be found in the Philippines?

It may be possible, in the light of what Cardinal Gibbons has revealed of the purpose of the Catholic Church to demand "vast sums of money"

FROM THE UNITED STATES, to account for the co-operation of Spanish subjects and foreign potentates ("in their private relations") with natives of the Philippines during an armistice with Spain.

It is everywhere known that the sympathies of the Pope of Rome have all along been for his Spanish subjects, and against his insular subjects. It is further well known that while almost all Catholic countries (professedly neutral) were technically abstaining from interference during the progress of the war, the press of those Catholic countries were, in every way at their command, by misrepresentations of the American side, and exaggerations of the Spanish side especially, aiding and abetting the Spanish side.

Moreover, all know that from the "Maine incident" to the signing of the protocol the Pope was constantly seeking to intermeddle in the great question at issue between Spain and the United States. That his interest was partial, and not prompted by a sense of "godly fear," is perfectly clear in the light of his conduct. He "blessed the arms of Spain," which were crushing more than a million of Catholics in Cuba, leaving them to their fate more horrid than the fire and fagots of the sixteenth century. Not only this. The church of which he is the acknowledged head "loaned vast sums of money" to Spain—money, every dollar of which he could have controlled otherwise—for the purpose of defending revenues to the church obtained through Spanish authority by the wreckless slaughter of tens of thousands of his poor and helpless subjects, who, under the unendurable weight of their infelicitous and bonds, were crying for freedom. The cry of these poor victims of papal and regal oppression reached the ears of the liberty-loving sons of America, who, like a convoy of heaven-sent rescuers, hastened to the scene of suffering to cut the slavish fetters which bound the oppressed.

Now that these fetters are broken and the borrowing task-master is crushed, he whose "vast sums of money" were turned against the conqueror, and on account of which the struggle was prolonged and made more terrible, turns now to the victor against whom all these "vast sums" were piled up, and, with a complacency more than satanic, asks that he whose ruin was intended by the "loan of these vast sums of money" be so good as to pay the money back. Was ever folly so foolish, or cheek so cheeky?

It is hard to believe a man of Cardinal Gibbons' gifts of mind would attempt to ask the for money loaned Spain for purposes of oppression of a people, in order that the church might retain its grasp on money extorted from the oppressed. Yet, what means the ominous words, "Convene the representatives of the United States and the Spanish Governments and of the church, and in this way define the debt and devise the means of payment"?

Cardinal Gibbons has been long enough in the United States to have learned that the United States paid all its debts to the church by a universal grant of religious liberty in 1776. This government was not a party to the Catholic loan to the Spanish crown, and will not be a party to its payment. More, it is the moral and political duty of the United States to see to it that State property in Cuba, alienated by Spain to the Catholic Church after September, 1895—the date mentioned in the Paris treaty—be returned to the State. Gen. Wood, Governor of Santiago, has been quoted as saying the governor's mansion in that province would be returned to the State. So should the cemetery at Havana, and all other crown property now claimed by the Catholic Church, not only in Cuba, but everywhere where the United States has jurisdiction.

A POISONING CASE.

Some days ago a lost cheque for two hundred dollars was found in one of the streets of our city. The finder brought it to the two personal teachers of Dr. Fearn and Mr. Pilley, who, after some persuasion, were induced to act with the man in trying to extort money from the writer of the cheque. The means used being the magistrate's card, with a written request that a consultation be held at the house of the foreigner, and a verbal request of the same nature delivered in the name of the foreigner; the inference being that the magistrate and the foreigners were acting together in trying to extort money from the owner of the cheque. The man refused several invitations to meet this appointment, and finally the matter was brought to the notice of the foreigners, who at once put things straight. Dr. Fearn's teacher was kept under suspended judgment for a day or two, but Mr. Pilley's teacher and the cook—who was also implicated—were dismissed at once. The cook had been in our employ for nearly two years, and a more capable and faithful servant would be hard to find. As the weather was bad and his wife sick, we, with method in our madness, suggested that he remain a day or two longer, hoping that the new cook would arrive before he left; but, for some reason, even pecuniary inducement failed, and he left, after offering to make up sufficient bread to last a day or two, which kind offer we refused. Mr. Pilley, with the new cook, was expected back from Shanghai on Saturday afternoon. Immediately after breakfast on Saturday morning both Dr. and Mrs. Fearn were taken violently ill with nausea and vomiting. Just after breakfast Mr. T. A. Hearn arrived from Soochow. A Chinese dinner was necessarily put before him, since the cooks pro tem. were too ill to officiate. We supposed malaria was manifesting itself in the form of dumb chills. The night brought neither any abatement in the really alarming symptoms, nor Mr. Pilley and the cook, so the pantry and Mr. Hearn's lunch basket furnished a light tea. All day Sunday we continued to have what we supposed to be chills. Occasionally one would have the courage to attempt a little cooking, though we found it necessary to retire between the rolling-out and cutting-out of the biscuit to indulge in a chill—it was esthetic! By Sunday night we decided that it was not malaria, but something more serious—possibly the water was bad; but self-denial in this only caused an accentuation of our misery. Monday morning at daylight Mr. Pilley arrived with the cook, and immediately after breakfast Mr. Hearn left for Soochow. In less than an hour Mr. Pilley began to suffer with us. The new cook ate a biscuit, and nearly vomited himself into another world. Monday night we had the most delicious muffins for tea, but as we were too ill to eat them, and they were too nice to throw away, we gave them to the servants. That night every Chinese in the place joined the ranks of the nauseated, and the sound of retching was heard in the land. One peculiar feature of our condition was the seeming endlessness of time. Days dragged themselves into years and the nights became ages—ages of terrible suffering, of nausea, griping, abdominal pains, and a horrible, burning, unquenchless thirst. So intense was this suffering that life seemed almost unendurable. In desperation we arose in the night and drank our fill of what we supposed to be a deadly poison—water—but, strange to say, we felt no worse. Tuesday morning the muffins for breakfast were most appetizing, but we were too sick to do more than taste them. We gave the rest to the servants, who thought them so nice that they sent some over to the native preacher's children, and soon we heard that the entire family, including the Bible woman, had joined our forces. Then we descended to the kitchen and fell upon the baking-powder tin. The color of the powder we found to be a faint orange, and the mystery of our illness was explained. At first we thought it had been mixed with bi-chromate of potash. We knew this drug could be procured here, as it is used in photography, which is quite a fad in our city just now. As an antidote we drank vinegar, as one would drink water, but with no relief. Further investigation proved the poison to be bi-sulphide of arsenic. Suspicion at once fell upon the teachers and the cook. We went to the magistrate, who sent runners to Soochow to capture the cook. In the search for the teacher, who was still in Changshu, we went to several places. He was finally caught, and on good bail was allowed to stay at the house of a friend. Great excitement prevailed among the Chinese, and everyone had some remedy to suggest. One friend even brought a prescription calling for lamb's blood, snail shells, etc., and insisted on our taking it at once. Green pea is supposed to be a specific in arsenic poison. We called boats to go to Soochow, and then were afraid to go lest we might die en route. Though we were alive, the awful possibilities of the future stood out before us in appalling array.

THE TRIAL.

After some delay the cook arrived from Soochow, and the trial began. He at first persisted that he knew nothing whatever about the case, and even held out against the application of a hundred or so blows upon the face, and several hundreds on the bare buttocks. The magistrate, having obtained sufficient evidence as to the man's guilt, applied the third degree of punishment—i. e., the plaited rattan lash. After three hundred lashes across his bare back the man begged to be allowed to confess. Confession is essential before one can be condemned by a Chinese court, no matter how strong the evidence may be against him. The ex-cook acknowledged that he alone put the arsenic in the baking powder, and that he did it to injure his successor, hoping that we would engage him again, and he would demand higher wages. He procured the poison from a barber shop. Arsenic is not allowed to be sold to anyone. Barbers only are allowed to keep it to disinfect the head of any customer who may need such treatment. The case being a new one to our magistrate, and of such a serious nature, he felt compelled to refer it to the Soochow prefect, who, no doubt, will pass it on to the provincial judge.

The Chinese all say it is sure to cost the man his head. While we feel that such an act upon the part of a cook, in foreign employ, effects every foreigner in China, yet we could not feel justified in allowing the man to be beheaded, or strangled, without entering a protest; hence we wrote a petition asking that he be not killed, but imprisoned for life, thus being put beyond the power of doing anyone any harm, but having time to repent.

Though the Chinese way of obtaining evidence is not in accordance with ours, it is quite as effective. At no time was the punishment so severe as to force from the man a false confession of guilt. As we saw the case, we felt constrained to say that it was the only way to deal with the case in hand. The magistrate was most obliging, and did his utmost to get at the truth.

The wide distribution of this poison was really wonderful. While four only were supposed to eat from our table, by a strange coincidence the number was swelled to at least twenty-two. After Mr. Hearn reached Soochow, unfortunately, a sudden call to Shanghai caused his cook to repack the lunch he had brought from Changshu. Strangely enough, he did not eat the poisoned biscuits himself, but before leaving the launch he distributed them among the Chinese passengers, entirely unaware of the fact that he was thus distributing deadly poison among innocent men. The result we do not know.

P. S.—We are all entirely recovered, and feel ourselves once more.

Yours truly, J. B. FEARN.

SOUTH CAROLINA LETTER.

I have just received the Minutes of the one hundred and thirteenth session of our Annual Conference. The session was held in Greenwood—a very flourishing town in the upper part of the State. Rev. Marion Dargan was our host, and a right fine one was he, too. He entertained us so well that the Bishop made him a presiding elder. He is one of our progressive young men, and I predict for him a successful administration in the eldership.

Bishop Duncan was the president. This was the second time in succession he has presided over us, and the third time altogether. The Bishop grows upon us every time. He uses the blister sometimes, but you know this is the only remedy sometimes. I have been studying the Bishop for some years, having known him while at college, and have watched his course since he was made Bishop. He has a perfect contempt for all forms of sham and hypocrisy, whether in the church or out of it. He often lets this contempt pour forth in torrents of sarcasm and biting ridicule. In this he is often misunderstood. He preaches a plain, straight, and practical gospel, which always does good. In coming years his faithful work in South Carolina will be appreciated.

The appointments, as a general thing, gave satisfaction. Three new presiding elders were made. Dr. A. J. Stokes, who had been on the Black Horse in previous years, was re mounted, and is my elder. He has paid us his first visit, and made many friends among my people. We found him pleasant in the social circle as well as eloquent in the pulpit. As stated above, Rev. Marion Dargan was elevated to the eldership. He was sent to the Florence district, and has gone to work in such a way as to demonstrate the wisdom of the appointment. Rev. H. B. Browne was the third to experience the stroke. He was a very systematic pastor, and, no doubt, will keep everything in fine shape on a district. Of course, the brethren who were expecting to get in, and did not, were sadly disappointed; but hope, the anchor of the soul, is cast within the desired haven, and they confidently expect to reach the happy place some time.

We had several connectional brethren with us. Dr. Barbee represented the Publishing House, and preached an able sermon before the Conference. Dr. D. Bone paid us his first visit. Some of us, like the brother over in Georgia, expected the Doctor to come to us with the sun in one pocket and the moon in the other, and to play marbles with the stars; but he was arrayed in earthly apparel, and dealt in mundane matters, and captured everybody. Of course, he is a poet, and talks poetry sometimes, as it is so natural, it is not objectionable at all. South Carolina will always be glad to see him and hear him. Dr. Pritchett and Dr. Whitsett ably represented their respective interests. We had the pleasure of a visit from Dr. Coke Smith, of Virginia, and Drs. Kilgo and Cheatham, of North Carolina, all of whom once belonged to us, and belong to us still, for we have only loaned them for awhile.

Our financial reports were not up to the usual standard—a fact which was greatly regretted by all. But the fact that has given us more concern than any other was the small increase in membership. Who can tell us what is wrong? May the good Lord help us to prostrate ourselves in the dust, and strive to find the cause of our failure, and, having found it, may he give us grace to remove it! Let everyone who reads this paragraph pray for South Carolina Methodism, and ask God to give us a greater victory in the year 1899.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

To the Methodist People in the North Mississippi Conference—Greeting:

Your Executive Board of Education respectfully submits to you the following conclusions reached at its recent meeting:

1. We urge that, as a matter of duty and as a thank-offering to God, every member of the church make what he shall say is a liberal gift to the Twentieth Century Education Fund. By industry and self-denial this can be done.

2. The essential factor in plans for raising this fund is the earnest co-operation of the itinerant preachers. Each one must awaken, instruct, and lead his own people.

3. The work of enlisting interest in the great cause, explaining methods and objects, and opening the claims of duty, should begin at once. The roll-books and leaflets sent out by the General Secretary will be of prime service. Especially should the leaflet entitled, "Twentieth Century Education Fund," be scattered abroad by the thousands. The wise and active pastor will bring all sources of help into his service. He should engage freely competent laymen to assist in the work. We shall find the New Century Education—a monthly edited by the General Secretary—to be as useful in this field as the Era is to the League.

4. Special education rally days, rightly used, will greatly aid in forwarding our work. The Conference secretary, Bro. J. R. Bingham, will arrange a programme suitable for local meetings of this kind. He will also act in concert with the presiding elders and other brethren in supplying suitable speakers for the meetings. He should be furnished with the names of those who will agree to speak, with postoffice, etc., and let him be head of a Bureau of Supply and Information. We shall multiply effectiveness by system.

5. The presiding elder can lead the work in his own district. Let him plan with pastors for special meetings, and secure good speakers—laymen as far as practicable.

6. The Conference alone can say to what school its part of the fund shall go. But a contributor can give direction to his own money.

7. Our work is to proceed under the law contained in Chapter XII, pages 165-170 of the Discipline; hence in accordance with the acts of the General Board and the conclusions of the commission. Keeping ourselves informed of these, we shall avoid misunderstandings and needless discussions.

Let us now have one thing to do—to raise $1,500,000 as a thank offering to God, to be laid on the altar of our church for the use of the "new century education."

W. T. J. SULLIVAN,
Chair'n for the Exec. Board.

WILLING.

It may not be on the mountain's height,
Or over the stormy sea;
It may not be at the battle's front
My Lord will have need of me,
But if by a still, small voice he calls
To paths that I do not know,
I'll answer, dear Lord, with my hand in thine,
I'll go where you want me to go

Perhaps to day there are loving words
Which Jesus will have me speak;
There may be now in the paths of sin
Some wanderer whom I should seek
O Savior, if thou wilt be my guide,
Though dark and rugged the way,
My voice shall echo thy message sweet,
I'll say what you want me to say.

There's surely somewhere a lowly place
In earth's harvest field so wide;
Where I may labor through life's short day
For Jesus, the crucified.
So trusting my all to thy tender care,
And knowing thou lovest me,
I'll do thy will with a heart sincere,
I'll be what you want me to be.

AN APPEAL.

BY BISHOP CHARLES B GALLOWAY,
President of the Board of Education

As president of the Board of Education of the M. E. Church, South, I make special and earnest appeal in behalf of the Twentieth Century Education Fund, for which the General Conference gave authority and made provision. The close of an eventful century and the hopeful morning of a new furnish a happy opportunity for our great Methodism to make a monumental thank-offering to God. Mighty things have been wrought during the past one hundred years under a favoring and guiding Providence that call for public and grateful recognition. The wilderness and the solitary place have been glad, while the desert has been made to rejoice and blossom as the rose. The little company has become a great army. The cloud, no larger than a man's hand, has overcast the heavens, and rained its life-giving blessings upon the whole land. We have seen "the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God." Surely we have occasion for profound and unceasing gratitude.

And then we are facing a mighty future. A new century of marvelous opportunity is ready to dawn. Its imperative demands call for deeper consecration and better equipment for service. To secure such preparation is the divine significance of this timely movement. As to its broad scope and the high purpose which inspired it, the reader is referred to the admirable report adopted by the General Conference and published in all our connectional journals That report wisely suggests that "preparation for our work in the twentieth century should begin with a great reenforcement of our educational strongholds, literary and theological." Too much emphasis can not be placed upon this statesmanlike and apostolic suggestion. We can not do the work of the twentieth century with the crude implements and inadequate equipment of the nineteenth. These were sufficient for the exigencies of the past, but can not cope with the emergencies and tremendous responsibilities of the future.

During the session of the first Ecumenical Methodist Conference, which met in City Road Chapel in 1881, the London Times paid generous tribute to the rapid and splendid progress of Methodism, but raised a question as to its "staying power." In my judgment, the only successful answer to that solemn question of a friendly critic is to be found in Methodism's well-organized and thoroughly-equipped institutions of Christian learning. If it is to live and grow as a distinct and mighty ecclesiastical and spiritual organization in the world; if it is not to pass on as a simple, revival influence affecting the life of other great churches, the conserving and reproducing forces of education must receive intelligent and increased attention. The aggressive power of Methodism is in a divinely called and Spirit-baptized itinerant ministry. Its "staying power" is in the Christian schools, where youth is carefully and religiously fitted both for life and eternal life.

The material strengthening of our educational institutions is an immediate and imperative need. I do not believe the General Conference overstated the serious fact in saying that "in all cases it is important that we advance; in some we have only the alternative to advance or abandon the field altogether."

It is proposed, therefore, to raise $1,500,000 for the educational work of the church Of this amount seventy-five per cent. will be retained in the several Annual Conferences for such application as they may order; and the balance, after deducting expenses of the canvass, shall be devoted to the endowment of the theological department of Vanderbilt University.

Plans for a thorough canvass of the entire church will be perfected as soon as possible by the General Board of Education; but if the movement in its successful issue is to be any approximate expression of the church's gratitude to God and any adequate preparation for the exacting duties and awful responsibilities of the portentous future, the whole connection must rally to its support. For such sympathy and help I make earnest entreaty.

The co-operation of all Conference Boards of Education is invited. The Annual Conferences, with remarkable unanimity, and not a few with marked cordiality, have indorsed this "forward movement" in Christian education. They expect their pastors and local Boards to carry out this heartily expressed approval of the Twentieth Century Fund. Early and thorough organization is advised. Sow down the Conferences with literature, and see to it that sermons and addresses on Christian education are delivered in every church.

Some, notably the Louisville Conference Board, have already taken action, voluntarily assuming even more than their proportion of the proposed $1,500,000 This evidences intelligent and conscientious interest that must command the largest success. We only need concerted and well-directed effort to make this movement the grandest epoch in Southern Methodism.

Much depends upon the Conference Secretary of Education. He should magnify his office by an active, aggressive leadership and a comprehensive grasp of the mighty work to be accomplished.

Able men, thoroughly furnished for such high service, will be secured to aid in the canvass as the needs of different sections seem to require. To some honored brethren who have already agreed to engage in this work of love I am most grateful.

But upon the pastors rest most heavily the success of this movement. What they ordain will surely come to pass. If active and urgent, their people will freely give; if unappreciative and inattentive, their pastoral charges will make meager or no reports. The preacher in our Methodism is the key to every situation, the determining factor in every equation, the condition of every success or failure. My earnest appeal, therefore, is to the noble men who stand next the people, and to whom they look for instruction and leadership. If their hearts are thoroughly enlisted in this magnificent movement, we may at once rejoice in a victory already assured. I would solicit every pastor to at once begin to lay plans for a systematic canvass of his charge, with the purpose of securing at least an average of one dollar per member as a special thank-offering for Christian education. Of course, some wealthy churches will increase this amount a hundredfold and more.

To pastors, presiding elders, teachers, editors, connectional officers and lay members I appeal for hearty and continued co-operation. And out of this widespread educational quickening I pray there may come through out the connection a great spiritual awakening, that will demonstrate, as in the early days, the converting and sanctifying power of a God "mighty to save." Thus will the movement in behalf of the Twentieth Century Fund result in a better and larger spiritual equipment with which to meet twentieth century opportunities and responsibilities.

FROM OUR BISHOPS.

To the Ministers and Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: The General Conference, at its late session in Baltimore, Md., by a unanimous vote passed resolutions in favor of raising a Twentieth Century Educational Fund to commemorate the signal blessings of God upon our church during the past one hundred years. The minimum amount suggested as an appropriate thank-offering on the morning of the new century is $1,500,000. This surely is a modest sum to be given by a million and a half Southern Methodists. We desire, as your chief pastors, to earnestly commend this most important and timely movement. It is eminently fitting that we should celebrate the birth of a new century of opportunity by generous offerings to the great educational work of our church. The General Board of Education is perfecting plans for a thorough canvass of the connection in this interest. We would affectionately urge you to cordially co-operate with these efforts, and thereby make sure the largest success of this noble enterprise. The General Conference has placed this matter before the church as of chief est concern. It is suggested, therefore, that local or other connectional enterprises should not be allowed to give this Twentieth Century Fund a secondary or unimportant place. In addition to the regular tithes we bring to the church, let this be a special and liberal thank-offering. By a reconsecration of ourselves, soul, body, and substance, to the Lord, we may make this connectional movement monumental, and provide ampler equipment for nobler work during the next century of wider opportunity and greater responsibility.

LETTER FROM MONTANA.

Our pastor, Rev. R. B. Swift, has just closed a meeting which began on the first day of the new year. He was ably assisted by our presiding elder, Rev. S B. Tabor, and by an ex-pastor, Rev. I. R. Hubbs. Bro. Tabor did most of the preaching, and God honored the faithful earnestness with which he delivered the message of love. He was with us during the entire meeting with the exception of three days, during which he held a quarterly meeting on an adjoining circuit. That seems a new departure (does it not?) for a busy presiding elder to stop long enough to hold revival services for almost three weeks. About thirty accessions to our own and to the other churches, several conversions, the church members quickened to aroused energy, a Junior Epworth League organized, and a prayer meeting started, are among the visible results of the work. But the deep hold that Bro. Tabor and his excellent wife have taken upon the hearts of the people by exemplifying the gospel of love has stirred the souls to deeper depths than ever before. God send us more such men!

The work here is materially hindered by the cosmopolitan element of the citizens. Coming from almost all parts of the known world, and having no community of interest, they are indifferent to anything which can not be made subservient to their own ends and aims. And the chief desideratum seems to be wealth in some form. And then the natural advantages here are so great, notwithstanding an occasional blizzard, that it is difficult to realize from a human point of view that there is anything beyond.

We have representatives from almost every denomination, and while the spirit of their faith is in many cases lost sight of, they hold to the letter of their law as a safeguard against all innovations. One of our Bishops is credited with saying that persons coming to this valley were apt to leave their religion on the eastern side of the Rocky Mountains, and whether it was a prophecy or an already noted fact, circumstances certainly bear evidence to its veracity.

So, Mr. Editor, if you know of any whole-souled preacher whose religion can bear transplanting, and who wants to prove the depth of his devotion to our Divine Master by forsaking all to follow him into the "regions beyond," our presiding elder will give him welcome and work in some of the "waste places." The need here is great. Our few preachers are nobly trying to hold our own in spite of all discouragements, and God is blessing their labors.

Bro. Tabor is this year breaking fallow ground, and has a preacher ready to take charge. A junior preacher is badly needed on this circuit.

CARROLLTON—FIRST.

To-day Carrollton station, with 152 members, sends on the 'New Century Education" claim, $161.70. This places Carrollton at the front page and top line on the ledger, with a surplus to her credit, and yet she isn't done. A note accompanying draft says, "This amount was paid by 72 members, and we are after the other 80."

The opportunity for good and great advances in Christian education in North Mississippi has come. Millsaps and Grenada Colleges—now strong, thriving, and aggressive—were never in so good condition to harvest the product of a great educational campaign as now. The advertisement of these institutions, the creation of a Christian-education conviction, the means that this fund will bring to these institutions, will make the day-break of the new century a dawn of cloudless glory.

In this great enterprise the Lord is leading. Everything is conspiring to give success. The tide of interest is rising. Let us swell the tide with the strong wind of agitation.

Surely every preacher in the Conference (the ministry is the conserving force in Christian education) will follow earnestly and persistently the plans inaugurated by the General and Conference Boards. Select the best time, make the best arrangement, present the best appeal. This is educational year. "Lay yourself out" for Christian education.

Dear Sisters of the North Mississippi Conference:

After the perusal of one of Sister Trueheart's interesting letters to a member of our Board, in reference to the recent and very profitable meeting of "Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of Canada and the United States" (which has already been published in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE), I notice from it: 'The Board assembled to consider the needs of Cuba. A well-qualified missionary was wanted to take charge. The Board recommended Miss Carson, who had served acceptably for some years in Durango, to be transferred. As soon as the change can be made, she will proceed to Cuba. A most lamentable fact she calls our attention to is: "The treasurer's report shows the December quarter $4,000 less than the third quarter last year. What of the last quarter? The work will suffer if it does not come up better than last year's, because of this lack in December." Next letter comes to me is a request from a member of the Woman's Board to make an appeal to you in behalf of our beloved work.

We are aware our Board felt the need of going to Cuba with the gospel at once. Does this not mean more money needed and more workers? Could we afford to neglect this urgent call? Could we lose this opportunity for serving God's most needy children? While the Home Mission Society goes to Havana and we to Santiago, both are limited in means; yet there is still "room for many more." We begin work with a better class of Cubans who are anxious to learn English.

Sisters, our serious attention is called to another startling fact. We of the North Mississippi Conference (I am told) will have to raise $2,552.90 by the first of March to equal the amount sent Mrs. McTyeire last year. Only think of our Contingent Fund not having met the demands for two quarters past, and "only two more meetings," says one of the Board, and also suggests "it would be wise to urge the societies (if agreeable to those in authority) to hold the March meeting before making reports; then, if all reports could be sent off by the eleventh of March, we could, by hard work, get them in on time." Admitting there has been many hindrances, they should but spur us to greater energy, but not to be discouraged. We can not afford to fail, for our failure may mean the closing of some school, the retarding of some work planned, the loss of immortal souls that might have been reached. God forbid! And may the Holy Spirit quicken hearts (and open purses), that we may not sleep over these golden opportunities, but sound the tocsin loud, long, and clear, and all work hard, especially each district secretary try to obtain a general response before the close of our fiscal year 1898.

Should we not feel greatly encouraged when we read of "Mexico stretching her hand to Cuba," which is a sure indication of real fruitage from woman's seed sowing, and is the manifestation of a desire to share the gospel with those who have it not; hence it is cause for rejoicing when we see this desire on the part of our Mexican converts. See what examples we have from Mexico: Ignacio Escalante, P. C., writes from Allende his church members had decided to give their Christmas collections ($36, Mexican) to help send the gospel to Cuba, which exhibits a Christian desire to help their fellow-man. Another instance among many, many others for gratitude and encouragement is recent news from our faithful "M. L. Paine Bible woman's" seed sowing (when duty to her afflicted husband called her away from her appointed work in Saltillo, Mexico). She was by no means idle, but often, although far away, about her "Master's work," whose untiring efforts were rewarded by many conversions, the organization of two Sunday-schools, and a hundred, or more, tracts given away. She has returned, and ere this is again at her beloved employment. May she win many precious souls for her hire, and long live a bright and shining monument erected to the sacred memory of our departed M. L. Paine!

WOMAN'S WORK IN HOME MISSIONS.

A STONG POINT.

A strong point in the economy of the Woman's Home Mission Societies is the fact that much of its work is done by direct personal effort. It is not merely the giving of money to carry forward a good work, the actual doing of which is committed to other hands, but it is going about with our eyes open to the needs of those about us, and each individual finding her own peculiar work which it seems the Lord laid out for her doing. The field is all about us. With our own hands we may till it; in our own persons realize the results. The difficulties in the way of other departments of church work do not apply to that of home missions, and if everyone consistently supported their theories by their practice, there would be a large increase in the working force of these Societies, and a wonderful impetus given to their labors.

The Christian Life.

WORK AND WORRY.

Where work wears out one, worry wears out thousands. There is less happiness among the great than among the humble, among the rich than among the poor. "But if these limitations could only be removed!" "If I did not have to work so hard!" "If I could be my best self!" "If I could have that for which I know I am fitted!" Ah! greatness of gift always implies greatness of responsibility. If one limitation goes, another comes; that which seems to give freedom only increases slavery. Almost all men, like birds, beat themselves against their cages, longing to get into some different world, to soar beneath some more splendid skies, ignorant of the abysses in that larger world and of the storms which sweep those skies. Of the Master it was said, "Who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross." The cross preceded the joy, as the mountain climb is before the vision of the earth and sky. The Stoic said, "The way to be happy is to cease to desire or aspire;" in other words, deny yourself. Christ's message is: "The way to be happy is the way of the cross. Sacrifice yourself. Make all you possibly can; give every faculty its fullest development; be as beautiful, as cultured, as wise as circumstances will permit, not that you may be happy, but that you may use powers, faculties, gifts, as I have used mine—for humanity. In that way, and that alone, lies happiness."
—Amory H. Bradford, D. D.

THE OPEN BIBLE.

So far as, and so long as, England remains true to that simple, unadulterated Word of God which has been purchased for us by the misery of exiles and the blood of martyrs; so far and so long as she stands fast in the freedom wherewith God has made her free, and is not again entangled with the yoke of bondage; so far and so long as she refuses to be either driven into indifference by disgust or seduced into delusion by false religion, so far and so long will she maintain the honor of this great people. All else—call itself by what sounding name it will—will prove to be but booming brass and tinkling cymbal. Let England cling to her open Bible; let her learn from it the broad truths of primitive Christianity, and be faithful to them; let her teach it to her children, and her children to their children, and their children to generations yet unborn, and then no wind that blows, no storm that beats, will shake her invincible foundations, for she will be founded upon a rock! But let her apostatize from its pure lessons into humanity invented falsities, and I would not give fifty years' purchase either for her greatness or for the stability of her church.—Dean Farrar.

SHADOWS OF LIFE.

What He does we know not now, but we shall know hereafter. I remember on a glorious day of all but cloudless sunshine, passing in view of a well-known line of bare and majestic downs, then basking in the full beams of noon. But on one face of the hill rested a mass of deep and gloomy shadow. On searching for its cause, I at length discovered one little speck of cloud, bright as light, floating in the clear blue above. This it was which cast on the hill-side that ample track of gloom. And what I saw was an image of Christian sorrow. Dark and obscenes often as it is, and unaccountably as it passes over our earthly path, in heaven its tokens shall be found, and it shall be known to have been but a shadow of this brightness whose name is Love.—Alford.

In the dim hours of sorrow and bereavement, when we hear "Time flowing through the middle of the night;" in the hour when we hear far off the monotonous footfall of approaching death; what is it that calms and comforts and soothes us then? Is it any discovery of science? Is it any scheme of philosophy? Is it anything that orator has uttered or poet sung? Nay; when the melody of lyric songs has lost its charms, and the music of memory and her siren daughters has been brought low, we still listen—when we can listen to nothing else—to the beatitudes which Christ spoke to the multitudes as they sat listening among the mountain lilies, or to those last words, more precious than archangels' utterances, which on the same night that he was betrayed he spake to his beloved ones, when the traitor had gone, and it was night.—Canon Farrar.

What should be the nature, character and extent of our Sabbath reading, is a question often asked and differently answered. As put to us, our general reply is, read only that which honors God, improves the mind, stirs pious emotion, advances Christian work, and promotes the soul's well-being. This rule, rightly interpreted and applied, will give due variety, while proving sufficiently exclusive and inclusive. This remands purely secular reading to the week day. The dailies, weeklies, monthlies, and other publications that deal with State, social and business interests, can await Monday's consideration.—Presbyterian.

Christians should live in the world, but not be filled with it. A ship lives in water; but if the water gets into the ship, she goes to the bottom. So Christians may live in the world; but if the world gets into them, they sink.—D. L. Moody.

STEERING OR DRIFTING?

BY DELLA P.

Tossing on life's turbid river,
O'er foaming torrents deep and wide,
Are you steering bravely onward,
Or drifting idly with the tide?

When by fierce winds you are driven,
When stormy waves in anger rise,
And Hope's star is dim and distant
In the dark and frowning skies;

When "tempest-tossed and afflicted,"
And the way proves rough and dark;
When your path is paved with perils,
And chilling mists enshroud your bark;

Have you Jesus as your pilot,
Your frail and wavering craft to guide,
Steering clear of rocks and whirlpools,
Or drift you hopeless with the tide?

With Jesus for your trusted pilot,
You may brave the tempest's shock;
You will safely pass the maelstrom,
Never drift upon the rock.

When friends forsake, reproach, or leave you
And their loving counsel is denied;
When you miss the loving handclasp
As the olden paths divide;

The earthly friendships fade and fail.
And in sorrow oft your spirit grieves,
There is no other friend like Jesus;
He never fails, forsakes, deceives.

The love of Jesus gilds life's pathway.
Beaming brightly o'er the main;
He stills the waves that bear you shoreward,
Where you'll never drift again.

Resting now within the harbor,
O'er the calm, bright waters glide;
Drop the anchor, home at last;
No more drifting with the tide!

MEMOIR OF MRS. M. L. PEARCE.

Mrs. Maria L. Pearce, widow of Rev. Levi Pearce, died at the home of her daughter, Miss A. M. C. Pearce, at Millwood, Jackson, La., Jan. 2, 1899, in the eighty-third year of her age. She was born in Kentucky in 1816, and was married in 1836 to Rev. Levi Pearce, who was for many years a leading member of the Mississippi Conference. She became the mother of six children, four of whom survive her.

After a laborious and useful itinerant life in Mississippi, Bro. Pearce and his family removed to British Honduras, at the close of the Civil War, founding there a new home and enduring the hardships and privations of a frontier life, under which her courage and fortitude were a perpetual stimulus to the family. Gentle and attractive in manner, modest and diffident in spirit, she was a model of devotion to her duties as a home-maker. Industrious, almost to a fault, she never tired in providing for the welfare of her family and friends. She was ever characterized by a martyr-like devotion to duty, and was ready to do, to suffer or to die, if need be, in the cause of right. For twenty years she was an invalid, suffering with unmurmuring patience and resignation the will of her heavenly Father. Her faith in God was firm and comforting. When the end came she was ready to depart and be with Christ.

Such a mother was a blessing and an honor to her children and grandchildren, and they should treasure her name and her memory as an invaluable inheritance. She died in the full assurance of faith, and her end was peace.

of consumption is a hacking cough. It sounds a melancholy dirge in the march to the coffin. How many swell the ranks of this gloomy procession who could have been saved by a timely resort to the King of cures, Marsden's Balm.

REV. MARTIN GROSS.

Rev. Martin Gross was born near Norfork, Va., April 27, 1811. He was the youngest of ten children, and survived them all. When about two years old he came with his parents to the State of Tennessee, where he grew to manhood. In the year 1836 he was married to Miss Jane A. Emmerson, with whom he lived happily until death separated them. He embraced religion in early childhood, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1841 he moved to North Mississippi, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was licensed to preach in 1842 at Carolina Church (now in the bounds of the Nettleton circuit), and from that time until his earthly pilgrimage closed he went in and out before the people in the capacity of an humble, useful local preacher. For more than half a century his usefulness was felt for good to the church and community. While he was not a great preacher, yet he was a good man, a practical observer of the needs of the church, and those who were in a lost state he longed to bring to Christ. This was more fully realized just after the war between the States, when the people, being much confused and demoralized, he came to them as a messenger of peace, and preached to them Jesus, and prayed with and for them, and they found solace in God. In his humble sphere he did a good work, and now rests from his labors.

Bro. and Sister Gross never had any children, and he leaves behind him only his aged wife for awhile; they will soon meet again where parting is not known. He died at his adopted daughter's, Mrs. Catheart, Oct. 18, 1898, in the eighty-seventh year of his age.

H. M. YOUNG.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. H. Foreman, Rose Hill, Miss., Feb. 4, 1899: "At the last Annual Conference we were assigned to Rose Hill charge, Forest district. We left our old home, Raleigh, Smith county, on the fourteenth of January. The people at Rose Hill expected us Wednesday evening, but, on account of high water, we were delayed. We arrived here by 1 P. M. on Thursday, the sixteenth. We had a most royal reception. Quite a number of men and women had preceded us, and prepared a real nice dinner and good warm fires. After dinner was served we were seated by a good warm fire, and after a social chat we all bowed together in prayer. The Lord was pleased to meet with us, and we were made to rejoice. Such a cordial Christian reception makes us feel that we are in the midst of an appreciative people, and that the lines have fallen to us in pleasant places. Never before have we been more kindly welcomed to our work. We began this year's work under favorable circumstances. We anticipate a good year in many respects. The people seem to be willing to do something. This is only as it should be. We must all do something this year. Almost every day since we arrived here has brought tokens of kindness and appreciation from our neighbors, not only by members of our church, but from all. May the Lord abundantly bless everyone who participated in these acts of kindness, and may God give us grace and strength to minister to them in spiritual things as they have to us in temporal things!"

Rev. Martin Hebert, P. C., North Bossier circuit, Jan. 31, 1899: "Our first Quarterly Conference for this coming year was held at Collinsburg Church on the twenty-eighth instant. Our presiding elder, Bro. J. T. Sawyer, was with us, and preached to the delight and edification of all who heard him, except, perhaps, a few hardened sinners and backslidden, sin-loving church members. Bro. Sawyer preaches a searching gospel, and makes no compromise with sin and worldliness. We believe the district will prosper under his presidency. My move to North Bossier was a surprise to both me and my people, but, remembering that God often moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform, I said, Amen! and began to get ready for traveling. The distance was long, and the way to me unknown, but for several reasons I decided to come through on horse-back. I had a very pleasant and unpleasant trip; was very nearly two weeks on the road. I have many reasons to be grateful for kindnesses shown me by good people all along the way. I found a great many 'Shunamitish' women on my journey. Had a great many interesting experiences, which I shall not undertake to tell, for it would take up too much space. On our arrival here we found some very good, kind-hearted people anxiously awaiting us, and we have had a very good beginning. We have some good religious people here, but as at many other places, the nominal church member is in the majority. We make our home at Plain Dealing, where we have a neat little parsonage. We are praying for and expecting great things from God this year. May God bless the ADVOCATE and its many readers!"

VOSSBURG, MISS.

We left Forest, Jan. 13, at 11 A. M.; reached Vossburg at 3 P. M. We were met at the depot by Bros. M. H. Turner and E. W. Stafford with good buggies, sufficient to take us all to the parsonage. There we found some other brethren, quite a number of the good women of the town, with a nice supper composed of just such things as a wearied family would enjoy; more fried chicken than I have seen at one time for quite a while; a nice lot of provisions in the store-room; some good wood in the yard. It was not charged up as quarterage.

I think the present arrangement of consolidating the two works will work well. The people received us kindly, and have been very mindful of our needs since we came among them. The parsonage is large and comfortable; everything convenient. I have tried to improve every parsonage I have lived in; hardly know how to begin here. I think if some preachers would look at Bro. Downer, and then come here and see what work he did, they would keep the parsonages in better condition. I have secured one subscriber for the ADVOCATE; have the promise of some more. Pray for us, that we may do a good year's work.

Bro. J. M. Carley is here, and taking well with the people. I think he will, under the blessing of God, do a fine work in this charge as assistant pastor.

Our first Quarterly Conference is a thing of the past. Our new presiding elder was with us. He is a model presiding officer. He preached two strong sermons. My people were delighted. "It was good to be there." His whole being is in the work. I am sure, with the co-operation of his preachers, he will be a blessing to the district. God bless the ADVOCATE and its editor.

NOBLY DONE.

Genuine self-forgetfulness in a generous action is always admirable. An anecdote of such a deed, unique in its way, has recently been told. A gentleman whose veracity can not be impeached relates the incident. Nearly all Australian snakes are venomous. Some authorities even go so far as to declare there are no non-venomous snakes in the great island.

A young lady of high social position whose home is at Brisbane was walking in the garden one day, when she saw a laborer employed on her father's grounds just ahead of her. When within a few feet of the man she was horrified to see a small, but exceedingly venomous snake dart its ugly length from a bush which the fellow was passing, and fix its fangs in his bare arm.

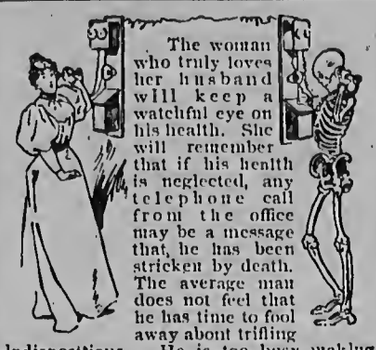
The young lady uttered a cry of alarm, ran forward and hit the reptile a stunning blow with her parasol handle, and then, without a moment's delay, produced her penknife, opened it, and cut a cross on the arm through the wound made by the snake's fangs. She next applied her lips to the wound, and sucked out the poison.

The man was but a laborer, and his arm was not overclean, but the noble young woman did not stop to think of that. She knew what to do, and without squeamishness she did it, and saved the man's life.

"The heroine of this incident is now my wife," concluded the narrator, "and it was the story of her bravery which first attracted my attention to her."

A fair and accurate revelation and gauge of a man's character are sometimes afforded by his demeanor under fire. If, when accused, he flares up violently, calls upon the Almighty to witness that he is innocent, and denounces the accusations as infernal and malicious, he may, nevertheless, still be guiltless of the offense alleged, but he shows a lack of self-control which is at least unfortunate. If, when he is assailed, he replies by abusive epithets, he instantly loses ground, for himself and his cause, with disinterested people who are watching the course of events to discover the truth. One ought to have sense enough to see that abuse is the coarse weapon of folly, which wisdom disdains to touch. A man engaged in a conflict which has to do with his good name, his political fortunes, his property, or other of his interests, gains much if he masters his personal resentment, keeps his temper and his tongue in check, uses no reviling terms or offensive names, no matter how much he may be vilified, appeals to the facts in the case, and lets the truth speak for him. Among the crowning words of praise which glorify the character and conduct of our Lord is this, "When he was reviled, he reviled not again."—Exchange.

Faith is love amid conflict and clouds. It is love when the voice of the commander is lost amid the war of elements and clash of arms, firm at his post. It is love pursuing duty's path amid cloud and tempest, without moon or stars. It is love constant at the helm in darkest night, when no beacon is seen to guide his bark. It is being singular for Christ's sake, when devotion is costly and zeal occasions great reproach.—Rev. C. J. F. Musgrove, D. D.



The woman who truly loves her husband will keep a watchful eye on his health. She will remember that if his health is neglected, any telephone call from the office may be a message that he has been stricken by death. The average man does not feel that he has time to fool away about trifling indispositions. He is too busy making money. He says he leaves sickness to the women folks.

That is the way men commit suicide—tens of thousands of them. A woman can stand between this danger and her husband if she will. A little watchfulness—a suggestion now and then and a little of a good general remedy always at hand may save her husband's life. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a remarkable remedy for hard working men and women. In a certain sense, it is a cure-all, for the reason that it goes down to bed-rock and cures the disorders that are responsible for the majority of serious illnesses. It strengthens the stomach, and makes the appetite keen and hearty. It invigorates the liver. It aids the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It makes the assimilation of the food perfect. It purifies the blood and fills it with the life-giving elements that build new and healthy flesh tissue. It tones the nerves. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of laryngial, bronchial, throat and kindred affections, which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. It is also an unfailing remedy for all nervous disorders. An honest dealer will not urge a substitute.

"Last winter I took sick with what the doctors called la grippe," writes Mrs. Sarah Farley, of Fairfax, Atchison Co., Mo. "Was sick for about four months and nothing that I took seemed to do me any good. My friends thought I had consumption. I coughed up blood for a long while, and nearly gave up all hope of ever getting well. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and thought I would try it. I had not finished the first bottle when I began to get better. I have taken two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one of the 'Favorite Prescription' and feel better than ever before in my life."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

Reader, attend whether thy soul
Soars fancy's flights beyond the pole,
Or darkly grubs this earthly hole,
In low pursuit;
Know prudent cautious self control
Is wisdom's root.
—Burns.

It is no use running; to set out be times is the main point.—L. Foulaice.

Work without love is like a clock without hands. You may put it in a golden case and set it in diamonds; it will not be worth anything.—Exchange.

Thousands of men and women in the front ranks in business and society are content to be in the rear rank in Christian service.—Philadelphia Methodist

All the possible charities of life ought to be cultivated, and when we can neither be brethren nor friends, let us be kind neighbors and pleasant acquaintances.—Burke.

Giving is not the throwing away of that which we never miss, but it is the consecrating to noble uses that which is very dear to us, that which has cost us much.—Rev. Junkin Lloyd Jones.

Who can not but see, oftentimes, how strangely the threads of our destiny run? Out it is only for a moment the favorable instant is presented. We miss it, and months and years are lost.—Exchange.

No one ever increased in happiness, or goodness, or usefulness, because he discarded the Bible; but many have been happier, better and more useful because of the influence of the Bible upon their lives.—Selected.

Man is a perambulating menagerie. Stir up the animals within, and you will find the mule with its stubbornness, the tiger with its ferocity, the peacock with its pride, the pig with its selfishness, and a long line of others, smaller, but just as mean.—Endeavorer.

Our longings are the prophecies of our destinies. Life never fulfils all the expectations of youth. The future never pays all that the present promises. Nature holds back part of our wages, lest we quit work. The prophecy that we shall be immortal is written upon our desires and longings.—Selected.

We drive men from Christ's door many a time by our sorry entertainment. The church is not spiritualized enough to entertain the world. We have no spiritual courtesies. We cultivate our faith and proclaim our hope, but forget that a greater than these is charity.—Professor Drummond, in "The Ideal Life."

Many a man stands high in the church who is despised by his employees; many a man is great in the estimation of those who know him slightly, but exceedingly small in the estimation of those who know him intimately; many a student has stood high in his class in college, but low in the scale of morals; many a man is going up in his business or profession who is going down in his standard of conduct; is going up in his reputation, but down in his real life.—Selected.

PERPETUAL CONSECRATION.

Membership in the kingdom of heaven is possible only to him who dedicates himself without reserve to the service of God, and through faith accepts the offered pardon. God demands a whole-souled devotion, and is satisfied with nothing less than this. "Whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he can not be my disciple." "No man can serve two masters." "If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth."

To be a Christian, then, means to be Christ-controlled, Christ-lighted, Christ-filled, Christ-thrilled. No man can be truly in Christ who does not make Christ supreme. It is through the gateway of full consecration that any of us can come to know Jesus as a personal Savior.

Both experience and the Word of God justify the conclusion that none are ever born into the kingdom of heaven without forsaking every known sin, and turning to him with full purpose of heart. Just as the human body can not become charged with electricity without being completely insulated from surrounding objects, so the soul can not become charged with divine grace so as to be made new, unless there is complete isolation from sin. Not until we become dead to every sin—so far, at least, as the will is concerned—can we be made alive unto God. As the Rev. F. B Meyer forcefully says: "The act of consecration is cancelled by one reserve. To give ninety-nine parts and withhold the hundredth undoes the whole transaction, because in that one piece of reserve the whole of the self-life intrenches itself, defying Him." The man who clings to one sinful indulgence, being faithful in all else, may be near the kingdom, but is still outside of its protecting walls. He is almost, but not quite, a Christian. As some one has said, 'This is not a kingdom of perfect men, but of men who hate sin and seek to have done with it forever."

It is not enough to know that in the glad hour of conversion our all was dedicated to God. Our consecration must continually be in the present tense, else we shall again come into bondage to the tempter. It is an attitude of soul that ought perpetually to be maintained, and if departed from for a single hour, ought immediately to be resumed with penitence and prayer for forgiveness. No man can long remain in a justified state who indulges in conscious sin, or neglects a plain duty. Constant submission is the price of constant peace with God. 'If ye continue in my words," says the Master, "then ye are my disciples." Bishop Fitzgerald rightly says: "The perfect consecration is a consecration perpetually renewed. The perfect love is a stream fed forever through faith that lives and works."

The Christian soldier is never to put off his armor, never to take a furlough. The moment he does so he takes himself out of the hands of God, and endangers his reward. It is a deplorable fact that most believers are willing enough to be fully consecrated part of the time, or partly consecrated all the time. But how few are willing to be wholly the Lord's all the days of their lives!

Such alone, however, are the true children of the kingdom, for our Lord demands no less of us along the heavenward way than he does in the hour when he graciously pardons us and renews us in the divine image. The conditions of discipleship are as immutable as the divine nature itself. The moment we take back part of the offering, or refuse to admit Christ into every chamber of the heart, that moment we forfeit his favor, and come into condemnation. Such an attitude is the beginning of apostasy, and, if persisted in, leads to spiritual darkness and shipwreck. Unless there is full consecration at every stage of Christian experience, sin lieth at the door, and the witness of the Spirit will, ere long, be lost.

The self-surrender of yesterday, or of last year, is not sufficient for to day, since the flight of time oft brings before us duties, difficulties and allurements not included in and covered by our former act of consecration. Readiness to do God's will yesterday, alas! does not always mean readiness to do so to-day. Enlarged opportunities, enlarged knowledge, enlarged wealth, enlarged temptations, necessitate enlarged consecration. The man whose business has prospered, whose influence has widened, must do more for God than at first, or decrease in spirituality. Says Meyer: "As the light grows, we shall become increasingly aware of new departments of our heart and life that were not consciously included in our first act of surrender. But as they come into view, we must hand them also into the governorship of our King."

A RECORD-BREAKER.

The cold spell of the last few days has broken all previous records in this city. On Sunday morning the thermometer stood at fourteen degrees above zero. On Monday morning it was at 5 above zero. We are not reporting for the Weather Bureau, but simply stating what we saw with our own eyes. According to published statements, the lowest previous record was 15 degrees, and that was many years ago. Our city, however, is not singular in this respect. Throughout the entire country the Winter has been one of unprecedented severity. Travel and commerce have been obstructed, and there has been great suffering among the poor. We firmly believe every yellow fever germ in the United States has been exterminated. If Uncle Sam will keep out Cuban germs, there will be no fever in this country in '99

NEW BOOKS.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL STUDIES; OR, EXPOSITORY AND HOMILETICAL NOTES ON THE INTERNATIONAL LESSONS FOR 1899. By E. E. Hoss, D. D., LL. D., editor Christian Advocate, Nashville, Tenn. With maps and numerous illustrations. 432 pages. Cloth. Price, 50 cents. Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

After a somewhat careful examination of this volume, we unhesitatingly pronounce it one of the best Sunday-school "lesson helps" we have seen. While not so complete in some particulars as some other volumes of this kind, incidents and literary illustrations being rather a few in number, it is a scholarly, suggestive, and highly instructive commentary, and ought to be in the hands of every Southern Methodist pastor and Sunday-school teacher. It bears the marks of careful preparation and wide research, and we feel sure that all who are fortunate enough to secure a copy will find it both interesting and helpful. For giving a connected view of the truths and points of each lesson, and as a running commentary thereon, this volume is unexcelled. We are glad to note that each succeeding year Dr. Hoss's 'Lesson Notes" are coming more and more into favor, as they well deserve. In view of the low price of this volume—only fifty cents—in connection with its unquestionable excellence, it ought to have a large and ready sale. The price is certainly within the reach of all who need such a book. It is by no means too late in the year to send for a copy.

MODERN REVIVALISM. By Rev Henry Trawick. 16 mo. 125 pages. Cloth. Price, 75 cents. Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

The above is the title of a very entertaining, thoughtful, and thought-provoking treatise on a subject of vital importance to the church, and of deep and eager interest to every true minister of the gospel. Methodism was born in a revival; she has set the religious world on fire with revival power, and has ever been a promoter of Holy-Ghost revivals. Hence any book that helps to make her sons and daughters more wise and efficient in the God-given work of winning souls to Christ is to be gladly welcomed. Of late there has been much talk of a decline in revival power among Methodist itinerants, and various reasons are being assigned therefor.

The author is not a novice or a mere theorist in the matter discussed, but is himself a highly successful pastor, who has had considerable experience in holding revival meetings, the volume at hand being the outcome of his investigations and efforts in this direction. He has strong and clear-cut convictions as to the best methods to be used in revival work, and expresses them in forceful and elegant English. He makes it clear that if pastors wish to succeed as they ought, they must depend less upon outside help in their meetings, and rely more upon themselves and the help of the Holy Spirit. The chapter on 'Going Down to Egypt for Help" is especially striking, and lays bare one of the secrets of the spiritual weakness of many churches and pastors, as far as revivals are concerned. While the truths of the gospel ever remain the same, the methods of presenting them and of reaching men should change with the times. Hence the need, as the author shows, of a wise adaptability in revival work, as well as in other directions. While some may not agree with the author in all he says, they can but admire his candor, earnestness, and evident gentleness of spirit.

The book contains much that is instructive as well as stimulating, and is written in a very attractive style. Every preacher would do well to get a copy, and many laymen would greatly enjoy reading it.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

The Executive Committees of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conference Boards of Education met in joint session in Jackson, Miss., Feb. 9, 1899. Rev. A. F. Watkins was elected chairman, and T. Y. Ramsey secretary; A. F. Watkins, H. M. Ellis, R. W. Millsaps representing Mississippi Conference; J. H. Mitchell, T. Y. Ramsey, North Mississippi Conference.

Bishop Chas. B. Galloway, Revs. B. F. Lewis, J. W. Chambers, president of Whitworth Female College, Brookhaven, Miss.; W. B Murrah, D. D., president of Millsaps College; T. B Holloman, presiding elder of Jackson district; H. G. Hawkins, Mississippi Conference Secretary of Education; J. R. Bingham, Secretary of Education of North Mississippi Conference, were present and participated in the discussions of the meeting.

On motion, it was resolved that one man be selected as manager of the canvass for the "Twentieth Century Fund" for both Conferences. J. R. Bingham, of Carrollton, Miss., was unanimously chosen. On motion, it was resolved that the apportionment made by the General Board of Education be accepted as the minimum amount to be raised by the two Conferences in Mississippi.

The following "plan of campaign" was adopted:

1st. Each pastor is requested to take the roll-book and make a complete roll of the membership of each church in his charge with a view to securing a contribution from each member.

2nd. The roll-books are to be returned to J. R Bingham and H. G. Hawkins at the next session of their respective Conferences.

3 d. All funds collected are to be forwarded to Rev. J. C. Park, of Rosedale, Miss., and R. W. Millsaps, of Jackson, Miss., treasurers of the Boards of Education of the Conferences to which they belong.

4 h. Each presiding elder is requested to arrange for a special educational meeting at their District Conferences. Speakers may be secured by correspondence with J. R. Bingham.

5th. Each pastor is requested to preach a sermon on Christian education at every preaching-place in the bounds of his charge, beginning with the first Sunday in March, at which time he shall lay before his congregation the entire plan and object of this great movement.

6 h. The first Sunday in May shall be set apart as the Twentieth Century Fund Educational Day, and at that time, or such other time as may be selected, shall hold educational mass meeting at each church in his charge, when contributions and subscriptions shall be taken.

7th. J. R Bingham, general manager of the canvass, is authorized to provide for special educational mass meetings at such central places as he may deem best. After an enthusiastic and harmonious meeting the committee adjourned.

T. Y. RAMSEY, Secretary.

Men sometimes protest against paying large sums for a few hours service from physicians or lawyers or trained mechanics, losing sight of the fact that the charge is not for the actual work done, but for the years of study and labor which made it possible to accomplish in a short time such results. The day is not for the brief, the prescription or the hour's work, but for the knowledge that lies behind these, knowledge which has been acquired by toil and self-sacrifice. It is well to remember that it is not the actual time spent in working, but the "knowing how" for which the public willingly pays, and young men can afford to spend time and money in obtaining a good business, mechanical or professional education. —Central Methodist.

A WONDER AT HARVARD.

The next catalogue of Harvard University will contain something quite new. For the first time in the history of that ancient institution of learning a woman's name will be found in the list of the officers of the University. Mrs. M. Fleming has been appointed curator of astronomical photographs, and this makes her an officer. She has earned distinction as one of the ablest and most successful observers of the new astronomy. In the detection of new stars, in the discovery of a law concerning variable stars, and in the carefulness with which she has preserved the fragile and delicate manuscripts of glass, written by the pale light of the stars, she is fairly entitled to the office conferred upon her.—Zion's Herald.

One hundred and fifty churches in Pittsburg, representing twelve denominations, have associated themselves in a federation for united aggressive work among the foreign population and non-church-goers. Two hundred clergymen took part in a "quiet day," held November 15, 1898, preparatory to beginning the Winter's work.—Central Methodist.

Prof. Upham, in his "Mental Philosophy," lays it down as a well proven theory that no mental principle in the Bible will, on a fair interpretation, be found to be at variance with the common experience of mankind. More and more this truth is established.—Epworth Era.

The name of Rev. Jno. D. Hammond, D. D., at present Secretary of Education of the M. E Church, South, has been mentioned in connection with the presidency of the University of Georgia. He is a graduate of that institution.—Wesleyan Advocate.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

The second term of the session, 1898-'99, will begin Monday, Feb. 27. For detailed information address

QUERY.

Is it legal for a Board of circuit or station stewards to assess for their pastor's salary a certain per cent. of all moneys collected for ministerial support instead of determining the amount necessary in dollars and cents?

INQUIRER.

A Christian young man in the United States Army at Manila writes to Dr. Hykes that the people are anxious to receive the Bible. Some Bible distributors went up to the terminus of the railroad with about one thousand Gospels, and after distributing about half of them from the car window on the way up, they attempted to pass the remainder out to people on the streets; but a crowd collected, and they were forced to go into a Chinese shop and bar the door and pass the books out through an iron-barred window. Books are not plentiful in the provincial dialects, and such as are obtainable are quite expensive; so the people were quite anxious to get books at reasonable price. The Gospels referred to were in the Pangasinan dialect, and some 2 000 copies were disposed of in a few days.

NOTES.

Dr. Hoss, of the Nashville Advocate, is regaling his readers with some delightful letters anent his recent trip to Cuba.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer is in the city, supervising the publication of the Conference Minutes. He is in good health and spirits, and anticipates a prosperous year in his district.

Rev. I. T. Reames begins the new year at Lafayette, La., with encouraging prospects. Despite bad weather, congregations are good, and the people interested in the church.

Rev. S. H. Werlein is spending a few days in the city visiting relatives. He preached at Rayne Memorial Church last Sabbath to the delight and edification of his numerous friends.

Rev. J. W. Chambers and his wife have been in the city a few days, the guests of Hon. F. A. Daniels. Bro Chambers preached an edifying sermon on Sunday night to Bro. Wynn's congregation at Algiers.

From a correspondent in New York City we learn that Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, the world famous Salvation Army orator and worker, will deliver several addresses in New Orleans in March or April. She will go from here to California.

We hope none of our subscribers will fail to read the appeal of Bishop Galloway, and also that of the college of Bishops, anent the Twentieth Century Educational Fund. We shall have something to say on this subject in the near future.

From a private letter from Rev. J. A. Bowen, sending new subscriptions to the ADVOCATE, we quote as follows: "The Lord is blessing us here in all departments of church work. We have had fifty-three accessions to the church since Conference, and more to follow." This is certainly a most gratifying showing.

From a private letter from Rev. P. D Hardin, of the Mississippi Conference, we quote as follows: "We have begun our second year on Shiloh circuit with every prospect of a successful year. The people are very mindful of our welfare. They have endeared themselves to us by many tokens of their appreciation."

We are indebted to our friend, Dr. J. B Fearn, for a copy of the Minutes of the Thirteenth Annual Session of the China Mission Conference, held at Shanghai, Oct. 20-25; Bishop A. W. Wilson presiding. It is a neatly-gotten-up octavo pamphlet of eighty-six pages, containing apparently a complete history of the proceedings.

We are indebted to some unknown friend for a copy of the Minutes of the Fifth Annual Session of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Mississippi Conference, held at Meridian, Nov. 26 29, '98—a neat pamphlet of twenty pages from the press of the Commercial Printing Co., Meridian. It contains the official reports and other matter properly belonging to such a publication.

The severe weather has hindered the canvass for the ADVOCATE as well as all other church operations. Nevertheless, a number of brethren have managed to see their people and procure subscriptions. With the return of good weather the canvass will be pushed with vigor. So the brethren say. Many, many thanks to these brethren for their interest in the ADVOCATE.

By courtesy of some unknown friend, we are in receipt of a copy of the Minutes of the Seventh Annual Session of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the North Mississippi Conference, held at Cleveland, Miss., Nov. 19-22, '98, a sixteen-page pamphlet bearing the imprint, "D. C. Ferris, Printer, Macon, Miss." Those desiring information concerning the operations of the society will find it here in compact form.

Rayne Memorial Church, in this city, has taken steps to buy or build a parsonage. All the necessary committees have been appointed, and have gone to work. Considerable interest in the movement has been developed, and it is contemplated that before the close of the year the popular and progressive pastor, Dr. W. H LaPrade, will be occupying an ecclesiastical domicile instead of "his own hired house."

The Rev. Henry Varley, of London, now in this country, having been holding meetings in New York and the East for several months, has kindly consented to come to New Orleans. Mr. Varley will open services Sunday, the nineteenth instant, with three services that day in different churches. Notice of the place will be given in the daily papers. There will be a Bible reading every afternoon and preaching each night as may be appointed. The Holy Spirit has greatly blessed his labors everywhere. We hope and pray that this will be the case in this city.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Mansfield, La., EDITOR.

From a private letter recently received from Rev. Jno. W. Bell, Houston, Miss., we learn that the League work is flonrishing on his charge.

He reports one new League organized, and more interest manifested in this department of church work than for many years past. They have recently formed a club, and sent in a goodly number of subscriptions for the Era. Good!

Miss Gussie Tooke writes from Arcadia, La., that they have one of the best Leagues in the State, with every department working well.

We gladly give space to the following paragraphs furnished by our fair friend, whose name is thereto attached:

The Arcadia District Epworth League Conference convenes at Arcadia, La., on March 22, 23, and 24, 1899. The Executive Committee are now preparing the program for the occasion, and they expect to do all in their power to make the meeting both interesting and beneficial. We extend a cordial invitation to all Leaguers. Come, and you will receive a hearty welcome.

On the twenty-sixth of January our pastor, Bro. Davies, organized a Junior League with twenty-four charter members. They are doing splendid work under the management of some of the Senior Leaguers. The little ones seem very enthusiastic over their work.

Our Missionary Study Class, under the able direction of Mrs. M. R Gladney, is doing good work. The subject for our next lesson is, "China." We hope to take up the Epworth League reading-course before long, beginning with "Dawn on the Hills of Fang."

Our Sunday afternoon prayer meeting is both well attended and spiritual, and I feel that it is accomplishing a great deal of good. Have never had so much interest manifested before since our organization. I find that the plan of having one good leader, and two or three sub-leaders, composed of the timid members, works well. In that way you can use every Leagner, and make them feel that they have something to do. Success to all the Leagues.

GUSSIE B. TOOKE, Pres.

We have just received an encouraging and helpful letter from Mrs. L. Meekins, of the Tchonpitonlas Mission, New Orleans. We will take the liberty of publishing it in full in our next issue.

Rev. R. A Meek, of Starkville, Miss., has been appointed president of the State Conference in place of Rev. J. A Randolph, who, as chaplain of the "Third Mississippi," has gone to Cuba.

The Mississippi Epworth Leagues will please read and regard the following financial report and exhortation of the corresponding secretary and treasurer:

It is only about three and a half months now to the time of our State Conference at West Point, and, as yet, not one-half of this pledge has been redeemed. I earnestly request that the pastors, district secretaries, League presidents and Missionary Committees take up this matter with renewed determination to succeed. Bro. Burton reports thirty-three children in the Home, and truly their plea will touch all hearts. I trust that the ministers will call the attention of their Leagners to the recent report of the Treasurer of our Mission Board, and urge the great necessity of promptly redeeming this pledge.

VIC. THOMPSON, Sec. and Treas.

Tupelo, Miss., Jan. 30, 1899.

TO W. F. M. S. OF NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SISTERS: In view of the great emergency that is upon us in raising our funds and closing up the work of the year that ends with March 1, '99, it is suggested that auxiliary treasurers be allowed until the end of the first week in March to make their final report to the Conference treasurer. Dues and contingent fees for the new year must not be included in this report. The extension of time is granted simply that our treasurers may have better opportunity for securing pledges and other funds for the year that is drawing to a close.

As an aid to this, all members of the W. F. M. S of the North Mississippi Conference are asked to observe March 1 as a day of prayer and fasting for our work, and to spend the three remaining days of the week in special efforts for the securing of money for the cause. Let each auxiliary, whose funds are not entirely secured by that time, select a committee of its most interested and faithful workers who shall use diligent means for the securing of the same. Let the selection of this committee and its work be the object of earnest prayer during the day of fasting and prayer.

Sisters, the need of the hour is very great. Unless you come up boldly and valiantly to the Lord's help his cause will suffer, and this failure on our part will be felt to the uttermost parts of the earth. Let it not be said to the shame of the women of North Mississippi that they failed to do their full part in advancing the kingdom of their Lord, or that they selfishly withheld from him their most precious gifts. Let us remember his great love wherewith he hath loved us, and pay our vows unto the Lord. MRS G. H. LIPSCOMB, President.

Winona, Miss.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: At our recent session in Hattiesburg the newly appointed Board of Missions organized, and among the officers elected I was made treasurer. I am now ready to serve you, and am waiting for your remittances. Please save me added, and unnecessary, trouble at Conference by remitting as soon as collected all money for missions, either foreign or domestic, to me. When remitting for foreign missions, make your postoffice or express money orders payable to J. D. Hamilton, Nashville, Tenn., and by so doing you will save unnecessary expense. Make all checks and drafts payable to me.

After the plain statement and earnest appeal by our General Secretaries for early collections, further exhortation by me may be useless; but I appeal to you to let us forward our share of the needed amount, and do it now. You who are serving new appointments for this year will do well to take your collection early; you know "a new broom sweeps clean." If we will circulate the Review of Missions, costing now but twenty-five cents a year, it will give material aid in bringing up full collections. One or two new rousing missionary sermons at each church, added to the influence of the Review, will almost assure the assessment paid in full if the pastor will ask for it.

Brethren, let us do our best, beginning now. Truly yours,

W. L. LINFIELD.

Meriden, Miss.

A SERVICE OF HUMILIATION AND PRAYER.

THURSDAY, FEB 23, 1899.

All the Woman's Home Mission organizations in the United States of America have agreed to observe the twenty-third instant in humble, earnest prayer for the cause of Christ in our home land.

A common program has been adopted. Should the state of the weather in any locality prevent the attendance upon the public meetings, let each observe the day privately. Let united, importunate prayer ascend for the outpouring of the Spirit.

MRS R. K HARGROVE.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

Bro. Smith does not believe that success succeeds. Well, I am sorry for him. I do not know of any other standard by which to judge a man than the results of his work. If Bro. Smith will give us light on this point, we will be very much obliged.

LAKE ARTHUR, LA,

The Lake Arthur people surely stormed and pounded us at the parsonage last Monday night. They brought in quite a lot of nice things and some cash for our comfort. The people of this charge are very kind to us, and the outlook is encouraging for a good year's work. This is an extensive prairie country. Your print made the other week made me say the "woods" are in bad condition, when I meant it for "road." We have very little woods. Yours,

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

SOCRATES died from a cup of poison administered by the hand of a friend. How many in this land have died by poisonous remedies given by friendly hands to combat diseases? It is quite a comfort to know that when giving DICKS' CHILLIFUGE there is not a drop of poison in a bottle full of this beneficent remedy.

Our Combination Bible is not what is generally called a family Bible. It is in flexible binding like the Oxford and the Holman, and is of a very convenient size.

THE BOOK OPENED;
OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the changes of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it.—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney poison in the blood is liable to attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worse form of kidney trouble. Kidney trouble can be detected although it be slow and deceptive. First, by analysis of the urine; second, by the simple test of setting the urine aside in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, when a cloudy or brick dust settling indicates it.

It was for just such troubles that in His infinite power and goodness the Great Physician caused Swamp-Root to grow for the benefit of suffering mankind, leaving it for Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, to discover it and make it known to the world. Its wonderful efficacy in promptly curing the most distressing cases is truly marvelous.

By sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

When writing be sure and mention reading this liberal offer in "NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE." The regular fifty-cent and one dollar sizes are sold by most druggists. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

THE YEARS.

BY MARIANNE FARNINGHAM.

Steady, regular their pace,
Every movement full of grace,
March the years;
Yet he runs a breathless race,
And his forces he must brace,
Who keeps step by step through space
With these years.

They are charged with gifts for man,
Let him wrest the best who can
From the mass.
Shadow, substance, deed, and plan,
Honor's gold, dream's talisman,
You may seize but for a span—
As they pass.

They can heal your heart, or break;
They can mock your thirst, or slake;
Smiles or tears
They can give, and you must take;
Yet they come for love's own sake,
And true servants you may make
Of these years.

Of their marchings to and fro
The eternal God doth know;
He is King.
Let them come, and let them go,
God is in each one, and so
All is well. Come weal or woe,
God is King!

IF I COULD BE A BOY AGAIN.

BY BISHOP J. H. VINCENT.

"If I were a boy?" Ah, if I only were! The very thought sets my imagination afire. That "if" is a key to Dreamland.

"If I were a boy"—well, if I were a boy such as I was, of the same sort, with the same beginnings, the same blood, the same surroundings, the same teachers, the same home (blessed home!), the same classmates, the same accidents, atmospheres and aspirations; the same interior opinions, passions, and conflicts—should I have come into the same life, by the same path, with the same experience and outcome? Could I have made the product different?

If I were a boy, with my present knowledge of the end, or the state of present progress toward the end, with my memory of the past and my man's view of a boy's life—what would I do?

First, I should have an early conversation with my parents. I should bring my later wisdom to bear on them. I am older now than my father was when I was a boy, and I might give a word of advice even to him.

If I were a boy, I should want a thorough discipline, early begun and never relaxed, on the great doctrine of will-force as the secret of character. Faith in God is, I know, the foundation. But it must be a true fear and not a wretched terror; the fear which is a reverent and holy love for a loving king, who is a father, and who is gentle as a mother, and who loathes selfishness, falsehood and meanness. If I were a boy, I should want my teacher to put weight of responsibility upon me; to make me know and feel that God furnishes the material and the conditions, but that I must do the work of building my character; to fill me with the thought that I am not a "thing," a stick, a stone, a lump of clay or putty, but a "person," a "power," a "cause," a "creator," and that what I am in the long run, in the final outcome, I am to make myself.

Father and mother, older brother and sister, pastor and teacher, neighbor and best friend, books and periodicals, are good teachers. Classes for letter-picking and word-building, for difficult spelling and reading, are very good. Classes in numbers, for mental problems and drawing geometrical lines, are excellent. But the best class, to be earliest organized and longest sustained, the class in which a two-year-old should be an advanced pupil, the class that never graduates, is the class in which a boy is trained to say, "I ought; I can; I will."

If I were a boy with my man's wisdom, I should eat wholesome food and no other. I should chew it well and never "bolt it down." I should eat at regular hours. I should never touch tobacco, chewing-gum or patent medicines; never once go to bed without cleaning my teeth; never let a year go by without a dentist's inspection and treatment; never sit up late at night unless a great emergency demanded it; never linger one moment in bed when the time came for getting up; never fail to rub every part of my body every morning with a wet towel, and then with a dry one; and never drink more than three or four tablespoonfuls of ice-water at one time. But all this takes will-power. Yes, but that is all it does take.

I should never speak a word to anyone who might be worried about it, and only kind words of others, even of enemies, in their absence. I should put no unclean thoughts, pictures, sights or stories in my memory and imagination. I should want to be able to say, like Dr. George H. Whitney, "I have never pronounced a word which I ought not to speak in the presence of the purest woman in the world." I should treat little folks kindly, and not tease them; show respect to servants, and be kind to the unfortunate.

I should play and romp, sing and shout, climb trees, explore caves, swim rivers, and be able to do in reason all the manly things that belong to manly sports; love and study nature; travel as widely and observe as wisely as I could; study with a will when the time came for study; read the best books; try to speak accurately and pronounce distinctly; go to college and go through college, even if I expected to be a clerk, a farmer, or a mechanic; try to be a practical, every-day Christian; help every good cause; "use the world and not abuse it;" treat older men and women as fathers and mothers, the young as brethren and sisters in all purity.

Thus I should try to be a Christian gentleman, wholesome, sensible, cheerful, independent, courteous; a boy with a will; a boy without cant or cowardice; a man's will and wisdom in me, and God's grace, beauty, and blessing abiding with me.—Success.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

COURTESY TO WOMEN AND GIRLS.

Many a boy fails to rise from his chair when his mother enters the room, while he would get up at once if a stranger entered; and one would suppose that his mother, who is more to him than all the rest of womankind put together, should, to say the least, have from him the same marks of courtesy as strangers. In fact, you can tell a boy's character pretty accurately by the way in which he treats his mother; for as a mother has probably done and will do more for her son than any other woman—with, perhaps, one exception—will ever do, so he ought, in return, to treat her as his most valuable possession. His courtesy, his chivalrous and knightly bearing toward her, are never thrown away.

She sees it all, and thinks more of it than does anyone else, and he need never fear that his thoughtfulness is thrown away. Perhaps, occasionally, such conduct may, to a certain extent, go unnoticed by some other women, but by his mother, never.

In the same way one's conduct to one's sister is a test of good breeding. Sisters are not mothers, by any means; but still they demand courtesy from their brothers. Perhaps a sister can be pretty hard to get on with at times, but, nevertheless, she is a woman, and she can do certain things without any fear of retaliation, because the nobility of the man in the boy is bound to respect the woman in his sister.

Let her tease and tantalize, but remember the best way to cure her is to treat her so like a lady who could never descend to such methods that she will soon be forced to stop, in order to live up to the character you have given her. Mothers come first, therefore, over all the world, and sisters next. Treat them as carefully as you do anything else in your life, and with even more care, and then we can discuss the rest of womankind.—Harper's Round Table.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

A LESSON IN POLITENESS.

"I was so ashamed, Willie, when I had to remind you to thank Mrs. Foster for the book she gave you for Christmas," said Mother Thomas to her little son, Willie.

"Why, mother," was his reply, "you always said you wanted me to be honest and truthful. I don't like the book at all. It is too babyish for me."

"I do want you to be honest and truthful," said his mother, "but you can be so without being rude. Mrs. Foster hasn't any boys, and perhaps she doesn't know very well the kind of reading a boy likes; but the book is bound very prettily, and it certainly was kind of her to remember you and send you a present. Don't you think so?"

"Yes, mother," said Willie.

"Well, then, don't you see how you could honestly feel grateful to her for the gift just because it showed her kind feeling toward you, even though you don't care for the gift itself?"

"I see now," said Willie. "If I had thought of that, I would have thanked her as soon as I had a chance. But I didn't know how I could be polite and honest, too."

"There is a little rhyme I would like you to learn, for it is a very good definition of true politeness:

"'Politeness is to do and say
The kindest thing in the kindest way.'"

CHEERFULNESS.

"Be cheerful," says the man who is easy in his circumstances, missing no loved face at the table, nor by the hearth. But does he ever consider how hard it may be to be "cheerful" when the heart aches, and the cupboard is empty, and there are little fresh graves in the churchyard, and friends are few or indifferent, and even heaven, for the time being, seems to have forgotten us, so desolate is our lot? How difficult for one man to understand another, in such different circumstances! How easy to say, "Be cheerful!" How hard he would find it to practice it were he stripped of all life's brightness!—Great Thoughts.

ON LIVING BEYOND ONE'S MEANS.

Dr. George C. Lorimer, in an article on "Living Beyond One's Means," says:

"Someone has said that our children desire to begin where these children leave off. Consequently, if they can procure the elegancies of life in no other way, they will secure them on the credit system and pay interest on a cut-throat chattel mortgage, a form of finance that would bankrupt the Rothschilds and lead to a panic on every exchange in the world. For it is a fact that the poor pay far higher for the accommodation they receive than do the rich for theirs. The not unusual outcome of this kind of housekeeping is that the debtor falls behind in his payments, is annoyed by duns, borrows a trifle from a friend to ward off the evil day, and at last abandons hope, losing furniture and all, that has been paid as interest and principal.

"In happy contrast was the course adopted by a bright-eyed wife in Chicago. Calling at the house, I remarked: 'Your home looks very pretty.' She replied emphatically: 'It is pretty, for we have paid for everything in it.' Then she told me that before her marriage the intended requested her to select a carpet and he would buy it on trust; but that she stoutly refused, and assured him that the bare floor was good enough for her until he could afford to pay for what he purchased. I exclaimed: 'Bravo!' and I am persuaded the little woman has made a good business man of her husband by this time."

Train up the hired girl in the way she should go, and the first thing you know she's gone.—Princeton Republican.

Hygiene.

FOOD, WORK AND SLEEP.

What a great mistake it is to contend that time taken from toil for sleep and recreation is time lost! There is no greater fallacy, for sleep and recreation form, as it were, the cement put in to fill up the joints in order to keep out the weather and preserve the edifice. A man does not necessarily require riches, honors or office—although the majority of us naturally have an ambition to attain one of these desiderata—but he does need food, work and sleep. It follows, therefore, that he should use every means to promote life, and among these there are three things to be kept in mind. When a man denies himself sleep, food and the exercise work gives both to brain and body, he is robbing his life of its full term. Let him be cheerful, also, for the body is like an engine—it will run well and long if it is well oiled. Contentment and cheerfulness are the oil which keeps the nerves from wearing out.—New York Ledger.

Animals, a writer alleges, as an example to the man, eat first and sleep after. The long interval between supper and breakfast, and the emptiness of the stomach during sleep, is injurious, and to it is attributable much of the emaciation, sleeplessness, and general debility met with. He advises the weak and sleepless to take nightly a light, simple meal before going to bed, if they would improve their health. A bowl of milk and bread or a little oatmeal, regularly taken for a few months, will have a surprising influence in toning up the system and increasing the weight and strength. This is a simple treatment, and might be found advantageous.—Health.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wineglass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

Too Evident Dentistry.

We make crowns and bridge work without the least show of gold when desired. This work is extremely natural in appearance, as all gold is hidden by porcelain matching the teeth in color, giving no hint of gold band or crown attachments. This feature is highly appreciated, particularly by dainty women who abhor TOO EVIDENT DENTISTRY. Good dentistry preserves and improves the expression, particularly of the mouth, makes eating a pleasure, and should—to insure the best results—be quite painless.

We guarantee to fill, treat, crown or extract teeth without pain.

Our offices are the most elegant and perfectly equipped in the South. Our operators are men of skill and integrity, who will be pleased to examine your teeth and advise without charge, even if you are not ready to have work done. Call and let us show you some of the devices owned and controlled by us that enable us to do the HIGHEST CLASS of work at prices usually asked for barely average dentistry.

The Electropoise

ITS VALUE AND USES AS TOLD BY TESTIMONIALS.

One of the effects of the Electropoise treatment is to stimulate the nerve centers to increased activity, thus building up the nervous system. This is proven by the letter given below from Rev. Mr. Bell, the well-known evangelist:

We have had an Electropoise in our family for almost two years. I can highly recommend it for all nervous troubles. I believe it a success.

REV. H. H. BELL.

Monmouth, Ill.

Another equally important result is the building up in flesh and tissue resulting in additional strength and vitality, and furnishing a reserve to fall back on in time of need. The letter from Mr Rockwell, a successful merchant, gives his experience; it follows:

I am doing considerable talking for the Electropoise as it has put fifteen pounds of flesh on me since July. Yours truly,

H. H. ROCKWELL.

Wellsville, N. Y.

Unless a person enjoys sound and restful sleep, there is some weakness, which in time is sure to be followed by a well-defined form of disease. Almost the first beneficial effects noticeable from this treatment is a feeling of exhilaration and strength experienced after a sound night's rest. Mr. Pritchard, editor of a prominent religious weekly, gives his experience in the editorial that follows:

But I hold up before you the power of the Electropoise to put a person quickly and naturally asleep, and keep him asleep until satisfied nature awakes refreshed. In my own family, in this one respect alone, it has been an incalculable blessing. In this way the Electropoise is a preventer of sickness, and prevention is better than cure.

JOHN W. PRITCHARD,

New York City. Editor Christian Nation.

Persons suffering from poor circulation will find in the Electropoise a remedy sure and simple. Quick and lasting results follow. Oftentimes by the use of this little instrument cold feet can be warmed quicker than by an open fire. The experience of Miss Wright is given in a grateful letter:

I have taken two courses of treatment with the Electropoise, and have been marvelously benefited. My circulation is so invigorated that I feel a glow and warmth in my veins to which I have been a stranger. I have suffered much from cold feet and hands all my life, but now I am troubled no longer, and an inward trouble of many years' standing seems to have vanished also. I believe in the Electropoise.

As a rule, physicians look with skepticism on all patent and advertised remedies. This is as it should be, as many concoctions the benefits from which are only temporary injure the linings of the stomach permanently. That the Electropoise can not be classed among such remedies is clearly and convincingly proven by the following paragraph taken from an article written by Dr C. Colgrove, of Holland, N. Y., a graduate of the Medical Department of the University of Buffalo; he says:

My prayer is that the time may quickly come when the spectacle of thousands dying needlessly may no longer be witnessed, and when the heart, keenly sensitive to the suffering of others, and filled with bitter anguish upon the loss of loved ones, shall cease to be wrung with unavailable and unspeakable grief. Without a doubt the Electropoise has the gift and power to cure multitudes, who, without it, must surely die, and that, too, in early life or in the very maturity of strength, when their loss is most severely felt and the mystery of their untimely death is most terribly difficult of solution.

C. COLGROVE, M. D.,

Holland, N. Y.

We all know that drugs kill more people than disease, that the best doctors no longer give powerful medicines in the quantities they once did, but rely more upon good nursing and pure wholesome food. The Electropoise cures without medicine lasts a life time, can be used on every member of the family, and for any disease.

Mrs. Bishop Wilson finds the Electropoise almost a necessity.

2412 Madison Ave., BALTIMORE, Md.

I find the Electropoise almost a necessity. It is, indeed, of great importance to my comfort. I experienced relief from neuralgia, which at one time threatened to keep me a constant sufferer. I take pleasure in speaking for the Electropoise, and hope these few words will induce those who read them to make trial of this "cure all."

MRS. A. W. WILSON.

(Wife of Bishop Wilson, of M. E. Church, South.)

After six years' use, the instrument has proved its value to a well-known divine:

1501 S. Eighth St., WACO, TEXAS.

I gladly testify to the truth of the Electropoise. It is all the manufacturers claim it to be. Have used it for over six years.

REV. F. SIEVERS.

Rev. Mr. Little tells his experience. First ridicule, then toleration, and last by conviction. His letter follows:

LITTLE'S MILLS, N. C.

There have been three stages in my experience with the Electropoise. Before using it I was disposed to ridicule the idea of any good being derived therefrom, except through the imagination. After using it for a short while for indigestion, I was ready to say that there was power in it; but after having given it a thorough test I have become convinced that there is great power for good in the Poise. Am fully assured that it has been a prominent factor in my restoration to health. It has also been of great benefit to other members of my family. Wishing you much success in your good work, I am, sincerely yours,

REV. LACY L. LITTLE.

OBITUARIES.

KEARNEY—JOHN KITCHEN KEARNEY was born March 2, 1823, and died at his home in Canton, Miss., Dec. 18 1898 He beloved wife (nee Mis. Henrietta Pikes), with whom he had lived a life of perfect congeniality and affection for over forty-eight years, preceded him to heaven only a few months. Since her departure he seemed not to care to live. She who added the most sacred and comforting charm to his life had gone before, and his thoughts seemed to be rather upon following her than to be occupied with the affairs of this world. His home has always been in Madison county, where he was as well known, perhaps, as anyone who had ever lived in the county. Whoever was thrown with him, even temporarily, rarely ever forgot him. His joyous, kindly, companionable manners won upon everyone, and made his association to live in the memory, and his friendly, unpretentious bearing drew all to him He had a tender, sympathetic heart, loved everybody, and everybody loved him.

His educational advantages were very good. In early life he had access to the best country schools, and for five years he pursued his studies at Centenary College of Louisiana. In 1850 he graduated at this institution to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. His life, except the latter years in Canton, was spent almost altogether upon the plantation. His house was a fine type of an old-time Southern home. There not only was genuine hospitality dispensed and his guests entertained sumptuously, but his sunny soul made the cares of life to vanish, and kept the bright side of things ever before the mind.

His natural instincts were all opposed to war, and he did not volunteer at the beginning of the conflict between the States, but when he saw that the struggle was to be protracted, and that his country needed his services, he volunteered as a private in Ward's Battery, organized in Canton. He was soon promoted to be lieutenant. His record in the army, as in all of his undertakings, was noted for faithfulness and integrity. He was so severely wounded at the battle of Cold Harbor, Va., that his leg had to be amputated. Although his whole after life was spent under this disability, yet he so fully accepted the orderings of Providence that it seemed not in the least degree to affect his genial, hopeful nature.

He became converted as a Christian and joined the M. E. Church, South, at a revival service held near his home by Rev. H. H. Montgomery. He ever remained a loyal Methodist, often serving his church in an official capacity.

He suffered greatly for two months during his final illness, but his patience never wavered, nor did a murmur escape his lips. Tender, skillful hands administered to his wants. His loving niece, Miss Belle Kearney, to whom he was devotedly attached, said to him during his illness, "Uncle Kinch, you are not afraid to go?" "Not at all," he confidently replied. "Do you feel perfectly at rest with God?" "Perfectly," he answered unhesitatingly. His faithful pastor, the Rev. T. L. Mellen, leaned over his bed and repeated a number of texts and appropriate passages from the Scriptures. Finally he began with, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil." He caught up the quotation, adding, "for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Looking up at Bro. Mellen, he said: "Every hour in the day I go over that passage again and again, 'Though I walk through the valley,'" repeating the entire passage. Thus, surrounded by his loved ones, and upheld by the comforts of religion, he passed peacefully and hopefully away. C. G. ANDREWS.

BURTON—Mrs. TERESA ANN BURTON (nee Thorell), wife of Capt. W. Burton, died at her home in Melville, La., Jan. 27, 1899, aged eighty-eight years one month and two days. The deceased was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., near Woodville, Dec. 25, 1810, and was married to Capt. W. Burton, May 31, 1827, which union was blessed with six children, only one of whom now remains—Mrs. Ann E. Hartman, of Felicity Street Church, New Orleans. In 1857 she united with the M. E. Church, South, at Churchville, La., and has since lived a most consistent and beautiful Christian life.

In these long years of service in her church and to her Redeemer, such was her devotion that many are the lives that have been blessed and brightened by her example and influence. Oh, how she was loved by everyone in the large list of her acquaintances! And there are many hearts besides the loved ones of home whose hearts are saddened in her demise. In her last illness her suffering was great, but her submission was perfect and her consecration beautiful. Willing to suffer, ready to go, death had no terror for her. Her aged companion, Capt. Walthall Burton, now in his ninety-second year; a daughter, five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, remain to weep over their irreparable loss. May the Lord comfort and strengthen them in their deep sorrow! J. W. LEE.

Melville, La.

RISHER—J. C. RISHER, Jr., a young man of promise, has died. He is gone to try the realities of a world unknown to us As he looked into the faces of his father, mother, and other loved ones, he forgot his own agony, and said, "This is a beautiful morning." Another home made lonely. He seemed to see the broken home circle as it would look when he was gone. And so it might have been said of one sweet home that nestled in the forest near Hopewell Methodist Church, in Jasper county, Miss., on the twenty-eighth of January, 1899 He was born Aug. 26, 1880, and died Jan. 28, 1899

When Johnnie did lay himself down to die, fully conscious of his approaching dissolution, he feared no evil, for he had remembered his Creator in the days of his youth, and dedicated himself to his service. To him there was no shadow of turning, for he had set his face as a flint to serve the Lord. He had mapped out his life-work to give all within the scope of his influence an uplift. As he lived, so he died—full of faith and trust in his Savior. To the earnest inquiry of his father as to his spiritual condition, whether there was anything that obscured the light from his soul, he replied: "No, father; I am all right. I have made ready for the hour when it comes. Don't trouble yourself about that; all is bright." In all of his sickness he was never known to murmur or complain.

Johnnie is gone, but the world is made better by his having lived in it, and his influence will never die. The mourners go about the house made desolate. The pitcher is broken at the fountain, the wheel at the cistern; but when the day breaks and shadows flee away, then shall we see again our loved ones that have gone on before. J. H. FOREMAN, P. C.

Rose Hill, Miss.

ROUSSEAU—Mrs. EUGENIA ROUSSEAU, wife of W. N. Rousseau, was born April 2, 1854, and died at Stoneville, Washington county, Miss., Feb. 1, 1899

She had not been in robust health for a long time, but last Sunday she seemed especially well and cheerful, singing as she went about the house. Sunday night she was taken with a chill, which developed into the direful grippe. After a brief illness she quietly passed away on Wednesday morning. Mrs. Rousseau professed religion and joined the Missionary Baptist Church at Mound Bluff, in Madison county, Miss., in 1874 from which place she never moved her membership. Not living near a church of her own denomination, she still took an interest in things religious, and lived a consistent Christian life. She was a good neighbor, unassuming, and possessed the beautiful virtue of modesty, which is a "crown" to any woman. She left a husband, three daughters, and a son, to grieve for "wife and mother." We sympathize with them, and pray that God will make this a "blessed" sorrow to draw them nearer to him "who doeth all things well." A FRIEND.

THOMAS Died Jan. 15, 1899, at the home of her parents, at Allentown, La., MITTIE INEZ, infant daughter of C. H. and Mrs. Mittie Thomas, aged five months and thirteen days.

She was only permitted to brighten and bless her earthly home for a few months. Like a tender little plant, she has been plucked from her home on earth and transplanted into her home above. All was done for her that devoted parents, kind friends and a good doctor could do. Her mission on earth was not long. The good Lord saw fit to take her into his heavenly fold. Her pure, sweet life while on earth only gives us a faint idea of the pureness of those with whom we are to live with, if we are faithful. She is waiting and watching in heaven for mama and papa. Only be faithful to God, and you will meet her in the sweet fields of Eden, where the tree of life is blooming forever.

How sweet to know that God has prepared such a place for us! A sweet, precious one from us is gone; a voice that was loved is still in death; a place is vacant in the home which never can be filled. H. J. BOLTZ

HILBERT—Resolutions adopted by the Methodist Sunday-school at McComb City, Miss., concerning the death of THOMAS HILBERT, who was a member of the same:

Resolved, That our Sabbath-school has lost a bright student and a faithful attendant for the past five years. That we tender his grief-stricken parents our tenderest sympathies and prayers, and while sorrowing with them for the parting here, yet comforted with the blessed assurance that he was going home to his "Father in heaven."

Resolved, That a copy of these lines be spread upon the Minutes of the Sabbath-school; also sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication

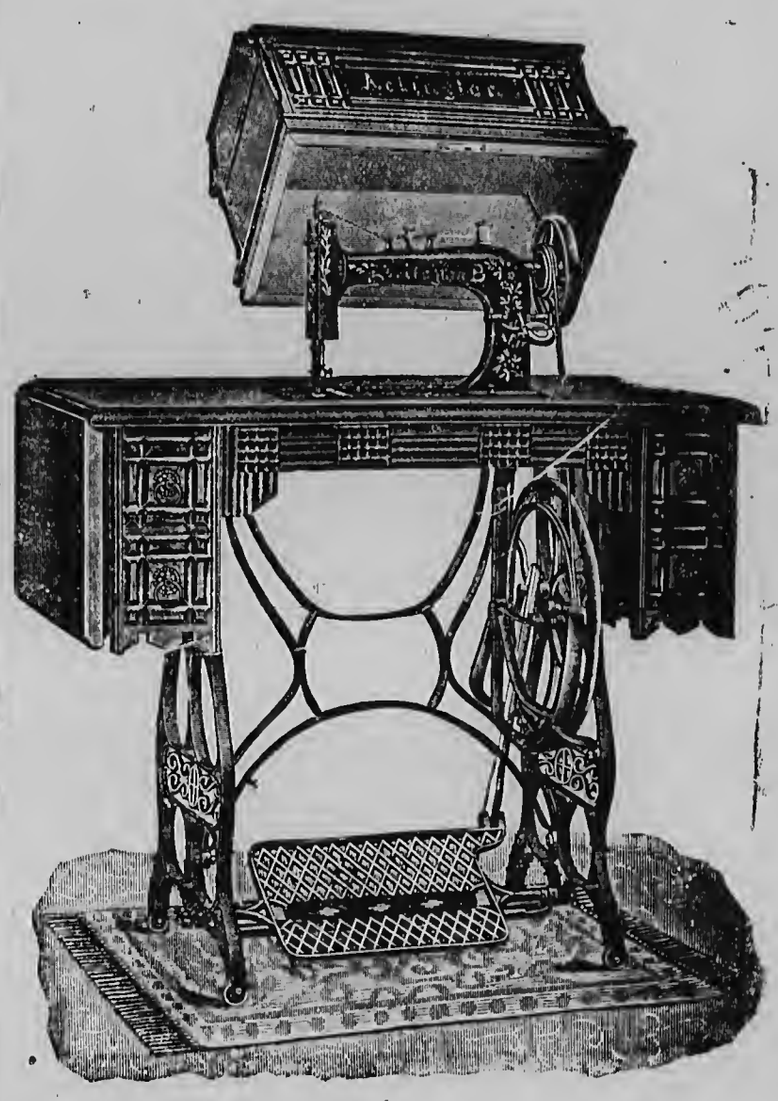
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one guage, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

A stringent anti-gambling law has been enacted by the Idaho Legislature, to replace a law which had become a dead letter.

Andrew Carnegie has offered the city of Atlanta $100,000 for a free public library, the conditions being that the city furnish the site and devote $5000 per year to the maintenance of the institution.

Now that the Treaty of Peace has been ratified the Senate will be at liberty to take up the army bill, if it is so disposed, and it will have to do so very soon if the measure is to be passed by the present Congress, as only three more weeks of the official existence of that body remain.

The friction and opposition engendered by the consideration of the Peace Treaty in the Senate promise to prove the undoing of the army and navy personnel bills. The administration is extremely anxious to pass the army bill, and threatens that, if the measure is rejected, a special session will be called to consider a similar bill.

The unprecedented weather which has been experienced during the past few days, in addition to the great amount of suffering and inconvenience it has imposed upon the people of this section, who are entirely unaccustomed to weather so severe, will, without doubt, inflict considerable damage in the way of injury to the crops.

Last week was a fatal one to the Filipinos. They opened fire on the American lines Saturday night. In seven days they have lost thousands in killed, not to mention the wounded and prisoners, and their lines have been broken and pushed back for miles. They fight bravely, but with poor judgment, and, fortunately for the Americans, they are poor marksmen.

Six important expositions are now in sight. The first is the Industrial Exhibition to be held in Philadelphia next Fall in connection with the commercial museum. The Paris Exposition comes next year, along with one in Glasgow, one in Detroit in honor of the second centennial of the settlement of that city, and one in Buffalo to be called the Pan-American Exposition. In 1903 St. Louis will hold one of the greatest international expositions in history to celebrate the purchase of Louisiana.

The anticipated cold wave has reached extreme Northern Florida, and on Sunday covered the entire Southern country, except Southern Florida. On the gulf coast the temperature ranged from eight to eighteen degrees below the freezing point. On Sunday the minimum at Mobile was twelve degrees; at New Orleans, fourteen; at Atlanta, eight, and at Vicksburg, one below zero. All previous records for the second decade of February were broken from the lower Missouri and middle Mississippi valleys southward to the gulf. Temperatures of zero or below occurred in Southern Texas, Southern Mississippi and Northwestern Alabama.

Notwithstanding the energetic manner in which the campaign against the Filipinos has been prosecuted since the commencement of the fighting on Saturday night last, it has become evident that the insurgents are determined not to yield readily. The fact that they have been worsted with comparative ease around Manila does not argue an early cessation of hostilities, because, as the American forces are compelled to pursue the enemy further into the interior, the number of men that will be needed to guard the line of communication will materially cut down the strength General Otis will be able to hurl against the islanders.

The War Department, after long and careful work, has made up what it believes to be a full and complete list of the dead of the Cuban and Porto Rican campaigns, who are still interred in Cuba. An appropriation has been made to have these bodies removed to the United States, and the "Roumanian," with a large force of undertakers, has started for Porto Rico to begin this work. The War Department so far has received applications from friends and relatives of about 300 dead who wish to take charge personally of the bodies for private burial. The quartermaster-general's office would like to receive the names and address of any other persons who are authorized to take charge of bodies on their arrival in the United States. Where such requests are received the bodies on their arrival in New York will be shipped direct to the address indicated and turned over to friends, the whole expense of the transportation being borne by the government. Bodies not claimed by relatives will be given honorable military interment at Arlington.

NOTICE.

To the Pastors of the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Some days ago Dr. Hammond, Secretary of the Board of Education, sent to me Roll Books for the "TWENTIETH CENTURY Educational Fund," which I remailed to the pastors of the district by next mail. If any have not received one of these books, they will please inform me at once, that they may be prepared to begin the canvass at once.

Please allow me to call attention to the article by Bro. Bingham, in the ADVOCATE of this date (Feb. 9), and also to the action of the joint session of the Committees of the Mississippi and the North Mississippi Conferences, concerning this great interest, which will be published in the columns of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE at an early day. While the amount called for looks large in addition to the claims already upon us, there is no reason why the Jackson district can not make this reach the amount expected at her hands. While one dollar per member is the minimum, there are many who, we believe, will give greater amounts. With system and application the work can be accomplished with honor to ourselves and the glory of God.

Brethren, let us all pull together for this one end. Fraternally,

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

CATARRH AND CONSUMPTION

I have spent nearly fifty years in the treatment of the above named diseases, and believe I have effected more genuine cures than any specialist in the history of medicine. As I must soon retire from active life I will, from this time on, send the means of treatment and cure, as used in my practice, FREE and post-paid to every reader of this paper who suffers from these annoying and dangerous diseases. This is a sincere offer which anyone is free to accept. Address, Prof. J. H. Lawrence, 114 W. 32d St., New York

FREE

A positive, quick and lasting cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Poor Blood, Rheumatism, Corpulency, etc. Thousands of testimonials from grateful people who have been cured. We send the Medicine free and post-paid. You Save Doctors' bills and get well. Good Agents wanted. Write to-day. Address EGYPTIAN DRUG CO., Box 0, New York.

NOTICE.

To the Auxiliary Treasurers of Home Mission Society, North Mississippi Conference—

DEAR SISTERS: By the time this notice reaches you the last quarter of our fiscal year will be gone. I beg each of you to be prompt in sending your report. The General Treasurer (Mrs. Kirkland) must have my report by the fifteenth of March, and it takes some time to get up this work; so I trust, my dear sisters, that each of you will exert yourself to have your report in my hands by the first week in March. Let us be faithful and true to the trust reposed in us.

Yours in the love of Christ,

MRS. WALTER TROTTER,
Conf. Treas.

Winona, Miss., Feb. 11, 1899.

A COOK BOOK FREE.

"Table and Kitchen" is the title of a new cook book published by the Price Baking Powder Company, Chicago. Just at this time it will be sent free if you write a postal mentioning the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. This book has been tried by ourselves and is one of the very best of its kind. Besides containing over 400 receipts for all kinds of pastry and home cookery, there are many hints for the table and kitchen, showing how to set a table, how to enter the dining room, etc.; a hundred and one hints in every branch of the culinary art. Cookery of the very finest and richest as well as of the most economical and home like, is provided for. Remember "Table and Kitchen" will be sent, postage prepaid, to any lady sending her address (name, town and State) plainly given. A copy in German or Scandinavian will be sent if desired. Postal card is as good as letter. Address Price Baking Powder Co., Chicago, Ill.

READ THIS.

The Boston Dental Parlors has the patronage of prominent business and professional men in this city, who have given testimonials as to the excellent character of its work. Be sure to read their advertisement in another column.

THAT BOOK!

A reader of Dr. Hunnicutt's Essays says: "The Essay on The Former Days and These is particularly fine in matter and style. The whole book is good reading—was sorry when I reached the end, and shall read it again—two things I can say of no other book." Send 50 cents to Barbee and Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and get the book.

Catarrh Can Be Cured.

Catarrh is a kindred ailment of consumption, long considered incurable; and yet there is one remedy that will positively cure catarrh in any of its stages. For many years this remedy was used by the late Dr. Stevens, a widely noted authority on all diseases of the throat and lungs. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all sufferers from Catarrh, Asthma, Consumption, and nervous diseases, this recipe, in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

A subscriber writes: "The ten books were duly received, and I want to thank you for enabling me to get such a valuable set of books. They are simply superb."

DANGER IN CALCIUM CARBIDE.

RULES GOVERNING ITS SALE IN NEW YORK. LIQUEFIED ACETYLENE GAS PROHIBITED.

Superintendent Murray, of the Bureau of Combustibles, has made regulations governing the transportation, storage and sale of calcium carbide, which the firemen declare to be a source of danger in a burning building, because when water reaches it acetylene gas is given off. A number of stores keep it for use in bicycle lamps. Hereafter, in transportation or on storage, it must be inclosed in hermetically sealed iron receptacles marked "Dangerous, if not kept dry." No package may contain more than five pounds. It must be stored in isolated buildings that are fireproof and waterproof. No artificial light or heat will be permitted in the building where it is stored. Not more than twenty pounds, in bulk or in cartridges, may be kept in any store or factory, and this must be in a fireproof safe or vault above the street grade, and it must be kept six inches above the floor.

The manufacture, transportation, storage, sale or use of liquefied acetylene is absolutely prohibited within the limits of this city.—N. Y. Sun.

LOST HOURS.

BY R. T. W. DUKE.

Their advent is as silent as their going.
They have no voice nor utter any speech,
No whispered murmur passes each to each.
As on the bosom of the years' stream flowing.
They pass beyond recall, beyond our knowing,
Farther than sight can pierce or thought can reach,
Nor shall we ever hear them on Time's beach,
No matter how the winds of life are blowing.

They hide their time, they wait the awful warning
Of that dread day, when hearts and graves unsealing,
The trumpet's note shall call the sea and sod,
To yield their secrets to the sun's revealing:
What voices then shall thrill the judgment morning,
As our lost hours shall cry aloud to God!

MUD-BOUND.

MR. EDITOR: The first Sunday after Conference found me at Morton, whither I had gone the day before to meet my first appointment on the first round of Quarterly Conferences. Bro. Linfield met me at the train Saturday night, and piloted me through the mud to the home of Bro. Howard, where I was very kindly and comfortably cared for during my stay in Morton, except that the pleasure of breaking bread with Capt. Taylor and family Sunday was granted me. The recent arrival of Hilliard Barrow Linfield prevented my being entertained in the parsonage. Two sermons were preached on Sunday. Circumstances forced me to leave the Conference in the hands of the preacher in charge, who was equal to the occasion.

We—the "better half," and one of the daughters, and the "larger half"—reached Forest a little before noon, and were met by Bro. W. M. Sullivan, who was waiting till his successor in the pastorate, Bro. Scarborough, should come to take charge of the new parsonage. Bro. Sullivan escorted us to the district parsonage (which is completely eclipsed by the pastor's home), and, finding that the pantry was empty, went at once on a foraging expedition out in town. Pretty soon some supplies came from Bro. Barbee's store. Bro. H. H. Watts sent up our trunks free of charge, and when the boxes of books and household goods came he more than doubled the first gracious deed. And similar favors have been conferred since that time. A well-filled waiter from the Womack House was not lightly appreciated.

Friday "our beloved presiding elder" started for Raleigh. He had been told of the prairie mud and the rough roads, but when he got into the mud he found that "the half had not been told." For three and a half miles—which seemed three times farther—Maud and Mack (alias Selim) plunged and pulled. For once in his life the "beloved" found it was not safe to "keep in the middle of the road," but to go with the multitude of wagon tracks in or out of the road, as the case might be. When the summit of what is variously known as Moore's Hill, or Gray's Hill, was reached, he thought the end of his troubles had come. He felt jubilant. But just as the foot of the hill was reached on the farther side the prairie mud was reached again (though some had been brought over the hill on the buggy and on "the beloved's" clothes). The fact is, that that mud has sticking qualities which are to be commended to the average church member. It does not want to let go. It has crept far up one side of Gray's Hill, and clings close to the foot of the hill on that other side. And so the ponies plowed and plunged, and the buggy followed, now on the causeway and now off. "The beloved" began to think he had missed the Raleigh road, and was going back to Forest. But inquiry made at the first house where inquiry was possible brought forth the answer, "I've never been to Roliy, but that's the way they all goes." Two miles of prairie? It seemed five times two! Then the road through the piney woods! Up hill and down, in the ruts and out, in the mud-holes and in the swamps, on and on, and still on! But the road to Raleigh has an end, and on that occasion it ended at the hotel, for the preacher in charge had not yet reached his headquarters, and nobody on Raleigh circuit had gotten his or her ADVOCATE with the announcement of the "first round." (There is a suspicion in the minds of some that not many copies of the ADVOCATE are taken in the bounds of Raleigh circuit.) Bro. Bowling and Bro. Cront, stewards, soon put in their appearance, and made themselves known to the new presiding elder. The tidings spread, and the next morning quite a little congregation met and attentively listened to the preaching of "the Word." After the benediction the new preacher entered the church, much surprised to find that the new presiding elder had gotten to Raleigh ahead of him. Another sermon at night was followed by the Quarterly Conference, only one church being represented. Sunday, at 11 A. M., a sermon and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper; 3 P. M., a love-feast, at which only a very few spoke; 6 P. M., a wedding ceremony, when the officiating clergyman began to marry the wrong couple, and at 6.30 P. M. "a brand-new sermon, on a brand-new text, by a brand-new preacher, to a brand-new congregation"—and so the day passed.

An early start next morning was vouchsafed, and the ponies traveled nicely. They had been on that road before, when Bro. W. W. Simmons held the reins over them and guided the interests of our Methodism in the Forest district. And the ponies' heads were toward Forest. Four miles from Raleigh a little creek was out of its banks just far enough to send a bucket full or two of water into the buggy as the fore-wheels went down into the depths. Some miles farther on, and the ponies took the right-hand road instead of the left, and after some miles of travel the prairies were again confronted. And such prairies! No tarrying at Homewood. On through the village and on through the mud! Up hill, down hill! On the causeway, off the causeway! A limb caught the buggy-top and wrenched it, with some little damage. A stump caught and bent one of the steps, but at last the ponies and buggy were on the long stretch of causeway leading into Forest. Those who have traveled it have not forgotten it. It reminds one of John G. Saxe's poem, but one will change a word in quoting a couplet as applicable to this road:

"Bless me this ain't pleasant,
A riding on the rail."

Home Monday, off again Saturday morning early to travel over fifteen miles of the same road traversed the preceding week! Slowly, but steadily, the ponies pushed on. A stump broke the previously uninjured step. The ponies were turned just a little to the right to dodge some other stumps. The wheels gathered mud. On the down-grade, and with Moore's or Gray's Hill in full view, the buggy stopped—stalled by the weight of the accumulated mud on the wheels. The ponies pulled. C-r-a-c-k! went the double-tree into three pieces. The ponies were startled as the single-trees hit their legs, but stopped at once at a word of command. Out in the mud "the beloved" had to get. The ponies were led to the road-side and tied. And back through mud went the presiding elder, who was due at Garque Chapel at eleven o'clock that day. He was wearily toiling on and trying to do work he had never done before when, greatly to his relief, Bro. Moore came riding along, and, with the spirit of the Good Samaritan, was soon off his horse, with his coat off him, and at work like an expert. Soon reinforcements arrived in the person of Bro. Sim. R. Holmes and son, and Bro. — Robertson—all going to town on business, but were willing to help "the beloved" out of trouble. Bro. Robertson rode back home after ax and anger and rope. The double-tree spliced securely, and most of the mud forced off the wheels, the ponies were ordered "Up!" and they obeyed, but, crack! as short as a pistol shot, and one single-tree broke half in two! More work, more time. Patiently the brethren worked on. "The beloved" helped as best he could, but soon found himself stuck fast in the mud! Laying hold of a wheel, he pulled first one foot and then the other out, but his rubbers were planted deep in the mud! They were not sown in hope. They will not come up. No body need expect to reap a rubber harvest there. A temporary single tree improvised, Bro. Robertson took the reins, and Bro. Moore and the presiding elder laid hold of the hind wheels, and the buggy was soon out of the mud, and the ponies standing safely with it on the bridge. Thanks to the brethren, and thanks to the young lady school teacher from Madison county who sat so patiently on her horse through all the weary time! God bless them all!

On to Garque Chapel! How "the beloved's" eye watched the ropes and straps, and the improvised double and single-tree! How carefully he drove, and slowly, too! At 2 P. M. the chapel was reached. Bro. Langford had preached the morning sermon, and dinner had been eaten; but thoughtful sisters had saved some dinner for the late presiding elder. Nobody blamed him for the delay when they saw the buggy looking like it had been to an Irish wake, and the presiding elder's clothes looking as if he had been wallowed in the mire. Soon the official brethren were called together in Quarterly Conference. Business proceeded smoothly till Question 6 was called, and the preacher and the stewards retired for consultation and agreement. Their consultation was animated and protracted. The presiding elder talked to the officials and others remaining inside of the church. Then Bro. R. A. Sibley led in prayer. It was soon found out that the protracted discussion was not because one of the stewards wanted to take $50 more for his church to pay, and so encourage others to do likewise in order to pay the preacher a good salary. An agreement was effected after all had come in. Here Bro. Lane, a local preacher, who is a brother to Ed. and Arminius Lane, of Copiah county, was met, and the new elder did not feel quite such a stranger as he might otherwise have felt. Bro. Elmore Holloman's home and heart were wide open, and so with Bro. Lane, and so with Bro. S. D. Miller (brother to A. D. Miller, of our Conference). But "the beloved" went home with Bro. Holloman, and was so kindly treated. Sunday quite a congregation gathered in spite of the cold weather, and no stove in the church. The preacher had liberty, and the people heard the Word gladly. The sacramental service was a precious season.

Monday morning Bro. Holloman, assisted just a little bit by the beneficiary, made a new double and single-tree, by the aid of which, and by the help of our heavenly Father, the trip home was safely made.

Southward hitherto; northward the next trip; Harperville the destination. Prairie mud and Talla Bogue swamp almost insurmountable obstacles. Bro. Scarborough spied out the land, and the stranger followed the pointing of his finger. It was after the usual hour for preaching, but a congregation was waiting in the college chapel. They listened with attention, and some with moistened eyes. Quarterly Conference in the afternoon. No representative from Forest, Homewood, or Pulaski. Nevertheless, it was a pleasant occasion. Another sermon at night. Another Sunday morning, followed by the Lord's Supper. A short sermon in the afternoon at the young men's prayer meeting, and a longer one at night. The new presiding elder was the guest of Prof. G. W. Huddleston, whose wife is a daughter of Dr. J. H. Brunner, of Hiwassee, Tenn. Bread was broken with Prof. Woodley, and also with Bro. Thompson, who hails from Madison county. We need a house of worship in Harperville. We have used the college chapel by the courtesy of the faculty and of the trustees, and we appreciate their kindness, but we can not do the work which ought to be done unless we set up housekeeping for ourselves. The college is doing well.

A central object in Harperville is an old flour mill, where, years ago, wheat was ground and flour was bolted. Now it is used as a saw-mill, a cotton gin, and a grist mill, or, at least, has been so used. Close by it lies what is left of the locomotive which plunged into Chunkey river thirty-five or six years ago with a train-load of Confederate soldiers. It was hauled a long ways from the scene of disaster.

The return from Harperville on Monday was through the rain as well as the mud. The travelers were told that the road by Hillsboro was better than the telephone road. And it was—mainly; but Bustin's lane, and the hill at the end toward Forest, more than offset any gain by the change, except Bro. S. had the pleasure of seeing a sister who lives in Hillsboro.

More rain, a freeze, a thaw, a snow; more rain, more water, and more mud, conduced to keep the presiding elder at home, and to write to the preachers at Carthage and Walnut Grove to hold their own Quarterly Conferences, and they and the laymen all said, "The new presiding elder has sense!" Not only was the three miles of prairie and the two miles of Talla Bogue swamp in the way, but also the five miles of Tuscalometa swamp (which Bro. Ben Jones never "expected to cross again unless the last judgment should be held on the north side of it!") and the miles of Pearl river swamp, to say nothing of other miles of mud and mire and ruts and washes. Some time a visit will be made to each place and sermons be preached. The Hillsboro Quarterly Conference was postponed to March 8.

Last Saturday and Sunday the Quarterly Conference was at Lawrence, on the Lake circuit. But about this I will write some other time. Only let it be added that Sunday was cold, and Monday was the coldest day recorded in the history of Mississippi.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

The weather has been awfully cold up here in the hills of Tippah county, Miss. The mercury has touched zero twice this Winter. The ground has been a solid sheet of ice, sleet and snow for four and five days at a time. When I get out my feet have a tendency to slip from under me and to fly up in the air where my head ought to be. This sudden changing of ends is hard on my head and back. I am not as nimble at sixty as I was at sixteen. I will be sixty when this appears in print, if it appears at all. My wife got out of doors once and got afraid to risk her feet, and so she got down on all fours and crawled back to her room. I do not see as much poetry in the "beautiful snow" as I used to see forty-five and fifty years ago. The snow has changed, or I have. It is not beautiful now, not a bit of it. I am sorry when it comes and glad when it is gone.

I am profoundly sorry for presiding elders and circuit riders this bad weather. They have a hard time of it. My presiding elder was to have been here to-day to go four miles south to a quarterly meeting on the Ripley circuit. He was called to Jackson, Miss., and wrote me to go. I got a horse to go, but the horse, like myself, could not keep his feet under him on these long steep hills, so I did not go. It was a risk of life and limb. I am glad I am not presiding elder now. If I were, I'd feel compelled to go, if I had to go on foot. As I grow older I grow more timid about some things. High water and high places look more dangerous than they need to do. I am "afraid of that which is high." I do not like to go high above the ground nor far below the surface of it. I sit here by the fire and read and write and suffer for and with my presiding elder who is making long rides over these hills and through this ice and snow. So far as I know by experience or have seen by observation, the presiding eldership is the hardest corner in our Methodism. I have not been a Bishop, nor a book agent, nor an editor. All honor and good pay to the brave, self-sacrificing men in the presiding eldership. They richly deserve all the honor and every cent of the money they get. It is a little strange that there is the most contention about the hardest corner in our church. All who want that corner are welcome to it so far as I am concerned.

I am specially sorry for the three new presiding elders in our Conference. For some years each of them has been in a nice, cozy station, in good, warm parsonages, by good fires, and in good churches, and now they have to get up and pull out over the ice and snow, wet or dry, cold or hot. If they were rough fellows and used to it, it would not matter so much. As it is, their present life is in perfect contrast with the past life. However, they are brave, true men, and they go at it with a good will. The constant change of houses and rooms is a sore trial to a thin man in cold weather—comfortable one night and cold the next. A good bed and a warm room is a great luxury in a cold snap like this. My heart goes out in thankfulness to God for his goodness to me every night when I lie down on a comfortable bed at home. I used to sit and shiver in houses where the family were comfortable and warm. They were accustomed to it and I was not. They were fat and I was thin; they were strong and I was nervous; their digestion was good and mine was not. I believe in self-denial, but it is so much easier to practice it on some one else. Many men practice most of their self-denial on their wives. It is an admirable trait in other people.

We had a good, warm dinner today. It made me feel good, so I must go this afternoon and take a sack of flour to a poor family that has none. The man is out of work and out of money, and his wife and children are hungry. My barrel is full, and I will feel better if I know they are well fed. I can not enjoy what I have as long as I know they suffer. My food will not taste good to me. This is hard weather on the poor. They are thinly clad and short of wood and coal, and they are poorly fed. They are pinched in good weather and doubly pinched in weather like this. I will double my own comfort by making them more comfortable. My body is warm in this comfortable room, and I can make my heart warm by warming them up. True, this man is not provident in good weather, when work is plentiful and wages good; but this reflection does not feed or warm his helpless wife and children during a cold snap like this. Yes, I know the man drinks, but his wife and children do not. They suffer by his sin. They ought to have some comfort by somebody's grace. I am ashamed of him, but I pity them. Their present need calls for immediate help. The case is past reasoning now. It demands help. Fine philosophy will not feed the hungry. Some one said: "Gilderoy, your wood is going; you can track him in the snow and catch him." No, I won't do that. I have a good pile of it. Wood is very scarce and the teams can't go now. I'm sorry he stole it. I would have given it to him. The weather is bitter cold, and, perhaps, my wood has warmed some little children. Let it go. It won't do to be too strict and exacting of the needy and suffering during cruel, cold weather like this. I must go with that flour; so good-bye.

FOREST DISTRICT.

To the Traveling and Local Preachers in the Bounds of the Forest District—

DEAR BRETHREN: Our Missionary Institute will embrace the fifth Sunday in April, and will be held in Forest. Program will be made out and published later.

Our District Conference will embrace the fifth Sunday in July. The Preachers' Institute will be held in connection with the District Conference as heretofore.

To prepare for our Missionary Institute, I would advise the brethren to purchase "Foreign Missions after a Century," by Dr. James Dennis ($1 50) and Bishop Galloway's "Evidential Value of Foreign Missions" ($1 00), both to be had at the Nashville Publishing House.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

THE REVIEW OF MISSIONS.

The February number of our Review of Missions will compare favorably with any of the popular monthly magazines of to-day. There are six full-page photogravures, taken in Cuba, each telling its sad story of want and woe, illustrating the first article, which is a splendid description of the tragedy of life in the camps of the reconcentrados, written by Dr. W. R. Lambuth from the scene of action. One can not read this appeal in behalf of these wretched people without being convicted of the fact that the church should follow up the work done by the State by giving them heavenly bread and spiritual freedom.

The symposium on "The Awakening of China" is instructive and inspiring. "The Doom of National Monasticism," by Robt. E. Speer, is a prophecy that the day of China's redemption draweth near.

A well-prepared paper, full of original thought, on the "Present State of Thought in Japan," shows Japan in transition, and deserves attention from all Christian scholars.

An interesting and thrilling sketch from the pen of Sherwood Eddy, entitled "A Brahmin Girl," will prove helpful to young Christians.

The department, "Our Mission Fields," is full of carefully gleaned notes from the world's field, and furnishes valuable suggestions and illustrations which will aid in the preparation of missionary sermons and addresses.

Every preacher and member of our church should read the first editorial, and prayerfully ponder the startling facts revealed. Our fathers prayed, "Lord, open the doors!" The Lord has wonderfully answered their prayers. Shall we not enter the doors so widely opened by his hand?

The regular subscription price of this high-class missionary magazine is one dollar, but during the Fall the price was reduced to twenty-five cents for a limited time. As a result the subscription list has run up from four thousand to ten thousand in this short time. The time-limit of this unprecedented offer has been extended to March 31. Let us take advantage of this rare opportunity to secure fifty pages of the best reading matter in the world, twelve times a year, for the small sum of twenty-five cents. Can we not run up the list to fifteen thousand by April 1?

A THANKSGIVING.

BY D. W. WOODS '98

Father, I thank thee for my life
For daily strength my work to do;
For food and clothing and a home,
And old loves every morning new.

I thank thee for my steadfast friends,
Faithful to me through good and ill.
For all the cheer and sympathy
That constant flow my cup to fill.

I thank thee that I still can see
The sky, the clouds, the fields and trees,
The shining river and the hills,
And know that thou, too, lovest these.

I thank thee for the strength of right
That triumphs over daring wrong;
For love that leavens human kind;
For hope so cheerful, faith so strong.

Father, my grateful song I breathe
Across the boundless, kindly sky;
I know that somewhere thou dost hear
And bless thy child, for such am I.

PRAYING FOR THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Service in a Methodist Church is seldom closed without special mention in prayer of the Holy Spirit, petitioning for his presence or guidance, and a common form of expression is, "Give us the Holy Spirit." In such prayers there is no intentional irreverence or insincerity, but it is doubtful whether the petitioners appreciate the force of the language used. Few (laymen) who pray in public are entirely free from a degree of self-consciousness, timidity, or embarrassment, and for this reason are almost certain to fall into the use of set phrases or forms of prayer which are in current use. In this way prayers for the presence of the Holy Spirit may sometimes be made in a purely formal way. This may not be wrong, but it seems a rather serious thing. Holy ground should be approached with godly fear, and sacred names uttered with solemn reverence. The following personal experience related by an earnest Christian illustrates the point in question:

"On one occasion I was engaged most earnestly in prayer. For some time previous I had been praying for the full baptism with the Spirit, and such was the burden of my prayer at that time. The spirit of prayer was given to me, the gates of heaven seemed open, and the ear of the Father inclined to listen. I was almost carried out of myself, and my heart, rejoicing, said, 'Surely the set time is come.' Never before or since have I seemed so near a great spiritual blessing. At that most solemn moment there flashed across my consciousness this question: 'If the Spirit comes now in all his fullness, will you confess it at once to —— (a relative who would not sympathize)? Will you bear the criticism?' I did not mean to hesitate, to be afraid, to shrink, but instinctively my soul drew back. Instantly the Spirit left. In a moment I was ready to weep, and said, 'Yes, Lord, anything,' but it was too late. I had been tried and found wanting. The Lord had showed me that I did not really want the Spirit. Like the disciples of old, I wanted to share his glory and power, but not to be baptized with his baptism. Since that time I have felt as never before what a serious and sacred thing is, or should be, prayer for the presence of the Spirit."

Sacred history does not warrant the belief that baptism with the Holy Ghost will be given without producing marked effects or provoking adverse criticism. When prayer is made for the outpouring of the Spirit the Lord's question should be remembered, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?"

AN INVESTMENT IN BRAINS.

A self-made man is prone to worship his maker. This may be evidence of the remains of inbred conceit, which we leave to the microscopic research of these spectacular anthropoids who hold down the truth in theology. The eagle-eyed critic always misses a finish, a polish, an exactness in these self-made men which is the regnant note in the thoroughly cultivated mind. How much more they might have achieved through the economy of time, a thrifter direction of aim, the avoidance of errors, by having been placed under tutelage of sympathetic, judicious instructors during the formative period of mental life, may be surmised. Yet self-made men are appreciating, as never before, the solid value of a college training as a preparation for the grim struggle in the arena of life; as the strong young men of today battle with the modern antagonists to success and prosperity. Seeing others not so richly endowed by nature with gifts and graces as they have been, they are acting nobly on the Pauline principle in matters of education: 'We, then, that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves." So, out of the strength of purse, they are unselfishly bearing the infirmities of these boys who thirst for knowledge, but are not able to pay the price of even one drink at Pierian fountains. All honor to these men who, feeling the loss they have incurred in being denied the opportunities of a collegiate training, are helping others attain unto it.

Men are looking for investments that give safe, paying returns. If they want to put their investment where cotton worms, fire, flood and panic can not destroy, let them pick out a promising lad and put money into his brains, not into his pockets. Then he has resources within himself that are indestructible as long as life endures. No one can defraud him out of a good education, or beg, borrow, or steal it away from him. The father need only leave his boy a good education laid up in his head, and a good example and influence as a father among men, and that boy receives the best heritage a father can bequeath to a son.

One of the inducements held out to men to join a certain assessment order is that, when they die, a beautiful marble shaft will be placed over their osseous remains. This monumental idea has had much to do with the rapid growth of the order. Men like to leave something behind them that will mark them out from the unknown and unnoticed crowds rushing on to oblivion. A living monument, capable of voicing your praises after death doth your body destroy, is better than a cold, silent shaft, mute concerning the eloquence of your deeds. You may send such a one to Centenary, and when he comes forth, he will be a "polished shaft," warm with life, instinct with gratitude, and children's children may reverence the memory of your benevolence.

How may a man better multiply his influence for good than to take that deserving boy, put him in Centenary, and watch those masterbuilders fashion the crude material into a soul-temple "polished after the similitude of a palace." A boy is like a gold mine—you never know how it will pan out until you have worked it well. Invest in one of these unexplored gold mines; you may strike a vein of the pure stuff, and strike it rich.

HARRY W. RICKEY.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

This is a branch of our Methodism that is sadly neglected by our people. Less than forty per cent. of our church members attend the Sunday-school. This is a school where all classes—the young and the old, the rich and the poor, those in the church as well as those out of the church—meet together to study God's Holy Word.

A great deal depends upon the superintendent as well as upon the people. In order that his labors may be attended with success, he must have their co-operation. We are all of one body and one spirit. When Nehemiah repaired the walls of Jerusalem, two things were distinctly evident: First, Nehemiah was a man of prayer; second, he had the diligent co-operation of the people—"the people had a mind to work." Joash repaired the temple because he had a mind to do so.

The Sunday-school is just what the superintendent, with the aid of the people, chooses to make it, and it will prosper and do good just in accordance with their united efforts. No more can a superintendent run a Sunday-school without the help of the people than a railroad engineer can run a locomotive without fuel. Yet many of our people believe that such a thing can be done, or, at least, they act upon such a principle.

If the Sunday-school is worth anything, it is worth a great deal. It is not often that the names of those who are regular attendants of the Sabbath-school are found on the roll of the inmates of our State prisons. The Sunday-school, then, is a safe place for our young people; yet many of our people seem to regard it as of very little importance. They seem to forget their church vows, and pay no attention to the divine exhortation, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." Then there are quite a number of the family of Methodists who have fallen a victim to a disease which we will call "worldly-mindedness;" though "inertia" might be more proper. This disease is somewhat contagious. Its victims rise early every day, and toil diligently through the week, but when Sunday comes they suddenly become "indisposed." They stay at home from the prayer meeting, the Sabbath-school, and very often from preaching. We do not condemn their diligence in looking after the affairs of this life, for that is commendable; but if they would only put forth one-half the diligence in search of the "true riches" as they do in seeking after the things of this world, what peace and gladness would be theirs!

The righteous instruction afforded by the Sunday-school has led many a soul out of darkness into the glorious light of truth. When these opportunities are so abundant, why should we be so careless as to forget the duties we owe to ourselves, to one another, and to our Maker, when, by coming up to the help of the Lord against the mighty, we may be able "to save a soul from death, and thus hide a multitude of sins"?

A HOME MISSION MOVEMENT.

Not long since, in passing through the town of St. Francisville, La., I was hospitably entertained at the home of Rev. G. P. White. I was impressed, first, by the spirit of the man. Kind, genial, and courteous, he is doing a work for the Master in that thriving town that should command the aid and attention of the entire Louisiana Conference. He was literally breaking ground for a new church and parsonage by removing the crest of a too lofty bluff, and bring it down to the level of ordinary things about him. I feel sure Bro. White will also bring his teaching to a level of the understanding of all.

Land is valuable in this Capernaum, for I was reliably informed that a building lot was worth from three to five hundred dollars. The zeal, faith and earnestness which undertakes such enterprises as this will succeed. I never knew it to fail; on the contrary, have seen it crowned with glorious results that seemed miraculous.

I write this brief notice of the movement to call the attention of our people to a worthy and richly deserving enterprise.

While greater currents are sweeping through the church, and twin voices calling loudly for means to forward the missionary and educational work, let us not forget the faithful preacher, who, responsive to the command of his Lord and the call of the church, is fulfilling his commission. Living in a rented house, with a small membership for a constituency, and only a meagre pittance from the Domestic Mission Board, he challenges the faith of those among us who have homes and congregations. He and his noble wife must have the assistance needed, or we are untrue to our profession.

DR. R. S. TRIPPETT.

MR. EDITOR: I send you an extract from a letter from Rev. Dr. R. S. Trippett, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, resident in England. JOHN T. SAWYER.

"I have been confined to my room with a severe attack of sciatica. I am a little better now, and I take this opportunity of acknowledging your continued kindness and that of the Bishop and members of the Louisiana Annual Conference. I received the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE with the appointments of the preachers. What changes have taken place in ten years! How few of those remain who were in the Conference when I left! New men come in and enter into the labors of those who have gone before. It appears to me that they do not appreciate the labors, trials and sacrifices of the older brethren as they ought to do. Young men, comparatively, are placed on stations, and the veterans have to give way, and many of them are placed on hard and laborious circuits or districts, which the young men, in their strength and manhood, ought to fill. I trust you will have a good time on the Shreveport district. I used to have many kind friends at Shreveport and different points on the district. Many of them have reached the other glorious shore, and others are still on the way, and I hope to clasp hands with them again in the 'sweet bye-and-bye.' I have had you and the dear brethren of the Louisiana Conference upon my heart every day. I pray for you all continually, that God may bless and prosper you all in the great work of winning souls for Christ. I ever call to mind the sweet fellowship, the refreshing, the heavenly showers of divine grace, which I enjoyed with you in days and years past and gone. And I shall have cause to praise my God forever that I was permitted to be a co-worker with you and the brethren of the Louisiana Conference."

Mrs. McQueen, Meridian, Central Church: "I write to tell you that the W. C. T. U. and W. F. M. S. gave Dr and Mrs. Featherstun a farewell reception at my house Tuesday afternoon (Jan. 10). Dr. Weems and Dr. Andrews were with us. A goodly number called, but many were kept away on account of rain. Dainty refreshments were served in a tastefully decorated dining-room. Misses Verna Casteli, Mary Green, Ray Cook and Willie May Grace, of the Y. P.'s Society, Central Church, were the tea girls. Many regrets were expressed, and many were the tears shed that would come in spite of all effort to keep them back. But we know that all those who most regretted the departure of our dear pastor will hold up the hands of our new pastor, and make his ministry among us successful."

Extracts from a most interesting letter, Miss S. Smylie: "Our untiring corresponding secretary began a tour of visiting in behalf of the work immediately after our annual meeting. In a recent letter she said: 'My visit to the Conference at Hattiesburg was exceedingly pleasant. The ministers were so nice and thoughtful of the representation of the W. F. M. S. that the report was made on Saturday night at the missionary anniversary meeting. I got a goodly number of subscribers to our W. M. Advocate and Little Worker. . . .

"I met with the W. F. M. Society after Conference, and they promised to be more active in the work. I have great hopes of that society, as there are many bright, intelligent women who belong to it.

"From Hattiesburg I went to Lumberton, and I do not think any Conference officer was ever more cordially welcomed than your corresponding secretary, both by pastor and people. Bro. Huntley said everything to encourage me, and did everything to help to organize, and on Sunday afternoon we organized a good society, of which I hope that we may reap a great harvest.

"From Lumberton I went to Ellisville, and spent two very pleasant days. Bro. Harmon had made an appointment for me to meet the ladies on Friday afternoon, and everything was arranged for organization there.

"Our missionary work in that part of the State is not as well understood as in other parts, and I fear that our Conference meetings not being held where these people can get the advantages of them has been the cause of the lack of interest. But I feel that there will now be a greater interest in the work.

"A letter from Mrs. Trueheart says that Dr. Lambuth advises our Board to enter Cuba at once; that a house has been secured at Santiago, and that very early in the year she hopes to have a missionary in that field."

Will the home workers quicken their steps so as to keep pace with the rapidly growing work in the field? The standard of our motto is high, "Attempt great things for God; expect great things from God," but the command, "Go," implies the ability, and the accompanying "Lo! I am with you," nerves us to enter the open doors, which we dare not refuse to enter.

Mrs. Trueheart, in the Review of Missions: "There are five other cities quite as needy and quite as ready for us as this (Santiago), but when the necessary funds are not in hand we are compelled to move slowly. Much has been done for Cubans who have landed on our shores, but the welcome accorded and the help tendered are not sufficient. They have not come seeking our Christ; they have come for protection, for our civilization, our trade, and, while many of them learn of Christ, they do not return to Cuba to proclaim the truth—at least, only a small per cent. of them. We must take the gospel to them, make Christian homes among them, show them how to live honest, happy lives without Virgin intercession or priestly intervention; teach them how to approach the Divine and receive from him.

"The standard of the cross must be set up in every land. We can not excuse ourselves. God has put upon us the responsibility of going or sending, and no time should be wasted. . . . 'The higher life begins for us when we renounce our own will to bow before a divine law,' so said George Eliot, who never uttered a more profound truth; a truth realized by every devoted servant of God.

"The reports of the China Jubilee Conference are inspiring. . . .

"Korea is eager for the gospel, and many are accepting its provisions as well as their long-darkened minds will permit.

"Mexico is coming into the light, and before the new century makes its advent I hope the worship of Mary and the domination of priestcraft will be things of the past.

"Brazil is turning toward a more spiritual worship and a purer morality. If the coming years bring a more liberal people into service, the work of evangelizing the world will be accomplished speedily.

"The 'Dora Rankin Memorial,' 30 cents, including postage. 'Dawn on the Hills of Y'ang,' 25 cents, including postage. These two books should be in every auxiliary." Send to Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, Nashville, Tenn.

H. M. SOCIETY, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

By referring to the report of Committee on Extension of Work—in Minutes of Home Mission Conference, 1898—it will be seen the aid of presiding elders is especially invoked in organizing Home Mission Societies in their districts. So far—in at least four districts—not a woman has yet consented to act as district secretary. Of course—in all of these districts—there are, perhaps, a number of women willing and capable; but the answer to scores of letters has been always the same: "So much to do; pray have me excused." Will each presiding elder aid us in finding at least one capable, consecrated woman to fill the office of district secretary of home mission work in his district, if still not supplied? The Vicksburg district has accomplished more, perhaps, than all the rest of the Mississippi Conference, because the Vicksburg district secretary has been longer at work, and the district is better organized. The Christian Life.

SAINTLY FACES.

Sometimes, in passing through a crowd, we see a face that attracts us by its sweetness of expression. Perhaps it is an old face, crowned with a glory of hoary hairs; yet love, joy and peace shine out of every dot and wrinkle in it. Sometimes it is a young face that beams with health and purity and beauty. But whether old or young, when we see that unmistakable soul-light in a face, we know that the heart behind it is pure, the life is good, and that the body thus illuminated is the temple of the Holy Spirit. To keep the mind occupied with good, pure, useful, beautiful and divine thoughts precludes the possibility of thinking about, and thus being tempted by, things sinful, low, or gross. It is because Paul knew this that he says so earnestly: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report, think on these things." In the well formed habit of thinking pure thoughts lies the secret of being pure in heart, and in the daily and nightly meditation in the law of the Lord is a safeguard against many of the sins which defile the carnal heart, and debase and blacken the countenance.—Scottish Reformer.

HAPPINESS AND GREATNESS.

It is of no use for a person who is not habitually happy to count himself either very good or very great; for his gloom convicts him as lacking in faith and hope and love. And most surely no one amounts to much who does not excel in all three of these things. They are fundamental to high character. Little goodness without much love, and he in whom love abounds will certainly be glad, for in making others happy he can not fail to be happy himself. Little goodness if faith be small, for faith puts us in touch with God, who is the sole source of virtue, and a vigorous faith scatters the clouds, making sunshine in the soul. The man whose hope is scanty, who looks on the dark side of things and takes sad views, will, of course, be sad, and must, to some degree, be bad, for he disregards the commandment of God, who says, "Rejoice." And as to true greatness, Christ settles that, and rules out the unhappy by putting the crown on those who serve. They who are occupied in genuine ministration to the needs of others have so little time or disposition to think of self that it is impossible for them to be unhappy.—Zion's Herald.

Love is always building up. It puts some line of beauty on every life it touches. It gives new hope to discouraged ones, new strength to those who are weak, new joys to those who are sorrowing, thus enabling them to go on in life's ways when, without the cheer, they must have sunk down in their disheartenment. It helps the despairing to rise and start again. It makes life seem more worth while to everyone into whose eyes it looks. Its words are benedictions. Its every breath is full of inspiration. It does good, and never evil, all its days. It is like God, whose name is love. It carries in its influence a perpetual revealing of God. It goes through the world like an angel of joy and peace, singing into human hearts the song of heaven, scattering everywhere good seeds which shall yield a harvest of righteousness.—Westminster Teacher.

If you wish to discover the source of a man's strength, you must trace his life, with its environment of words and works, beyond busy cities and mountainous plains, to some secluded and unpretending spot amid the everlasting hills. The strength which comes from the secret place of God will be the inspiration of everything which he thinks and does, and everything which he hopes and suffers. No doubt, as years come and go, his life will re-inforce itself from every quarter, and will cut its channel through many rocky obstacles; but every great life is at the beginning a jet from the heart of things, and on to the eternal sea will carry the flavor of that first freshness.—Rev. John Watson, D. D.

A beautiful anecdote is told of the student history of Thomas a Kempis, which illustrates his elevated piety. His preceptor asked a class of which he was a member, "What passage of Scripture conveys the sweetest description of heaven?" One answered, "There shall be no more sorrow there." Another, "There shall be no more death." Another, "They shall see His face." But Thomas a Kempis, who was the youngest of all, said, "And His servants shall serve Him."—Exchange.

We are all too apt to separate the gospel from our work-day doings. We push its happening back to far-off and long ago. So the truth becomes unreal. We need to know that our saints did not live in painted glass, robed in old gold and crimson, with halos about their heads. We need to know that life did not move to the organ's solemn roll, speaking a tongue remote and calm, and exquisitely quaint.—Selected.

Fidelity in trifles and an earnest seeking to please God in little matters is a test of real devotion and love. Let your aim be to please our dear Lord perfectly in little things, and to attain a spirit of child-like simplicity and dependence.—Jean Nicholas Gron.

A MINISTER'S STATEMENT

The testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla come from a class of people whose words are worth considering. Many clergymen testify to the value of this medicine. Read this:

"By a severe attack of diphtheria I lost two of my children. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic both for myself and little girl and found it most excellent as a means to restore the impoverished blood to its natural state and as a help to appetite and digestion. I depend upon it when I need a tonic and I find it at once efficacious." REV. C. H. SMITH, Congregational parsonage, Plymouth, Conn.

INDIAN MISSION.

I once more call the attention of the friends of the Indian Mission to the fact that we still owe Jim Johnston, our Choctaw preacher, about $10. I have $3 in hand, leaving a balance of about $7 to raise. Three brethren at Conference promised $1 each. If that was paid, would leave only about $4.

Now, will the brethren not send amounts promised, and will not others send enough to finish up? Please send as the preacher needs it, and we want to raise $75 or $100 to pay our Choctaw preachers for preaching and interpreting for our missionary to the Indians for 1899.

Brethren and sisters, friends of the Indian Mission and of Christ, our Savior, will you not help? Will you not help to raise this poor, benighted people up from heathen darkness into the light and liberty of the gospel? Do not allow me to write again. Send the amount necessary at once to supply the want for the entire year. God will bless you in doing your duty.

Your brother in Christ and for the salvation of all men, A. D. MILLER.

of consumption is a hacking cough. It sounds a melancholy dirge in the march to the coffin. How many swell the ranks of this gloomy procession who could have been saved by a timely resort to the King of cures, Marsden's Balm.

PROGRAMME.

There will be regular services by the pastor, Bro. K. A. Jones, in Okolona, Sunday, March 26, preparatory to doing much work during the week for the town and the Aberdeen district in the spirit and power of Christ.

Preaching Monday, 7:30 P. M.; subject, "The Relation of House or Home to the Church of God."

Preaching Tuesday, 7:30 P. M., by Bro. B. F. Phillips; subject, "The Secret of Success upon the Part of the Preachers and Laymen."

Preaching Wednesday, 7:30 P. M., by Bro. K. M. Harrison; subject, "Gift, Office and Proper Use of the Holy Spirit."

Thursday, 8:30 A. M., we shall begin to discuss freely for instruction and inspiration the following topics:

"The Preacher Is the Leader; How Shall He Be Prepared?"—K. M. Harrison and R. A. Tucker.

"The Relation of Christian Education to Missions"—W. W. Woollard and J. C. Lowe.

"The Duties of the Stewards to the Pastor"—W. A. Bowlin and G. S. Sanders.

"The Best Methods for Revival Work"—K. A. Jones and L. W. Hollinsworth.

"My Obligations Growing Out of the Great Commission"—B. S. Myers and E. P. Craddock.

"What Is the Most Effective Way of Creating a Greater Missionary Spirit—One Worth One Hundred Cents on the Dollar?"—J. W. Bell and J. W. Raper.

"The Co-operation That Should Be Between the Pastor and Official Laity"—J. W. Anderson, H. M. Young, and J. T. Derritt.

"The Benefits Derived unto All the Interests of the Church by Pastoral Visiting According to the Discipline"—B. F. Phillips and M. L. Ward.

We hope and expect that every preacher will be on time to say something worthy of his desires and ambition, and to hear as a learner and A. M.

We cordially invite all laymen who can to be with us.

Friday, 8:30 A. M., we shall open the Epworth League District Conference. We have an excellent program, which will be forwarded to you at an early date. We truly ask a large attendance at these meetings. Come, dear brethren and friends, with proper preparation and "prayer in the Holy Ghost," that we together may appreciate more fully the mind of the Master concerning this great country committed to our stewardship.

Nothing could be more absurd or unreasonable than for a man to try to live a Christian life and keep it a secret. "Ye are the light of the world," says Christ. If we have no light to help others to heaven, then we have no real Christianity, because if we have a light, that light must shine out upon others. If we are Christians, the world will know it.—Rev. C. O. Harvey.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. B. H. Sheppard, Lisbon and Summerfield charge, Feb. 6, 1899: "At our Conference at Mansfield I was returned to this work, which is my third year here. We have a good work here, a good and loyal people, good church houses, good Sabbath-schools and prayer meetings, and large congregations; and, so you see, something to inspire us to work. Our people have been financially depressed for two years on account of the drouth, but last year we had a good crop, and so now we have a living, and are looking forward with hope. We are trying, with some success, to increase the circulation of the ADVOCATE. Have sent in eleven names lately. With the ADVOCATE in every home, success would be assured, and loyalty a fixed thing in our church. We are working and praying to make this a great year in the history of this work."

M'COMB CITY STATION.

We reached this place on time after Conference. Several of the brethren and friends met us at the train with a carriage, and accompanied us to the parsonage, where we were met by a number of ladies, who had a nice supper in readiness for us. After supper we held prayer with them, and then we were left in possession. We found the larder well stocked with such things as are necessary to the life of the body. Even the wood yard had not been forgotten. As soon as possible I began visiting the people, and although we have spent only four Sabbaths in this place, yet I am thankful to God that I am able to announce that we have had fifty-three accessions since we have taken charge of this church. It does me much good to say that we have a religious choir. Each member is not only a member of our church, but each one is regenerated. I believe the credit belongs to Bro. Morse in ridding the choir of all the unconverted. He, Bro. Nicholson and Bro. Burton did good work here during their pastorate here. The ADVOCATE is much neglected, we are sorry to say, but we purpose doing what we can for it at once.

Our first Quarterly Conference has been held, and I am glad to announce that we are much pleased with our new presiding elder, Dr. H. Walter Featherstun. He presided over and conducted our Conference in a manner creditable to any brother of long experience in such a business. He inquired rigidly into the various interests of our church.

Be it sufficient to say that we are well pleased, and that we are exceedingly thankful that we have work enough to keep us busy all the time. The brethren will please to pray daily for my family and myself to become much wiser, holier, healthier, and much more useful.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

LAFAYETTE, LA.

In answering the forty sixth Annual Conference question, Bishop Morrisen announced that my field of labor for another year was Lafayette, that being my fourth appointment to this place. Some of the brethren afterwards said to me, "He sent you back to do your work over." Be this as it may, the good people here have given us as many evidences of kindly feeling and brotherly love the fourth "coming to them" as the first. Yea, even more. This is a source of great encouragement to me. To feel welcome is to feel as a minister should when he reaches his new field of labor, or one to which he has been newly appointed. Since Conference we have had about six bright, beautiful Sabbaths in succession, but the last two were gloomy indeed. The congregations on these two were not as large as usual.

Our new presiding elder has made us two visits—one to preside over the district stewards' meeting, the other to hold my first Quarterly Conference, which met on the twenty-fourth of January. For the very short quarter I had a short report, but of sufficient length in some respects to encourage both pastor and people. My stewards had made the assessment for the pastor's support, which was perfectly satisfactory to the preacher. Judging from the amount of quarterage reported at the first Quarterly Conference, and by the figures for the past three years, I am confident of a liberal support for the year 1899.

Several of my members have been sick with the "grippe," and some of them have not yet been released, though they are recovering, and will soon resume their places of labor in the Sunday-school and church. With new church and parsonage buildings, and both free from debt, why should not this be the most prosperous year in the history of this organization? Let us greatly desire, expect and labor for it.

May God bless our efforts to build up his kingdom in this part of his moral heritage, and may he abundantly bless your labors in promoting the interests of his eternal kingdom! "Pray for us."

I. T. REAMES.

FROM CRYSTAL SPRINGS TO YAZOO CITY.

At the last session of the Mississippi Conference I was removed from Crystal Springs and placed in Yazoo City. Seventeen years ago I was first appointed to Crystal Springs, and remained there four years. It was one of the most pleasant and successful pastorates I ever had. Two years ago I was appointed to that charge again, and received about the warmest welcome back to my old congregation I had ever enjoyed. I went to work desiring and expecting to spend another four years among them, but at the end of the second year I was removed. For some reasons I would have chosen to remain among those good people had it been left to me to decide, but I am thoroughly loyal to the system of my church, and so, without a word, proceeded to remove to Yazoo City.

Thirty-four years ago I first came to Yazoo City as pastor. I was then young, in my twenty-fourth year, and, of course, inexperienced; but I remained here two years, and did the best work I could do under the circumstances. The times were full of trouble and excitement, but we had a congregation of good people here, and they were faithful to their church and pastor. What changes since then! Yazoo City then had, perhaps, 2,000; now, perhaps, 6,000 inhabitants. Many improvements have been made in the appearance and sanitary condition of the town, as well as in its business and in its material wealth, and also in its educational facilities and church accommodations. Our church, though now much stronger, numerically and financially, than it was then, has not kept up with the growth of the town. If it had, it would now be, perhaps, the strongest church in the State.

Arriving in Yazoo City on the morning of Jan. 13, we were met at the depot by one of the stewards, who sent us up to the parsonage in carriages, where we found a bevy of ladies to welcome us to our new home, with fires in the grates and a hot breakfast on the table. God bless the dear women of our church! How could this itinerant system ever be managed with any satisfaction without them? And, lo! some who arranged the parsonage for us thirty-four years ago, when we first began housekeeping, are here now to receive us again. But the places of others are vacant. Many precious saints have gone up to God from Yazoo City since then. Others have gone to other fields of service. Among this number I remember Mrs. Kidd, now the wife of Bishop Key, living at Sherman, Texas. Part of the time of my former pastorate here she was the superintendent of my Sunday-school, and a more efficient superintendent I never had. She now presides over one of the largest schools for girls in the South, and blesses the home of one of our chief pastors.

It is due my predecessors to say that I find the church here in a good spiritual condition. If there are any factions, I have not found them; and, be it known, I am not hunting for them. The best way to create factions is to assume that they exist, and go to searching for them. You will then at least imagine you have found them, and, in all probability, by the aid of Satan, you will soon produce them. Then the most ungracious thing you can do is to charge your predecessor with having created them. This church seems to me to be united, well organized, and spiritual. And it is due this church to say they have only good things to report of their former pastors. In nearly every place you will find some who will entertain the new preacher with criticisms on the old one. I am glad to say this is not the case here, and to their praise be it said. And now for the best work of my life. If God will give me health and strength, it shall all be devoted to his service in this inviting field. W. B. LEWIS.

How the angels of God must shrink back when they come in contact with men's moral deformities! Hypocrisy, deceit, vanity, slander, ambition, lust; these are the common sins of our common humanity, to be got rid of only as we feel the influences of the Holy Spirit moving with sweet and sacred compulsion upon our own.

To be the mother of many children is ranked among nature's chief blessings but when the cares of the busy housewife are added to the trials of frequent motherhood, it is too great a burden for a woman who is not in prime health and condition. Every woman who is called upon to bear the ordeal of bringing many children into the world needs the support and reinforcement of that wonderful strength promoting "Favorite Prescription" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and one of the most eminent of living specialists in treating the ailments of women.

Mrs. David H. Langley, of Lancing, Morgan Co., Tenn., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce, writes: "I am now thirty-six years old and have given birth to ten children. Eight only are living. I have twin boys six years old. The same spring after they were born I was confined to my bed all spring and summer with female complaint; had it so badly I could hardly walk around the house without feeling worse. I was restless at night, sleep almost left me, and I was almost a skeleton. I did not call my doctor as I had tried the doctors twice before when I was down with the same trouble, and my husband paid out a great deal for me. I received no lasting benefit; I had almost lost all hope of ever being able to do anything. My husband had to work very hard and I could not even attend to the babies. No one can know the distress of my mind as well as body. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only medicine that seemed to do me any good. After I had taken the first bottle and part of the second, I could sleep well and all my troubles began to get better. I believe I took eight bottles and then I felt like a different person. I gave birth to another baby and my old complaint came back. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and was soon relieved and was able to do my work, including the washing."

Mothers would be immensely helped in raising their children strong and healthy by the sound professional advice contained in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This thousand-page book will be sent free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Med. Assn., Buffalo, N. Y., or send 31 stamps for a cloth-bound copy.

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Everybody is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangement for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to March, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

It has ever been tho man with an idea that has changed the face of the world.—Exchango.

To let revenge die in the action is high, to let it die in tho thonght is snpreme.—W. B Spear.

Gnard your weak point. Be lord over yonrself. No chain is stronger than its weakest link.—Selected.

Method is like packing things in a box; a good packer will get in half as mnch again as a bad one.—Cecil.

The greatest need of our government is a fuller application of the principles of righteousness to public affairs.—Standard.

It is much more important to be ready for Christ's coming at any moment than to know just when he will come again.—Standard.

Any man can sing by day; but only he whose heart has been tuned by the gracious hand of Jehovah can sing in the darkness.—William M. Taylor.

Action repeated becomes habit. Habit long continned becomes second natnre. We are to-day what we were accnstomed to do yesterday and the day before.—Lyman Abbott, D. D.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitnde to live after onr own; bnt the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitnde.—Emerson.

Great occasions do not make heroes or cowards; they simply nnveil them to the eyes of men. Silently and imperceptibly, as we wake or sleep, we grow and wax strong, we grow and wax weak, and at last some crisis shows ns what we have become.—Canon Westcott.

Keep faith with thy fairest ideal nnto the perfect day. Thou canst not know how many sonls stand in the ray that passes throngh thee, waiting, hnngering, thirsting, groping, for that next step which thy lamp alone can reveal nnto them.—Trinities and Sanctities.

God keeps a school for his children here on earth, and one of his best teachers is named disappointment. He is a rough teacher; severe in tone and harsh in his handling, sometimes, bnt his tnition is worth all it costs. Many of our best lessons through life have been taught us by that same stern old schoolmaster, disappointment.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

We may bewilder onr brains with speculations about the relation between God's sovereignty and man's freedom, bnt, when it comes to practical work, we have to put out the best and most that is in us to prevent God's will from being thwarted by rebellious men, and to insnre its being carried into effect throngh onr efforts.—Alexander Maclaren.

THE EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

It speaks volnmes for the progressiveness and vigor of Methodism that the leading branches thereof are a nnit in having nndertaken to greet the dawn of the now century with a liberal thank-offering for edncational and philanthropic pnrposes. The pathway of Methodism, with her precions doctrines of a fnll, free and conscions salvation, her matchless itinerant system, and her emphasis of heartfelt religior, has indeed been radiant with the light of snblime achievement; but her glorions mission to the world is not yet accomplished; her lofty destiny has not yet been fnlly realized. While we, her sons, look back with landable pride to a history resplendent with beneficent achievement, we can not repress the conviction that the past is bnt the harbinger of a brighter, nobler fnture, and that with the sweep of the centnries we mnst press forward to a larger and more intelligent nsefulness.

Southern Methodists have come to realize that the perpetnity of the church, as well as the greater efficiency thereof, imperatively demands the better equipment and correlation of onr edncational institntions, in connection with the work of soul-saving. Accordingly, onr last General Conference wisely made provision for celebrating the opening of the twentieth centnry by raising the snm of $1,500,000 for the enlargement and strengthening of onr edncational work; and its admirable plans and snggestions should meet with the heartiest response from every qnarter. As a church, we are committed, heart and soul, to the work of Christian education. Hence, all talk of retrenchment at this point, or of leaving the field to State schools, is the sheerest nonsense. The beneficent results attending the work of denominational schools are too manifest and far-reaching to be sneered at even by the most ardent advocates of State education. But if we are to continne in this work of higher edncation, there is the most nrgent need of the "re-enforcement of onr edncational strongholds." We can not go back. To stand still means that we shall be left behind. We mnst go forward, or fail to meet the momentous opportnnities and responsibilities now upon ns. Unless we keep pace with the educational movements of the times, we can not hope to retain that firm hold npon the public which has hitherto rendered ns so influential as a denomination. Vital religion mnst go hand in hand with intelligence, or else degenerate into narrowness, bigotry, and weakness. Well does Bishop Galloway say in his recent appeal: "If Methodism is to live and grow as a distinct and mighty ecclesiastical and spiritnal organization, if it is not to pass on as a simple revival influence affecting the life of other churches, the conserving and reproducing forces of education mnst receive intelligent and increased attention."

While we have a goodly nnmber of schools and colleges nnder onr control and espionage, nearly all of them are greatly hampered by lack of fnnds; some of them shamefully so. Hence the faculties in many of them are mnch too small, and the equipment in the way of apparatus, libraries, etc., entirely inadequate to secnre the best results. In spite of snch disadvantages, onr church schools have done a noble work; bnt it is high time for ns to set about improving onr methods and onr machinery.

"Scatteration," or the over-multiplication of schools nndertaking to do the same class of work, has been one of onr mistakes heretofore. Now, it is proposed to correlate and concentrate. The recommendation of the Educational Commission that the Annual Conference, or Conferences, in each State nnite on not more than two colleges—one for boys and one for girls—if carried ont, will result in a reduction of the nnmber of onr colleges and in an increase in the nnmber of academies. Seventy-five per cent. of the "Educational Fnnd" to be raised by each Conference is to be nsed in endowing and equipping the college, or colleges, within its bounds which the Conference Board of Education shall designate. Thus, by endowing and thoronghly equipping one, or more, schools in each State, our leaders hope to greatly increase improved edncational advantages, and at the same time decrease the cost of getting an education.

For this most praiseworthy undertaking Southern Methodism asks the modest sum of only $1,500,000, whereas the Wesleyan Methodists, with a membership of only 772,000, propose to raise a "Twentieth Centnry Fnnd" of $5,000,000, and the Northern Methodists, with a membership of not qnite donble onr own, have nndertaken to raise a thank-offering of $20,000,000. We shonld not be content with a dollar less than the snm asked for. This snm wonld not be too mnch to apply to the endowment of one college or university.

In several of onr Conferences, notably the Lonisville and the Virginia, an anspicions beginning has already been made, and the canvass is being vigorously pnshed. It is time for ns in this section to be np and doing, or we shall march at the rear of the procession. No pastor or officer in the church can afford to be apathetic toward this movement. The success thereof is absolntely dependent npon the vigorous co-operation of onr pastors and onr leading laymen. Wherever the people are being thoronghly informed on the snbject, gratifying enthnsiasm and liberality are being manifested. It is nnwise, however, to begin taking this collection nntil the light has been trnned on, and deep interest has been aronsed. There mnst be thorough organization and preparation, diligent instrnction, and general, as well as generous, co-operation, if we expect to reach the mark we have set. It will take "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether," to succeed. Let every man do his part, and do it at once. Gratitnde to God for his signal blessings ought to inspire ns to do onr best.

NEW BOARD OF EXPERTS.

The State Board of Health at its meeting Wednesday elected a Board of Experts, the personnel of which can not fail to command the full respect and confidence of the community, being composed of Dr. Joseph Holt, ex-president of the State Board of Health; Dr. T. S. Kennedy, ex-president of the Board of State Medical Examiners; Dr. Ernest S. Lewis, professor of general and clinical obstetrics and diseases of women and children in the Tulane Medical College; Dr. F. Loeber, house snrgeon of the Tonro Infirmary; Dr. Rudolph Matas, professor of general and clinical snrgery in the Tulane Medical College, head of the snrgical department and a man of international reputation; Dr. F. W. Parham, ex-house snrgeon of the Charity Hospital, and Dr. L. F. Salomon.

These gentlemen, who were elected to serve in the extremely responsible and onerous positions of experts, are gentlemen whose eminence in their profession, and whose special knowledge of yellow fever, gained by long years of experience, will be an absolnte gnarantee to the people of New Orleans, to the State of Lonisiana and to all the adjacent States that every case of fever, whether snspicions or gennine yellow fever, will be immediately reported to the Board of Health.

It will be observed that the gentlemen elected are, almost without exception, physicians who made reports of fever cases that came under their observation dnring last Summer and Fall, and who were adversely, and in some cases severely, criticised for such action by those who were either convinced that the physicians were wrong in their diagnoses or who qnestioned the advisability of reporting what they believed to be a mild form of yellow fever.

The election, therefore, of those physicians who, even nnder the stress of great pnblic excitement, and even of severe and nnmerited denunciation, dared to perform their whole dnty under the law, is at once the greatest compliment that conld be paid them and the best gnarantee that could possibly be offered to the people of all the Southern States that the truth, the whole truth, and nothing bnt the tnith will be told in regard to cases of yellow fever in New Orleans.—Times-Democrat.

The above, from the Times-Democrat of the seventeenth, describes the situation exactly as it is. No State in the Union can produce a more competent Board of yellow fever experts than that named above. Moreover, they are men who will "tell the trnth, the whole truth, and nothing bnt the trnth," nnder all circumstances. The public may, therefore, rest assnred that due notice will be given if a single case of yellow fever shonld make its appearance in this city. We will take this occasion to remark, however, that the danger-point now is not New Orleans, but Havana. The cold weather has undonbtedly exterminated every fever germ in the United States. But on account of the increased amonnt of travel between this country and Cnba, there is very great danger of the introdnction of fever from there to any of our seaports nnless the most rigid qnarantine regnlations prevail. The United States government owes it to her citizens to protect them from this peril.

A RIGHTEOUS DECISION.

By a recent decision of the Supreme Court of Lonisiana hnlidozers are held peonniarlly responsible for the results of their high-handed doings in driving off laborers, etc. The effects of this decision will be far-reaching and condncive to the pnblic weal.

CORRECTIONS.

In our editorial, of last week, on "Consecration," we quoted the passage of Scriptnre, "We lie and do not the truth." Our types were wicked enough to insert the word "tell" before "the." In onr notice of Dr. Hoss's book, the nnmber of pages is given as 432, instead of 132.

A NEW BOOK.

THE ROAD TO DAMASCUS. By Rev. John Fearnley. 52 pages. Bound in leatherette, gilt top. Price, 35 cents. New York: James Pott & Co., publishers, Fourth avenue and 22nd street.

This is an attractive and striking booklet that, in the opening paragraphs, describes in a graphic way the manner and results of the Apostle Paul's conversion, and then proceeds to show that the same characteristics that marked Paul's service of Christ mnst reappear in the life of every trne disciple. Paul's life, with its missionary jonrneys, its connUess hardships and perils, its loss of all things for the gospel's sake, "is a pictnre, on a large scale, and in vivid colors," as the anthor points ont, "of the only life worth living." Under the four heads of "the Vision that beckons, the Voice that calls, the Presence that strengthens, and the Power that lives," the essential featnres of a gennine Christian experience are set forth in a simple, bnt forcefnl and pleasing way. We agree with another reviewer in saying that this volnme "sparkles with good things," and those who read it can hardly help being nplifted thereby. It is not controversial or sectarian, and is, therefore, well snited for circnlation among the general pnblic. It answers admirably as a small gift book, and will be found on sale by Hansell & Bro., 714 Canal street, New Orleans.

A PASTORAL EXPERIMENT.

It is an amazing thing that some pastors find it possible to get along in their work without the aid of a church paper. A minister within the last five years went to one of the large churches of the West and found it with a membership of five hnndred, and yet without a dozen copies of any church paper in Methodism taken in the whole nnmber. He was grieved, hnmiliated, alarmed. He had been accnstomed to ntilize religions journalism as one of the elements of his nsefnlness, and he hardly nnderstood at first how it was possible to carry on even temporarily the work of a great church organization without the assistance to which he had become accustomed. He found npon inqniry that previous pastors had not made much effort to secnre snbscriptions to our periodicals, and that the people, therefore, were really ignorant of Methodistic plans, nsages and economy. He set ont at once to remedy the defect he found in the charge, concinding that it was impossible for him to get along without the aid which the church paper in the home affords every pastor. In his efforts to secnre snbscribers he took his church record, went over it, name by name, and singled ont fifty families, who, he found, were not taking any church paper. He sent a specimen copy of the Central Christian Advocate to each one of these homes, accompanying it with a personal letter in which he indicated his conviction that every Methodist ought to have the paper, and in which he ontlined his estimate of the value of the Central as a help to religious life in the family. He followed np this effort by personal appeals, by talks in the prayer meetings and by announcements in the pulpit. One-third of those to whom the letters were sent, with specimens accompanying, immediately snbscribed, and others followed shortly afterward. In a charge where five persons took the Central there are now sixty snbscribers, all because one pastor took the case in hand and worked it np. What was done in that charge can be done in others. —Central Advocate.

We commend the above to the pastors in our patronizing Conferences.

HELP FOR CUBA.

We gratefully acknowledge the responses to the appeals which have been made in behalf of Cnba. God is stirring the hearts of our people. A layman in Mississippi offers to support a missionary for five years at $800 a year. A pastor in Georgia pledges his church to $600 for another missionary, over and above the regular collections. The Epworth Leagues in that State pledge to raise $1,000 a year for three years, to be applied in the same way. These are in addition to $800 snbscribed by the Florida and South Georgia Conferences, respectively, in response to Bishop Candler's earnest presentation of the needs of our Cnban Mission. Smaller amonnts—snch as $10 from a brother Epworth Leagner of Selma, Cal., and $5.10 from the League at Pilot Grove, Mo.—are indicative of the same earnest pnrpose to extend the kingdom.

An offer of another sort comes from the president of a female college in the far South. Our brother, an educator of ability and of experience, for the love he bears to Christ and out of an unselfish desire for the uplifting of Cuba, is ready, at the call of the church, to transfer his family and school plant to the island.—Review of Missions, for February.

TO THE POINT.

MR. EDITOR: A certain preacher's salary was cut, and the colored people heard of it, one of whom said to his steward: "I hear they have cut the white preacher's salary. Why can't we cut our preacher's salary?" "What," said the steward, "you talking about cutting the preacher's salary, and you did not pay a cent last year to feed him? And then I happened to know that you were drinking liquor at Christmas." "Well," said the non-paying Methodist, "I believe I'll jine the Baptists anyhow." Said the steward: "The Baptists say they don't want our no-account members; that if we won't have them, they are not fit to be in their church."

I wonder how many of the white folks who wanted the preacher's salary cut paid him nothing last year, and how many of them were guilty of drinking liquor at Christmas times?

My name I sign "1899."—Wesleyan Advocate.

Upon no question since the Dred Scott decision have the people expressed themselves with such positiveness as against the canteen. The storm against this odious phase of the liquor traffic, which imperils the safety of the nation in time of war, is rapidly rising; and if senators sustain this traffic in the army the storm will break with irresistible fury. They should think seriously before they assume the responsibility of continuing the canteen. That institution is doomed and it "must go." —Northwestern Advocate.

Dentists in Germany are using false teeth made of paper instead of porcelain or mineral composition. These paper teeth are said to be very satisfactory, as they do not break or chip, are not sensitive to heat or cold, or to the action of the moisture of the mouth, and are very cheap.—Popular Science News.

The longer I live, the more deeply am I convinced that that which makes the difference between one man and another, between the weak and powerful, the great and insignificant, is energy, invincible determination, a purpose once formed, and then death or victory.—Fowell Buxton.

Some ministers dare stand in their pulpits and preach as follows: "You must repent, as it were, and be converted, in a measure, or you will be damned to a certain extent."—Evangelical Messenger.

No ship would leave one of the world's harbors without faith; no bank door would open to-morrow. Faith is the very foundation of civilization, the one constant principle; it holds planets, earth and stars, and without this faith we can not walk with Christ.—Rev. David Jones, D. D.

Bishop Candler will try to put fifteen men in the mission fields of Cuba and Puerto Rico at once. The outlook there is bright with promise. Let the church and the League support the Bishop in making so rich a Christmas present to these islands.—Epworth Era.

We are in receipt of a copy of the "Millsaps Collegian," a monthly magazine issued by the students of Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss. It is a well-edited and neatly-printed periodical, and is an excellent mirror of the work, spirit, and happenings at the institution mentioned. Some of the articles it contains would do credit to older heads. We suggest to the friends of the institution that they encourage the young men in this worthy enterprise by subscribing for their journal. The subscription price is $1 per year. EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Jackson, La., EDITOR.

The permanent address of the editor of this department will hereafter be—Jackson, Louisiana.

All correspondents will please note the foregoing and govern themselves accordingly.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Mississippi State Epworth League Conference, on the fifth instant, at Tupelo, Miss., the date for the State Conference was changed from May 18 to June 22.

Mississippi Leaguers will please take notice and remember the new date is June 22 The place is West Point, Miss.

The change was made because of conflicting dates anent school exercises, etc. We hope the present date will be convenient for all, and that the Mississippi Leaguers and their friends will visit West Point en masse in June.

We are now able to state that the Louisiana League Conference will be held (D. V.) at Crowley, La., April 20 23.

It is hoped and expected that every pastor and Leaguer and would-be Leaguer will find their way to Crowley, April 20 23.

The people of this enterprising town on the gulf will throw wide open their hearts and homes and extend a hearty welcome.

This meeting means more enthusiasm for missionary activity, educational enterprise—and a quickening of the spiritual life of all who attend.

The Epworth Mission Sunday-school, which is conducted and supported entirely by the Epworth Leagues of New Orleans, is still doing fine work at 2509 Tulane Ave. The steady increase of scholars demands more teachers.

A very interesting class in the study of the Acts of the Apostles is taught each week at Rayne Memorial Church by Prof. Thos. Carter.

The class at Carrollton Avenue has just finished a year's course in the study of the Gospel according to St. John. They will take up another course next week.

Epworth League Day (Jan. 15) was observed by several of the New Orleans Leagues.

We have received a copy of the Epworth Union Reporter, the organ of the Epworth League Union of Meridian, Miss. It is edited by W. D. Hawkins, the president of the Union, and is to be a medium of communication between the four Epworth Leagues of the city.

We take the liberty of publishing the following letter recently received from a friend in New Orleans, and trust all the Leaguers will read and profit thereby:

DEAR BRO. CLIFFORD: I always read your department with interest, and feel, as you say, that we should rally to your help in giving and exchanging words of cheer, of help—tidings from the workers in different parts of the field. As Bishop Hendrix (I think it is) says: "It is a blessed opportunity for our young people—'opportunity to increase their power and strength for service in the kingdom.'" Oh, may all those dear young Christians be "all for Christ" this year! May they all understand the definition of true discipleship, and then follow Jesus! May all strive to imitate the life of the Savior, and do more for the "suffering, sinning" mass of our brothers and sisters! Do something that will mean sacrifice, self-denial; lift burdens, brighten some poor, darkened home; lead souls to Christ. He is calling loud and long for these lives—these dear young people, blessed with wealth, talent, time. I long, I pray that, with this, another year begun, there is a deeper consecration, a resolve, a desire for more service, sacrifice and souls; for the Christ like, in helping the bodies and souls of these for whom he died; these aching ones in the streets, in the miserable homes, in the hospitals, in the prisons. There is such a need of real work. We must not follow afar. He has trod the way with groans and sobs and tears for us—for lost humanity. There is so much need of personal work. May we all live close to him, spend more time in prayer, and work each day as if that day were the last, and lead many souls to Christ!

Your sister and co-worker in Christ, MRS L. MEEKINS, Tchoupitoulas Mission, New Orleans.

ORPHANS' HOME DAY.

MR. EDITOR: Please allow us to call the attention of the preachers and people of the North Mississippi Conference to a resolution passed by the last session, whereby the first Sunday in March is to be observed as "Orphans' Home Day." We hope this will be carried out in every congregation, and that at least one service will be held in the interest of the Home by preaching a sermon or other appropriate services. Remember the Home and its inmates in prayers and offerings.

My brethren, Methodism has no more worthy or important interest in the State than this. There is no better evidence of our fidelity to our blessed Lord and his teachings than this Home for the helpless, homeless orphans. It is an institution of which we are not to be ashamed in any company. Let those who think we are running a poor-house come and see it, and be convinced that we have in the highest and best sense a Christian home for these children—a home where the very best attention is given to their bodies, minds, and souls.

Under the management of Rev. M. L. Burton and his most excellent wife, the Home, in all its departments, is a gratifying success. We now have a property with buildings and furnishings worth $14 000. There is not one dollar of indebtedness against it. It has been open about one year, and we have fifty as healthy, well-favored, bright, and happy children as you will find in any orthodox home in Mississippi.

I want to thank Dr. Parker for his notice of Cardinal Gibbons in this week's ADVOCATE. Send him to Cuba, and let him write up the abominations of Catholicism in that country. Just what she has done for these islands she will do for us. This is America's opportunity to teach Catholicism a short, but important lesson. It will have to be done, and will cost us less now than ever again. Yes! Let the committees meet, and let Spain and the church agree to the amount; then add to this the debt they owe to Cuba, and let America demand that the church pay the last farthing. W. S. LACRONE.

WOMAN'S WORK IN HOME MISSIONS.

TAKE CARE OF THE PARSONAGES.

A great deal has been said of the duty of providing good homes for our preachers, and not a word too much has been said, but there are always two sides to a question. If it is the duty of the people to furnish these homes, it is no less a duty for those who live in them to take proper care of what has been provided for them. It is often true that the church does not do all it should in these matters; but, on the other hand, it happens sometimes that a small church, through real self-denial, builds and furnishes a home for its preacher. Frequently its comforts are purchased at the cost of many little discomforts to those who supply them. If these things are not properly cared for and passed on to the next pastor, the church must again make the effort to do what is needed, or, failing, be censured for indifference to his needs. All these things should be taken into consideration in the use of parsonage property, and it should be held as a trust for the church to be passed on to the next who comes. Should not a committee be appointed to inspect and report annually to the society the condition of parsonages provided?

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP CURES croup and whooping cough. It is a family necessity, and should always be kept on hand.

BOONEVILLE, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: After two days of sunshine and partial relief from intense cold, it is snowing again. In common with other places, the towns in this section have been short of fuel. In a few instances there has been much suffering.

The preachers of the district are doing their best under the adverse circumstances. They constitute a noble band of good and true men. "Gilderoy" has captured the people of Ripley and New Albany. They say they have the greatest preacher in the Conference; and a great preacher he is. Bro. J. M. Bradley is in full favor at Booneville, and deservedly so. Bro. T. W. Lewis is doing fine work at Corinth. The town has twenty manufacturing enterprises and is attracting a large population, and he is on the alert for every Methodist that comes. His roll and congregations are increasing all the time. Bro. Shumaker begins his third year auspiciously, looking faithfully after all interests of the church. W. F. Rogers enters his third year on the Iuka circuit, and his people say lots of good things about him. B. F. Fullilove started well on the Kossuth circuit, and the future promises good results from his labors. W. A. Clark begins his fourth year on Booneville circuit. He is prompt, methodical and efficient. D. C. Foust enters his second year on Guntown and Baldwyn charge. His people love him and say kind words about his preaching and pastoral work. W. R. Williams is very busy on the Marietta circuit, planning for new church buildings and expecting a revival at every church. F. A. Whitson has impressed most favorably the people on the New Albany circuit. They like him as a man and a preacher. All the other preachers in the district are a choice number of local preachers, and among them is H. C. Parrott, for nearly twenty years a member of the Conference. They have all taken hold in earnest, endeavoring to do the work of a true minister of Christ. Come over and help me. I need you in the heavy work that falls to my lot as presiding elder of a large district. T. Y. RAMSEY.

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the changes of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of Swamp-Root.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring scientific research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful powers in curing kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid diseases.

Kidney trouble is responsible for more sickness and sudden deaths than any other disease, and is so deceptive that thousands have it without knowing it.

Your kidneys filter your blood and keep it pure, that's what they are there for. You are well when your kidneys are well.

Thousands owe their health and even life to Swamp-Root, and thousands more can be made well who to-day think themselves beyond help if they will take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

Too Evident Dentistry.

We make crowns and bridge work without the least show of gold when desired. This work is extremely natural in appearance, as all gold is hidden by porcelain matching the tooth in color, giving no hint of gold band or crown attachments. This feature is highly appreciated, particularly by dainty women who abhor TOO EVIDENT DENTISTRY. Good dentistry preserves and improves the expression, particularly of the mouth, makes eating a pleasure, and should—to insure the best results—be quite painless.

We guarantee to fill, treat, crown or extract teeth without pain.

Our offices are the most elegant and perfectly equipped in the South. Our operators are men of skill and integrity, who will be pleased to examine your teeth and advise without charge, even if you are not ready to have work done. Call and let us show you some of the devices owned and controlled by us that enable us to do the HIGHEST CLASS of work at prices usually asked for barely average dentistry.

Beautiful set of the best teeth made to restore or improve the expression and warranted to fit, $10.00.

And your teeth extracted free, absolutely without pain.

Gold and Porcelain Crowns and Bridges (teeth without plates), either permanently adjusted or the removable kind,

$3 AND $5 PER TOOTH.

Every case of feature restoration, etc., is considered confidential, and it is not necessary to meet anyone but the operator and lady attendant in either consulting or operating rooms.

MY AIM.

BY GEORGE KLINGLE.

By my tasks of every day,
By the little words I say,
By the little thoughts I think,
By the fountains where I drink
By the friendships which I make,
By the roads my footsteps take,
By my duties left undone,
By my goals, both lost and won,
By the jewels which I glean,
By the hidden dreams I dream,
My allegiance I proclaim—
My allegiance to a name:
Prove my right His cross to wear,
Cross and name of Christ to bear,
Where I stop be this my aim,
To prove my right to bear His name.

POLITENESS AND GOOD-BREEDING.

"Politeness" and "good-breeding" are too often and quite erroneously considered synonyms. Politeness takes its rise from the soul, and from education and examples. Gentility, or good-breeding, is acquired by habit and especially by imitation.

One can be very polite, while failing to observe some of the laws of the code of good-breeding; and one can know and apply all these laws, without being at all polite. It is hardly necessary to point out how superior is politeness to good-breeding, while adding that their union is preferable to their separation.

One can observe very exactly the prescriptions of gentility, send or return cards when circumstances require; pay visits after proper intervals; salute with grace; fail in no duty of society, so-called; in a word, be irreproachable in every conventional duty, and nevertheless not be polite in the true sense of the word. The rules of good breeding constitute a sort of dictionary, whose text one can know or consult, but which does not teach politeness.

The natures which are born with this necessity of politeness are polite, not because the world expects a formal politeness, but because they would suffer if they did not avoid every cause of paining others.

To act always with a politeness which extends below the surface, and thrusts its roots into the heart, and makes part of the feelings, one must determine not to refer everything to himself, not to accept the goodness of others without rendering an equivalent; he must not consider that all things in society exist merely to secure his own personal advantage. We must, to speak it plainly, penetrate to the thought that this egotism is a bad sentiment when it seeks to satisfy self at the expense of others.

It is mortifying enough to be obliged to declare that everywhere among certain classes of the young people of both sexes, confusion exists between good-breeding and politeness. One will salute correctly, and the young misses will make a courtesy, because they have had a dancing master. Of politeness—that politeness which makes certain little sacrifices—I fear they care little. To be seated in an armchair, and to give it up to an aged lady, or to refrain from laughing at anything ridiculous in persons about them, would, in their view, be needless.

Let me add that the responsibility for these serious faults, which only come from dryness of the heart, is not to be entirely imputed to minors themselves. The parents of young girls and young gentlemen heap upon them cares, attentions and consideration, even; but, for fear of crossing them, they have not provoked in them a feeling of responsiveness. To exact anything from these adored creatures—that would be monstrous! No; they must enjoy themselves; let us not impose on them the least sacrifice for others.

Happily, there are exceptions. There are mothers who have known how to infuse into their children generous sentiments, manifesting themselves by a constant and universal politeness.

Recently, a very short-sighted lady, going out from a concert-hall, found herself at the top of a flight of several stone steps, and lacking a railing as well as illumination. She said to her companion, who was in no condition to guide her: "I am certain, as I do not see the steps, to fall from the top of this flight."

Hardly had she pronounced the words when two young gentlemen sprang to her side, hastening to help her descend the steps in safety till she reached the ground.

Mark that both these young gentlemen were unknown to her; that they had no present nor remote interest in becoming the guides of one who was and would remain a stranger to them. Here is an example which, better than all reflections, indicates distinctly the difference I have undertaken to establish between good-breeding and politeness. Good-breeding in no way demanded this aid; it was politeness, a beautiful and good politeness, which prompted the desire to assist her. Very deeply moved by the spontaneous act, so rarely exhibited, the lady thus assisted was tempted to say to those young people: "Felicitate for me your mothers; they have brought you up well." But she refrained, through discretion. —Emmeline Raymond, in Success.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

THE HABIT OF INTERRUPTING.

A few days since I was present at a small lunch party of ladies, and I noticed, with some surprise, the scant courtesy that they showed to one another during conversation. One of the party would start to say something, and, before she had finished, another would break in with another topic, only to be interrupted in turn. I must confess that I was a bit surprised, for all these women were supposed to be well-bred, and yet they were disregarding one of the simplest rules of polite behavior.

A little later I was calling on some friends and I noticed the same thing. Each member of the family would interrupt the others, and the interruption was considered quite as a matter of course. Then I understood the situation better, and put the blame just where it belonged—on the lack of home training. If the mother grows careless, and allows her children to contract the habit of interrupting one another constantly, she must not be surprised if this habit is carried beyond the home circle, and her children show in society the result of her indulgence or thoughtlessness.

The habit is one of the most unpleasant that can be contracted, and the fact that it is such a common one does not make it one bit the better or the more excusable. It is a habit that grows on one unconsciously, if one does not keep close watch. It should be the care of the mother in the home to teach her children respect for one another, and insist upon that courtesy of treatment which she expects them to give to strangers. Unless politeness is a habit, it will never be a grace. It must be ingrained, and the teaching can not be begun too early.

I wish my girls would keep a little watch upon themselves to see whether they have fallen into this pernicious habit, and if they have, just set to work to break themselves of it at once. It may seem a little thing, but it is one of the indications of fine breeding to treat everyone with the respect due to him as an individual.—Golden Rule.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wine-glass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

KEEP IT BACK.

Husbands and wives do not know till they learn by experience (which some never do) how much can be added to the sum of their happiness by thinking twice, and indefinitely postponing when either is tempted to say a cutting thing to the other. It does not take a great while for a young couple to win the confidence each of the other, that nothing designed to wound will be said. When this confidence is established, words, which otherwise would inflict pain, become harmless. In a family where this confidence is secured by uniform respect for the feelings of each other, there is a degree of freedom from restraint, and of general happiness, which is impossible where it is not. Every good family is a training-school, in which the husband and wife, from the nuptial day, are pupils.

He is an exceptional and rarely fortunate young man who has not some habits of deportment which mar his character and influence. It is expected of the wife that she will correct and eradicate these. Unless the husband have an incurable, coarse nature, she is justly held responsible for the polish and neatness of his manners, as much as for the purity of his linen, when he appears in church or society. And, if the wife have unpleasant imperfections of manner or conduct, it always reflects upon the husband. This shows that, by common consent, the family is regarded as a training-school in which the husband and wife, as well as the children, are learners. Such being the case, each should submit to the necessary discipline with pleasure.

But if the habit of cutting and sarcastic words prevails, it will break up that school, and neither can be of any benefit to the other. There is injury as well as unhappiness of very serious character resulting from a sharp tongue in the family. And the sharp tongue may not—usually, at first, does not—represent the real sentiments of the heart, but the bitterness is not long in finding its way to the heart, and there it is liable to remain—not always active, but always ready and always suspected.

Before you say a cutting word to husband, wife or child, think it over deliberately.—Christian Work.

LOVE.

If you love, love more. If you hate, hate no more. Life is too short to spend in hating anyone. Why war with a mortal who is going the same road with us? Why not expand the flower of life and happiness by learning to love, by teaching those who are near and dear the beautiful lesson? Your hands may be hard, but your heart need not be. Your forms may be bent or ugly, but you do not know that the most beautiful flowers often grow in the most rugged, unsheltered places. The palace for care, and the cottage for love. Not that there is no love in a mansion; but somehow, if we are not very careful, business will crowd all there is of beauty out of the heart. This is why God has given us Sabbaths and Saturday nights, that we may leave business in the office, and have a heart cleaning.—Volunteer's Gazette.

We do not realize the importance of the unconscious part of our life-ministry. It goes on continually. In every greeting we give to another on the street, in every moment's conversation, in every letter we write, in every contact with other lives, there is a subtle influence that goes from us that often reaches further, and leaves a deeper impression than the things themselves that we are doing at the time. It is not so much what we do in this world as what we are, that tells in spiritual results and impressions.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Perchance you may meet with heavy and grievous afflictions. Truly it is a pity to be at the trouble of suffering afflictions and not get good by them. We get good by them when they waken us to do good, and I may say never till then. When God is distributing sorrows to you, the sorrows still come upon some errands. Therefore, the best way for you to find that they do not come in his anger is to consider what the errands may be.—Cotton Mather.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

Hygiene.

ALCOHOL INJURIOUS TO THE INSANE.

Dr. Richard Maurice Bucke, whose valuable paper on "The Evolution of the Mind" appeared in the Journal of Hygiene, in a recent report of the Asylum for the Insane in London, Canada, makes the following statement concerning the use of alcohol in the institution over which he presides: "As we have given up the use of alcohol, we have needed and used less opium and chloral; and as we have discontinued the use of alcohol, opium and chloral, we have needed and used less seclusion and restraint. I have, during the year just closed, carefully watched the effect of the alcohol given, and the progress of cases where, in former years, it would have been given, and I am morally certain that the alcohol used during the past year did no good. With humiliation I am forced to admit that in the recent past my noble profession has been to an alarming extent, and is still too much so, guilty of producing drunkards in the land, directly or indirectly, by the reckless and wholesale manner in which so many of its members have prescribed alcoholic stimulants in their daily practice for all the aches and pains, agues and dances, coughs and colds, inflammations and consumptions, fevers and chills, at the hour of birth and at the time of death, and all intermediate points of life, to induce sleep and to promote wakefulness, and for all the real or imaginary ills that come under the eyes of our great Æsculapian descendants."

OBITUARIES.

THOMAS DARNEY WIER.

The friends of Rev. C. C. Wier, of the Louisiana Conference, will sympathize with him in his deep sorrow on account of the recent death of his father, Mr. Thomas D. Wier, who died after a short illness Dec. 17, 1898, at his home near the town of LaFayette, La. He was the son of David Smart Wier and Annie Pucket, and was born in Green county, Ala., Sept. 25 1833. He left a wife and seven children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and an affectionate father. The writer shares the sorrow of this grief-stricken family, and feels a personal loss in the death of Thomas D. Wier, a near kinsman, and an intimate friend and associate of former years.

On the breaking out of the Confederate war he espoused earnestly the Southern cause, going to the front with the Fourteenth Mississippi Regiment. Throughout the memorable struggle on the weary march, on the tented field, and amid the perils of battle, he displayed such true soldierly qualities as to win the esteem and affection of his comrades in arms. Made a prisoner of war at Fort Donelson, he learned by experience the life of a Federal prison. He was severely wounded in one of the battles near Atlanta, but having a vigorous constitution, he survived all the hardships and vicissitudes of the war, and on the cessation of hostilities he turned his face homeward to start his life anew, and, with the other survivors of the Lost Cause, to rebuild the fortunes of his beloved Southland.

He possessed many sterling traits of character, derived from the Scotch-Irish ancestry from which he was descended. His genial spirit and inexhaustible fund of humor made him an agreeable companion, and secured for him a welcome into the social circle. He grew to young manhood, maintaining a character for sobriety, morality, and industry. While yet young he became a member of the Methodist Church.

He was married Nov. 22, 1865, to Miss Margaret F. Campbell, who became to him a loving wife, a true helpmeet, and a devoted companion to his life's latest day.

In 1867 he settled in Avoyelles parish, La., and engaged successfully in farming. By energy, thrift and economy he secured a competency for his growing family. About five years ago he moved to LaFayette parish, and made his home a few miles from the town of LaFayette.

His last illness was such from the first as to alarm the fears of his family. Most of his children were away from home, but, being summoned to his bedside, came in time to receive a father's affectionate recognition. Rev. C. C. Wier was at Mansfield attending the Louisiana Conference; Mrs. Frank Bonner, a daughter, D. D. Smart Wier and Miss Mattie Wier were in Houston, Texas; Robert W. was at White Castle, La. These, with the two younger sons, Earl and Thomas Percy, with their mother, were present to bestow their loving and tender ministries in his last hours. While of late years he did not retain his membership with the church, yet one who knew him well last fall that he has ever led a godly life; that he died very bravely, and seemed perfectly ready.

A devoted husband and an affectionate father, he did much and provided well for his family, giving the advantages of education to his children, and leaving a home and many memories for his bereaved companion. A writer, giving a short sketch of his life in the Times-Democrat, says: "His was a fitting close to a life well spent; a life characterized throughout by a faithful performance of the duties of the father and husband, and by an unswerving devotion to his country. . . . Brave, honest, and charitable, he was likewise by his neighbors, by whom his death was sincerely regretted."

His son, Rev. C. C. Wier, writing to me of the sore bereavement of the family, manifests the spirit of submission to the will of our heavenly Father. "The heart bows very low," he says, "but we can then hear the dear Lord very sweetly say, whispering words of love and comfort." May God, of his tender compassion, minister the consolations of the gospel to every member of the stricken family, and dissipate the shadows from their sorrowing hearts!

T. C. WIER.

MAY—Mrs. THOMAS J. MAY, after four long years of illness, with frequent periods of most intense suffering, entered into rest Dec. 1, 1898. Sister May was born in Davis county, Ky., Feb. 2, 1827. She married Thomas J. May, March 15, 1845, and moved to this city in the Spring of 1846. In 1847, under the ministry of Rev. L. A. Reed, Sister May joined the Methodist Church. Without interruption she has been a faithful and devoted member of the church ever since. Four children survive her: Gen. Eugene May, Mrs. Susie M. Munholland, and Miss Orrie May, residing in New Orleans, and Mrs. E. M. Rogers, of Hopkinsville, Ky. The long-continued illness, with its intense suffering, at times transformed death into a sweet release to Sister May. She was ready to welcome the Bridegroom at the midnight hour, but days of suffering came and went, and though the prayer, "Lord Jesus, come quickly," often, no doubt, arose to her lips, yet he delayed his coming, and kept her here to receive the beautiful ministrations of love from her devoted children. There was also that beautiful life, day by day, of uncomplaining suffering; the very chamber of pain filled with cheerfulness by the sufferer herself. Three sons had already preceded her to the other world. Without complaint she suffered these long, weary months, always greeting her friends as they called with cheerfulness, no repining or rebellion of heart but full of faith in all the long days and longer nights. If any are made perfect through suffering that is physical, surely our subject was thus prepared for welcoming her Lord. She was a devoted mother, and has left her Christian stamp upon her children. They can recall her strong faith, her truly Christian walk before them in all her life; the continued walk as a devout member of the church in the presence of Him who is invisible, yet controlling her life continually.

While pastor, there was none who was a more appreciative listener and more faithful in all her church duties than our departed friend; always giving a glad welcome to our visits, and being in full spiritual sympathy, welcoming the prayer at the hearth-stone. How sweet the rest of the people of God to her after the long conflict, the weary nights of pain! No more suffering. What a haven that is to one who thus had worn out her life in conflict with disease; who could more fully appreciate the sadness of her Lord's deliverance by death that came to her that December morn! We are never ready to give up our loved ones; yet who would wish her back, as she is now so free from all sorrow and pain. May the blessed Comforter be with her loved ones! They must think of her as just gone before to welcome them home, and may they determine to meet her in that home of the blest!

JAYROE—The subject of this sketch, W. W. JAYROE, was born in Neshoba county, Miss., Sept. 1, 1868, and went from labor to reward Feb 1, 1899. After a painful illness of near three weeks he met the last enemy triumphantly.

Bro. Jayroe joined the M. E. Church, South, when a little boy, and lived a beautiful, quiet Christian life until he lived himself into heaven. He was always quiet, preferring to hear rather than to be heard.

He was happily married to Miss Ida Jackson, December, 1889. God blessed this union with five precious little children, all of whom still survive. May God give the mother grace to train the little ones for glory!

Bro. Jayroe was an obedient son, a loving father, and so affectionate husband. He leaves his precious wife, with five children, father, mother, brothers and sister, with many other relatives and a host of friends, to mourn their loss. May the comforting Spirit of the Divine Father attend them in this sad bereavement!

Sleep on, dear one, nor break thy calm repose,
Till God shall call thy sleeping dust,
His glory to disclose.

P. H. HOWSE, Pastor.

REYNOLDS—FRANCIS BLUMER REYNOLDS was born Oct. 7, 1879, and died at his father's residence, J. C. Reynolds, in Claiborne parish, near Lisbon, La., Sept. 7, 1898. He attached himself to the M. E. Church, South, when eight years old. He lived a consistent member until death. He was a good and pious young man. He loved the church, and was always ready to engage in the work of the church when called on to do so.

He leaves a father, mother, and brother, who deeply mourn their loss. They do not mourn without hope. He said he was not afraid to die. His sickness was short, but painful. He suffered much, but without complaint. He has gone from a world of sorrow and trouble. Why it was that one so young and promising should be taken away we do not understand, but God knows best. May God comfort the bereaved! May all meet in the "by and by!"

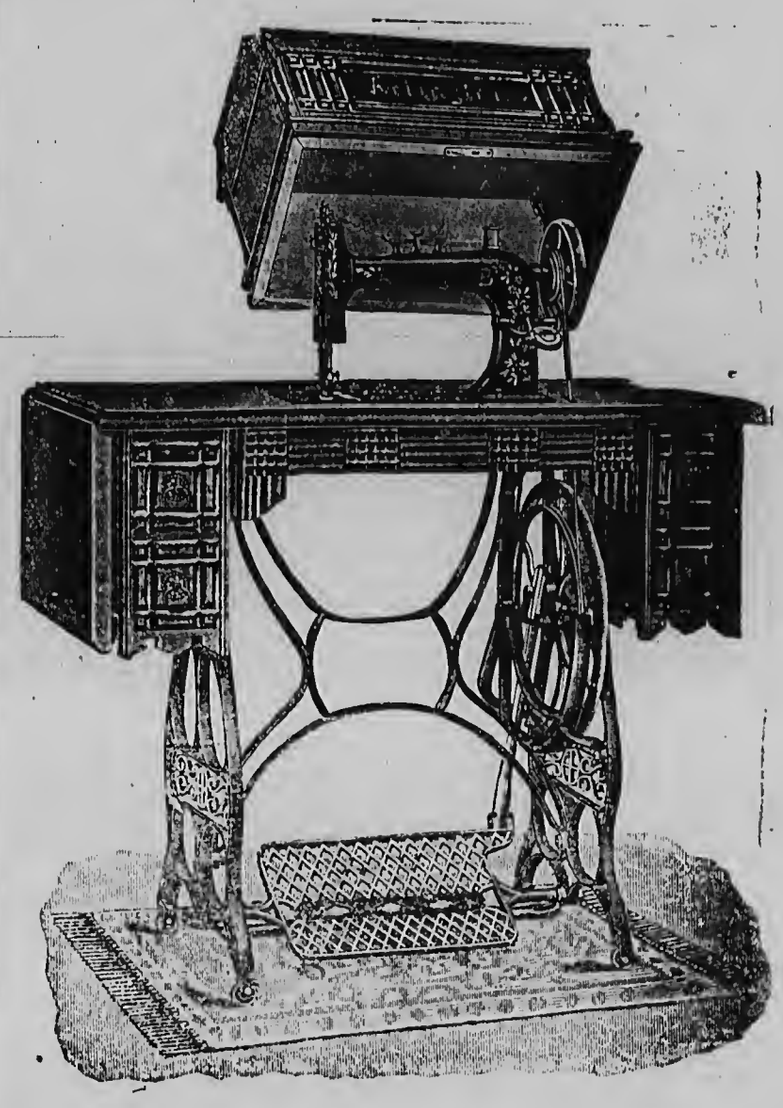
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and frictions points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length, finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

There are 87,000 members of the Epworth League in Canada, and they have undertaken the support of twenty-one missionaries.

The anti-smoke ordinance in Kansas City has been sustained in court. The court held that careful firing of furnaces is preventive of the smoke nuisance.

On Thursday, Feb. 23, of this week, a grand mass meeting of taxpayers will be held at Washington Artillery Hall to open the campaign in favor of the sewerage and water special tax.

On Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the people of this city have been able to witness the unwonted spectacle of vast fleets of heavy ice floating down the Mississippi river.

At the Chirurgical Congress in Berlin, in April, one of the novel features is to be a special exhibition of objects, illustrating the varied use that has already been made of the Roentgen rays.

The Supreme Court of California has declared unconstitutional an act of the Legislature adopted in 1897, granting a general increase in salaries to the officials of the police and fire departments of San Francisco. The decision will save the city about $60,000 a year.

Rear Admiral W. S. Schley, having been granted permission to answer the charges recently made against him in a communication recently sent to the Senate, has handed to the Committee on Naval Affairs his statement, in which he disclaims any purpose of controversy with the naval department.

Wellington, Kan., built a new jail last year, and the authorities determined to name it after the first prisoner who might be confined in it. This prisoner proved to be a woman, Mrs. Horton, and the institution was promptly named "Horton jail." Now it has been proven that the woman was innocent, and she proposes to sue the Wellington authorities for damages.

The President has announced that the Army Bill must be passed, or an extra session of the next Congress will be called. He will not even be satisfied with a compromise. Many Republicans are opposed to the measure or are lukewarm, but the administration whips are out and hard at work. Democrats are willing to yield something, but will not agree to an army of 100,000 men.

During last week the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate presented a bill, which was promptly passed, providing for the revival of the grade of Admiral of the Navy. The officer nominated to this office is not to be retired, except at his own request, and the office is to terminate with the death of the person upon whom it is conferred. It is, of course, understood that the grade of Admiral of the Navy is to be revived for the purpose of rewarding Rear Admiral Dewey.

Secretary Hay has decided to refer to the attorney general for an opinion on the application of an American syndicate for a concession from this government to construct a purely American cable line between the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico. This matter has been under consideration by the State Department for some time, but in view of the question whether the Executive has the power to grant such concessions in the absence of express legislation it was deemed advisable to obtain the opinion of the attorney general.

Saturday the French National Assembly convened at Versailles, and on the first ballot elected M. Loubet, who, as president of the Senate, was presiding officer of the National Assembly, President of France. The vote showed a good majority for M. Loubet; in fact, he had no serious opposition. It had been feared that trouble would follow the death of M. Faure; but apparently his successor has been chosen without serious opposition and without disturbance of any kind more serious than small street riots, precipitated by the Dreyfus and anti-Dreyfus factions.

But few days remain of the present session of Congress, and as many matters of importance, including a number of the big appropriation bills, remain to be acted on, it will require unremitting hard work to get through before adjournment. The Hawaiian Government bill and the Alaska bills have no show of receiving consideration. Of the important appropriation bills the Army, the Navy, the Deficiency and the Fortifications bills have not yet come from the House of Representatives, and the Postoffice bill and the Rivers and Harbors bill are now being considered in the Upper House.

As General Gomez approaches Havana his plans reveal themselves and demonstrate that the old general possesses as much political astuteness as military judgment. All along the route he is receiving ovations, such as the Latin people delight to give to popular heroes. Having accepted the tribute of the public, Gomez invariably turns to the pro-Spanish element, extending the open hand of friendship and making a proposition for forgiveness and forgetfulness in order that all may unite in forwarding the national idea and prosperity of Cuba. His advances have been generously received.

PROGRAMME.

Arcadia District Preachers' Meeting will convene in the Methodist Church at Arcadia, Tuesday morning, March 21, at 9 A. M. One hour prayer service, conducted by Rev. T. B. White, D. D.

The following is the program for the meeting: Preaching twice each day, at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. The District Epworth League will occupy one day. Program furnished by district officers.

FOR PREACHERS' MEETING.

1. Need of the Holy Spirit in All Our Work. Led by Rev. J. M Franklin.

2. What Do We, as Pastors, Need Most in Order to Succeed? Led by Rev. N. S. Cornell.

3. Our Duty to the Church and the Unsaved in Our Charges. Led by Rev. C. P. Smith.

4. How Shall We Enlarge and Reach the Best Results in Our Sunday-schools? Led by Rev. A. J. Notostine.

5. Who, and What, Should Our Superintendents and Teachers Be? Led by H. Armstrong.

6. How Shall We Proceed in Order to Have a Great Revival in Every Pastoral Charge in the District? Led by Rev. B. H. Sheppard.

7. How Can We Secure All Our Collections Ordered by the Annual Conference? Led by S. J. Davies.

8. How Shall We Proceed to Get Our Conference Organ in All Our Methodist Homes, and Increase the Circulation of Our General Organ, and What Will the Profit Be? Led by Rev. W. F. Henderson.

9. What of Visiting from House to House, and Are We Doing It? Led by H. M. Banks.

Let each and every preacher, traveling and local, come prepared to take part in this meeting, and suggest anything that may help carry forward the work of the church. We very much desire the attendance of as many of our laymen as can come, that we may have their counsel and fellowship.

B. T. CREWS.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP NEVER fails to cure throat and lung trouble. Physicians recommend this wonderful medicine. 25 cents.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

To the Presiding Elders and Preachers in Charge Who Are Members of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Let me call your attention to the appeal which has been sent forth by our Missionary Secretaries, and let me urge you to renewed zeal and industry in behalf of the collection for foreign missions. The collections for 1898 were $10,000 less than those for 1897. This means one of three things: 1. Another missionary debt, or, 2. Reduction of forces and abandonment of work, or, 3. Cutting down the small salaries now being paid to our missionaries. Which should it be? Can we view any one of these contingencies with indifference? Had we not better press our collections and, as far as in us lies, strive to bring up the deficit, or that part of the deficit which is chargeable against our Conference, and do this before the middle of March?

May the blessings of Almighty God rest on your efforts, and the Holy Spirit guide you in this behalf!

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN,
Miss. Conf. Miss'y Sec'y.

Forest, Feb. 14, 1899.

CATARRH AND CONSUMPTION

I have spent nearly fifty years in the treatment of the above named diseases, and believe I have effected more genuine cures than any specialist in the history of medicine. As I must soon retire from active life I will, from this time on, send the means of treatment and cure, as used in my practice, FREE and post-paid to every reader of this paper who suffers from these annoying and dangerous diseases. This is a sincere offer which anyone is free to accept. Address,
Prof. J. H. Lawrence, 114 W. 32d St., New York

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS.

The Sunday-school Board wishes to more thoroughly introduce the Children's Visitor, a Sunday-school paper published by our Publishing House. To accomplish this they make this liberal offer: Any school wishing a supply may, by paying one-half the cost, secure a sufficient number to supply the school. This offer applies to libraries also.

The Visitor is an excellent paper, and ought to be in the hands of every Sunday-school scholar. Parents would do well to subscribe for it to reach their children at home. Apply to Rev. D. Scarborough, Secretary, Forest, Miss.

W. T. GRIFFIN,
Pres. S. S. Board.

NOTICE.

To the Friends of Centenary College:

Many of our friends have given the college notes, the interest on which go toward the professors' salaries. Will you please—if you have a note, the interest on which has not been paid within a year or more—do your best at once toward adjusting this sacred obligation? Let me hear from you.

I. W. COOPER, Pres.,
Centenary College.

THAT BOOK!

A reader of Dr. Hunnicutt's Essays says: "The Essay on The Former Days and These is particularly fine in matter and style. The whole book is good reading—was sorry when I reached the end, and shall read it again—two things I can say of no other book." Send 50 cents, to Barbee and Smith, Nashville, Tenn., and get the book.

A LADY TELLS HOW SHE SUPPORTS HERSELF AND FAMILY.

"I often read of ladies who work hard trying to earn enough to keep body and soul together, and for their benefit I will relate how easily one can get along in the world if they only know how. There is a big firm in Pittsburg that manufactures flavoring powders. I had tried them myself and knew they were splendid, so sent for samples and tried selling them. I found it so pleasant and easy that I have kept right at it, and never make less than $3 a day and often clear more than $5. The powders go twice as far as the liquid extracts sold in stores and are much stronger. I sell from one to eight different flavors in each house. They are used for ice cream, custards, cakes, candies, etc., and are so delicate and give such a rich flavor that everywhere I go I gain a permanent customer. Those of your readers who would like to make money can get full particulars by writing to W. H. Baird & Co., 103 Telephone Bldg E. E., Pittsburg, Pa., and they will give you a good start. I support myself and family nicely, and we have a good many comforts we never had before." "L."

Do not fail to read our offer of "The Book Opened." It is a book that ought to be in every home.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT,

Malaria creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BLOOD, URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste the children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun brings as a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living.

WHY DO WE WAIT?

Why do we wait till ears are deaf
Before we speak our kindly word,
And only utter loving praise
When not a whisper can be heard?

Why do we wait till hands are laid
Close folded, pulseless, ere we place
Within them roses sweet and rare,
And lilies in their thawless grace?

Why do we wait till eyes are sealed
To light and love in death's deep trance—
Dear wistful eyes—before we bend
Above them with impassioned glance?

Why do we wait till hearts are still
To tell them all the love in ours,
And give them such late meed of praise,
And lay above them fragrant flowers?

How oft we, careless, wait till life's
Sweet opportunities are past,
And break our "alabaster box
Of ointment" at the very last!

Oh, let us heed the living friend
Who walks with us life's common ways,
Watching our eyes for look of love,
And hungering for a word of praise!

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

It requires no powers of prophecy to predict a mighty impetus to Christian education in the beginning of the "new century." The raising of twenty-seven and a half millions of dollars—a large part of which will be used for educational work—by the four leading branches of Methodism will mark an epoch not only in Methodist history, but in the history of Christian education. The raising of this amount of money will be but a small part of the good accomplished. The discussion of the subject of education in the papers, pulpits, and homes of the people, will stir many a bright youth to heroic effort to equip himself for the greatest usefulness. And in many homes the self-denial necessary to enable a son or daughter to take a college course will be cheerfully borne, because of the conviction which will be forced upon many minds that the parent who sends his son or daughter into the world without the proper mental and moral training, commits a crime against society as well as his own child. Nor will this good work be confined to Methodism alone. Other great denominations will be "provoked to good works" by our example.

There may be those among us who fear that the effort to raise so large a sum may affect other great interests of the church. This is not probable. Experience teaches that the more a man gives, the more he will give. It is only the man who gives that learns that it is indeed "more blessed to give than to receive." But admit that there will be a temporary falling off of contributions for other departments of Christian work, the time will soon come when the tide will turn the other way. The church now contributes of her money to strengthen our educational institutions, and those institutions will soon begin to return to the church an army of intelligent Christian men and women, who will love the church and all her work, and will repay manifold in service and means the amount expended in broadening our base of educational operation. The man who contributes directly one hundred dollars to this fund will contribute indirectly a much larger sum to every other interest of the church. Hence we see that the far-sighted leaders of all our great connectional departments give hearty indorsement to this movement.

It is not enough that the Methodism of the United States stands at the head of denominational educational work. It is not enough that twenty per cent. of the college graduates of this country come from Methodist Institutions. We have but lightly put our hand to this work. We need to put our shoulder to it. If the mighty forces of American Methodism could be aroused and their energies directed to this work, the sum which marks the minimum of our effort could be secured in a few weeks. We will never see another time so opportune for concerted action. We turn from the marvelous achievements of the nineteenth century to face the wonderful possibilities of the twentieth. Will Methodism meet the demands of the "new century"? We are to answer that question, not with words, but with deeds. Let every loyal lover of Methodism do his part.

Mississippians should be at the very front in this movement. Our State has been a pioneer in the South in almost every advanced educational movement. Are we less loyal to our church than we are to our commonwealth? I can not believe that we are. The $500 reported by Bishop Galloway, Jan. 9, is but a drop which portends the coming shower.

Our committees will devise wise plans, but let us remember that there is more in the man than there is in the plan. Almost any plan will do if properly worked, but the best plan will fail unless there is a man determined to succeed behind it. Let no man fail in this critical hour.

GEORGIA LETTER.

I have been for the past year hard at work on a new book, "The Story of the Georgia People," and it has taken all the time I could spare to prepare that. It is, however, now pretty well finished, and I am now able to pay some debts to the papers. The mention of a book leads me to say something about the cost of book publishing, for the advantage of those who have a mania for authorship is beginning to appear. There are printers and publishers, and some printers who are publishers, and some publishers who are not printers. When a man like Dr. Hess or Dr. Tigert desires to issue a book, the Publishing House is glad to take the job at its own risk, and pay the authors for the copyright and the royalty. The House takes all risks, and the author receives from ten to twenty per cent. on the retail price of the books which are sold. But there are very few authors who are of such repute as to secure a publisher for a religious book who will do the work on these terms. The majority of the books issued from Nashville are the property of the writers, and the same thing is true of most of the Northern houses. I think the Scribners, Appletons, Harpers, buy all the books they print; but with most of the Publishing Houses the work under their imprints belongs to the writer. He pays to have it printed, and he takes all risk. What does it cost to publish a book? Take a twelve mo. the size of my "Boy in Gray." It costs, without any pictures, $1 for each page, say $300 for the book, and 25 cents a copy, say $250 a thousand; total, $550. The book retails at $1, and if sold at that price, the author gets about $350 for his work; but it is never sold at the catalogue price. The preachers get it at 75 cents, the dealers and agents at 50 cents; so that if the author and publisher gets out even on the first thousand, he is exceedingly fortunate. The second thousand costs $250, and sells for $500, so that he makes $250. If his book should run to 10,000, he would make $2,500, but in all probability it will not reach a thousand. Of the writers who have published their own books, I know but very few who have not published them at a loss. An octavo book is still more risky. Six hundred pages octavo is $840, 1,000 copies without engravings, $550; total, $1,390, or about $1.40 a copy for a $2 book; and if it is sold through agents, it will only bring $1,000, and there will be a loss of $400 on the first edition. You see, then, why I never publish a book until I can secure a subscription in advance of its being printed. My "Story of Georgia" can not have much of a sale out of Georgia, and I must have 1,000 subscribers who promise to take it to protect me against loss. There are some books bought out and out. They are generally stories of some kind. The price paid is small—about $1 a printed page.

If you are going to publish, don't let your own opinion of the salable character of your book influence you. You may greatly misjudge the public mind, and you will have to pay for doing so. You may be greatly interested in the matter discussed, but the book-buying public may not care a straw about it. There is no money in book-writing unless you are a popular author and strike a popular chord. When you write sell your own books. It is a strange truth, but none the less a truth, that when a preacher tries to make a living, as a general thing, he loses caste as a preacher.

I visit Conferences to sell books, and am regarded as a mere book peddler, and at one I remember I found lodgings in a cheap boarding-house, and did not even get acquainted with the pastor. This, however, was only one case in many years. The preachers are generally kind, and I may be unduly sensitive, but I can but think they regard me often as very much in the way. What is one to do? He must sell his books, and the people will not buy anything without an effort is made to get them to do it, and so one must go on his way. There are few men as well provided for and as happy as pastors, and when one has had a good charge, he finds he is generally the loser, in a temporal sense, when he surrenders it; but all men can not be pastors. Mere bread and butter are, after all, not the only things in this world, and if we have the spirit of our Master, we are ready to do much for which we will never be paid in money.

The weather has been fearful, and I have been home-bound, and on yesterday I read a book of Thos. Guthrie's. It is an old book, "Out of Harness," but it has a most entertaining account of his life in Edinburgh, in the Cowgate section of the city, among the slums. We are obliged in this country now to confront some of these very troubles he battled so bravely against. In our negro sections of the Southern, and in these parts of the Northern cities where Chinamen and Poles and Italians find their homes, the same difficulties present themselves. On Fourth street and Tybee, in Macon; on Peters and Decatur streets, in Atlanta; on South Broad and the Yamacrow, in Savannah, we have some of the same things which are found in London and Edinburgh, and how these ills are to be combatted is a question, and is not to be settled by singing a new anthem, or getting that panacea for all woes in a modern church—a pipe organ.

Dear me, how poor Tom Smith, who never saw anything better than a jewsharp in his raising, glorifies that pipe organ which we have put in Young City Church! And how the music of the great quartette in High Steeple is looked upon by its accomplished pastor as the hope of its salvation; but, despite pipe organs and quartette choirs and our fine people, these wretched slums will still send out their poison. We can only cure by preventing. Those ragged schools of Guthrie and Chalmers were worth more to Edinburgh than all the beautiful trilling of all the soloists. If we don't, as Methodists, remember that no church can ever grow which fails to take care of its children and its poor, and if we do not cease the work of coddling a few rich and fashionable people as the one aim of a preacher, and take our coats off and do as Guthrie did—go after this lost sheep—our day of glory is gone forever.

A GOOD BOOK.

MR. EDITOR: I have just finished reading "The Ministry to the Congregation," by Dr. John A. Kern, of Randolph-Macon College. This volume was placed in my hands by my friend 'Gilderoy" while our Annual Conference was in session at Aberdeen, last December, with a request that I should read it carefully. I shall always be deeply grateful to him for rendering me this service. It is the finest work of the kind I have ever read. In my judgment it is greatly superior to the works of Vinet, Phelps, and Broadus. I can not say it is more charmingly written than the last-named volume, for Dr. Broadus was a master of style, and wrote English as but few can write it, but it is broader in its scope and richer in its contents. Our Bishops have put this treatise in the course of study for our young preachers, and the whole church is to be congratulated on the fact that we now have a book covering this field written by a Methodist, and that we are no longer forced to borrow from the Baptists.

There is not a Methodist minister anywhere who would not be benefited by reading this admirable work. If we could get all our preachers to read the chapter on "The Prayers" especially, it may be that we would not be humiliated at every Annual Conference by hearing some brother who had formerly served the town in which the session is being held, while pretending to pray, address his former parishioners, and tell of the past and his abiding love for them. Prayer is to the Lord. Lecturing the congregation while kneeling is not praying. This, and many other prevalent ministerial customs, Dr. Kern strongly condemns. As Methodist preachers, we do not desire to be artificial and affected, but at the same time we must guard against loose forms of worship and inelegant pulpit manners.

The book can be had of the Rev. G. W. Bachman, Winona, Miss. The price is $1.50; postage extra.

Selections.

ANENT THE PHILIPPINES.

From President McKinley's Boston speech we make the following extract:

The Philippines, like Cuba and Porto Rico, were intrusted to our hands by the war, and to that great trust, under the providence of God, and in the name of human progress and civilization, we are committed. It is a trust we have not sought; it is a trust from which we will not flinch. The American people will hold up the hands of their servants at home to whom they commit its execution, while Dewey and Otis and the brave men whom they command will have the support of the country in upholding our flag where it now floats, the symbol and assurance of liberty and justice.

What nation was ever able to write an accurate programme of the war upon which it was entering, much less decree in advance the scope of its results? Congress can declare war, but a higher power decides its bounds, and fixes its relations and responsibilities. The President can direct the movements of soldiers on the fields and fleets upon the sea, but he can not foresee the close of such movements or prescribe their limits. He can not anticipate or avoid the consequences, but he must meet them. No accurate map of nations engaged in war can be traced until the war is over, nor can the measure of responsibility be fixed until the last gun is fired and the verdict embodied in the stipulations of peace.

We hear no complaint of the relations created by the war between this government and the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico. There are some, however, who regard the Philippines as in a different relation; but whatever variety of views there may be on this phase of the question, there is universal agreement that the Philippines shall not be turned back to Spain. No true American consents to that. Even if unwilling to accept them ourselves, it would have been a to require Spain to transfer them to some other power or powers, and thus shirk our own responsibility. Even if we had had, as we did not have, the power to compel such a transfer, it could not have been made without the most serious international complications. Such a course could not be thought of. And yet, had we refused to accept the cession of them, we should have had no power over them, even for their own good. We could not discharge the responsibilities upon us until these islands became ours, either by conquest or treaty. There was but one alternative, and that was neither Spain nor the United States should rule in the Philippines. The other suggestions—first, that they should be tossed into the arena of contention for the strife of nations; or, second, be left to the anarchy and chaos of no protectorate at all—were too shameful to be considered. The treaty gave them to the United States. Could we have required less and done our duty? Could we, after freeing the Filipinos from the domination of Spain, have left them without government and without power to protect life and property, or to perform the international obligations essential to an independent State? Could we have left them in a state of anarchy and justified ourselves in our own consciences or before the tribunal of mankind? Could we have done that in the sight of God and man?

Our concern was not for territory or trade or empire, but for the people whose interest and destiny, without our willing it, had been put in our hands. It was with this feeling that from the first day to the last one not one word or line went from the Executive in Washington to our military or naval commanders at Manila, or to our Peace Commissioners at Paris, that did not put as the sole purpose to be kept in mind first, after the success of our arms and the maintenance of our own honor, the welfare and happiness and the rights of the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands. Did we need their consent to perform a great act of humanity? We had it in every aspiration of their minds, in every hope of their hearts. Was it necessary to ask their consent to capture Manila, the capital of their islands? Did we ask their consent to liberate them from Spanish sovereignty, or to enter Manila Bay and destroy the Spanish sea power there? We did not ask these; we were obeying a higher moral obligation which rested on us and which did not require anybody's consent. We were doing our duty by them with the consent of our own consciences and with the approval of civilization. Every political obligation has been met and fulfilled in the expulsion of Spanish sovereignty from their islands, and while the war that destroyed it was in progress we could not ask their views. Nor can we now ask their consent.

Indeed, can anyone tell me in what form it could be marshaled and ascertained until peace and order, so necessary to reign of reason, shall be secured and established?

A REIGN OF TERROR

is not the kind of rule under which right action and deliberate judgment are possible. It is not a good time to submit important questions concerning liberty and government to the liberated while they are engaged in shooting down their rescuers.

We have now ended the war with Spain. The treaty has been ratified by more than two-thirds of the Senate of the United States and by the judgment of nine-tenths of its people. No nation was ever more fortunate in war or more honorable in negotiations in peace. Spain is now eliminated from the problem.

The future of the Philippine Islands is now in the hands of the American people. Until the treaty was ratified or rejected the executive department of this government could only preserve the peace and protect life and property. That treaty now commits the free and enfranchised Filipinos to the guiding hand and the liberating influences, the generous sympathies, the uplifting education, not of their American masters, but of their American emancipators. No one can tell to-day what is best for them or for us. I know no one at this hour who is wise enough or sufficiently informed to determine what form of government will best subserve their interests and our interests, their and our well-being. If we knew everything by intuition, we should not need information; but unfortunately most of us are not in that happy state. The whole subject is now with Congress, and Congress is the voice, the conscience and the judgment of the American people. Upon their judgment and conscience can we not rely? I believe in them. I trust them. I know of no better or safer human tribunal than the people.

Until Congress shall direct otherwise it will be the duty of the Executive to possess and hold the Philippines, giving to the people thereof peace and order and beneficent government, affording them every opportunity to prosecute their lawful pursuits, encouraging them in thrift and industry, making them feel and know that we are their friends, not their enemies; that their good is our aim, that their welfare is our welfare, but that neither their aspirations nor ours can be realized until our authority is acknowledged and unquestioned.

That the inhabitants of the Philippines will be benefited by this republic is my unshaken belief: that they will have a kindlier government under our guidance, and that they will be aided in every possible way to be a self-respecting and self-governing people, is as true as that the American people love liberty, and have abiding faith in their own government and in their own institutions.

No imperial designs lurk in the American mind. They are alien to American sentiment, thought, and purpose. Our priceless principles undergo no change under a tropical sun. They go with the flat,

"Why read ye not the changeless truth
The free can conquer but to save."

If we can benefit those remote peoples, who will object? If in the years of the future they are established in government under law and liberty, who will regret our perils and sacrifices? Who will not rejoice in our heroism and humanity?

I do not prophesy. The present is all-absorbing to me, but I can not bound my vision by the blood-stained trenches around Manila, where every red drop, whether from the veins of an American soldier or a misguided Filipino, is anguish to my heart; but by the broad range of future years, when that group of islands under the impulse of the year just past shall have become a land of plenty and of increasing possibilities, a people redeemed from savage indolence and habits, devoted to the arts of peace, in touch with commerce, enjoying the blessing of freedom, of civil and religious liberty, of education and of homes, and whose children and children's children shall for ages bless the American republic because it emancipated and redeemed their fatherland, and set them in the pathway of the world's best civilization.

REPENTANCE.

O sinner lift the eye of faith,
To true repentance turning;
Bethink thee of the curse of sin,
Its awful guilt discerning;
Upon the Crucified now look,
And thou shalt read as in a book,
What well is worth thy learning.

Lord, give us grace to flee from sin,
And Satan's wiles ensnaring,
And from those everlasting flames
For evil ones preparing
Jesus, we thank thee, and entreat
To rest forever at thy feet,
Thy heavenly glory sharing

OUR PAPER.

Mr. Editor: I want to congratulate you on the variety of news you are giving us in the New Orleans Christian Advocate. I will take our last as a sample (the ninth of February). Dr. Lambuth—"Alabama Methodism in Santiago." Surely there is leaven in Methodism that goes out from iron and coal regions over into the tropics so early, where heathen and semi-heathenism has predominated so long. But that is right. Methodism ought to be "instant in season." Yes, no doubt, but the tones of one's own countrymen are pleasant in a strange land, and, no doubt, if Bro. Simpson were to write his experience as to the visit, he would give vent to many warm expressions of pleasure in having the brethren with him on Cuban soil. But I must hasten. I enjoyed the trip as I saw the varying scenes and associations which were portrayed by Dr. Lambuth's pen.

"Central Louisiana," by a beloved, as he traversed his district (the Alexandria), was certainly encouraging to his corps of faithful preachers, he speaking kindly of their works, and of them as true men. The name of Dr. McVoy especially interested us. Once he was one of us—a North Mississippi Conference man. Glad to know the Doctor is at the hub of the district. We trust the "dead-line" is thirty years ahead of him.

"An Incident." Yes, and they will happen many times to a man who can travel over ground as rapidly as T. B. Clifford. He is our man, but some one persuaded him off, having found out he could edit the Epworth League department in our paper. Act the pastor, and agent for something—Orphans' Home, college or colleges—and assistant secretary, all the same year, and say about four words with a double emphasis while we common preachers are saying one. He must have a large orbit to revolve in. No wonder "Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Campbellites, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Roman Catholics" attended the meeting. May God bless him and his good wife in their new field!

"161.70—The Twentieth Century Fund," comes from the banner station of our Conference. I don't mean in wealth, or numbers in membership, but in promptness to pay early all assessments made by the Conference against her, and a willing loyalty to all the institutions of the church, whether for charity or otherwise. Happy is the preacher who gets Carrollton station, for he has no begging for money to do. It is too good for a pastor more than two years. Well, the good things of the itineracy ought to be divided around. I suppose I might say, Happy is the preacher that has that young prince of church workers and loyalty, J. R Bingham, to help him in his charge. May his tribe increase to thousands! The stirring appeal he made under the above caption is broad-gauged in principle and urgent in "taking time by the forelock," and not to fall behind in the century fund. May his appeal find an echo in every preacher's heart in our Conference! Also, may he be able to find some layman in each charge (if not in each church) who will heartily co-operate with him!

"My First Trip in 1899"—eight miles to go to the appointment. This brother I know not, but one thing sure—he has my sympathy. His was an ideal itinerant introduction. After crossing bloody river and meeting with many obstacles of other kinds, then to settle down to the study of his sermon and the quantity of the people to preach to, and be abruptly interrupted by a slough across the road, was too much. Now, the crossing is the amusing part. He says it can be described by two little words, "under" and "up," "but a long string of them," which would certainly produce a state of dampness incompatible with a mood for preaching a first sermon on a new work.

"From Manila"—Frank M. Lowrey's letter to his brother. It is a budget of news and graphic description of some things he saw. Never will we know all about the Philippines and their people. The letter is intensely interesting to the lover of history.

"Prohibition Points," by J. C. Park, has a note of victory in them that is "melodious to our ears." His county (Bolivar, I believe it is) has gone dry by 112 majority. Most assuredly the ministry ought to be a conserving power, not only of the Methodist Church, but of all others, in establishing prohibition. The gospel of prohibition is a necessity for these times. All praise to the "negroes who voted against the sale of whisky." Bro. Park gives a strong exhortation to the Prohibitionists in the dry counties. Let it be heeded.

"Winning Souls," by Phillips Brooks, has many thoughts worthy of our serious consideration.

"The Columbus District League Programme" is a reminder of duty, a step necessary to success. May it prove all that it ought!

Your leader, "A Forward Movement in Missions," has the right ring. May it bestir every reader of the Advocate until the maximum gifts are obtained from all the patronizing Conferences!

"Canteens Abolished." I am glad our congressmen are taking steps to protect our soldiery. A soldier has as little use for whisky as he has for a traitor's oath. Oh, that the same power could abolish the jug traffic!

"A Questionable Method of Journalism." Poor Palmore! He ran right into a sausage mill. The Texas editor ground him up, ready for casing, then to ship to the market where sausage is in greatest demand. "Be sure your sin will find you out." "The way of the transgressor is hard."

"And what more shall I say?" Time would fail me to speak of Williams' visit to Water Valley; Lewis and Smith's controversy over "Success;" "The Urgent Need of Methodism," by Hugh Price Hughes; "Woman and the Home," "The Pace That Kills," "Familiarity with the Bible," "Art of Not Hearing," "News of the Week," etc. D. W. Babb.

ATTENTION, SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE!

Dear Brethren: Our annual Sunday-school Conference will be held in Lumberton this year, and will embrace the last two days of March and the first of April. The programme is being arranged, and we trust that everything will be in readiness when the time comes. A large attendance is expected, and a pleasant time promised everyone who goes. Lumberton is one of the most progressive towns on the Northeastern road, and, knowing the people there as I do, I can assure you that every home in the town will swing wide its doors for the reception of delegates. Rev. W. H. Huntley has been requested to make all necessary preparations for the music. The Young People's Hymnal will be used.

Now, I assure you that the occasion will be a profitable one. Dr. Atkins, our Sunday-school Editor at Nashville, has promised to come, and we hope to have Bishop Galloway with us. You may expect a good address or a fine paper from everyone on the programme. Let me urge everyone who is interested in the Sunday-school work to go, if possible. We specially request all superintendents to attend. The Conference should be a grand success.

Now, please notice and remember the following items:

(1) Every Sunday-school in the Conference is requested to elect delegates immediately. Send at least one. It is proper and right that schools pay traveling expenses of delegates.

(2) A report is desired from every school not represented in the Conference. We want to know something of how the school is conducted, number of pupils, if there is a library, and other matters you may deem necessary to report.

(3) Special rates on all of the railroads in the State will be secured before the Conference meets in Lumberton. We will give full particulars later on.

(4) Let everyone who contemplates going write Rev. W. H. Huntley, P. C., at Lumberton to that effect, so provision can be made for your entertainment. Now, don't neglect this.

We further call attention to the fact that it is obligatory on every pastor and superintendent to see that Children's Day is observed by every school in the Conference. We hope no one will fail to do this. All superintendents or pastors who apply to the Secretary of the Sunday-school Board before April 1 can get programmes free. We will send half as many as there are scholars in a school. The service should be held by the last of May.

Now, brethren of the pastorate, your co-operation in this work is absolutely necessary. If you neglect it, failure will be inevitable. We want you all to attend the Conference at Lumberton, and urge your schools to send delegates. Let us get up a great revival in the Sunday-school work. May the Lord help us!

Yours in the cause,

D. Scarborough,
Sec'y of S. S. Board of Miss Conf.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

Bro. Lewis' last is disappointing. I am surprised that he is willing to let his strictures on the unsuccessful preacher go without defense, modification, or explanation. He seems determined not to see his statement that, "Some preachers will succeed anywhere, and the reason others do not succeed, is because their lives are not in the work, and they do not expect to succeed," and now he calls for light. He reminds me of the man who would not see rats. One man told another that he could show him a hundred rats run from a certain barn. They made a bet on it, and went to the barn to settle the matter. The doubtful man took position on one side of the barn, the other man going to the other side to run the rats out. He made all kinds of noise that he thought would scare rats, and asked his friend if he saw any. He said, "No." The process was repeated several times, with the same results. He slipped around the corner to see why his doubtful friend could not see the rats, and found him standing there with his eyes tightly closed.

If Bro. Lewis will open his eyes to facts and fellowship, he will find all the light necessary.

"But the hardest people in the world to learn are those who won't be taught."

Bro. Lewis referred to eating pudding. I am sorry he has "bit off more than he can chew," and has failed, so far, to disgorge, and is so seriously indisposed.

But as good Bro. Lewis has so utterly failed, if there are others who wish to defend his assertions, we will be glad to hear from them. For I must hereby leave him alone in his gloom.

I suggest, as the better way to advance the cause of Christ, and to help the unfortunate brethren, that we write kindly letters to them, pray for them, send them books, and perchance a spare bill of some denomination; offer to be with them (if we can be of any service) in raising funds, or in revivals.

"Ye that are strong bear the infirmities of the weak," and we will all feel better, and accomplish more for our blessed Lord.

While this subject is up, there are some things I would like to say, but under a different heading. "Nothing Succeeds like Success" is a false axiom. Success may be attained by methods that block up forever success in that enterprise. The best and truest road to success is sometimes by honest failure, but it takes a great deal of grace and courage to travel this road.

For what may further be said on this subject I prefer the heading, "Success vs. Failure."

God bless good Bro. Lewis. May he be successful and happy in his loved employ! J. H. Smith.

COLUMBUS, MISS.

Mr. Editor: As my brethren expected, I moved to my old home in Columbus, Miss.; and while I was somewhat in the line of Bro. Bachman—had no stewards or official members of the church to meet us—yet we had good children to meet us, and many kind friends to welcome us back to our old home again. While I am on the roll of worn-out preachers, I don't feel that I am worn-out, and still find any amount of work to do.

The Lord never makes any mistakes, and when he sent Rev. J. A. Bowen to Columbus charge, he sent the right man to continue the work here that was begun by Bros. Boliug, Staudifer, and others. He began a series of meetings at the commencement of the Christmas holidays, and continued them for a week, which did great good in uniting the church in the great work that is to be done this year for the Lord. He has all the work well in hand. His Sunday-school has over 300 on roll, and is growing all the time. His Epworth League, with J. I. Sturdivant at the helm as president, with some good women as vice-presidents, is growing in numbers and interest all the time. We have 83 on roll now, and others joining at nearly every meeting. His congregation is growing all the time. I assisted him the first Sunday in February in administering the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and while I did not count them, I think there was between 350 and 400 that partook of the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our dying Lord. He has received 53 into the church by letter and on profession of faith, and several others will join soon. While Bro. Bowen is doing a grand work here, he is only entering into other men's labors, and building on the foundations they have laid, and maybe doing the work with the help he has better than anyone else could have done, and that is why the Lord sent him here. He has over six hundred members now, and if he continues like he has begun, the Bishop will have to send two preachers here another year to do the pastoral work for the church, for no one man can do the visiting for six hundred members and have any time to study, and without close study any preacher will soon prove a failure in the pulpit. THAT ENTERPRISING PREACHER.

PART I.

For several years our church had needed repairs. After so long a time the men undertook the task, but, of course, the furnishing devolved upon the women, who entered upon their part of the work quite cheerfully. The pews were one thousand dollars, the carpet six hundred, besides the new railing and platform; but we counted on good workers, for we knew we had them. It had been some time since the children had given an entertainment, and the little folks are always sure of an audience. Then it was suggested that the "old folks" might take their turn and give a concert. Both were remunerative, but much was to be done. One thing I know: we never stopped working. If one plan was not feasible, another was. On one occasion—at our usual monthly meeting—however, ways and means at last seemed to fail us. It was the custom of our pastor to attend our monthly meetings. As usual, he was quietly stepping from one seat to another, among the members, shaking hands, with a word or two before passing on to the next. The society was called to order. After the preliminary exercises the order of business was called, and the perplexing question, "What next to do?" was discussed. One sister said we had sailed triumphantly along over seas of difficulty so far, but she thought we were at our "wits' end" now. As other methods of work were discussed, Bro. Jones continued his noiseless interviewing, pencil and paper in hand. At the close of the meeting he asked to say a word. Holding up the paper on which he had been at work, he said: "I have on this slip of paper the names of thirty-five members—not all here this morning—who have agreed to try to raise $10 each to complete your church furnishing. You know, nothing makes people work like being in debt. I heard a very rich man say once he would always have been poor if he had not contracted a debt. So it is with us now; we must pay off this indebtedness. You have worked splendidly as a whole; now let us see what you can do individually. I will be glad to meet with you and hear how you are succeeding." Then the meeting adjourned. It must be confessed, however, there was a good deal of discussion as to the brother's new plan, but they were all determined to do the best they could, and left the church with many undeveloped plans at work in their busy brains.

PART II.

The next regular meeting of the society seemed to come round sooner than usual, and a goodly number of the "stay-at-home" members were out. Bro. Jones was there, slipping round through the benches, shaking hands, and chatting in his pleasant way. After the society was called to order, and the usual business attended to, he arose and said: "You know, sisters, I promised to be here to take part in your exercises this evening. As my wife is unable to be present, she commissioned me to make her report. She said she didn't know how else to make her $10 this time, unless she made me build the stable and save that last $10 you sent to pay the carpenter" (putting down the $10). This called for a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Jones for putting the preacher to work, and thus balancing accounts. "Now," continued Bro. Jones, "let us hear from you."

I thought this was the time when Bro. Jones would be right sharply disappointed, as I, for one, had barely thought out a plan for redeeming my pledge.

Sister Walton arose. "I find, Bro. Jones, a large number of church members who do not belong to any missionary societies at all; so I decided to canvass among them, and I not only had no trouble collecting the $10, but I have a good deal more, and I have five new names to be added to our regular membership. I found two families, also new-comers, who wish to unite with some church. I told them you would call."

"That's good. You killed several birds that time. Now, who else?" said the pastor.

Sister Davidson arose: "My husband is a policeman, and knowing all the men—and that policeman, as a rule, have little opportunity to do church work—I gave them the privilege of contributing, and I have $11."

"That's good," said Bro. Jones, leaning back against the corner of the front bench, not a muscle of his face changing; "put Sister Davidson down for another eleven."

"I have $3," said Sister Busby. "I made some brown linen sofa pillows; have gone into the business. Have one with me," presenting a prettily braided pattern.

"My old mother was just wishing for one last night. I'll take it," said Mrs. Robertson.

Mrs. Smith had given a "birthday reception," and Sister Brown an "experience party," and made each $10. Sister Mays produced a wonderful old mammy, "a big black rag doll, which was immediately appropriated by Sister Miller for little Flossie. Several had made quilts, and sold them; others bonnets and aprons." All seemed easily enough done, but I scarcely knew how to make a penny. I had a class in Sunday-school of twelve young ladies, and decided to put them to work. Sunday, when my class met, I unfolded to them my plan, and invited them round to tea. I had a quilt-square for each of them; a white satin strip in each corner to simulate a card.

"Now, girls, finish your square with the prettiest work you can do. The satin card is for the name of any good friend who will give you twenty-five cents for the privilege of writing his name on your autograph quilt-square, and some pleasant evening we'll meet and put them together."

Weeks glided by; the girls were enthusiastic, and towards the Christmas holidays they were ready to finish the quilt and count the cash. Each girl had collected her dollar and something over—$14 in all.

"Then we have the quilt," said one of the girls. "What shall we do with it?"

"There is a new baby at the parsonage, girls. Let's put the quilt on the Christmas tree for him and Mrs. Jones, in honor of that enterprising preacher."

The Christian Life.

SOME THINGS TO FORGET.

Brooding over mistakes, misfortunes, disappointments, is like carrying unforgiven sins. But cherishing grudges, remembering injuries, revolving revenges, is making one's self the devil's packhorse, weighted with the misdeeds of other men. The burdens of this work when carried are exasperating beyond expression, for they rub the sore places into frenzied agonizing. Here is an example: For a paltry difference in a settlement (the exact sum was eleven dollars) a man of standing in society carried a grudge against another of unimpeached integrity, honor, and piety, through years, till his mind gave way under who shall say what unhealthful stress of morbid memory! To go out under such a darkness is the bitterness of death. If you say that a man may be able manfully to forget his own sins by repenting, then we say that he can the more easily forget the offenses of another, if he be a manly man in his own heart, because to forgive his fellow is to forget in a royal way, and to forget is the shortest way to forgive. . . . There are burdens which clog, if they do not clog our progress. . . . In the school of Christ our hardest tasks may sometimes tax the memory, but more often they bid us simply to forget.—The Evangelist.

EVIL SPEAKING.

Do you govern your tongue? Do you really make it a point of conscience to speak evil of no man? The Word of God commands this just as plainly as it says, "Thou shalt not steal." What would you think of a man's religion whom you caught stealing! To rob one of his good name is often a far greater injury than to steal his money. Be careful what you say about an absent person. Weigh your words before you put them in circulation.

James makes the proof of Christian perfection to consist in the government of the tongue. "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to govern the whole body." (James iii, 2.)

Observe carefully, and you will find this statement true. Sinful tempers may be smothered by a determined effort. But let them, through the medium of the tongue, come out into daylight, where they are fanned and fed, and they will rage with fury. "You may as well say it as think it," is one of the most pernicious maxims that the devil ever set afloat.

"Speak not evil one of another, brethren." (Jas. iv, 11.) "If thy brother trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault, between thee and him alone."—Earnest Christian.

LIGHT AND HEAT.

Some one has said, "We can paint fire and light, but not heat." A preacher can be brilliant without grace in his heart. He can talk eloquently about Christ, but unless his soul is filled and aflame with love he can not melt the hearts of sinners or warm the hearts of Christians.

A picture of a fire on the hearth will not keep a man from freezing. Nor will a fire that is on a mountain a mile away. He can see it, but he can not feel it. If we would save men, we must get our souls full of the fire which is kindled by the Holy Ghost, and then must get close to them.

A great deal of what is now called evangelistic work is bright, but, oh, how cold! It is meteoric. What the world needs is not intellectual illumination, but the rising of the Sun of Righteousness "with healing in his wings." "The True Light," as John calls Jesus, and he alone, can warm and vivify the heart.—Herald and Presbyter.

Many of us have toiled through the long day, and have no evidence that our work has been a blessing; but ah! if, when the harvest is reaped, when the grain is gathered, when the joy of the harvest home has come; if we find that one heart has been touched and helped by our lives, by our word, be sure God will not turn that life down without giving it something of commendation for that act, because done in his name and by his help. O that some of us may go out with the determination to bear the burdens of those who need, and so fulfill the law of Christ! —Selected.

The peace of God, which passes all understanding, which baffles analysis, which has an infinitude of depth about it. As you can not understand remote stars, nor the overhanging vault which you can not at all explore, but can only feel as you feel your life, so you can not touch this peace of God with your understanding. It lies round you like an atmosphere. It dwells in you like a fragrance. It goes from you like a subtle elixir vitæ. "My peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth give I unto you." - James Smetham.

Clergyman's Statement

Nervo Strength Gained by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BRIGHTON, IOWA.—Rev. Bernard M. Shullck of this place, owing to weakness of the nerves, was for a time unable to attend to his duties. He makes this statement: "I have suffered for a long time from weak nerves. After I had taken a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I became quite well again. The weakness of the nerves has now wholly disappeared and I am able to attend to my duties again. I am therefore grateful to Hood's Sarsaparilla and I recommend it to everyone who suffers from weak nerves."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

IN MEMORIAM.

Judge H. W. Foote, our much loved and honored superintendent, is no more. On Sunday morning, Jnn. 29, 1899, he was summoned to join the host of the redeemed, whose "robes have been washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." For fifty-six years he was the faithful superintendent of this school. His fidelity was unswerving; his interest and zeal increasing as he grow older. He never allowed anything, except sickness, or absence from home, to keep him from being prompt in attendance, thus being an example to both teachers and pupils, until the infirmities of age intervened. He then, in tender and loving words, offered his resignation to the Quarterly Conference, but the school protested, and the resignation was not accepted, for we wished him to enter heaven as our superintendent.

Among his last and best gifts to the Sunday-school were an organ and twelve chairs for the infant class-room, and a bequest which stands as a memorial to the ever-faithful and loving friend of the children.

Whereas, His place has become vacant, we would pay this loving tribute to his loyalty to his church, his fidelity to duty, and cherish his memory in our hearts; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Sunday-school has sustained an irreparable loss, the sorrowing family is bereft of a loving husband and father, and Macon of one of her best and most worthy citizens.

Resolved, That to his loved ones we tender our deepest sympathy, sharing their sorrows, but rejoicing in the hope of everlasting life which is promised to the faithful.

Resolved, That a page in our Minute Book be inscribed with this tribute, a copy sent to the family and to each of our town papers, also to the Nashville and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATES, with request that they publish the same. Respectfully submitted,

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wineglass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

IN THE HEREAFTER.

Whatever mystery there may be concerning the life which believers in Christ shall live in heaven, we may be sure, at least, that they will carry with them all that is true and divine of their earthly life. The character formed here they will retain through death. The capacity they have gained by the use of their powers they will have for the beginning of their activity in the new life.

So heaven will be a far more natural place than we imagine it will be. It will not be greatly unlike the ideal life of earth. We probably shall be surprised when we meet one another to find how little we have changed. The old tenderness will not be missing. We shall recognize our friends by some little gentle ways they used to have here, or by some familiar thoughtfulness which was never wanting in them. The friendships we began here and had not time to cultivate, we shall have opportunity there to renew and carry on through immortal years.

Even at the best, human friendships only begin in this life; in heaven they will reach their best and holiest possibilities. There are lives which only touch each other in this world, and then separate, going their different ways, like ships which pass in the night. There will be time enough in heaven for any such faintest beginnings of friendship to be wrought out in beauty.—Standard.

FLOWERS.

Flowers seem intended for the solace of ordinary humanity; children love them; quiet, tender, contented, ordinary people love them as they grow; luxurious and disorderly people rejoice in them gathered; they are the cottager's treasure; and in the crowded town, mark, as with a little broken fragment of rainbow, the windows of the workers in whose hearts rest the covenant of peace. Passionate or religious minds contemplate them with fond, feverish intensity; the affection is seen severely calm in the works of many old religious painters, and mixed with more open and true country sentiment in those of our own pre-Raphaelites. To the child and the girl, the peasant and the manufacturing operative, to the grisette and the nun, the lover and the monk, they are precious always. But to the men of supreme power and thoughtfulness, precious only at times; symbolically and pathetically often to the poets, but rarely for their own sake. —John Ruskin.

STANDING ALONE.

There are, within the range of every one's life, processes of life which must be solitary; passages of duty which threw one absolutely upon his individual moral forces, and admit of no aid whatever from another. Alone we must stand sometimes; and if our better nature is not to shrink into weakness, we must take with us the thought which was the strength of Christ, "Yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me." The sense of right can more readily indurate the tender than melt the rocky soul, and that is the most finished character which begins in beauty and ends in power; which leans on the love of kindred while it may, and when it may not, can stand erect in the love of God; which shelters itself amid the domesticities of life while duty wills, and when it forbids can go forth under the expanse of immortality, and face any storm that beats, and traverse any wilderness that lies beneath the canopy. —James Martineau.

A WORTHY AMBITION.

The final test of an ambition is not its immediate object, but its effect upon life or character. The eager desire which causes one to turn aside from a life-and-death errand to gather a handful of flowers is not a worthy desire, however beautiful the coveted flowers may be. So the desire or purpose to do a great work for mankind in the future is not a noble ambition if it leads one to neglect the humblest duty of the present moment. On the other hand, a life ambition that gives one a zest for the present duty is a worthy ambition, though it may be concerned about nothing nobler than a cup of cold water.—Sunday-school Times.

FROM THE WORK.

Mrs. Joe Bailey: "Cunchattn Epwerth League met at 4 o'clock, Feb. 19, 1899, and elected its officers, and appointed a correspondent for the League column in the ADVOCATE. Two new members added to our little band, making twenty-two in all. We also appointed Bro. Gale, our preacher, as agent for the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We are going to try to move up on religious lines this year."

Rev. R. S. Gale, P. C., Decatur, Miss., Feb. 14, 1899: "After having served as 'pastor and preacher,' for four years, the good people of Meadville circuit, I went up to Conference, knowing that a move was in store for us. How little we dreamed it would be to Decatur, Miss. Why? Oh, why? So far away? We recognized the hand of God. So to Decatur we determined to go, and on Jan. 12, after many hand-shakes, farewells, and 'God bless you,' we started in our buggy—distance, 160 miles. Wife, three children and self, with only 'Honest John' to pull. Having owned and worked John for nine years, we had confidence in him, and, when a friend would say, 'You can't make the trip at this season of the year through so much mud,' we would answer, 'We are going to Decatur.' We went, we came, we are here. On the road for ten days. Had a varied experience; found one 'mud hole' eighteen miles through, from six inches to three feet deep. Pearl river was very high; higher than for years. Ferry-boat out of repairs; no ferry-man. None of this stopped us. God was with us, provided all, and on we went till we came to Bro. Tucker's 'prairie.' Then, oh, then the prairie! Everyone we saw said, 'You can't possibly go through the "prairie."' 'Praise the Lord, we are going.' 'Stand still and see.' So on we went to the end. All well; buggy in as good fix as when we started; John playful, and ready for work. 'Bless the Lord.' We found a good home, kind people, and that we were to follow a white preacher (Rev. M. L. White). No one knew of our arrival; so no reception at the parsonage. People are manifesting their appreciation daily by their acts of kindness. Made one round: outlook, I think, good; at least material to work on, if not with. God helping, we entered to make this the 'best year of all.' I praise God to-night for full salvation. May he help me to lead the flock into 'green pastures.' The ADVOCATE shall not be forgotten this year. We need it. It has its place—a large one, too. With the exception of a few cuts at 'second blessing,' I enjoy its make-up. We hope to be heard from this year in more ways than one."

MINTER CITY, MISS.

As "Gilderoy" would say, "I am at the bottom at last." But I am in line with some of our very best preachers, for J. W. Malone, O. L. Savage, and even "Gilderoy" himself, have served this work. How long I will remain here I can not tell, for I heard years ago that it took good solid grain to stay here more than two years, and that the lighter the chaff out of which the preacher was made, the higher he will get on the hills when he removes from here.

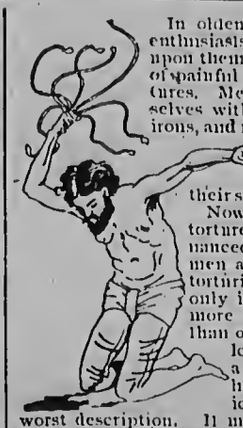
But to date I am well pleased and happy in my work. For three years we had been comfortably situated at Brooksville, where we have one of the best furnished parsonages in our Conference. But I am happy to say, since we came here our parsonage here has been repaired and refurnished from kitchen to parlor with the very best of everything necessary. While we have a small membership, numerically, they are a fine, intelligent, appreciative, generous people. We have had nine accessions to date. We have found many Methodists with their membership in their pockets, or back at their childhood homes. There are many here who do not belong to any church. Many of these we hope to see converted and brought into the church during this Conference year.

Yes, we have been pounded with everything imaginable, and in the greatest abundance, and still it comes. May the Lord make me a blessing to this people. I hear good reports from all the preachers in this great Delta. Bro. Murrah will soon have his new church at Clarksdale in elegant shape. Sanders, at Indianola, has made a good start. Browning will do well at Ittabena. J. H. Mitchell is progressing nicely with his new brick church-building at Greenwood. Mitchell is a success anywhere. L. M. Lipscomb has started well at Belzona. The people are delighted with him as a preacher. I believe, with many others, that Lipscomb is the grandest preacher of his age in our Conference.

Doctor, come to see us.

J. A. LEECH.

Feb. 18, 1899.



In olden times mistaken enthusiasts used to inflict upon themselves all manner of painful and horrible tortures. Men scourged themselves with whips, and hot irons, and rubbed vinegar into the wounds and wore hair-cloth next to their skin day and night.

Nowadays such cruel torture is discountenanced. Nevertheless, men and women go on torturing themselves, only in a different and more serious manner than of old. They neglect their health, and neglected health means physical torture of the worst description. It means slow starvation. Because a man forces food into a weak and impaired stomach, it does not follow that he feeds his body. The life-giving elements of the food taken into an impaired stomach are not assimilated into the blood. Instead, the impurities of the sluggish liver and bowels are taken up and carried to all parts of the body. The consequence is that the body is not only starved but poisoned. The immediate result is physical suffering from which the old time zealot would have drawn back in horror. The final result is disease and death. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a scientific remedy that acts according to natural laws. It is not a violent spur to nature or a mere artificial appetiser. It gently, but surely and permanently, promotes the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It creates appetite, makes the assimilation of the food perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It builds up firm, muscular flesh. It cures nervous exhaustion, debility, sleeplessness and all the evils that follow in their train. Found at all medicine stores. Accept no substitute that may be represented as "just as good."

"I can heartily recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' to anyone troubled with indigestion and torpid liver," writes M. G. Crisler, Esq., of Leonard, Harlan Co., Ky. "My disease was chronic. Our family physician could do nothing for me. I could not walk nor help myself. I could not eat anything but it caused a horrible distress and gnawing in my stomach. I have taken four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of your 'Pellets' and can work all day."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book,

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to February, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to March, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

Little self-denials, little honesties, little passing words of sympathy, little nameless acts of kindness, little silent victories over favorite temptations—these are the silent threads of gold which, when woven together, gleam out so brightly in the pattern of life that God approves.—F. W. Farrar.

What is time?—the shadow on the dial, the striking of the clock, the running of the sand, day and night, Summer and Winter, months, years, centuries—these are but arbitrary and outward signs; the measure of time, not time itself. Time is the life of the soul. If not this, then tell me what time is.—Longfellow.

Many a man has succeeded in his business or profession, but failed as a man; many a man has become eminent as a lawyer or merchant, but has been a tyrant in his home, and faithless in his friendships; many a man has reached the top round in his occupation, but is still on the bottom round in his character.—Selected.

Everyone must know that his best life is his silent life; his truest growth, his silent growth. What I am, what is my life, myself, is inside; and inside is all the work done that fashions me. The soul is not made as the statue is, with click of hammer and chip of chisel from without; but the soul is made of its own ingrowth, as a peach is.—J. F. W. Ware.

SPIRITUAL EXPANSION.

There is a great deal of talk these days about territorial expansion, commercial expansion, educational enlargement, and broad plans are being laid for development in various lines, all of which are favorable omens, betokening vigorous national life, and a commendable striving for greater things. A self-satisfied conservatism is a foe to progress and to all true reform.

The natural evolution of commerce, of society and of government brings about the discarding of old plans and outgrown ideals, and necessitates expansion of aim and effort. But while merchants are expanding their business, manufacturers their plants, farmers their fields, colleges their equipments, and statesmen their governmental plans, there is far too little concern among Christians about expansion of character and the enlargement of the kingdom of Christ. With Christians enlargement of spiritual life should be a paramount consideration; yet it is a lamentable fact that almost every other kind of expansion receives more attention. In the pursuit of wealth, honor, and other ends that lie within the realm of the material, men display a tenacity of purpose, a fertility of resources, and a concentration of energy, that are positively sublime, while, alas! that which is far more important than all things else is, to a large extent, lost sight of. The present age needs that mighty emphasis be put upon the truth that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth."

The Christian who fails to make religion his chief concern, and to strive to grow better as the days go by, is not only living far below his high privileges, but he is in imminent spiritual peril. That believer is to be pitied who feels but little yearning for a holier life, "a closer walk with God," and for greater usefulness. Unless there is earnest prayer and striving for spiritual enlargement, weakness and backsliding are inevitable. Well does Drummond say: "No man can become a saint in his sleep; and to fulfill the conditions required demands a certain amount of prayer and meditation and time, just as improvement in any direction, bodily or mental, requires preparation and care."

The churches of our land are cursed with indolent, easy-going, self-satisfied Christians, who, having subscribed to a creed, and had their names enrolled upon a church register, thereafter make no effort to advance in love and grace, and by their apathy and inconsistency hinder others from coming to Christ. They are no more prayerful, consistent, or liberal, than when they took their first step heavenward, even though many long years may have intervened. Like some in Paul's day, when they "ought to be teachers," they need to be taught "the first principles of the oracles of God." In almost any community it is easy to find professing disciples who, though they have been members of the church many years, are still "babes in Christ"—puny dwarfs, lacking in wisdom, strength, and symmetry of character. There is urgent need that we heed the admonition to "forget the things that are behind, and reach forth to those that are before." Yea, it needs to be proclaimed in trumpet tones throughout the world that when a man ceases striving to be like Christ, he ceases to be a Christian.

Spiritual growth, unlike other forms of growth, need never cease. As some one has beautifully said: "The Christ ideal, like the horizon, retreats as we advance. We never overtake to exhaust it."

Who of us does not feel the need, as well as the blessedness, of spiritual enlargement? The blessings and victories of the past will not suffice. It is not God's design that we should forever remain spiritual weaklings, stumbling at almost every hindrance, often overcome by temptation, deficient in faith and in love. On the contrary, he wants us to enjoy abundant life, to be rich in every grace and virtue, and to be "strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man."

Dr. Cuyler forcefully says: "Webster's famous remark to a young lawyer, who complained that the legal profession was overcrowded, 'There is plenty of room at the top,' well applies to the Christian church. If you say, 'I have not enjoyed my religion much lately,' then I suggest that you had not much to enjoy. Turn a new leaf, make a new start, with the honest question, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? and then do it. Put more conscience into your religion. Weakness means wickedness. Quit your Sunday afternoon lounge for some real, thorough mission work. Active exercise does for the soul just what it does for the body."

AN AWAKENING.

There are many evidences of an awakening among our preachers on the subject of church literature. We are constantly in receipt of letters from brethren who feel that religious literature in the homes of our people is one of our greatest needs. An esteemed brother, whose letter happened to arrive just as we began this writing, says: "No church can have permanent prosperity with no church papers in the homes of its members. I consider the church organ an indispensable adjunct to a successful ministry, especially on a circuit where the preacher reaches his people only once a month."

Another says: "I hope to send you a long list of new subscribers very soon. I can't begin to succeed in my work without your paper in the homes of my people."

Another says: "The NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE is the best home paper I have ever read. It should by all means be in every Methodist home in Mississippi and Louisiana."

These are merely samples of the utterances of many of our best men. This awakening on the part of the ministerial brethren is a hopeful indication. It is the indispensable condition of improvement at this point. We are ready to co-operate in any way in our power. Let us have a "long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether."

AN ARMENIAN IN NEW ORLEANS.

By invitation of the pastor, Rev. J. F. Foster, the pulpit of Felicity Street Church was filled last Sabbath by Rev. G. S. Barsoon, a native Armenian, who spoke upon the cruel persecutions of the Armenians by the Turks. His discourse made a fine impression and awakened increased interest in the cause of the oppressed Armenians. He also addressed the Preacher's Meeting on Monday morning. Mr. Barsoon is an interesting speaker, and a man of culture, being a graduate of Roberts College, Constantinople, and also an A. M. alumnus of Johns Hopkins University. The atrocities of the Turks have reached his own home, some of his immediate relatives having been ruthlessly massacred. He states that the official reports of the number slain are far below the truth. He puts the number at 400,000. On hearing his presentation of the Armenian cause, one can not but wonder how long the great Christian nations of the earth will tolerate that withering blight upon nineteenth century civilization, the Ottoman Empire.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

On Thursday, Feb. 16, a meeting of the trustees of Southern University was held in Greensboro. Rev. S. M. Hosmer, D. D., presiding elder of the Talladega district, North Alabama Conference, M. E. Church, South, was elected president, to succeed Rev. J. O. Keener, D. D. Dr. Hosmer was not in Greensboro; did not seek the place; did not know that his name would be considered in connection with the place; was not nominated for the place; was not eulogized; but he was voted for by ballot, and was elected because the trustees thought him clean, capable, competent. He has accepted the position that came to him thus.—Alabama Advocate.

Knowing Dr. Hosmer, we predict for him a successful career in the important and difficult position to which he has been called by the voice of the church.

CENTENARY OF METHODISM.

The year 1899 is the centenary year of Mississippi Methodism, as it was in 1799 that Tobias Gibson landed in Natchez and began his work as a missionary. A Centennial Service will be held during the year at Natchez. As this was the beginning of Methodism, not only in Mississippi, but in the entire Southwest, a similar observance would be eminently appropriate anywhere in this section.

Successful preaching sends the people out into the world to work the message into lives.—Baptist Standard.

A NEW BOOK.

THINGS OF NORTHFIELD, AND OTHER THINGS THAT SHOULD BE IN EVERY CHURCH. By Rev. David Gregg, D. D., pastor of Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.; author of "Facts That Call for Faith," etc. 143 pages. Cloth. 60 cents. 1899. E. B. Treat & Co., New York.

The fine discourses which compose this volume were preached in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn just after a visit by the author to Mr. Moody's annual Summer convention at Northfield, and are in large measure an expression of the impressions, thoughts and convictions suggested by participation in the work of that now famous, influential, and deeply spiritual Summer gathering. In the opening chapter the author points out what are the chief things that make the Northfield meetings so remarkable in spiritual influence and results, and expresses it as his earnest conviction that these characteristics ought to mark every Christian church throughout the land. Mentioned in brief, these characteristics are: "First, a holy, hearty fellowship. Secondly, a living faith in a present God, and in Jesus Christ as an all-sufficient Savior, and in immediate fruits from the faithful offer of salvation. Thirdly, the enthronement of the Bible as the Book of God, and as the sole authority of faith and manners. Fourthly, the manifest power of the Holy Ghost working in and through consecrated men."

His elucidation of these points is stirring and instructive, and will help many a pastor who is seeking to make himself and his church more useful. In the four succeeding chapters the author discusses the following timely topics, namely: "Why Are There Not More Conversions?" "Our Task as Christians, and What We Need for Effectiveness;" "Am I Worldly?" and, "Our Duty to Our Young Men."

Dr. Gregg is a gifted and thoroughly consecrated preacher, and his clear utterances upon the matters here treated of are well worthy of consideration by religious workers of all classes, and will, no doubt, prove vastly beneficial.

REVIEWS AND NOTES.

In the Century Magazine, for March, Lieut. Hobson tells of his experiences in prison in Santiago, and Lieut. J. B. Bernadou tells of the fight at Cardenas. The Cable Cutting Expedition at Cienfuegos, by Lieut. Cameron Winslow, and Scenes in the Spanish Capital, by Mr. Arthur Hughton, are two very interesting articles. Among many other notable articles is one entitled, British Experience in the Government of Colonies, by Hon. James Bryce, M. P.

The March Pall Mall Magazine has an uncommonly attractive table of contents. The number opens with a poem by Prof. C. G. D. Roberts, entitled Kinsmen Strong. The frontispiece is by C. Dana Gibson, who also contributes to the magazine the first of three articles, illustrated by himself, picturing his recent travels in Egypt. The Shipwreck, a powerful short story of American life, by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, is very interesting. In addition to these interesting features, there is some excellent fiction, several fine poems, and the whole number is, as usual, superbly illustrated.

The March number of Scribner's Magazine shows Governor Roosevelt in the sort of description he likes best—a narrative of a fight. He describes the fight at Los Guasimas. Senator Hoar contributes an article setting forth his Political Reminiscences. In this number there is an illustrated poem by Oliver Herford and a Rhyme of the Rough Riders, by Clinton Scollard. Numerous other features of this number make this ever-popular magazine especially attractive.

We are in receipt of a very attractive booklet, entitled, Laurel Winners, which has been issued by The John Church Co., New York. This little booklet contains portraits and silhouettes of American composers.

Modesty, Courtship, and Woman's Rights is the title of a little pamphlet which we have received from The International Book Co, Chicago. The author, R. P. Biorup, presents a very correct view of the causes and influences which make social life what it is, and points out necessary changes to attain a more perfect social condition.

The March Ladies' Home Journal has a noteworthy feature in the page showing Pope Leo XIII. as He Lives in the Vatican. An article that will be widely read figures out The American Girl's Chances of Marriage, and another, Social Life in America's French City, gives a really charming glimpse into the exclusive Creole circles of New Orleans. The Most Wonderful Musical Festival in America recalls the great Peace Jubilee held at Boston in 1872, with its seventeen hundred instrumentalists and chorus of seventeen thousand. Churches Decorated for Weddings, The Prettiest Country Homes in America, Flowers and Flower Beds, and Fifteen Good Mantels and Fireplaces are shown from the photographs submitted in the contest for Journal prizes.

GONE HOME.

We buried from the church to-day Bro. Morgan Capers Shell (father-in-law of Rev. Jno. C. Park, of North Mississippi), one of the best men in all the land, a Confederate veteran who lost a leg in the battle at Franklin, Tenn., a merchant here for a third of a century, and a life-long Methodist—a great loss to our church. He died of pneumonia yesterday. Just as we were leaving the residence with his corpse, the widow of his brother, John J. Shell, many years resident of Aberdeen, Miss., died in the same home.

JNO. W. BELL, P. C.

Houston, Miss., Feb. 23, 1899.

A most excellent man has gone to his reward on high. Bro. Shell was universally esteemed wherever he was known. We sympathize deeply with his bereaved family.—EDITOR.

There are many women upon the editorial staffs of religious newspapers, but we believe the Evangelist, the well-known Presbyterian weekly of New York, will be the first important journal to have a woman as editor-in-chief. Dr. Henry M. Field, the aged preacher, editor, traveler and writer, has retired from the Evangelist, and has been succeeded by Mrs. Louise Seymour Houghton, who has been connected with the paper for a number of years. The Evangelist has an honorable history, and deserves a successful future.—Standard.

The election of the Hon. W. L. Wilson, at present the president of the Washington and Lee University, to the presidency of Yale University is certainly a very remarkable circumstance and a hopeful sign of the times. Mr. Wilson is a Southerner—a Democrat—a Baptist, withal a representative man of the South. Surely time changes and we with it. Mr. Wilson is a fine man for the place. He is a West Virginian and 55 years old.—Southern Advocate.

The M. E. Church proposed to raise a fund of $20,000,000; the Methodists of England, five million pounds sterling; we of the South, $1,500,000. The amount proposed by the Southern Church is per capita much less than that proposed by either our mother of England or our sister of the North. We must not fail where they succeed.—Southern Advocate.

NOTES.

Rev. T. B. Clifford has removed from Mansfield to Jackson, La. Let correspondents take notice.

We regret to have missed a call recently from Rev. J. H. Montgomery, of the Louisiana Conference.

Wesleyan Female College reopened on the twenty-second after a brief suspension on account of scarlet fever.

Rev. P. M. Brown writes that he is moving along smoothly at Coushatta, La., and that he anticipates a prosperous year.

Rev. J. M. Bradley has been most cordially received by the good people of Booneville, Miss. He regards the outlook for the year as quite hopeful.

Rev. Courtland P. Smith, Minden, La., writes: "We will have all Conference collections secured in good subscriptions by the first Quarterly Conference."

Rev. Tatum M. Wafer, of the Louisiana Conference, writes: "We have been cordially received by our people at Calhoun, and we have the prospect of a good year's work."

Rev. W. F. Henderson, writing of his new charge at Homer, La., says: "We have been kindly received here. Congregations are large and attentive. We are moving along as nicely as the weather will permit."

Our Publishing House has established a branch at Dallas, Texas, under the superintendency of W. O. Everett, who is known to the preachers in this section through his visit to the Annual Conference last Fall.

Rev. H. G. Hawkins, Madison Station, Miss., Mississippi Conference Secretary of Education, will have the monthly New Century Education sent without charge to all the officers and chief workers of each pastoral charge in the Mississippi Conference whose addresses are furnished him.

We invite special attention to the communication of Rev. J. H. Rogers on the fifth page. Such a visitation we are sure will call forth sympathy of a practical sort. This is a case in which the Golden Rule applies. Let each give according to ability. If you can not spare a large sum, send a small one.

Rev. H. W. May, Amite City, La, writes: "I have had an increase of nineteen in my membership, with some applicants to be received as soon as they can be instructed in doctrine, church vows, etc. We have had some improvements made on the parsonage, and added some much-needed furniture."

We are indebted to our friend, Rev. J. S. Oakley, for a copy of the session of the North Mississippi Conference, held in Aberdeen, Nov. 30 to Dec. 5, '98—a neatly-gotten-up pamphlet of fifty-two pages from the press of the Holly Springs South. Commendation of the secretarial work would be superfluous, Oakley's name being a sufficient guarantee.

The Varley meeting is still in progress at the First Baptist Church, and is largely attended. Mr. Varley is a very unique, striking, and forceful preacher. His sermons are usually of the expository type. Few men can use this method with greater skill. He brings out the meaning of the Word in such a way as to interest and deeply impress his hearers.

From a private letter from Rev. A. J. Notestine, Ruston, La., we quote as follows: "My year has begun hopefully. The ladies have put some good furniture in the parsonage. Several have been received into the church. We have organized an Epworth League, which is doing well. We expect to have our assessment for missions in hand before the end of the week."

We are indebted to some unknown friend for a copy of the Minutes of the eighty-fifth session of the Mississippi Annual Conference, held at Hattiesburg, Dec. 29, '98, to Jan. 2, '99—a neat pamphlet of fifty pages bearing the imprint of Murphy & Farmer, Meridian. The distinguished secretary, Dr. C. G. Andrews, has here done his work with his usual painstaking care and accuracy. This is high praise.

***

The programme of the Aberdeen District Preachers' Meeting, to be held at Okolona, March 26-31, published in last week's issue, should have had the signature of the presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Wyatt. Let all concerned take notice that it is authoritative. The name of Rev. F. L. Jenkins has been added to those of Revs. K. M. Harrison and Rev. R. A. Tucker to discuss the question: "The Preacher Is the Leader; How Shall He Be Prepared?"

***

Rev. I. W. Cooper, D. D., spent last Sabbath in the city, preaching at Carondelet in the morning and at night at Algiers, delighting his congregations at both places. He presented the claims of Centenary in an interesting and forceful way. He also addressed the Preachers' Meeting on Monday in a jubilant speech. He reports the attendance larger than at any time since the Spring of '61. Much enthusiasm has been awakened in behalf of the college in various parts of the State. The Doctor is sanguine that he will open next Fall with an enrollment of at least 200. Before his return he will visit New Iberia, Franklin, Morgan City and other towns on the Southern Pacific railroad, delivering an address at each.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Jackson, La., EDITOR.

Jackson, La., is the permanent address of this editor.

Rev. R. A. Meek has not been appointed or elected president of the Mississippi State League Conference. His name is added to the Executive Committee, and he will assist in the work.

J. H Ledyard, of Meridian, first vice-president, will act as president in place of Rev. J. A. Randolph, who has gone to Cuba with the United States volunteers as chaplain.

We recently enjoyed a most delightful visit to Crowley, La., the seat of the coming Conference, and can assure the Leaguers in advance of a royal time for those who attend.

The young people have hitherto been united in a Christian Endeavor, which was largely attended and enthusiastically supported. Bro. Knickerbocker has been prudent and judicious in his management of affairs, and now that the time is propitious, his plans are laid for a League.

Our presence in Crowley at this time was occasioned by a desire upon the part of the pastor for an address from this scribe on the aim and work of the Epworth League.

What a throng of young people turned out to greet us Sunday night, Feb. 19, at 7 o'clock! The church was crowded; many had to stand. The singing was inspiring, and the attention and behavior of the large congregation was well-nigh perfect.

We had not seen so large a congregation at any ordinary service since our last visit to Wood Street, Water Valley. At old Wood Street they always turn out en masse.

What an opportunity for the League at Crowley! What crowds of young people! Many of them Methodists. Town growing; houses in demand; people from all sections continually moving in. The pastor will need the help of these young people in his work.

Rev. P. R. Knickerbocker, the pastor, is a young man, full of promise, and in great favor with his flock and all the folk besides.

His mother and sister assist greatly in the work. They are live Leaguers. Did any young man ever have better help? Words in the superlative degree must be used to describe their treatment of this scribe while in their parsonage home.

We told the Crowley people that everywhere we went in Louisiana we would take the liberty of inviting the Leaguers and their friends to visit Crowley during the coming Conference. Reader, you are invited. We hope to see you there.

Dr. DuBose is still meeting with much success both as editor and secretary. The Era grows apace, and the secretary is charming the audiences that greet him on every hand. Let us do our part as individual Leaguers, and, like soldiers under orders for the front, may we march forward to the music of celestial song to take this world for Christ!

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

I have appointed the Rev. Perry O. Lowrey to make all necessary arrangements for a District Epworth League Conference, to be held in the near future at Shreveport, La. The presidents of the Leagues in the Shreveport district are requested to meet Bro. Lowrey at Texas Avenue Church, at 3 P. M., of Thursday, March 9, 1899, for the purpose of preparing a suitable program.

CHURCH DESTROYED.

MR EDITOR: On the evening of the third of this month a terrible cyclone passed over this country. There is an awful destruction of property, but no lives lost as we have heard of. Many dwellings completely destroyed. Our church is a total wreck. It crossed just south of the parsonage. The cyclone, and the severe weather just following, has made it very hard on my people. They are working now to rebuild the dwellings. The most of them will be completed this week. We never have seen such heroic efforts put forth. My people will not be able to rebuild the church without help. Will the brethren and sisters of the North Mississippi Conference help us rebuild our church? We make this earnest plea because we need help. Send all contributions to me, or Bro. J. H. Greenslade. Pray for us.

J. H. ROGERS.

Ellzy, Miss., Feb. 23, 1899.

NOTICE.

To the Leagues of the Shreveport District:

In the absence of a district organization, the presiding elder has asked me to call a meeting of the presidents (or other representatives) of the several Leagues to meet in Shreveport on Thursday, March 9, to make out a program for a League rally, to be held in the near future, to the end that old Leagues might be quickened and strengthened, and that new ones might be organized. Please lend a helping hand, that the greatest possible good might result from the effort. If you have no League, let the pastor suggest to the committee at least one suitable person to take part on the program. Also suggest topics to be discussed, and general plans for making the rally a success.

Kind reader and fellow-worker, won't you let this brief notice prompt you to immediate action, and the lack of a regular working district organization cause you to put forth stronger personal effort?

Fraternally,

P. O. LOWREY.

HEALTHFUL CEREAL PREPARATIONS.

The heart of barley, entirely free from bran or hulls, makes a palatable cereal food, which not only nourishes those who enjoy health, but is an efficient diuretic, emollient, nutritive and tonic agent in cases of digestive disorders or intestinal irritation. This new and valuable food is prepared by Farwell & Rhines, Watertown, N. Y. It is recommended by physicians as invaluable in Bright's disease and other diseases of the kidneys and liver, and it is a palatable, attractive breakfast dish for those in good health. Analysis of Barley Crystals shows that it contains 99.1 per cent. of the purest flesh, blood, brain, nerve, bone and muscle-building food. Farwell & Rhines are also makers of the noted "Gluten Flour," "Special Diabetic Flour," and "K. C. Whole Wheat Flour." Their goods have come to be known as the "Criss Cross Cereals," the criss cross lines on the face of each package being a part of their trade mark.

Do not fail to read our offer of "The Book Opened." It is a book that ought to be in every home.

NOTICE.

MR. EDITOR: Our church at Nettleton has fifteen more members on the Sunday-school roll than church members. Every church in our connection should aim at and work to have at least as many Sunday-school members as church members. If our leaders—parents particularly—would learn of Christ concerning his great department of the gospel "field," this would soon come to pass. Who will help? Can anyone afford to neglect his or her duty here in the sight of God and before the people.

Bro. M. C. Shell, of Houston, is seriously ill with pneumonia. Pray that his life may be spared.

Yours fraternally,

J. M. WYATT.

THE ARMY CANTEEN.

Since your paper must be read by a large number of earnest temperance people, allow me through its valued columns to request that the friends of temperance legislation will give special attention to the following:

First, the House of Representatives has passed an amendment to the Army bill, abolishing the Army canteen, but in the Senate a substitute has been offered, which, if passed, will defeat all the hard work and persistent efforts made during and since the late war in opposition to the regimental beer saloon. This substitute provides for the sale of beer in all military organizations, and would only authorize what is already established in our army and navy. There has been abundant and uncontroverted testimony from high authority and from many sources, from the soldiers themselves, from officers, surgeons and chaplains, as to the evils resulting from beer drinking in the camps of our army last Summer. We beg that voters may not delay writing to their senators, asking them to pass the Johnson amendment. These letters from constituents have great influence with our legislators. Congressmen themselves admit this. There is no time to lose.

Second, we should continue to work for the Ellis bill to prohibit liquor selling in the army and in all government buildings. Some people are under the impression that this bill has passed. Not so. It has been favorably reported, but not voted upon. Much can be done within the next few days. MAY RUSSELL,

Miss W. C. T. U.

"It takes its place with the Dictionary always to be within reach as we sit at our desk. It leaves nothing to be desired."—The Christian Leader, Boston, Mass.

"Eyre & Spottswood's Bible is good—Bagster's has some points in its favor—the new and improved Oxford is excellent—but each of the above, and all others, fall far short of the 'Combination' Bible. The type is large and clear."—Southern Christian Advocate, Greenville, S. C.

"I have carefully examined it from end to end and find it complete in all things. I give it my unqualified and emphatic endorsement."—Bishop Mallalieu, Buffalo, N. Y.

"There are great advantages in it for students, and especially for teachers. I give the plan of combining the two versions my most cordial approval."—Bishop Merrill, Chicago, Ill.

"The Combination and self-pronouncing features make it the most practically useful Bible that has ever been published."—Bishop Spalding, Denver, Colo.

"I consider it as a great gift to every Bible student, and I hope that it will find a place in the hands of every Sunday-school teacher in our country."—Bishop Dudley, Lonisville, Ky.

"The handsomest and most serviceable edition of the Holy Scriptures that has come under my notice. The Bible Helps contain all that is essential."—Bishop Ninde, Detroit, Mich.

"The best, for use of teachers and students, ever published."—Bishop Wilson, Baltimore, Md.

"It deserves a place in every home."—Bishop Vincent, Topeka, Kan.

"This is by far the best Bible ever offered to the public, better than the Bagster's or the Oxford edition. Its Helps are admirable and copious."—The Truth, Chicago, Ill.

"This is a Bible no pastor, teacher or student of the Holy Scriptures can afford to do without. It is a valuable and convenient time-saver."—Christian Herald, Detroit, Mich.

"Unique in plan, extraordinary in scope and exceptional in value. The arrangement of the two editions is most helpful."—Bishop Huntington, Syracuse, New York.

"The Self-Pronouncing Combination Bible is the best."—Christian Neighbor, Columbia, S. C.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1 50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

We invite special attention to our sewing machine offer. Take notice that the machine is sold under a guarantee. If, after a ten days' test, the machine is not found satisfactory, the money will be refunded.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

In response to inquiries we give the following information concerning our Combination Bible: It is about the size of our Bourgeois Holman Bible, and is bound in the same style. It is printed from Bourgeois type. Besides having the helps given in all modern Teachers' Bibles, and the Self-pronouncing feature of the Holman Bible, it has all the changes of the Revised Version given in marginal notes. We unhesitatingly pronounce it the best Bible in existence. It ought to be in the hands of every preacher and every Bible student. The price at which we offer it to our subscribers places it within the reach of all. See offer on another page.

SOCRATES died from a cup of poison administered by the hand of a friend. How many in this land have died by poisonous remedies given by friendly hands to combat diseases? It is quite a comfort to know that when giving DICKS' CHILLIFUGE there is not a drop of poison in a bottle full of this beneficent remedy.

To Subscribers.

Allow me to call attention to the fact that many of you are in arrears with the ADVOCATE. As I pay cash for labor, material and everything needful for carrying on the paper, may I not expect that all of you who are in arrears will remit promptly the amount of your indebtedness?

In remitting do not send a check on your local bank. We shall hereafter deduct the cost of collecting from the amount of the check and give credit for the remainder. W. C. BLACK,
Publisher.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

Are Your Kidneys Weak?

Have You Bladder or Uric Acid Trouble?

You May Be Afflicted and Not Know It.

By Special Arrangement, Every "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" Reader, to Prove for Themselves the Wonderful Merits of SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney Remedy, May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely FREE by Mail.

People are apt to believe that kidney disease is rather a rare disease, but recent discoveries have proved that it is a most common trouble indeed.

And the proof of this is, that most diseases, perhaps 85 per cent., are caused in the beginning by disorders of the kidneys.

You can't be sick if your blood is pure, free from kidney-poison and disease-breeding germs. Your kidneys should keep it so. That's what they are there for. And as long as they are well they perform their duties with thoroughness and dispatch.

You are well when your kidneys are.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, will make your kidneys well when they are sick.

Kidney trouble often comes from over-work or over-exertion. From exposure to cold and other weakening influences, from lifting or a strain, from over-heating or drinking. All these things weaken your kidneys and poisonous germs begin to creep into your blood.

It is at just such times that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is needed.

When your kidneys are not doing their work, you have backache, headache, sediment in the urine, scalding irritation in passing it, obliged to go often during the day and to get up many times at night, dizziness, or irregular heart, bladder or uric acid troubles, rheumatism, neuralgia, sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, sallow complexion, bloating, dropsy, tired feeling, loss of energy and ambition.

Swamp-Root is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring effort and research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful restorative and healing action on the kidneys and bladder.

The best proof of this is a trial, and nothing could be fairer than the offer to send a sample bottle of this great discovery absolutely free by mail.

IF I SHOULD DIE TO-DAY.

BY DR. T. P. C. MILLER.

If I should die to-day,
Lay me beneath the clay,
And let no teardrops fall upon the sod;
But lowly pansies bring,
As friendship's offering,
And leave me with these blossoms and my God.

I pray you, do not weep
When I am laid to sleep,
My tired soul will find a peaceful rest;
Tho' you may miss me here,
This thought should give you cheer,
The one you mourn is happy with the blest.

The cross that I have borne,
My life with care has worn,
And I am pleased to feel the healing balm;
'Tis not a cruel hand
That severs life's torn strand,
But one that brings my chafing spirits calm.

When pain and grief drew nigh,
How oft my soul would cry:
"The cross is heavier than I can bear!"
And when He bids me come
To rest with him at home,
I know that He will lighten all my care.

All hail, the dawn of light;
That brings the sunshine bright,
To fall in beauty o'er my onward way!
Why should my soul replae,
When heaven will soon be mine,
To leave the cross, and win the crown for aye?

If I should die to-day,
May those who love me say:
"We will not weep for one at rest above!"
But let the pansies bloom
O'er my lone, silent tomb,
The offering of friendship and of love.

—The Voice.

SELF-RELIANCE.

There grows upon the youth in college a habit of respecting the opinions of others, especially of those in positions above him. He has been accustomed to look up to a professor with a questioning and yielding mind, and this spirit of self-abnegation will go over into his business and professional life. It may prove a draw-back to him. It is well enough for a young man to yield to the opinions of others, older and wiser than himself, but he should also be prepared to act for himself when the time comes, and should even place himself in positions where he will have to rely on his own judgment alone. Confidence and power are born of an absolute certainty in regard to what one knows. The strongest man is the man who is entirely positive that he is right in what he states, and is prepared to stand by it. The strongest professor I ever saw, the one of all others whose opinions were respected, was he who knew absolutely what he stated to his class. The most trusted expert accountant in a certain city is the man who is prepared to go on the witness-stand and take oath to the correctness of the total when once he has added a column of figures. This man always has more than he can do. If a young man has to work out his own success, he must, early in his career, learn to depend on himself. The danger, often, is to give way to others, from fear that you will not give satisfaction, or will not be equal to the required task. This should never be. An arm grows by the very work it has to do, and fingers become nimble and skillful by constant use. Though a young man fail once, he has new strength and new experience for the next time. —Success.

DON'T REPROVE AT BEDTIME.

To send the children happy to bed should be one of the mother's most ordinary tasks. No little one should dread the bedtime hour, nor fear the dark, nor be allowed to go to rest under a sense of disgrace or alienation from household love. Whatever the child's day-time naughtiness may have been, at nightfall he should be forgiven, and go to rest with the mother's kiss on his lips and her tender voice in his ears.

Hardly anything can be worse for a young child than to be scolded or receive punishment at bedtime. The mother does well to be a little blind at some things, remembering that a good deal of childish culpability is superficial only, and washes off almost as easily as does the dirt which the evening bath removes from the skin.

The main thing with children is to have them well started with good principles, which they will carry through life. Obedience, truth, unselfishness, purity are essentials, and these can all be lovingly cultivated, and will flourish in the right home atmosphere.

When the nursery brood is undressed and in bed, the lights turned low, the room quiet for the night, the mother, or nurse, or elder sister, or the kind auntie, who is still found in some fortunate houses, should have a little fund of stories on which to draw for the small listeners' pleasure before they embark on the train for dreamland.

Imagination is very active in little children, and occasionally one meets a mother who does not understand the child's world, having forgotten her own early days and their illusions, or who is afraid that fancy and its imageries will lead her child into deceit. While the most exact and rigid truthfulness should be practiced in our dealings with children, and they themselves should be taught to shun equivocation and every form of lying, still we need not fear to let imagination give them pleasure.

They early learn to discriminate between the false and the true—or, perhaps, it would be better to say that they learn to find the truth wrapped in the husk of the story. The same stories, with variations, have in all ages and climes been taught to children, and they have their origin in the needs and the heart of the race. Children thrive on stories, and are the better able to grasp other literature if early fed on these.—Philadelphia Times.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

GRACEFULNESS AT HOME.

There is a nice art in being able to pay a compliment gracefully, and it is one that ought to be cultivated in the home as well as the outer circles of society. There is no reason why the home circle should not be as polished and attractive in its behavior as the public assembly. It is a great error for fathers and mothers to permit such a relaxation of politeness among their children as we often find under the family roof tree.

Company behavior and company manners may necessarily be more formal and precise than those of the fireside and sitting-room, but it is fatal to good breeding to deliberately lay polish and compliment aside when our dear ones compose the company exclusively. Teach the children to say graceful things—yet truthful things, of course—to brothers and sisters, as well as to strangers; to be as careful of wounding their feelings and their self-respect as they would be of the feelings of a guest, and at the breakfast or dinner table to take just as much pains to entertain and enlighten each other as though the entertainment of a party of invited friends depended upon the effort.—Forward.

SURE SIGNS.

Some folks don't believe in signs, but the wisest man in the world believed in them. Solomon said: "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right."

When I see a little boy go slow to school, and glad of every excuse to neglect his books, I think it is a sign that he will be a dunce.

When I see a boy or girl looking out for "No. 1," and disliking to share good things with others, I think it is a sign that the child will grow up a selfish person.

ASTHMA and CATARRH quickly CURED WITHOUT MEDICINE, Apparatus, or loss of time. Method worth $100 to any family mailed for $1. Money Back after 30 days trial if not satisfactory. SANITARY STILL CO., 44 H. St., Atlanta, Ga.

When I see a boy obedient to his parents, I think it is a sign of great future blessing from Almighty God.

When I see a boy fond of the Bible, and knowing it well, I think it is a sign that he will be a good and happy man.—Anon.

HOW TO LIVE.

The great problem is, after all, how shall one grow in sympathy and tenderness and generosity and consideration? How shall he feed on high thoughts and noble aims? How shall he be swift to discern and avail himself of those opportunities for usefulness to others which are the best channels of his own growth? How shall he hold clear and close relation with the divine energy?

"Be one of the conquerors!" said Balzac. "The universe belongs to him who wills and loves and prays; but he must will, he must love, he must pray!" In a word, he must possess wisdom, force and faith!—Lillian Whiting.

Hygiene.

HOW TYPHOID FEVER IS SPREAD.

Typhoid fever is generally regarded at the present day, along with cholera and some other diseases, as belonging to the class of "water-borne" affections. In other words, it is believed that the germs of such diseases are carried, and perhaps propagated, in water. There is little doubt that this theory of typhoid fever is correct, and that in tracing any extended epidemic of the disease to its source we must first of all examine into the condition of the water supply.

Drinking-water has been proved to be the cause of the spread of typhoid fever in many epidemics in this country and England; but there is little comfort in this for those who habitually drink something stronger than water, because, although during an epidemic the drinking-water may be made safe by boiling, this is not enough.

If the water is contaminated, the germs may be introduced into the body while brushing the teeth or washing the face. Or again, salads and fruits which are eaten raw may be contaminated by the water in which they are washed. Typhoid fever has sometimes been spread in a city whose water supply was above reproach by means of milk or ice.

Milk need not be watered in order to become a vehicle for typhoid germs; the germs may be introduced into cans and bottles while these are being washed in water drawn from a contaminated well or brook at the dairy. Although destroyed by boiling, typhoid germs will resist a freezing temperature for a long time, and have been found in ice cut from a pond poisoned with sewage containing the bacilli of this disease.

Another means of the spread of typhoid has recently been discovered in oysters. Oystermen frequently place oysters in brackish water near the mouth of a creek or river in order to fatten them before they are brought to market. If this place happens to be near the mouth of a sewer containing typhoid poison, or if the creek water be contaminated, the oysters will take the virus within their shells, and so revenge themselves on those who eat them raw.

In some puzzling cases of typhoid it has been supposed that the food was infected by flies, which had carried the germs a long distance on their feet—a strong argument for the proper care of food in the fly season.

These are only a few of the ways in which this disease may be spread, but they are enough to show that, so far from feeling surprise that the disorder should be so common, we may rather wonder that we are not all its victims.—Youth's Companion.

Dr. D. M. BYE, Indianapolis, Ind.

DEAR DR. BYE—It has been some time since we wrote and I thought I would write you a few lines to let you hear from us. This leaves wife in fine condition. She goes where she pleases and is still improving in health and flesh. Glad to have to say to you that she is permanently cured of the Tumor. We are still receiving letters of inquiry. Persons that have written to us some months past, now write to me asking what we think of Dr. Bye's treatment now, and if we think she is permanently cured. Dear Dr. Bye, we feel under many obligations to you for wife's recovery from what we thought was certain death. May God bless you continuously in your labor of love.

Yours truly, S. W. JONES.

OBITUARIES.

B. F. ORMOND.

On the ninth day of last August, at his home in Meridian, Miss., our brother, Benjamin F. Ormond, passed from earth to heaven. He was born in Hookerton, N. C., Jan. 7, 1849. Left an orphan at twelve years old, he, nevertheless, grew to manhood without having "run wild." When sixteen years old, at college, under the preaching of the president, Rev. Leonard Cooper, he was converted, and joined the Methodist Church. He was married to Miss Elizabeth J. Watts in 1870. These brief statements point out the principal events of one of the most successful lives I have ever known.

Bro. Ormond was in every way a successful man. He succeeded in business; he succeeded in gaining a large circle of friends, who trusted his judgment and integrity most implicitly, and he succeeded as a Christian in accomplishing much good in his quiet way. The secret of his success is intimated in a statement by one who knew him well, "He attended Sunday-school from his youth up." It means that from his very boyhood he recognized the claims which religion had upon him. It never occurred to him that he could not make money and be a Christian. He was a Christian, and God prospered him. "Diligent in business, serving the Lord," he made money, and won friends, and laid up a store of useful knowledge, and grew in wisdom.

Bro. Ormond was made a steward in the church when but twenty years old, and he served in that capacity for nearly thirty years. His superior judgment, unswerving loyalty and unostentatious piety were of inestimable value to the church. He was the preacher's friend; and, more, he was the preacher's "right-hand man," a veritable pillar in the church. For years Central Church, Meridian, leaned hard on him, and now she feels her loss.

He served his church, at various times, as Sunday-school superintendent and college trustee; and in every sphere his superior judgment, unswerving loyalty and conscientious devotion to duty made his service of untold value to the cause of Christ.

Bro. Ormond so managed the affairs of a large family that his children are following in his footsteps. All of them, who are out of babyhood, are members of the church; and all who are grown are active workers in the church. One daughter is the wife of a Methodist preacher, and one son is a steward in Central Church; the others, who are younger, bid fair to take like rank in the Master's work.

I am glad that I have known Bro. Ormond. His quiet life of large success has been a lesson and an inspiration to me. I am glad that I was permitted to visit him on his death-bed, and learn a lesson from what I saw of him there. He was ready to go, and quietly passed away.

A wife and eight children survive him. His life's hallowing influence upon his home, his Church, and his community. He was a successful man. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.

JAMES—WM. M. JAMES was born, reared and spent his whole life in our midst, and, like his sainted father, his life has been such as to merit the respect and confidence of all men. If he had an enemy, such an one has been wise enough to keep his secret.

Bro. James possessed the rare gift to be a useful, public-spirited citizen, without making enemies; always on the side of right, and stood firm by his convictions; a life-long Methodist, and for about thirty-five years an official member, serving as steward, trustee, and Sunday-school superintendent. Only those who knew Bro. James in his early and maturer life, before disease had laid hold upon him, can fully appreciate his useful life to the church and community. A good neighbor, true friend, affectionate and kind husband and father, honest and upright in his dealings with all—last, but not least, a brave and fearless Confederate soldier, as his comrades testify, and many scars received on hard-fought battle-fields prove.

Bro. James' life was not an easy one, but, with a strong and abiding faith in God, he met every difficulty, and "none of these things moved him," and he came out of every trial a conqueror, always true to God and principle. Several years ago his health began to fail, and grew worse until, on the twenty-fourth day of January last, his pure spirit went to God who gave it. He was in his fifty-ninth year. His last words to his family, only a few minutes before he died, were, "Do as I have done—trust in God and do your duty."

To his bereaved family we offer our sympathy, and pray God's blessing upon them.

P. A. RICHARDSON,
R. WHITAKER

The above memorial was read and adopted by the first Quarterly Conference, Centreville circuit, Natchez district, Mississippi Conference, in session Feb. 14, 1899.

DAVENPORT—MISS ONA GRANBERRY DAVENPORT, daughter of Bro. and Sister J. D. S. Davenport, of Fayette, Jefferson county, Miss., was born Feb. 21, 1879, and died Dec. 31, 1898.

She joined the M. E. Church, South, in early childhood; was converted and became a devoted Christian. She delighted in Sunday-school and the study of God's Word, and was interested in all church work. She possessed a most lovable disposition; was kind and agreeable to all, and would joyfully forego pleasure to enhance the happiness of others. For loved ones and friends her heart was full of affection. Her appreciation for favors shown her was manifested by such bright expressions as to make it a real pleasure to favor her in any way. She was unusually intelligent for one of her age, having carefully read much. She was especially well posted in the current history of the day. She had been in poor health for years, but bore up with remarkable patience and cheerfulness. We have never known one so young who seemed to be more perfectly submissive.

She died in New Orleans, whither her mother had carried her for treatment. Her remains were brought back to the family graveyard at McNair, Miss., where, no doubt, she will have "part in the first resurrection." Her devoted Christian parents have been subjects of the greatest affliction, but they realize the all-sufficiency of God's grace. Beyond affliction there will be a blessed reunion and a bright forever. B. S. RAYNER, P. C.

MCRAE—MILTON H. MCRAE, son of John and Emaline McRee, was born in Holmes county, Miss., Sept. 25, 1852. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and was true to his church until death—Nov. 10, 1898. He was married to Miss Mattie E. Hamilton, Nov. 23, 1884, who, almost broken-hearted, survives him, to care for their four little fatherless children. He spent eleven years of his married life near Acona, Miss., but in January, 1898, he moved to the Delta, where he met his death from a gunshot wound. His loved ones brought his remains to Acona for interment. Bro. Lester, the pastor, preached his funeral. His wife, writing to me, has paid him the highest tribute when she says: "He was a kind and good husband and father. A better man never lived."

It was my pleasure to be pastor to Bro. and Sister McRae in 1896 and '98, and many were the enjoyable visits to his cozy home. He was devoted to his wife and children. His was modest, retiring, and entirely inoffensive; seemed to love everybody and everything. I do not remember hearing him speak a harsh word of anyone. How my heart runs out in tenderest sympathy to his wife and children, and to his aged parents, his brothers, and his sisters!

Dear friends, may the God of all grace and comfort sustain you all, and bring us all safe to our heavenly home, where we will meet our loved ones, to part no more!

B. F. PHILLIPS.
Shannon, Miss.

MOORE—MRS. MATTIE J. SHIVERS MOORE was born Dec. 25, 1870, in Lincoln county, Miss. In her seventh year she moved to Sunflower county, Miss., with her parents. She professed faith in her Savior at Providence Camp Meeting in 1890 and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1891 under the pastorate of Rev. J. E. Adair, of the North Mississippi Conference. She attended school at Whitworth College about two years. Afterwards she spent some of her time teaching school. She was married to Bro. J. M. Moore, Sept. 15, 1897, and she departed this life Jan. 23, 1899, leaving a little babe one week and one day old. She was reconciled to her death. She called up her husband, father, mother, brothers and sisters, often referring to her conversion at the time she first found the Savior—1891. She then named her little baby Shivers, and gave it to Mrs. Reynolds, her husband's sister. Exhorting her many friends to meet her in heaven, she passed away in peace. The writer spent last year in the same house that Sister Moore died in, and most confess her life was a blessing to him. She was of an old-time, good Methodist family, who had her baptized in infancy, as all true Methodists should do.

May God's blessings follow the sorrow-stricken family till they meet beyond the river! L. A. MCKNOWN.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists; price 75c. per bottle.

Covetousness is like a Canada thistle—plant it in the heart, and it will spread and drive out all the other desires; and yet it only bears thorns. The laws of earth impose a penalty upon a man whose carelessness permits the growth of one, and the laws of heaven severely deal with him who foolishly harbors the other.—Standard.

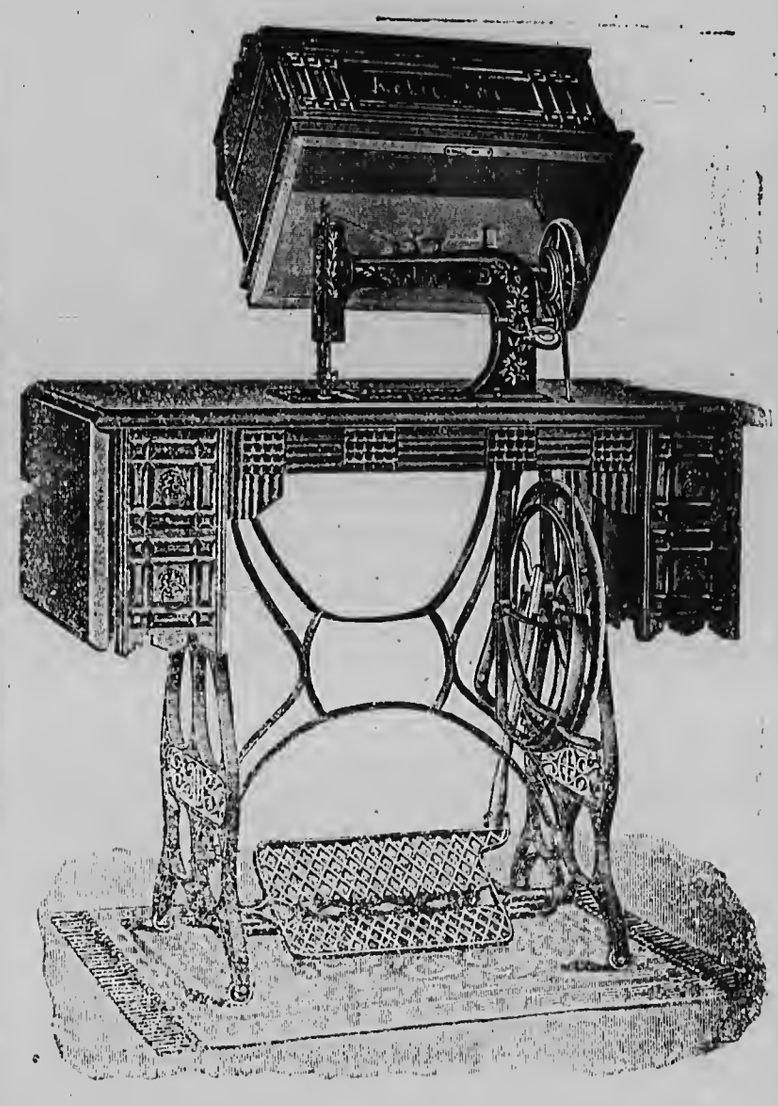
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one fast hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Emperor Nicholas of Russia is seriously ill, and grave fears are entertained of his recovery.

The Planters' Oil Mill at Monroe, La., has been burned, presumably by an incendiary. Loss $150,000.

A filibuster expedition is said to have been formed in Kansas City to proceed to Nicaragua via this city.

All the miners in Arkansas—said to be 12,000 in number—are on a strike. Also those in Indian Territory.

The Board of Trade has approved the action of the Louisiana Board of Health in the selection of fever experts.

The insurgents in Nicaragua have agreed to disarm if the government will guarantee them life and property.

Miller and Early counties, Ga., are being terrorized by White Caps, who propose to drive out all the negroes.

Commodore Philip, who is now at the head of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, gets a salary of $4000 a year for his new duties.

The Spanish Senate by a vote of 130 to 7 has demanded a parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of the recent war.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis arrived in this city, on Monday, from New York. She will remain in New Orleans several months.

In the Senate Messrs. Vest, White and Caffery spoke against the army reorganization bill. The compromise bill passed by a vote of 55 to 13.

The United States Supreme Court has decided that the Ohio State law requiring eating-houses where oleomargarine is used to placard it is unconstitutional.

Citizens of the Seventh District have organized, announcing their object to be protection in the expropriation of property for the Illinois Central track privileges.

Gen. Gomez expects to go to Washington about April 1 and submit a proposition for the payment of the Cuban army that will be acceptable to this country and to Cuba.

The Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House will report the Senate amendment for the Nicaragua Canal adversely, and will recommend a fresh survey of the Nicaragua and Panama routes.

The present session of Congress will close on Friday, March 3, at midnight. Should it be necessary to legislate after that date, the new Congress, which will be the Fifty-sixth, will have to be called in session.

The losses of the American troops at Manila in the recent fights have been 83 killed and 354 wounded to date. Eight thousand Filipinos at Malolos are anxious to surrender. Aguinaldo is said to be inclined to accept pacific overtures.

General Gomez of Cuba stands about 5 feet 7 inches in his shoes, weighs about 150 pounds, and though 70 years of age, has been from 1895-98 often in the saddle for thirty-six hours without sleep. Indeed, he found his health better in a tent than in a house.

The new Japanese warship "Chitose" is the fastest fighting craft on water. In her recent trial off San Francisco the "Chitose" scored 23.76 knots an hour, the fleetest steaming ever made by a man-of-war of the heavy fighting type. This performance scores another triumph for the Union Iron Works of San Francisco.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations has completed consideration of the sundry civil bill as passed by the House and reported it to the Senate. The most important amendment adopted by the committee is a provision for a cable to Honolulu. The amendment provides that the cost of the cable shall not exceed $2,500,000.

Dr. Samuel Smiles, the author of the papular book, "Self-Help," is in a very feeble condition. He is now nearly eighty years of age, and has been for some time failing in health. He rarely receives any one except his most intimate friends and relatives, and is, to use his own words, "preparing for the great and inevitable change."

Two homes in Audubon Place were completely destroyed, one residence almost burned down and another house badly damaged by fire early Sunday morning. A score of other blazes occurred in the same neighborhood at the same time. The fires were all caused by a high potential lighting wire crossing a secondary wire on St. Charles avenue, near Calhoun street.

The friends of irrigation for the West feel that they have scored a distinct triumph for their cause. The Senate Committee on Commerce recommended the amendments to the Rivers and Harbors bill proposed by Senator Warren, of Wyoming, which appropriated $215,000 for the construction of the Piney system of reservoirs in Wyoming according to the surveys and plans in the official Chittenden report, and also $50,000 for the survey of sites in each of the arid and semi-arid States and Territories. The Senate adopted these amendments after warm debate.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for those diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous form I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly. I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

CATARRH AND CONSUMPTION

I have spent nearly fifty years in the treatment of the above named diseases, and believe I have effected more genuine cures than any specialist in the history of medicine. As I must soon retire from active life I will, from this time on, send the means of treatment and cure, as used in my practice, FREE and post-paid to every reader of this paper who suffers from these annoying and dangerous diseases. This is a sincere offer which anyone is free to accept. Address, Prof. J. H. Lawrence, 114 W. 32d St., New York

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE.

The Preachers' Missionary Institute for Natchez district is called to meet at Centerville, March 16 and 17. All the preachers of the district are requested to be present (Discipline, ¶355), and to be prepared to express their views on such features of the great work of missions in the world as may appear to them to be at this time of greatest practical importance. We would be glad to have the editor of the ADVOCATE with us.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT,

Malaria creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BLOODY URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste that children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun; brings as a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living.

DEPARTED DAYS.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Yes, dear, departed, cherished days,
Could memory restore
Your morning light, your evening rays,
From time's grey urn once more—
Then might this restless heart be still,
This straining eye might close,
And Hope her fainting pinions fold,
While the pale phantom rose.

But like a child in ocean's arms,
We strive against the stream,
Each moment farther from the shore
Where life's young fountains gleam—
Each moment fainter wave the fields,
And wider rolls the sea;
The mist grows dark, the sun goes down,
Day breaks—and where are we?

Correspondence.

FROM THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

MR. EDITOR: As it has been said war, in its sublime aspect, represents the self-respect of a nation in a just cause, with all the unreason and horror and suffering of it, it is still an awful, glorious witness of man's power to live and act and die for the unseen. Honor is a proud sense of duty and self-respect that says there is something worse than war, as the upright man says there is something worse than death. For this reason our school-boys, "of whom I was one of which," feeling that we helped to represent the hidden power of a nation, and were called forth to redress the outrages of the weak and set the oppressed go free; also realizing that that nation only can respect itself that has poured its life-blood for truth, freedom, and right, and that a nation is a nation whose moral power diffuses that sense of justice which shall finally be the peace of the world, we donned a suit of blue instead of our school-boys' suits, of which we had grown somewhat tired. After promising to bring our friends a pet Spaniard, and going through no good-byes—real war good-byes—we were in Nashville and mustered into United States service before we had time to reflect on our actions. A few days' stay at that place, a seven days' journey by rail, and we were at San Francisco, where we could see boys from all parts of the continent marching proudly away under flaunting flags, keeping time to the wild, grand music of war; marching down the streets of that city to the wharves, where the great steamers were waiting to carry them away from the land they loved to the Philippine Islands, to the fields of glory, to do and die for the eternal right. After over four months of suspense, anxiety, and anticipation, we, too, traveled the same road, went by the same music, endured the same pangs of sorrow at leaving the thousands of hospitable and patriotic Californians, who were gathered to bid us good-by and "God be with you!" as the "City of Puebla" gave its last whistle and the bugle its last call on the continent and soil for whose good we were saving.

But all of such an occasion is not sadness, for after we had steamed out of the bay through Golden Gate and on the high seas, things assumed into another aspect. Neptune, whose dominion we had never before been in, seemed to have been disturbed, and was giving vent to his passions in a way that was not wholly appreciated by our boys. The transport, which looked so stationary and immovable at the wharves, was using "head over heels," and though it was hard to hold their own on deck, the boys all lined up "as skirmishers," and paid the toll over the rail usually required from an inexperienced sailor. But some of us enjoyed the sight and amusement (to some at their expense. In three hours two-thirds of those aboard had vomited up everything except their life, and were ready to retire to their couches, on which they lay and heed the day they ever heard of sea, or the glories thereof.

Seven days' steaming brought us to Honolulu, where we saw our first tropical climate. Being at a loss to find words to express the grandeur which it presented, we could do nothing but exclaim, as has been done before, "Beautiful!" It is surely a "paradise regained," for it has all manner of tropical trees, luscious fruits, gandy shrubbery, and birds of fine plumage. The streets are overhung with cocoanut, orange, banana, and bread-fruit trees, each bearing its respective fruit. Besides this, there are cool, shady parks, and shady plots full of banyan trees and trees and shrubs we never heard of. The houses are all built conducive to comfort, each man according to his idea, which oddity within itself makes it beautiful. The ex-royal palace, which we ransacked from the basement to the top, is hung with the likenesses of the generations of the royal family. The building is of stone, and surrounded by a nice lawn filled with rustic seats, a band-stand, and everything fitting for such a place. The whole city has the appearance of a wealthy Summer resort. On the fourth day of our stay we steamed out of the fine harbor of that place, returning a "Walakaha" to the natives as the Honolulu band, which took third prize at the World's Fair, sweetly played "Auld Lang Syne," in response to which we gave three rousing cheers, which our Northern brethren call the "rebel yell."

We were on a nineteen days' trip, and fully appreciated the length of time, as well as distance, from the experience of the past few days' journey. At one time some part of the machinery of the vessel broke, which caused a delay of seven hours; at another time a boy bent on mischief circulated that a leak had been sprung which could not be fixed, and that we were surely sinking. This caused an excitement among some of the more impetuous characters. One boy, who is somewhat wayward, and the son of a Methodist preacher, declared that he was vile, but was going to change his ways. At another time, and the most interesting of the whole journey, we passed a huge, smoking, seething volcano, which is part of the LaDrone Islands. When finally, having seen several schools of man-eating sharks, and catching some flying fish, which were so careless as to come into our ship, "Land ahead!" was shouted. The air was rent again with the rebel yell, for this land was the Isle of Luzon, the terminus of our journey. But we sailed along its coast two days before we came to the mouth of Manila Bay, and passed the forts that our immortal Dewey ran in the cover of night to get to Spain's fleet, of which we saw some of the mast-poles a little further on, and just beyond this Dewey's fleet itself, in its awful grandeur and power, lying as placid and seemingly as harmless as the "City of Puebla." The bay is lined on its edge by this city. It has 'not a fleck in its tissue nor a rift in its tint,' but a transport as large as ours can not land at the only wharf in the mouth of the Pasig river, so we had to anchor in the bay, and be brought to shore a week afterwards on the queer little barges containing a family in each end, which are almost the only modes of transfer they have here.

FRANK M. LOWREY.

"TRYING MY 'PRENTICE HAND."

For the first time in my life I am presiding elder. Bishop Galloway, as he facetiously put it, set me "trying my 'prentice hand," and I am really trying.

When once I, a newly-appointed pastor, met a witty daughter of a newly-appointed presiding elder—both having just reached our field of labor—she congratulated me on the royal reception the people had given me, and then remarked, "But we are nobody's dog," meaning that presiding elders had nobody to specially care for them. So, I expected that I would be allowed the unenviable privilege of finding my way to the district parsonage as best I could.

I left Meridian on the early morning of Jan. 10 with three of my daughters, leaving my wife for a few days with the married daughter, and reached Brookhaven at 5:30 that evening, when, lo! Bro. A. C. McNair met us with a carriage and drove us to the district parsonage, which was lighted and warmed, and all ready with hot supper and waiting beds for its new occupancy. Sisters Ada Warren McNair and Hattie Martin Sherman welcomed us. Away back in 1874, when I was pastor here, these two, as Ada Warren and Hattie Martin—then bright, happy girls—were helpful to me.

We have an excellent district parsonage, delightfully located, and when we get the little debt paid off and secure more furniture, it will be all that any presiding elder could wish. The debt will soon be paid. I have elbow-room, and I am enjoying it.

I find the district well manned, mostly with young men. They are fine, strong fellows, energetic, intellectual and consecrated; yet we have some of the sager brethren with us. There are six or eight ex-presiding elders resident in the district, three of whom have represented this preacher in the cabinet and presided in his Quarterly Conferences. There are in the district four contiguous charges that cover an area of five miles wide and twenty long, in which area there are fifteen local preachers, two superannuates, four pastors, and one junior preacher.

I began my new work at Magnolia, where Rev. J. A. B. Jones, one of the ex-presiding elders, and he who carried up my recommendation for admission on trial from the North Warren circuit in 1871, is in charge. His wife, formerly Mrs. Jno. A. Peale, of Vicksburg, is one of those who know and love me well enough to call me "Walter." They are few, and the number lessens as the years roll on. Others know and love me, but these have known and loved me longest. Here I met many former pupils whom I had taught at Kavanaugh. Magnolia has a new church, one of the prettiest I ever saw, of which Bro. and Sister Jones, and the good people they serve, are very proud. The last dollar of its cost will soon be paid, and then this church will pay its pastor a good salary.

My next quarterly meeting was at old Bethesda, on the Gallman charge. Here I found the tracks made long ago by a certain boy called Warren Black, now widely known as Rev. W. C. Black, D. D. The tracks are well made, and point in the right direction; "footprints in the sands of time" which the tides of time have not effaced. By a sister, nieces and nephew of this old-time boy I was royally entertained. If Gallman circuit had some Epworth Leagues and new churches, it would be about the best circuit I ever saw. These she will have before long. The pastor had been from Annual Conference less than three weeks, and yet had visited over ninety of his flock.

From Bethesda, Bro. Williams carried me in his buggy to Crystal Springs, where I preached Sunday night. Bro. Powell was at his post, and the people, who had so unwillingly given Bro. W. B Lewis up to Yazoo City, were falling in love with this strong, thoughtful, lovable man.

My first trip into the country proper was to New Hope, on the Caseyville charge. It was Saturday, and snowing, and the wind blew keenly. Mounted on a horse that knew how to gallop, I pushed out into the snow, sleet, mud, cold and pine woods over about the worst road I ever saw. I had found the rough side of the presiding eldership. Bro. Parker, the new pastor, with a few officials, met me, and we had a good time. Bro. Parker is already in high favor there, and starts out to make Caseyville circuit what Scotland circuit once was; and he will do it. In the old days, when it was called Scotland, it was second to none.

The cold day, "the snowy Sunday," found me at Beauregard and Wesson. I did not preach that day, but walked down the railroad from Beauregard to Wesson in the afternoon, not because there was no buggy available, but because "a tie-ticket" passage was more comfortable. Bros Gatlin and Morse are hopeful, and their people are proud of their pastors.

Time would fail me to tell of McComb, where Peebles has already received some sixty additions to the church; and of Whitestown, where Tinnin is rejoicing over one new church and planning for another; and of Bogue Chitto, where Moore is building up things generally, and is gladdened with an increase of salary; and of Summit, where Boone and the junior preacher Gibson are preparing to do a better work than the circuit has known for years; and of Adams, where Morse hopes to raise twice as much as Adams paid last year; and of Brookhaven, where Adams is moving things, notwithstanding the conservatism that has prevailed too long. Other charges have not been visited. The outlook is very hopeful. We need about fifty Epworth Leagues and forty Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies on the district. We shall try to have them.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.

THANKS TO BROS "GILDEROY" AND MELLEN.

MR. EDITOR: It is said that sometimes we plan wiser than we thought. Such were the letters which appeared in the last issue of the ADVOCATE from the pens of the above-named brethren. Having been taken from one of the most delightful charges and comfortable homes in our Conference, and with salary equal to that of district to which appointed, I comforted myself that while there would be much hard work, there would be a corresponding appreciation by my brethren.

After a month's exposure to rain and cold, meeting all appointments and preaching to distressingly small congregations, and with finances only a shade above zero, I had already written to my successor in his comfortable quarters that he was due me large "boot." Imagine my chagrin on receipt of a long letter from an intelligent, greatly respected brother, saying that the "presiding elder is the best-paid officer in Church or State in proportion to service rendered." My! my! Mr. Editor; how my feathers fell! Had he been an obscure, unlearned man, I could have accounted for the statement; but certainly one so conversant with Methodism must know more than a novice in the office; so I said within myself I must consent to accept that for which I have not given value received. I rebelled at the very thought, and said, Give me back my pastorate. Unwilling to plead my own cause, I had decided to remain silent; but, thanks to these two—"Gilderoy" and Mellen—I was spared. Knowing the brother to be a reader of the ADVOCATE, I sent as my defense a card, asking him to read the communications.

Brethren, your letters helped the new elder. I thank you and take courage. I could add a paragraph or two of similar experience to "Mud Bound." Mud, water, ice, and the worst cold for many years, have been present with me. Preachers have been at their posts from an early day, but weather has hindered their work. Two extra Quarterly Conferences, owing to bad Sundays. Generally, the stewards are planning to make the pastors comfortable.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers, Traveling and Local, in the Bounds of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: The proposition to send The Review of Missions to new subscribers for twenty-five cents for one year will expire April 1. After that date the price will be $1, as it is now to all old subscribers. Let me beg of you not to let the opportunity slip. Subscribe for the Review, and read it. In no other way can one in our church keep up with the tidings from the world-wide field.

Try to get every steward, every trustee, every Sunday-school superintendent, and every exhorter, and every class leader, and every Epworth League, to subscribe for this wonderful periodical.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.
Miss. Sec., Miss. Conf.

NOTICE.

I have just mailed to the more than 300 Methodist traveling preachers in Mississippi more than 600 letters containing suggestions concerning our Twentieth Century Educational movement. I ask of each preacher a careful reading of those letters. If any preacher should fail to receive copies, a postal card to me will supply the deficiency at once.

Six preachers have reported a failure to receive the first roll books sent. They have been supplied. If there be any others, let them notify me on a postal card, and they shall be supplied without delay.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Will begin at Brookhaven, Thursday, April 27, at 9 A. M, and continue through the thirtieth. Thursday will be devoted to Sunday-school and Epworth League interests, and Friday afternoon and evening to education. We hope to have Bishop Galloway with us on Friday; but if he finds that Thursday or Saturday will suit his plan of work better, this plan will be modified to suit his. Let us all come to District Conference expecting a baptism of the Holy Ghost.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE AND METHODISM IN MISSISSIPPI.

We can not overestimate the importance of the action of the last General Conference respecting our educational work. It puts emphasis in the right place. It ought and, I hope, will give a great impulse to our educational enterprises.

When the General Conference decided to give special prominence to our work in this department during the closing years of the century, the action was in harmony with the spirit and tendencies of our times. There has not heretofore been a period in the world's history when so much attention was given to education as now. The church that does not take hold of this work vigorously has no future; and it must be a persistent hold. Mere spurts of enthusiasm now and then will not count for much. We must be so thoroughly committed to it that we will talk about it and work for it under the conviction that it involves the very life of our church. It may be that some will think this is putting it pretty strongly, but unless our people agree that it is not putting it too strongly, I have very little hope of accomplishing anything worthy of our great church. In some way—and I know of no way so effective as through our preachers—the conviction must be burned into our Methodist constituency that great things must be done, and done soon, or we are going to suffer disastrous consequences. We have made a good start in Mississippi. It must not be forgotten, however, that we yet have a great deal to do in the way of organization, system, concentration and equipment.

Millsaps College is so related to Methodism in Mississippi that it must be in an important sense an exponent of our church life. It was established with the utmost deliberation. In it our thought and purpose respecting education are expressed, and will ultimately crystallize. In planting it at the capital of the State we have shown our confidence in it and our willingness to be judged by it. Thus far the college has done well. The trustees have administered its affairs so wisely that it has been an honor to the church. The original policy of placing the departments of instruction in the hands of trained and thoroughly competent teachers has been rigidly adhered to. As demands have increased facilities have been enlarged, without incurring one dollar of debt. We can afford, as a church, to stand by this record. But let us not deceive ourselves. The public expects great things of us. We must go forward, or suffer reproach. It is supposed that our great church knows what it means to call an institution a college in the closing years of this century. Our annual income is less than twelve thousand dollars; yet, unless we do the work that colleges are doing with an income of from thirty to forty thousand dollars, we will disappoint public expectation. This we must not do. This surely we need not do if we are united in our purpose to meet the demands of this great undertaking, which means so much to Methodism in Mississippi. May we not hope, therefore, that our endowment will be largely increased during the next two years? Seeing the situation as I do, and realizing our opportunity, and impressed with the great responsibility resting on our church, I sincerely trust that our people—preachers and laymen—will write, talk, work, and pray to this end.

SCARRITT BIBLE AND TRAINING-SCHOOL EASTER SERVICE.

CARD FROM PROGRAM COMMITTEE.

Easter, with its blessed memories and associations, will soon be here (this year the date is April 2) and as members of the committee in charge of the annual service in the interest of the Scarritt Bible and Training-School, we are glad to announce that the program is now ready for distribution, and will be furnished free of charge to societies, Sunday-schools, Epworth Leagues, or individuals desiring to use them. Effort is made each year to have the program breathe the joyous Easter spirit as well as to increase interest in the institution whose sole object is the equipment of messengers who, in the name of our risen Lord, will go forth to witness for him in ministry to the sinful and suffering.

We ask our friends to lighten our labors and increase the usefulness of the Easter literature by making early application for a supply, as the call last year so far exceeded our expectation that a second edition had to be published to supply the demand, and many orders came too late to have the literature reach the destination before Easter. Please state the membership in the society or church sending for literature, and we will estimate the amount needed.

We earnestly pray that the service may be blessed of God to everyone who takes part, and we ask our friends to help us to make it a success. In his service,

MARIA LAYNG GIBSON,
MARY L. HARGROVE,
Committee.

SHUT IN.

God sometimes shuts the door, and shuts us in,
That he may speak, perchance through grief or pain.
And softly heart to heart, above the din,
May tell some precious thought to us again.

God sometimes shuts the door, and keeps us still,
That so our feverish haste, our deep unrest,
Beneath his gentle touch may quiet, till
He whispers what our weary hearts love best.

God sometimes shuts the door, and though shut in,
If 'tis his hand, shall we not wait and see?
If worry lies without, and toil, and sin,
God's word may wait within for you and me.

THE BLASPHEMY AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST THE UNPARDONABLE SIN.

(Matt. xii, 31, 32. Mark iii, 28-30; Luke xii, 10.)

Holding to the unity of the Godhead—the one in three—some are mystified as to how a sin can be committed against one person of the Trinity without sinning equally against all, as against God. This is true in the abstract, but there are sins charged directly against one or the other person of the Trinity. The apostle said, "Testifying repentance towards God and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ." (Acts xx, 21) Here impenitence is made a sin against God the Father, and unbelief, or want of faith, a sin against God the Son. There are sins against the Holy Ghost distinct from blasphemy, taught in the words: 'Grieve not the Holy Spirit" (Eph. iv, 14); "Quench not the Spirit" (Thess. v, 19). In the Scripture passages under special review the Lord Jesus specifies a blasphemy against the Father, a blasphemy against the Son, and a blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. We can not be mistaken in the teaching that sins may be committed directly against one or the other person of the Trinity.

Blasphemy is known to be contemptuous speech or action; to scandalize, to treat with insulting contempt. To blaspheme God the Father would be to say, "He is unworthy of implicit obedience; incompetent to command." To say that Jesus Christ was but a mere man, was born out of wedlock and in disgrace, would be blasphemy against God the Son. The unpardonable sin, the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, is the special subject of this paper. It is not a long series of sins, as some contend. One sin is a compromise of salvation, and every sin in a long life goes to complicate this compromise. Such a life may lead to a much hardened state, but in this life the sinner has committed no sin which God has not promised to forgive under true repentance, nor has he committed any sin but God has forgiven in some other case. This sin, or blasphemy, against the Holy Ghost is but the one sin. It is not sins, it is not blasphemies; it is the sin, the blasphemy. That it could only have been committed in our Savior's time on earth by charging that the spirit by which he cast out devils was Satan himself—that no such sin can now be committed—would make unmeaning to all the generations under the Christian dispensation an awful warning carefully recorded by three of the four evangelists. It would be a blur on the page of gospel history, an awful warning, startling numbers with fearful apprehension. It is but a truism to say that the Lord Jesus always meant something when he spoke.

Again: As a distinct person from the Holy Ghost, he wrought miracles. He said: "But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins" (Mark ii, 10); and, "If I cast out devils" (Matt. xii, 28). It was by his own inherent power he commanded devils and cast out demons. He gave the warning we are considering when they said, "He casteth out devils by Beelzebub, the prince of devils." This was a blasphemy against himself, the Son. This, he says, may be forgiven, and adds, "A blasphemy against the Father may be forgiven;" then said distinctly from these two persons, "But whosoever speaketh"—blasphemeth—"against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come." Our Savior, while on earth, was the representative of God among men. He said: "It is expedient"—necessary—"for you that I go away, for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment: of sin, because they believe not on me; of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged" (St. John xvi, 7-11.) He gives conviction of sin on the conscience, a sense of righteousness—acceptance with God—in the heart, judges the prince of this world—that is, restrains the power of the devil. Jesus said, "I will send him again." He said, "I will pray the Father, and he will send him." The Comforter is a gift sent from the Father and the Son. This Comforter, the Holy Ghost, is a personal presence among men now who may be "grieved," whose force may be "quenched;" and if the Scripture we are considering is of any force, he may be "blasphemed." The Holy Ghost is the person in the Godhead with whom we deal in person, and by which we are brought in personal contact with God, and are made to know the Lord, and by whom we are born of God. (John iii.) To blaspheme this is under peculiar circumstances to put the world as that God, or in our inner feelings betrayed by act or word, to vindictively and viciously charge that sacred presence with whom we are dealing as an unclean and devilish presence, and repulse it with a cool determination to displace it by the world, or with a contemptuous sarcasm to expel and drive it from us. The result is, "The Spirit that beareth witness with our spirit." "The Spirit that helpeth our infirmities" [and]; "the Spirit" [that] "maketh intercessions for us with groanings which can not be uttered" (Rom. viii), is gone from us forever. The hopelessness of one in such a case may be clearly discerned. There is certainly no way for such an offender to come in communication with God to obtain pardon.

I will postulate here that in the blasphemer there is a moral shock, a spiritual reaction on the physical man that mortality can not sustain. John writes: "If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say ye shall pray for it." (I. John v, 16.) Before Judas betrayed his Master he had access to every blessing promised to man. The Lord Jesus said: "The Son of man goeth, as it is written of him; but woe unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed." It had been good for that man if he had not been born." The betrayal for the price placed him where he could not ask for mercy, where he saw and realized the extent of his sin, and that he could not undo it. He threw away the money, and went and hanged himself; life had become unbearable. When the disciples were selling out possessions, and raising a fund on which the poor might live in common with them all, a certain man named "Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, and kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part and laid it at the apostle's feet. Then Peter said, Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie unto the Holy Ghost, and to keep back a part of the price of the land? While it remained was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? Why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? Thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God. And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down and gave up the ghost. About the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in. And Peter answered and said unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much. And she said, Yea, for so much. Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? . . . Then fell she down straitway and yielded up the ghost."

Some illustrations drawn from observation and reports will serve to show the application of this doctrine to our time.

Years ago I was pastor in a village where a certain section of the town had taken on a great prejudice against the Methodist Church. One Sunday morning a young man on his way to church was joined in his walk by another going in the same direction. They conversed as young men are wont to do. On arriving at the gate leading into the churchyard, the first young man turned to go in; the second moved on. "Come," said the first; "let us go into church." "No," said the other; "I am not going in there." "Oh, yes," said the first; "let us go in and hear what the preacher has to say." The other stepped back, denounced the church and its services; then, lifting his hand above his head, called down a terrible curse upon himself if he ever passed that door. Turning away from the place, he was suddenly taken ill. Three physicians called in to consult failed to diagnose his case. On the Wednesday following the blasphemer was buried.

A case to this effect was reported by an eye witness in a rural district. Revival services were being conducted in a church. One night, while altar exercises were going on, two young men entered the house together. One of them began a tirade of abuse of such exercise. A preacher present went to them and attempted to remonstrate. The young man who was doing the talking repulsed him in angry language and manner. The preacher walked back to the chancel, and just as he turned to face the congregation a fearful and prolonged flash of lightning flamed through the building, attended by a terrific peal of thunder, shaking every timber of the house to its foundation, and extinguished every light in the room. Great consternation prevailed; the lights were renewed; no one was found injured until they came to the disturbers of worship; the two were found prone upon the floor. Resuscitations were applied; the one who had said nothing soon caught his breath, and was bellowing for mercy with first sense of consciousness; the other was dead to all eternity.

The following was reported by a preacher who was present: A country lady of wealth went to a city to visit a city friend and spend the fashionable season. On the night of the arrival of the visitor the hostess proposed that as there was no entertainment, that they would go to church services near by, which was just then a great attraction to that part of the city. The sermon was earnest, and closed by an appeal to the unsaved part of the congregation, following which an invitation was extended to all serious persons present to go into the lecture-room, where they could receive personal instruction. The hostess said to her guest, "Let us go." The guest said "No" very decidedly. After a hymn and an exhortation the invitation to the lecture-room was repeated. The hostess again asked her guest to go, but more promptly she refused. After further service the invitation for personal instruction was renewed. The hostess said, "Come and go with me, won't you?" The guest, with repellant manner and air, said, "I shall do no such thing." The hostess felt herself repelled and thrust away. She arose and went alone into the lecture-room, and before coming out professed faith in Christ. She came joyfully to tell her friend, who received the news coldly. Very little was said on their way from church. On reaching their place the visitor began immediate preparations to return home. The hostess remonstrated; the guest made no other answer than that she was going home, and made a hurried departure. An early mail afterwards brought, in effect, the following information: "On the night at church, when I so petulantly and viciously refused to go with you into the lecture-room, an awful feeling came over me, and when you left me I realized that my doom was fixed, and I have hurried home to die. When you are received into the church and numbered with God's people, I shall be in my coffin and numbered with the dead;" and so it was.

Truth, as given from God's Word, can not be questioned, and incident facts are stubborn things. When one has blasphemed the Holy Ghost, we will never meet him in the worshiping congregation, nor in any other of the walks of life.

"SUCCESS VS. FAILURE."

In all vocations and professions of life we measure a man's success according to his environments. What would be esteemed great success in some surroundings would not be considered tolerable in other conditions. Why not the children of light be as wise in this respect as the children of this world? Surely we ought not to be harsher in our criticism than they, but to love and help each other, "the strong to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves." There are environments in which no one can succeed. All doctors let some patients die, all lawyers lose some cases, all merchants fail to collect some debts, all farmers fail in some crops, and all preachers fail to bring up all assessments sometimes (if they work in all classes of environments), and any of them would fail as the general habit of life if they were kept continuously in the environments of failure, and any would succeed if placed in the environments of success. Of course, the man and occasion must meet when the extraordinary is accomplished. Indeed, there are one class of men who never fail—that is the class who never undertake anything.

I affirm that there is not now living, neither ever was there, a man who was proof against failure everywhere. I suppose ours (the North Mississippi) is an average Conference, with as great a variety of talent, and as great men, as are to be found anywhere, and a study of our Minutes for the last ten years reveals the following facts: We have one charge that has paid all assessments for ten years, and three preachers who have brought up all assessments for ten consecutive years. The same is true of our lamented dead; some failures mark their tracks.

It was true with Bunyan, Calvin, Luther, and Wesley. True, they were great men, and accomplished in the general tenor of life, seemingly, the impossible, but had all their environments been such as caused the occasional failure, their whole lives would have been failures.

The Apostles Paul, Peter, and the rest, with Elijah and Moses and other grand characters, whose influence is blessing the world to-day, made some failures. Had their whole lives been the environments of failure, their lives would have been a failure.

Yea, more than all these, our blessed Lord made some failures at Nazareth. He failed to do many mighty works because of unbelief. He failed to gather Jerusalem as a hen doth her chickens under her wing, because they would not.

Shall we weaklings, 1900 years down the turbid stream of time, rise up and say to these great characters, the Savior included: "You failed because your lives were not in the work; you did not expect to succeed. We have men now who would have succeeded right where you failed, 'for they will succeed anywhere.'" Nay, we would never think of such a thing. Then shall we say to the noble men of God in our church to-day (who, perchance, have been kept all their lives in the environments of failure), "that you fail because your lives are not in the work." Nay, verily; let us give them the environments of success, in a variety of surroundings, for a term of years long enough to test the general tenor of their lives; then, if they fail "because their lives are not in the work," let us relieve the church of them.

I take it that the same thing that caused the Savior's failure is that that causes theirs. "Unbelief," and a refusal to pay, "ye would not," is as true often to-day, when a preacher tries to collect his assessments, as it was with the Savior at Jerusalem.

NOTICE.

AN APPEAL TO THE PASTORS AND LAYMEN OF THE GREENVILLE DISTRICT.

The Twentieth Century Educational Fund is one that ought to appeal to every right-thinking man, much less Christian. The companionship of religion and education is a normal condition. In a healthy state they can never be divorced. In a certain communion there is an attempt to suppress educational developments, but that communion is a monstrous ridicule on the pure, honest spirit of the holy Christ. He came "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." If, therefore, the education of man means the enlargement of his life and the betterment of his condition, then Jesus came to encourage such enlargement of the mind, and to give force to thought. He came to give clearness to vision as well as cleanliness of soul. In this dual struggle of man, after purity of life and breadth and power of thought, there is divine leadership. "He will guide you into all truth," is the promise of the Book of inspiration.

Again: the companionship of religion and education is not only in its constitution, but exists also on the human side. As a penitent must seek for pardon through Jesus, so must the student seek for truth under his benign influence, if he would attain the best results. There may be a form of knowledge without the thought of divinity in it, but it is the dryest of skeletons. To have a comely form, knowledge must not only have the skeleton of truth, but must have the spirit of divine wisdom in it. So, if the rambler among the great truths of our present existence would find the sweetest and richest blessings of knowledge, he must see them from the standpoint of a believer in the Christ who is the center of all truth. Christian education proceeds from this standpoint. Then the Twentieth Century Educational Fund ought to enlist everyone who has the highest good of a man at heart.

Another view, and one that is only second to the above, is that education prepares the individual for greater usefulness. This truth, however, is so well known that it is not worth while to consume time here discussing it.

With the above thoughts in mind, I appeal to the people of the Delta to help in the undertaking of the church in raising that $1,500,000 decided upon by the General Conference as the amount proper to be raised as an educational fund with which to begin the work of the twentieth century. We ought easily to raise the one dollar per member in this rich valley. Some may not be able to give that much, but they are very few. There are some who ought to consider it a privilege to give a thousand, or more, and there are many more who could give in sums much less than the above, and still be giving very liberally to this worthy cause. I hope and pray that a liberal response from all will run the figures beyond $2,200, our share in the undertaking.

Respectfully, J. W. DORMAN.

The Christian Life.

"BEFORE HONOR IS HUMILITY."

Look at the corn in the field; it holds its head erect while it is green, but when the ear is filled and matured it hangs its head in graceful humbleness. Look at your fruit trees; how their blossoming branches shoot up toward the sky, but when they begin to be loaded with fruit, since the riper the fruit the greater its weight, the branch begins to bow, until it needs oftentimes to be propped up and to be supported, lest it break away from the stem. Weight comes with maturity; lowliness of mind is the inevitable consequence. Growing Christians think themselves nothing; full-grown Christians know that they are less than nothing. The nearer we are to heaven in point of sanctification, the more we mourn our infirmities and the humbler is our estimate. Lightly-laden vessels float high in the water; heavy cargo sinks the bark to the water's edge. The more grace, the more the need of grace is felt. He may boast of his grace who has none; he may talk much of his grace who has little; but he who is rich in grace cries out for more, and forgets that which is behind. When a man's inward life flows like a river, he thinks only of the source, and cries before his God, "All my fresh springs are in Thee." He who abounds in holiness feels more than ever that in him—that is, in his flesh—there dwelleth no good thing. Then are not ripened, my brother, whilst thou hast a high esteem of thyself. He who glories in himself is but a babe in Christ, if indeed he be in Christ at all. When thou shalt see death written on the creature, and see all thy life in Christ; when thou shalt perceive even the holy things to have iniquity in them, and see all thy perfectness in him who is altogether lovely; when thou shalt lie prostrate at the foot of the throne, and only rise to sit and reign in him who is thine all—then art thou ripening, but not till then.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Religion is doing secular acts from sacred motives. When piety stamps our life, all our acts are religious. It is wrong to separate toil and worship, and to forget that motive gives character to deeds. The heart makes the work of the workman holy. "An anvil may be consecrated and a pulpit decorated." A religion that is not fitted to week-day work never had a Sabbath-day origin. We want Mary's heart and Martha's hand.—Rev. C. H Buck.

The love of Christ is not an absorbing, but a radiating love. The more we love him, the more we shall most certainly love others. Some have not much natural power of loving, but the love of Christ will strengthen it. Some have had the springs of love dried up by some terrible earthquake. . . . Some have spent it all on their God-given dear ones. Now he is come whose right it is; and yet, in the fullest resumption of that right, he is so gracious that he puts back an even larger measure of the old love into our hand, sanctified with his own love, and energized with his blessing, and strengthened with his new commandment, "That ye love one another, as I have loved you."—Frances Ridley Havergal.

Nothing glorifies God so much as joy. It is self which has marred this joy. It is humility above all other things which weakens or saps asunder the holdfasts of selfishness. A lowly spirit is of necessity an unselfish one. Humility is a perpetual presence of God, and how can self be otherwise than forgotten there? An humble man is a joyous man. There is no worship where there is no joy. For worship is something more than either the fear of God or the love of him. It is delight in him.—Faber.

The voice of God speaks from the page of his Word. Let us not accept that to be his voice which does not come to us through Scripture, or is not corroborated by Scripture. But let us be very careful to obey God's Word, so far as we know it, even when it seems to contradict all the suggestions of prudence and common sense. Better be with God in a minority of one, than have the plaudite of an immense host of godless men.—F. B. Meyer.

To believe in Him is to be like Him. All other faith is a mere mist of words dissolving into empty air. To live our human lives as He lived His—purely, lovingly, righteously—is to share His eternity.—Lucy Larcom.

Mrs. W. H. Wall, of North Miss. Conference
Conference Officers of Mississippi Conference;
Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference.

MR. EDITOR: Please allow me space in your widely circulated paper to tell something of what we are doing.

Two years ago we were convinced that the church could only grow by a complete alignment of all its forces, and that women are an important factor of the service; so, when the Spirit gave the command, "Go forward," the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society of Winnsboro, La., was organized. Since the organization a few have retreated, but most of us have heard God's voice calling to us, 'Follow me," linked with the promise, "My grace is sufficient for you," and we have obeyed his call. We have a cozy, nice little parsonage, which we have furnished and painted; besides, we have $51.70 in the treasury now. We have done a good work in the way of sending missionary boxes to destitute families in the country. We make our programe strictly missionary; hence we are learning quite a good deal about the work in foreign fields. We have not joined ourselves to the Woman's Home Mission Society because we have been laboring to pay for and furnish our own parsonage, and didn't feel able to send the money away from home.

We hope the seed which we are now sowing will yield an abundant harvest in the future. Since the vitality and growth of all plant life is dependent upon the worth of the seed, and as the seed which we are now sowing are not our own worthless thoughts, but those given us by the Holy Spirit, we certainly have the assurance that we are performing a work which shall be the honor and glory of God. "No one liveth to himself, or dieth to himself;" so the thoughts which we sow for Christ, the influence which we exert for good, shall surely not die with us.

After two years of thought-sowing we are beginning to behold lovely budding plants; but this is only a shadow of what we expect when the missionary spirit has been implanted in the hearts of all our church members. Let us, then, not be weary in well-doing, and receive that we will improve our time.

A PREACHER'S REPORT

Interesting Statement by Elder Joel H. Austin of Goshen, Ind.

"I was a victim of catarrh and had almost constant pain in my head. The trouble was gradually working down on my lungs. I was weak and irresolute. My wife had the grip and Hood's Sarsaparilla cured her. After this I had the same disease and resorted to Hood's. In a short time the aches and pains were relieved and I also saw the medicine was helping my catarrh. In six weeks I ceased to have any further trouble with it and I am now a well man. The pains and bloating I had in my limbs are gone and I am relieved of a heart trouble. I am thankful for a medicine so intelligently compounded and so admirably adapted to the needs of the system." ELDER JOEL H. AUSTIN, Goshen, Indiana.

INTERROGATION.

BY REV. W. H. HUNTLEY.

Do the fish of the cave, seeking food in the dark,
Know they hearken the channels they trace as they grope?
Can they know that of Light had they merely a spark,
Its disclosures would furnish the treasures of Hope?

Do the bear and the walrus, fierce-scanning the snows,
Coldly sweeping the floes for the sources of strife,
Know that sunnier circles appease and repose
Hunger's craving, because with the warmth comes Life?

. . . . . .

Darkly adventuring the channels about,
Coldly inquiring after Life and Light,
We manifest likeness, we fear, we doubt,
To the fish in the dark and the ice-things white.

Tho we know, do we not, of the clear stream running
From the Heaven bright side of the Christ to enter
From the dark, and we know of the True Bread sunning
For the lips of the hungry ones leaving their fire.

. . . . . .

Into Hiding in Eden, two crept from the Light;
From Eden two wandered afar in the cold,
And blindness fell and hunger enthralled them
See! To Golgotha now the glad running, with sight
And with fullness of spirit their Lord to behold—
For to free them from blindness and hunger He called them.

RAILROAD RATES TO SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE AT LUMBERTON.

All who contemplate attending the annual Sunday-school Conference, to be held in Lumberton, March 30, 31, and April 1, will please carefully notice the following conditions on which reduced rates can be secured for the return trip:

Persons traveling over the N. O. and N. E. and A. and V. will pay full fare to Lumberton, securing from the agent a certificate showing that full fare has been paid to place of meeting. These certificates will be signed by the secretary of the Conference. You will present them to the agent at Lumberton, who will sell return tickets for one-third fare. Those traveling over the L. and N. road will in like manner secure a certificate from agent showing that full fare has been paid to New Orleans. On returning, present this certificate to agent there, and he will sell ticket to place of destination at one-third fare. The M. and O. Company will also sell return tickets at one third fare on the certificate plan, as specified above. The G. and S. I. Company will [illegible] charge those who travel over their line. You pay full fare going, and secure a certificate from agent showing that full fare has been paid to Hattiesburg. When returning, present this certificate to the agent at Hattiesburg, and a return ticket will be granted free of charge. Arrangements have not yet been made with the I. C. Company, but we are in correspondence with them, and a definite understanding as to reduced rates will be had soon.

Now, remember that parties traveling over roads not belonging to the Q. and C. system can not get tickets from their home station through to Lumberton. When they reach the Q. and C. lines they will have to purchase another ticket. Each time secure a certificate showing that full fare was paid going. These certificates must be signed by the secretary of the Conference before the purchaser can get the benefit of reduced rates returning. The program has been arranged, and will be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE next week.

We again remind all pastors and Sunday-school superintendents that delegates are desired from every Sunday-school in the Conference. Superintendents are especially requested to attend. Get all our pastors go.

Yours in the work,

D. SCARBOROUGH,
Sec. S.-S. Board, Miss. Conf.

"HONOR TO WHOM HONOR."

It is not an infrequent occurrence in this life for the honor that is due to one person to be given to another to whom such honor is not due. It often forcibly, too, that persons receiving honors are quite undeserving. This state of things ought not to be, but, nevertheless, such a state of things does exist. Such a state of things exists either from ignorance, thoughtlessness, selfishness, malice, or misinformation; and hence, owing to misinformation, I gave the honor of building the parsonage at this place to a certain brother, in my last article to the ADVOCATE, instead of Bro. B. S. Rayner, to whom it belongs; and to the credit of Bro. B. S. Rayner, I wish to say that our parsonage here is the most substantial building in which it has been our pleasure to reside since we entered the itinerancy. Of recent years, since accumulating many books, it is necessary to examine the foundation of the room selected for a study in order to see whether or not it will likely fail under their weight, and sometimes, to insure against such an accident, additional pillars, or braces, have to be made; but just as soon as I looked at the foundation of the parsonage in which we are now living, built by Bro. B. S. Rayner, I said to my wife that it made no difference in which room I put my books, the foundation is all right. Bro. Rayner built this parsonage as if he purposed to live in it all of his life, and then leave it to his children and grandchildren. Let all our parsonages be built roomy, strong, and attractive.

And, now, I wish to say to the brethren who served this charge, that if my articles to the ADVOCATE savor the least reflection on any one of them, that it is not intentional, and I wish the world to know that I have never followed a Methodist preacher yet who did not do good one way or the other; and, too, the more minute and extensive my knowledge of men of the passing years, the more I discover that Methodist preachers, as a class—considering them in every respect—are the most genial, earnest, intelligent, ready, faithful and efficient of all men. May God continue to bless them, and help us to continue one in advancing his cause and saving the people!

We have had sixty-nine accessions to our church here in six Sabbaths. Pray that our work may continue to prosper, and that we may accomplish good that shall be eternal.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

FROM LUMBERTON.

An unusual advantage accrues to the Seashore district, especially in the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Association, to convene at Lumberton. Arrangements for special railroad rates with the N. O. and N. E., and the G. and S. I., will be obtained, if possible, and announced in time. Our people are noted for large-hearted as well as business energy, and we will be disappointed if we do not have plenty of company on this occasion. We expect some of the foremost exponents of the church in Sunday-school and educational matters, and have been assured by them of their attendance. The program will include Bishop Galloway, Dr. Murrah, Dr. Atkins, Dr. Hammond, Dr. Black, and others equally interested in the work before us.

This notice is written with the distinct object of determining every Sunday-school in the Seashore district to send its superintendent and other delegates to Lumberton to the convention. Certainly our invitation includes all others with equal sincerity from the Conference districts; but we realize that difficulties in the way of distance will confront and defeat the wish of many, while from our district the matter will be otherwise.

If the Sunday-schools will take early action, it will be better as to their delegations; and it will be very much appreciated if all who intend coming will notify the writer by the tenth of March. We will be ready for you, and we desire to know how many to be ready for.

W. H. HUNTLEY.

P. S.—Kindly attend to the matter of notifying us of your appointment of delegates through your Sunday-school's secretaries next week.

Lumberton, Feb 27, 1899.

OUR MINUTES.

Please give me a little space. What is the object in having the proceedings of our Annual Conference published? Is it for the benefit of the preachers, and a few stewards, or is intended to inform our people as to what we are doing, and what we do at an Annual Conference? Some of our people do not know what we do at an Annual Conference; and how are we to give them this information unless we have more Minutes published? What is 13 copies of the Minutes amongst 500 or 600 members? We can never give them this information at that rate. I suggest to the preachers of the North Mississippi Conference that we collect as much as $1 from every church (on circuits) and more in stations. Thereby we will be able to put the Minutes in the hands of a great many more of our people. There is no church that will not willingly give $1 for this purpose.

Now, brethren, let me hear from you on this subject. Our people need this information, and we will never inform them as long as we get 12 or 13 copies of the Minutes. I have seven appointments and I like two copies—having two to the church, and keep one myself. Now, let's move up.

Now come, brethren, let me hear from you.

B. P. FULLILOVE.

ABOUT THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE MINUTES.

I have just received the Minutes of the last session of the Mississippi Annual Conference. Permit me to call attention to some omissions on the part of the statistical secretary in the report from the Benton circuit which are misleading and do the circuit an injustice. I reported 335 members, 7 additions on profession of faith, 14 removals, 6 infants baptized, 1 adults baptized, 5 houses of worship, valued at $5,000; one parsonage, valued at $500; money expended on churches, $100—none of which appears in the Minutes. Again, I reported $77 15 paid to presiding elder; the Minutes only show $71.15. I reported $567.40 paid the pastor; the Minutes show $565.40. I reported $27 30 collected to repair district parsonage; this does not appear in the Minutes. Whether the statistical secretary lost a part of my report or failed to decipher some of my characters hard to be understood, I know not.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. G. Roberts, Glenmora, La., Feb. 22, 1899: "We had the pleasure of returning to Spring Creek charge. We are getting along very nicely so far, to have as much bad weather as we have had. The people have not forgotten their preacher. One lady brought us some fresh pork, lard, molasses, and other nice things, and one brother brought us some corn, fodder, fresh pork, and potatoes. We hope they will come again. The stewards have not forgotten that we must have some money the first of the year as well as the latter part. The parsonage is about two miles from Glenmora, La. It may be more convenient if the parsonage was at Glenmora, but we have a quiet time where it is. We have torn down the old fence around the parsonage and lot, and replaced it with a new one, which has interfered with the hogs and cattle."

Rev. R. Bradley: "At our last Conference, held at Hattiesburg, I was returned to Steen's Creek to complete my full term. On Jan. 1 (evening after my return) my people gave me a reception, bringing with them many good things, for which they have our thanks. After supper and some conversation we read a portion of Scripture and offered prayer. We have recently re covered our church at Steen's Creek; are now raising money for carpeting the church; also making arrangements for painting the parsonage. Since I have been here we have built a stable, crib, and buggy house, and when the parsonage is painted, we will have one of the most comfortable parsonages in the Jackson district. So the brethren who are looking around can make a note of that. Last Saturday and Sunday we held our first quarterly meeting. On Sunday we received six into the church on profession of faith and by certificate. My people were more than pleased. They were delighted with our new presiding elder, Rev. T. B. Holloman. No doubt Bishop Galloway made a good selection for our district. I intend to present your one-dollar offer to my congregations when the roads and weather are all right. I hope that all the brethren will give your proposition a good trial. Some time ago I was talking with a brother about the waste-basket and refused articles. If this sees the light, then I can say I never wrote anything that ever found its way to the waste-basket, or refused, or returned. In conclusion, let me say that I never thought that the presiding elder of Forest district would ever be mad bound, or back down on anything."

A woman who takes chances with her health is simply gambling with the Black Devil of Disease. If she has any weakness or derangement of the delicate organism of her sex, to rely upon an unskilled, inexperienced, general practitioner is to risk her health upon a gambler's hazard. Her only real safety is in the careful well-digested advice of a physician who has had wide, special experience in diseases of this particular class.

The chief consulting physician of the famous Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. R. V. Pierce, has devoted thirty years of special study and practice to the weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women. His grand medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," has done more to restore perfect health and strength to women than any other medicine. It is the only proprietary medicine devised for this purpose by an educated, skilled specialist in woman's peculiar ailments.

A woman writing to Dr. Pierce regarding herself may feel absolute assurance of receiving, free of charge, the best professional advice by means of which the most obstinate of these delicate troubles may be promptly relieved and permanently cured.

Barbra A. Mudd, of Indian Creek, Monroe Co., Mo., writes: "I am very thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me. I was all broke down from nervous prostration, but since taking this medicine I have had more relief than from all the doctors. Your 'Favorite Prescription' did me a world of good."

Best Edition of the World's Best Book

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to March, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to March, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to April, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1899

I ask not wealth, but power to take
And use the things I have aright;
Not years, but wisdom that shall make
My life a profit and delight.

I ask not that for me the plan
Of good and ill be set aside;
But that the common lot of man
Be nobly borne and glorified.
—Phoebe Cary.

Happiness is a road-side flower, blooming on the highway of usefulness.—Anon.

Idleness in its commencement is like a spider's web, but it finishes in a chain of iron.—Anon.

It is not enough to be orthodox in our belief, we must be orthodox in our actions also.—Standard.

Aspirations without faith are powerful only for destruction. They can kindle a revolution, but they can not mould a new order.—Westcott.

Many indeed think of being happy with God in heaven; but the being happy with God on earth never enters their thoughts.—John Wesley.

Of all virtues, magnanimity is the rarest; there are a hundred persons of merit for one who willingly acknowledges it in another.—Selected.

Think of what you are—a child of God, an heir of heaven. Realize the grandeur of saintliness, and you will shrink from degrading your soul and debasing your spirit.—F. W. Robertson.

Blessed is he who lives in God, who incarnates love, purity, holiness, who manifests the divine, and whom nothing can ever divorce from the oneness he has with the Infinite and Eternal life.—A. W. Martin.

A man's time, when well husbanded, is like a cultivated field, of which a few acres produces more of what is useful to life, than extensive provinces, even of the richest soil, when overrun with weeds and brambles.—Hume.

Life, like war, is a series of mistakes, and he is not the best Christian nor the best general who makes the fewest false steps. He is the best who wins the most splendid victories by the retrieval of mistakes.—F. W. Robertson.

The commonplace man, doing the commonplace task with more than commonplace fidelity and quietness, is in greater demand in the world to-day than a Napoleon, a Shakespeare, a Franklin or a Knox.—Christian Uplook.

In morality there are books enough written both by ancient and modern philosophers, but the morality of the gospel doth so exceed them all, that to give a man a full knowledge of true morality, I shall send him to no other book than the New Testament.—Locke.

He that would be cured of the habit of running down people must help answer his own prayer by forming the habit of standing up for people. If we should undertake to stand up for one-tenth of the people we hear unjustly censured, we would have neither the time nor the disposition to run down anybody.—Richmond Advocate.

MAKESHIFTS.

A makeshift may be defined as "something adopted as a temporary contrivance, or expedient, in an emergency." It is not intended to be permanent, nor is it supposed to be worthy of painstaking effort. There are many occasions when makeshifts are not only expedient, but necessary, as, for instance, the hasty strengthening of a weak place in a levee in time of flood; mending a buggy, or harness, that has given way on the road. Not every kind of work needs to be done with the same care, for the reason that all work is not of the same importance. It is a waste of time to bestow large attention upon trifles. Soldiers do not think of building for themselves strong and comfortable dwellings at a spot where they are to remain only a few days or weeks. The same is true of railroad-builders and timber-cutters, who remain but a short time in one place. Rough cabins, which are soon put together, and can be easily taken down, amply serve their purpose.

Makeshifts, then, have a legitimate place in this busy world; but, while this is true, it is a great mistake to resort to them constantly, as the manner of some is. There are many whose mental vision is so limited that they seldom see things in true proportion. Everything is done hurriedly and imperfectly.

Great is the unwisdom of letting our work drive us, and of allowing ourselves to be forced thus to fall back upon a makeshift policy, which cheats us out of the attainment of what is excellent and valuable. Students often prepare their lessons so as to recite well, but take little pains to master what they go over so as to have a firm foundation for the future. Mere lesson-getting does not make scholars. Again: many young men, in order the sooner to get into business, take a short cut in education by means of a business course, which, though advantageous in many respects, fails to produce that thorough discipline of the mental faculties which enables its possessor to succeed in almost anything he undertakes.

On account of press of pastoral duties, personal affliction, or unusual demands upon their time, ministers are now and then forced to prepare sermons after a makeshift fashion; but we pity the man who drifts into the habit of thus getting ready for the pulpit, trusting to the stimulus of the occasion for clear thought, cogent argument, and striking utterance. The fact that the Spirit honors an extempore sermon in an emergency is no sign that he will honor every such sermon. A full mind and a glowing heart, which should be back of every sermon, are not the product of a few moments of hurried thought and prayer.

Almost everywhere there are sad evidences of makeshift methods. Many a farmer lives on from year to year in a shiftless fashion, making no improvements on his land or buildings.

Parents ofttimes, in order to purchase temporary rest and ease, send their children to a neighbor's or allow them to roam the streets at will. In the years to come they almost invariably reap tears and bitterness of soul as the result of their folly. The following incidents from one of our exchanges strikingly illustrates the point we have in mind:

A gentleman visiting a professional friend of his lately, found him reading a school-boy's essay. By conversation he learned that his friend gave several hours every day to the training of his children.

"How can you spare so much time from your professional cares?" asked the astonished visitor when he understood the amount of his friend's work for his children's education.

"I could not well spare less, when I look ahead," was the answer.

"Just what do you mean?"

"These boys and girls of mine will never die; I am building for eternity," said the man earnestly.

Worst of all is a makeshift religious experience, by which we mean an experience with which men content themselves in health, but which they would not be willing to trust in the hour of death. They seem to imagine it good enough for the present, since it passes muster with the world, but expect to seek a better one at some indefinite time in the future. Thus they continue to procrastinate until death comes suddenly and finds them unprepared. Well has it been said, "That only is important which is eternal." Let us have done with the makeshift type of religion, whose ideals lie within the realm of time and sense. A religion that allows the temporal to obscure the eternal is utterly worthless. No believer is safe who subordinates the spiritual to the material. As Prof. Drummond wisely says, "The immortal soul must give itself to that which is immortal."

"A CENTENNIAL RETROSPECT."

As this year marks the centenary of Methodism in Mississippi, and the first Methodist sermon having been preached by Tobias Gibson in Adams county, I have procured and read with great interest Dr. W. C. Black's "Centennial Retrospect." This little book is replete with interesting information to every Methodist in Mississippi. This very valuable contribution to Mississippi Methodist literature can be procured of Dr. Black, the author, 512 Camp St., New Orleans. Get it and read it.

R. D. NORSWORTHY.

Natchez, Miss.

The book of which Bro. Norsworthy speaks was written in '84 during the author's pastorate in Natchez. In its issue of Dec. 18, of that year, the New York Advocate said: "A well-written pamphlet. . . . It will serve as a great aid to any successor of Abel Stevens, who may yet write the later history of Methodism in the United States." It can be had at this office at the following prices: Cloth, 25 cents; paper, 10 cents.

A MISSIONARY SOCIETY AT WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

This promising society of more than thirty members forms the second on the list of missionary societies in our church schools in the Mississippi Conference. Port Gibson established the worthy precedent, and other Conference schools could take no wiser step toward the Christian education of our young ladies than to follow the example of these two institutions in incorporating, as part of their work, a lively and genuine enthusiasm for foreign missions.

People of a practical turn, who insist that a preacher should confine his teaching to the truths which his congregation can readily grasp for immediate use, find little for their encouragement in the example of Jesus and the experience of his disciples. For three years the great Teacher poured the truth into the minds of his disciples, and when he left them they were utterly mystified. It is doubtful whether they had a single clear conception. Men appeared as trees walking. But a little while after he was gone something happened, and, lo! the sun came out and they understood it all. One reason why we get so little out of the Word is because we are content to study in the present the truths which are needed only for the present. A time of trouble is a poor time to find out what the Bible says about trouble. We should find out now, and when the trouble comes there will be something for the Holy Ghost to bring to our remembrance.—Richmond Advocate.

A NEW BOOK.

THE DIVINE LIBRARY; SUGGESTIONS HOW TO READ THE BIBLE. By J. Paterson Smyth, B. D., LL.D., author of "How We Got Our Bible," "How God Inspired the Bible," etc. 128 pages. Cloth. 50 cents. New York: James Pott & Co.

Among the many volumes on "How to Study the Bible" recently issued from the press, we do not remember to have seen a more excellent or interesting one than this. It is simple, yet scholarly; brief, yet comprehensive; bold, yet orthodox. There is no other book that ought to be studied more earnestly, intelligently and constantly by the Christian than the Bible; and yet, as the author indicates, hardly any other book is read in such an indolent and haphazard fashion. The author emphasizes the fact that in its teachings God's Word is progressive, the full truth at last shining forth in the life and words of Christ, and thus clears up many difficulties that present themselves to the average Bible student as he notes the permission of certain usages in Old Testament times that fall below the level of an enlightened Christian conscience. The discussion of the manner of inspiration, to which one chapter is devoted, is luminous, reasonable, and reassuring. The author makes it clear that two things are requisite in proper Bible study, namely: "study with the mind, intelligently, and study with the heart, devotionally." As he says: "A very good man, who is stupid and illogical, will make very grave mistakes about the meaning of the Bible. A very clever man, who has no enthusiasm for righteousness, will see in the Bible nothing but an ordinary book." Ministers, teachers, League workers, and all who want light on the best methods of Bible study, will find this book of great value. Among the chapters of especial interest are those on "Using Our Common Sense," and on "One-Sided Truths."

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

Self-Culture, for March, is a very attractive number of an interesting and valuable magazine, which has rapidly made for itself a high position among the periodicals which appeal to lovers of good literature. The cover this month presents a fine portrait of Governor Roosevelt, of New York, in citizen's dress. This number has eighteen leading articles in addition to the usual interesting and thoughtful review of "The World and Its Doings," by the editor; and the nine departments are so filled with matter of interest to people of widely varied tastes, that one must be truly hard to please who can not find in this issue something in itself worth more than the price of the magazine.

The March Book Buyer opens with a timely article on "Stevenson, Kipling, and Anglo-Saxon Imperialism," in which is outlined the remarkable influence these brilliant writers have exerted upon the public sentiment of their time, both in England and America.

The Review of Reviews, for March, contains an illustrated sketch of the late President Faure, of France; a sketch of General Otis, our governor general in the Philippines, by Col. William Conant Church; two heavily illustrated articles on the native Filipino population, one of which was written by Senor Caro y Mora, editor of the Voz Espanola, of Manila; an illustrated account of present-day conditions in Porto Rico, by Dr. William Hayes Ward, who has just made an extended tour through the island; a study of several of the young Cuban leaders of the day, by George Reno, with portraits.

The March number of McClure's Magazine contains short stories by Rudyard Kipling, Frank Norris, and Louise Herrick Wall. The account of the marvelous new substance, liquid air, based on conversations with the discoverer, Charles E. Tripler, presents new and interesting facts concerning the use of liquid air. The first of a series of articles and pictures, by Charles D. Gibson, depicting Egypt as he saw it last year, illustrates the peculiarities and characteristics of the Egyptians of to-day. H. H. Lewis tells the story of General Wood's extraordinary achievements in the renovation and government of Santiago.

The March Forum has an interesting list of subjects. Here are some of them: "Diplomatic Pay and Clothes," by Mark Twain; "Is Our Army Degenerate?" by Col. Alexander S. Bacon; "The Future of Our Navy," by Capt. H. C. Taylor, of the United States Battleship "Indiana"; "Life on Other Worlds," by Prof. D. T. MacDougal; "What Shall We Do with the Philippines?" by Ex-Minister Charles Denby, and "A Lost Eden—Cuba," by Dr. Felix L. Oswald.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine, for March, opens with an article by the editor, J. B. Walker, entitled, "The Building of an Empire," in which he treats of the life and work of Mohammed. This is the second of a series of articles on the same subject. "The North American Indian of To-day" is the title of a profusely illustrated article. A very interesting description of the process of making flour appears in this number. A poem and several other equally important articles add to the attractive features of this magazine.

NOTES.

In our marriage notice column in this issue, our friend, Rev. W. M. Williams, gives our readers a little of "the spice of life."

* * *

Rev. T. B. Clifford shed the light of his countenance into our sanctum recently en route home from a trip to Amite and Kentwood.

Rev. H. M. Banks has made an auspicious beginning on the Gansville charge.

* * *

Dr. J. W. Shoaff, of the Alabama Conference, has been quite ill, but is convalescent.

* * *

It is stated in the papers that Bishop H. C. Morrison will soon remove from Atlanta to Louisville.

* * *

Bishop Cranston, of the M. E. Church, recently had the honor of an interview with the Emperor of Korea.

* * *

Rev. A. J. Kynette, Church Extension Secretary of the M. E. Church, died a few days since at Harrisburg, Pa.

* * *

Rev. C. T. Monholland will begin a meeting at Tchonpitoulas on Wednesday night, March 8. He will be assisted by several of the city pastors.

* * *

Rev. J. B. Gregory, presiding elder of the Tuscaloosa district, Alabama Conference, died at Tuscaloosa on the third. He was buried at Birmingham.

* * *

Rev. R. L. Webb, of the Mississippi Conference, writing from McLaurin, Miss., says: "I am delighted with my new work. The prospects are very bright."

* * *

The Louisiana State Epworth League will be held at Crowley, April 20-23. Let Louisiana Leaguers take notice, and let every League in the State send delegates.

* * *

Rev. W. T. Woodward writes that the people of Le Compte, La., have given him a most cordial reception, and that he regards the outlook for the year as decidedly hopeful.

* * *

Rev. V. D. Skipper will begin a meeting at Louisiana Avenue on Friday night, the tenth. He will be assisted by Rev. T. B. Clifford. The meeting will continue about ten days.

* * *

The Alabama Advocate reports that Dr. Z. A. Parker, president of the North Alabama Conference College at Birmingham, who has been quite seriously ill, is on his feet again.

A live, progressive pastor writes, "I am determined to put the ADVOCATE into the homes of all my official members, even though it may have to go to some of them at my own expense."

* * *

We invite special attention to the articles of Rev. W. H. Huntley and Rev. D. Scarborough, on our third page, anent the meeting of the Mississippi Conference Sunday-school Association, to be held at Lumberton.

* * *

The Illinois Legislature has passed a bill appropriating $9,000 for a statue of Frances E. Willard, to be placed in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington. This will be the first statue of a woman in the rotunda.

* * *

In a private letter Rev. R. W. Tucker, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge district, writes: "You are giving us an excellent paper. I read it with real relish. May God speed you in the good work you are doing for the church!"

* * *

Hon. Henry C. Miller, one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, died at his home in this city on Saturday, the fourth, and was buried on the sixth. He was a man of admirable character and a jurist of pre-eminent ability.

* * *

Rev. G. S. Barsoom is still in the city pleading the cause of the Armenians. He made three addresses last Sabbath, viz: at Carondelet, at Parker Memorial, and at Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian Church. He has awakened much interest in the cause.

* * *

Rev. J. S. Parker, of the Mississippi Conference, and his family have been the recipients of many kind attentions from the good people of Caseyville. He and his flock seem to have organized a mutual admiration society. The outlook for the year is decidedly hopeful.

* * *

Rev. J. M. Wyatt, of the Aberdeen district, North Mississippi Conference, is one man who does not think it beneath the dignity of the presiding eldership to work for his Conference organ. He not only talks for it on his rounds, but takes subscriptions. May his tribe increase!

Have you sent in any items of church news to your Conference organ this year? If not, why not?

* * *

Under the pastorate of Rev. Burnette Wright, Burgundy Street Church is making noticeable progress. There has been a large increase in the attendance at the Sabbath services and also at the prayer meeting. The Sunday-school and the Epworth League are both flourishing.

* * *

We invite special attention to the communication of Dr. Murrah. Millsaps College is properly an institution of which Mississippi Methodists are justly proud. Now is a good time for its friends to do something handsome for it. Let its endowment be largely increased and its equipment be improved.

* * *

Mrs. Jane Gibbs, of Vicksburg, died at the home of her son, J. R. Gibbs, in Grenada, Miss., Feb. 21, in her seventy-fifth year. She was a woman of fine native endowments and most admirable character. She was a thoroughly consecrated Christian and an ardent Methodist. She leaves to her loved ones the priceless heritage of a consistent life and godly example.

* * *

Rev. C. A. Powell, pastor at Crystal Springs, has been very ill. On the ninth day he sat up some, but is fair to recover promptly. His people think of sending him to Brown's Well to recuperate. Bro. Powell has large and appreciative audiences, and his people will take good care of him. His brethren sincerely trust that he will be himself soon, and able to resume his work so auspiciously begun. H. WALTER FEATHERSTON.

March 1, 1899.

We hope Bro. Powell will soon be entirely restored, and that in that inviting field he may gather many sheaves for the Master's garner.

* * *

Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D., General Secretary and editor of the Epworth League, called at our office Monday morning and attended the Preachers' Meeting of this district. He gave a very encouraging report of the Epworth League and of the Era. He reported that the Era during the month of January paid its way for the first time in its history, and five hundred dollars over. But if he does not slacken his pace, he will break down. No man can long stand the strain he is under.—Alabama Advocate.

* * *

The Ninth International Sunday-school Convention will assemble in Atlanta, Ga., April 26, and will continue in session for five days. This convention will be made up of delegates from all State organizations of the Union and of similar organizations in foreign countries. It will be composed of representative, practical Christian people from all evangelical denominations. Just twenty-one years ago the convention met at Atlanta and there instituted the International Sunday-school Lesson Program.

* * *

We are in receipt of a copy of the "Minutes of the Nineteenth Annual Session of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference of the M. E. Church, South," held at Brookhaven, Dec 28, '98; Miss Addie V. Marshall, president; Mrs. C. R. McQueen, secretary—a pamphlet of twenty-odd pages containing the matter that properly belongs to such a publication. The secretarial work seems to be accurately and skillfully done. As the pamphlet bears the imprint of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, it goes without saying that it is gotten up in a neat, tasteful style.

* * *

From a private letter from Rev. J. L. Futrell, dated Coquille City, Oregon, Feb. 18, we quote as follows: "We have had a pleasant Winter so far. Mercury has ranged between 30 and 50, 60, except 2 days, when it went down to 10 and 12, giving us one inch of ice—coldest since I've been here, but our turnips, mustard etc., is green in our gardens and the grass gives good pastures for our cows. If man were as good as nature this would be a delightful land, but we long to be out of this and back in our beloved Southland. We have a transfer from West Virginia—Rev. J. L. Fitch as pastor—and I tell you his preaching and work does us good. He is still warm with or from the touch of sympathy or brotherly love as shown in the South, and has not yet become phlegmatic as so many do so soon after coming out here. May he never do so; but it is hard to stem the current."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Jackson, La., EDITOR.

Don't forget to go to Crowley in April.

The time and place of holding the Arcadia District League meeting has been changed. April 27-30 is the time; Minden the place.

The League work in this district seems to be well organized. The officers are earnest and efficient.

A letter recently received from Rev. Jno. T. Sawyer, D D, presiding elder of the Shreveport district, informs us of his purpose to arrange for a District League Meeting at an early date.

All presidents of Leagues in the above-named (Shreveport) district are requested to meet at Texas Ave. Church, Shreveport, at 3 P M, Thursday, March 9, to arrange time, place and program.

The District League Meeting means much to the young people, many of whom can not attend the State or International Conferences.

If the young people in each presiding elder's district in Louisiana and Mississippi could be aroused to a true sense of their duty and responsibility, they would prove to be a power in the work of each local church.

Larger equipment and more efficient service is the demand in Church and State. Let us, as Methodists, measure up and take our places in the front rank of nineteenth century progress.

Let us not only sing, "Christ for the world," but let us work and pray and pay until the uttermost parts of the earth have become his possession.

During a recent visit to Amite City we found Rev. Harry W. May, the pastor, talking and planning for an Epworth League.

While pastor of the church at Arcadia, that League, which is now among the livest in the State, was organized.

We are glad to note that the Conehatta Epworth League has elected a correspondent whose duty shall be to furnish items from the work for this column. Let other Leagues do likewise.

Constant travel in the interest of educational matters make it necessary that this scribe have help in editing this column. The help needed can easily be supplied if some member of each League will send in occasional notes. Presiding elders and pastors can likewise help.

ALL ABOARD FOR CROWLEY!

Epworth Leaguers intending to go to Crowley to attend the State Conference, April 20-23, please communicate with W. B. Thomson, No. 227 South Rampart street, in order to secure accommodations in the special Epworth car. Fare for round trip from New Orleans only $5. Let every League be represented.

NOTICE.

The Arcadia District League Conference meets in Minden, April 28 29, 30. An attractive program is in course of preparation, and much interest is manifested. The opening sermon is to be preached by Rev. J. L. Pierce, of Monroe. The Executive District Council is busy and making things come to pass. Let our Leaguers rally, and each be found at the post of duty LEAGUER.

GRAND NATIONAL PRIZE OF 16,600 FRANCS AT PARIS.

IMPORTANT NOTICE PERTAINING TO SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONFERENCE AT LUMBERTON.

The Sunday-school Conference will convene on the twenty-ninth (Wednesday) of March instead of on the thirtieth. The change was made so as to get through with the business Friday evening. If the change had not been made, many of the delegates would have had to leave before the Conference was over, and the others would have had to remain in Lumberton till Monday. We hope everybody will take notice of the change.

The I. C. company have also granted one and one-third fare over their lines on the certificate plan. Delegates will have to pay one full fare to Jackson, West Point, or Starkville, Miss., or to New Orleans, La., on the I. C. road, and on the Y., and M. V. road purchase ticket to Jackson, Durant, or Vicksburg, Miss., or to New Orleans, La. Secure certificate when purchasing ticket. These certificates will be signed by the secretary of the Conference, and will entitle you to one-third fare returning.

Let everybody who can attend the Conference. Several prominent men are on the programme.

A LADY TELLS HOW SHE SUPPORTS HERSELF AND FAMILY.

"I often read of ladies who work hard trying to earn enough to keep body and soul together, and for their benefit I will relate how easily one can get along in the world if they only know how. There is a big firm in Pittsburg that manufactures flavoring powders. I had tried them myself and knew they were splendid, so sent for samples and tried selling them. I found it so pleasant and easy that I have kept right at it, and never make less than $3 a day and often clear more than $5. The powders go twice as far as the liquid extracts sold in stores and are much stronger. I sell from one to eight different flavors in each house. They are used for ice cream, custards, cakes, candies, etc., and are so delicate and give such a rich flavor that everywhere I go I gain a permanent customer. Those of your readers who would like to make money can get full particulars by writing to W. H. Baird & Co., 103 Telephone Bldg E. E, Pittsburg Pa, and they will give you a good start. I support myself and family nicely, and we have a good many comforts we never had before." "L"

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE MINUTES.

The "copy" for the Minutes was sent to the printers from the Conference, and twenty-four hours after the adjournment it was all in their hands. Their promise was to have the job completed in about twenty days, but sickness among them, and the bad weather, have caused delay.

On Friday, Feb. 24, the mailing was completed, and the Minutes now ought to be in the hands of all the pastors. Some pastors wrote to me for their quota even before the printing had been completed. If they, or others, have not received their Minutes by this date, let them write to me, and I will see what can be done to supply them.

AN EXPLANATION.

MR. EDITOR: By referring to the Minutes of the Mississippi Conference, you will see that the report of Whitestown circuit is omitted. Please allow me to explain the cause. After making my report to the Conference, I got a leave of absence. On my return Monday, I presented my report to the statistical secretary, and he refused to accept it; said it was too late.

The Lord gave us a gracious year. We had sixty net gain to our membership, and raised more than $2,400.

THE MINUTES OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: Nearly two months and a half have elapsed since Conference, and still we are without our Minutes. I have had great and urgent need for them more than a dozen times, but am deprived of that convenience, and why? If we ever need the Minutes at all (and they are a necessity), we need them early in the year, not after a quarter or third of the year has gone. If it is possible to get the Minutes out earlier—say in the month of January—then by all means let us have them then; but if it takes three and four months to edit and publish them, let us dispense with them altogether. If it is argued that our secretaries and editor are itinerant preachers, and encumbered with all the cares and responsibilities of pastors, and are, therefore, unable to give us our Minutes sooner, I would suggest that we employ one not so engrossed with other matters—some layman, for instance. The above is a poor apology for the tardy forthcoming of the Minutes, since we all know that these brethren are remunerated for their arduous labors, and their service here is not gratis. If we pay for a piece of work that we need done right away, we want it done, and that's the sum of it. I want my Minutes, and my people want them, and we are kicking, too.

THESE ARE THE MONTHS IN WHICH TO PURIFY YOUR BLOOD.

This is the season when your blood is loaded with impurities, accumulated during the winter months from close confinement, rich food, and other causes. These impurities must be driven from your system or they may breed serious disease and cause untold suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest and best blood purifying medicine it is possible to obtain. It is what the millions take in the Spring. It will purify and enrich your blood, create an appetite, tone up your system, and give you sound, robust health.

PAINT TALKS—XIV.

PAINT FOR SLEEPING ROOMS.

The modern dwelling is generally furnished as if the chief object were to gather and conceal dirt. With lace curtains at the windows, "fuzzy" paper on the walls and "fuzzy" carpet on the floors, about everything possible has been done to encourage dirt. When to these are added a deleterious crumbling paint on the wood-work, the way not to do it is perfectly illustrated.

Windows of sleeping rooms should be protected preferably with fixed blinds, but lacking these, nothing but good, easily removable shades on spring rollers should be tolerated. Wall paper should be eschewed and the walls should be painted, in some light careful tint, with a paint containing no poisonous materials. For this use the only fit pigment is zinc-white, the tints being obtained by adding ultramarine for the blue tones, earth colors for yellow; brown and red tints, lamp black for the grays, and combinations of these pigments for the other desired tints.

The wood work, unless of light colored wood finished in the natural state and varnished, should be painted exclusively with the same pigments, varnish being added if an enamel effect is desired. The floor, if to old or too open for filling and "waxing," or varnishing, should be smoothed off, and after puttying all seams, cracks and nail-holes, should be painted with a good oil paint containing no lead; zinc-white or a combination based on zinc-white, colored with iron oxides, or earth colors (ochre, sienna, umbers, metallic brown, etc.) being used exclusively as pigments. Over this should be laid a removable rug, which can be taken up, aired and shaken at frequent intervals, the floor being well wiped with a wet cloth while the rug is up. The painted walls should also be washed at the periodical "cleaning" times.

Wall paper, curtains, carpets and deleterious paints are probably responsible, either directly or indirectly, for the introduction and propagation of many ailments, especially in children. White lead, which is among the least of durable of pigments, is, like all lead compounds, an active poison, and it is notable among paints for its tendency to crumble off the painted surface in the form of dust. Furthermore, as it blackens in the presence of the gases always found in dwelling houses, it is undesirable on esthetic grounds. Zinc-white, on the other hand, is absolutely non-poisonous, has a brilliant clear white color, which produces remarkably pure and brilliant tints with other colors, and is the most permanent of pigments, both as regards color and material.

A great deal of attention is usually paid to the food and clothing of children. It would be wise to extend this attention to the hygienic conditions of their ordinary surroundings. STANTON DUDLEY.

CHRISTIAN WOMANHOOD.

BY REV. W. C. BLACK, D D.

The above-named work has had a sale of nearly six thousand. From the many scores of highly commendatory notices that have appeared in the church papers, we present the following:

"We hope it will be read by every woman in the church."—Florida Advocate.

"It is the best thesaurus of facts concerning womanhood with which we are acquainted. The author has evidently given painstaking thought and care to the preparation of this volume. After showing the degraded condition of woman under the highest pagan civilizations, he demonstrates that it was Christianity that began to raise her to higher levels, and that since the Reformation the good work has been going forward. We wish thousands of women to read this excellent volume."—Dr. C. F. Deems.

"This volume is the result of patient investigation and thoughtful study of the whole question treated. In the formulation of the case and in analyzing the testimony, a vigorous, well-poised legal mind is brought to bear. Dr. Black, moreover, establishes the points of his discussion as a skilful general establishes his lines of battle in the face of an alert enemy. As he begins, so he closes, leaving the impression that a master in Israel has written bravely, and telling of Christian womanhood, maintaining his position at every turn. The book is needed, and will long be in popular demand."—Sunday-School Magazine, Nashville, Tenn.

"In place of the well-worn platitudes and sickly sentimentalism usual in the treatment of this subject, Dr. Black offers us the ripe results of historical research. He bases his arguments upon indisputable facts, expresses his convictions freely and fearlessly, and defends his conclusions with a zeal according to knowledge, both of logic and of rhetoric. Whoever reads this book will be profoundly moved in thought and feeling, whether he indorses it as a whole or not."—Catalogue, Publishing House M E. Church, South.

The price is $1, and we will send it postpaid on receipt of that sum. But to that select class who subscribe for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we make the following special offer: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, and send us sixty cents additional, and we will send you the book postpaid.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1 50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to February, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

To Subscribers.

Allow me to call attention to the fact that many of you are in arrears with the ADVOCATE. As I pay cash for labor, material and everything needful for carrying on the paper, may I not expect that all of you who are in arrears will remit promptly the amount of your indebtedness?

In remitting do not send a check on your local bank. We shall hereafter deduct the cost of collecting from the amount of the check and give credit for the remainder. W. C. BLACK, Publisher.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys: if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble: too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Home Circle.

THE MOTHERS OF MEN.

BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

The bravest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the map of the world you'll find it not—
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay, not with words of eloquence fraught
From the mouths of wondrous men.

But deep in the walled-up mother's heart,
A mother that will not yield,
But patiently, quietly bears her part—
To them in this battlefield.

No marshaled troops nor bivouac song,
No banners that gleam or wave,
But, oh, those battles they last so long—
From babyhood to the grave.

PLUCK AND PERSEVERANCE.

There are some boys and girls who, when they meet a difficulty in their way, sit down and say, "I never can conquer that; I'll just have to give up." With them "giving up" gets to be a chronic disease, until they will imagine troubles which do not exist, and hardly try to make any exertion at all. There are others who never give up to anything except something which can not possibly be conquered. A memoir was recently published in The Christian Advocate of a man who, for many years, worked as a saddler. Steady labor in one position brought on paralysis of the arms, but left him the power to use his hands. He then took up the work of a barber, and did that until a spinal disease developed which made him unable to stand. Not discouraged by even this affliction, the brave man mastered the jeweler's craft, and, by having an ingeniously contrived work-bench, toiled on even when, because of increasing paralysis, he could not lift his hands to his head.

Certainly he "did what he could," and what most persons in his place would have thought they could not do; and he had the reward of forgetting much of his pain in his work, and of living, self-supporting and self-respecting, until for him toil and pain were over.

It is better to have pluck and perseverance, and not have hands, than to have hands without the will to make them useful, as this account will show:

"A boy of fifteen, through accident, lost both of his feet, one hand, and the fingers and all but the stump of the thumb on the other. He had no friends, and it seemed a foregone conclusion that he must for the rest of his life be a burden on the public. So thought the good people whose business it was to provide in some way for him in his helpless condition; so did not think the boy to whom misfortune had come in no common measure.

"They said, 'Get him boarded somewhere where it can be done at the least expense.' He said, 'Give me a chance, and it won't be long before I will cease to be a burden to you.'

"Some thought his proposition not worth considering, but at last he was sent, as he had begged to be, to a good school, and was educated, and has since made his way in the world in a manner creditable even had he possessed a perfect body. He has been teacher and reporter and a successful newspaper man, and has earned the respect of all who know him. Artificial limbs make his loss almost unnoticed; and so cleverly is the lack concealed that the man with one arm who begged from him on the plea that one in his condition had a hard time, was quite unconscious that he was talking to a man with far greater drawbacks."

One would not think it very important for a lawyer to know much about ships and navigation, but a friend of Lord Chelmsford who was made ashamed in court by displaying ignorance in regard to lowering the topmast, began at once a systematic study. The result of this was that he patented a device for lowering topmasts, and for it received one hundred thousand dollars. Study does not pay everyone as liberally as that in money, but it always pays in some way.

Not only students, but young people in every walk of life, may find an excellent suggestion in this paragraph taken from The Philadelphia Call:

"At a recent gathering of students attending the different colleges of the Quaker City, Charles Emory Smith was one of the speakers. He discoursed on the pluck, energy, and determination a student must possess to finish a course with the will power to continue, and related a story of an engineer's prayer at a religious meeting to illustrate the point. The old man was called upon to pray. "O, Lord," said he, "give us plenty of coal on the tender, plenty of water in the boiler, and a good engine. But, Lord," and the offerer of the prayer became more fervent, "don't forget the sand to put on the track, so that when we have to climb a hill we'll not slip back."'"—New York Advocate.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT,

Malaria creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BLOODY URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste that children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun; brings as a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living.

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH YOUR EVENINGS?

Young man or woman, whose education has been almost entirely neglected, what will you do during the long Winter evenings which have already begun? Will you allow things to go on as they have? Will you drift with the current, taking no stand concerning your future, which, you prefer to believe, will take care of itself? That way danger lies; danger, an almost certainty that you will, by pursuing this course, remain among the eclipsed, the unnoticed, the unprovided for. The future never takes care of itself; it is taken care of, shaped, molded colored by the present. Our to-days are what our yesterdays made them; our to-morrows must inevitably be the products of our to-days.

In these days it is especially true that one need hope but little of him or her who does not in some measure, and along some line, become, and remain, educated. It is the time of specialties, and one who has little or no education, or an education which knows many things indifferently and nothing in particular, need not hope to successfully compete with the true-to one-point man or woman, or, indeed, to be successful at all.

This being true, what will you do? What can you do? Is there an evening school in your vicinity? Why not attend that? Failing that, or disliking the idea, why not arrange to take up some of the courses of the Cosmopolitan University, or some of the branches of one of the many different correspondence schools which you will, if you look for them, see advertised in reliable journals?

If you wish to take up some especial line of study, and you live where you are able to utilize the privileges of a public library, you can probably obtain books along the desired line, and secure comfort, quiet, and an intellectual atmosphere, which are such desirable conditions of effective mental accomplishment, in the library or reading-room. It is possible, in most cases easy, in these days, to obtain several good works on law, medicine, chemistry, engineering, astronomy—any subject whatsoever. Two hours', or even one hour's study each evening of the year, of one or two of the best of these works, will produce astonishing results in a year.

What will you, who possess ideas and knowledge, but not the facility and confidence to express them, do during these Winter evenings? Have you ever thought what advantage and source of entertainment a debating club would be to you? By meeting with several others for debate once or twice a week, you would, in three months, think and speak as easily on your feet as sitting, and as well before an audience as to your intimate friends, and would thus, also, become a good conversationalist. Many of our public men, notably Lincoln and Horace Greeley, developed their oratory in debating clubs.—Success.

RELIGIOUS READING

This includes not merely the Bible and strictly devotional books, but any literature which tends directly to enrich the spiritual life. It consists in large part of volumes of devout meditations, religious poetry and the biographies of persons eminent for saintly living. It often is said that the habit of religious reading is dying out, and undoubtedly many individuals, even among professed Christians, neglect it. But the very large sales of such publications afford strong evidence to the contrary.

There still is a vast demand for such reading and a deep interest in it. But its character has changed somewhat during the last half-century, especially in the department of biography. Many once popular volumes of this class now are never read because of their unnaturalness. It is recognized more than formerly that there must be genuine manliness or womanliness as truly as piety in any character if it is to exert a useful spiritual influence.

But it is well understood that religious reading promotes both self-knowledge and knowledge of God. It is an aid to holy reflection. It prompts to intelligent prayer. It opens the soul's eyes to the way of duty. It quickens and enlarges the whole spiritual nature. It encourages us by informing us of the victories of divine truth in the hearts of others and in the world at large.

The best books and journals for religious reading are not always those which deal exclusively with distinctively sacred subjects. We live in a world of manifold thought and action, and the highest type of religion takes this into account. Those publications which look at Christianity in its actual relations with mankind, which aim to help living people to learn and do God's will in common life, are usually the most helpful as well as the most enjoyable. But once in a while some book of old-world pious meditation, some actually mediæval record of religious mental processes or efforts, is found inspiring. Whatever by actual use brings Christ close is good for the soul.—The Congregationalist.

A CREED FOR THOSE IN SORROW.

I believe that the Lord oft loveth best whom he chastens most.

I believe that he who cares for the sparrow will not care less for me.

I believe that what seems darkest to me is perfectly clear to my Guide.

I believe that when I seem most forsaken, I am nearest the hour of my deliverance.

I believe that all things work together for good to them that love God.

I believe that where I now see, as through a glass, darkly, I shall soon see clearly.—Churchman.

Eve was the only woman who never threatened to go and live with mama, and Adam was the only man who never tantalized his wife about the way "mother used to cook."—Standard.

A living, loving Christian!—there is no stronger power on earth—no power can withstand him.

Hygiene.

YOUR STOMACH.

The happy, healthy man has no stomach, or lungs, or liver, or nerves, so far as he knows. The machinery runs smoothly. There is neither friction nor racket, squeaking or rattling. The stomach goes on and does its business and behaves itself, and there is no nonsense about it. But there are not many persons in this condition. Stomachs are abused and ill-treated, wronged and oppressed, and many a stomach groans and murmurs and rebels at the usage it receives.

Then stomachs are overloaded with food which can not be digested. They are pickled with brine; they are tanned with tea; they are peppered and salted; they are scalded with hot drinks; they are distended with hot swash; they are filled up with a conglomerate mass, which is swallowed without chewing, and washed down with a flood of drink, until the indigestible mass lies day after day until it rots and becomes as sour as a swill barrel, thus generating gases which, if not promptly belched up, work though the whole system, and fill it with discomfort and disease. The poisonous acids which are developed from this rotten food pass through the bowels, irritating and excoriating them, poisoning the alimentary canal, and filling the system with pain and death. Often the abuse of the stomach is so great that poisonous humors floating through the system concentrate as upon the weakest point, and then come scirrhous swellings, and incurable cancer of the stomach, as the result of years of outrage and abuse.

A few words of advice to people who have stomachs, and who wish to treat them right.

Do not swallow food whole. Let it be mashed, crushed, ground and chewed, until it is fine, and is thoroughly mixed with the saliva from the mouth.

Do not blister the stomach with spices, stimulants and condiments; do not pickle it with salt and brine. Do not put into your stomach a mass of food which, if it were spread on the outside, would draw a blister within twenty-four hours. Many diseases of the stomach would be promptly relieved by following this prescription: Put nothing in the stomach that you would be unwilling to put for a poultice on a raw sore. Bland, mild, innocent substances, which make good blood, will heal many an abused, diseased and disordered stomach. —Exchange.

JOB EARNED HIS TITLE BY GREAT SUFFERING. Had he flourished in these days, his recourse for consolation would not have been the company of three nagging friends, but a bottle of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL, which has a wonderful power to dissipate the inflammation, cool the feverishness, and completely cure boils and carbuncles.

Elder R. D. Pierce, of Chicago, the Oldest Minister of the Baptist Church, at Last Relieved of His Terrible Cancer. So Writes His Son, the Rev. J. A. Pierce.

151 East 75th Place, Windsor Park,
CHICAGO, ILL., Dec. 23, '98.

DR. D. M. BYE.

MY DEAR SIR—This letter should have been written some time ago. Referring to the case of my father, Rev. R. D. Pierce, of the same address as above whom you have treated for cancer on the right cheek, the results are more satisfactory than we dared to hope for. There is no sore and no scar. For this most blessed result we are more than grateful to God and to you and the treatment used. Father is in very good health for a man nearly 87 years of age. Please remember also that you have not yet returned the photograph sent you, which was to be returned, and not used in any advertising literature. I inclose stamps for the return of same. Please accept expressions of our most earnest gratitude for the treatment and care given, and for the very satisfactory results up to the present time. The sore has been healed for several weeks with no indication as yet of reappearing.

Yours sincerely and gratefully,
JAMES A. PIERCE,
Pastor Baptist Church, Windsor Park, Chicago, Ill.

P. S.—Any word of testimonial which you wish to use, either over father's name or my own, with reference to this case, you are at liberty to so use. If postage is sent, I will gladly answer any questions I can to any inquiries.
J. A. P.

OBITUARIES.

BROWN—Mrs. CORDELIA A. BROWN died May 5, 1893, after a very painful illness of several months.

Sister Brown was of the widely-known Favre family. She was the daughter of Mr. Ouezan Favre, one of the first settlers of Pearlington, and sister of Capt. J. A. and Hon. T. M. Favre. She was born in Pearlington, Aug. 3, 1841; spent the fifty-six years of her life there loved and honored.

November 10, 1859, she was married to Mr. George W. Brown, a true and noble man, with whom she lived in great happiness for thirty-one years. His death, which occurred eight years before hers, was the end of a wedded life of singular beauty and happiness. He died of consumption, and all through the weary months and years of his illness she was ministering in her loving ministries, and never seemed so happy as when sacrificing every personal comfort to contribute to his happiness. Eight children were the issue of this happy union. One, just developed into beautiful Christian womanhood, died several years ago, the remaining seven are living in Pearlington, filling positions of honor and usefulness in church, business, and social circles.

She was converted shortly after her marriage, and joined the M. E. Church, South. She was devoted to her church; loved its doctrines, polity, history, ministry and fellowship. The writer, as her pastor, was intimately associated with her for four years, and always found her cheerful and helpful in her religious life. She was never absent from preaching services unless providentially hindered. She was always ready to visit and minister freely to the poor and sick. To her pastor and his family she gave the most loving attention. She was a pure-spirited, consecrated and noble Christian woman. Her last days were full of peace. The writer never served a more loyal parishioner, nor had a more devoted friend, than Sister Brown. She was fondly of him in her last hour. In her death he has a painful sense of personal bereavement.

The Methodist Church at Pearlington has sustained an almost irreparable loss in her death, but heaven is brought nearer to us who knew and loved her. FORMER PASTOR.

SLEDGE—Mrs. M. M. SLEDGE (nee Moore), born and reared in Claiborne county, Miss., but for a number of years a resident of Madison county, died on Jan. 22 1899, at the age of fourscore and four years. She was twice married, first to Mr. D. F. Tidwell, and to them were born ten children, three of whom are now living—i. e., Rev. A. T. Tidwell, of the St. Louis Conference; Mr. L. F. Tidwell, of Louisiana, and Mrs. J. H. Ray, of Madison. Her second marriage was to Rev. S. S. Sledge, a local Methodist minister, who, a decade ago, preceded her to the spirit world. She leaves one brother, the venerable Methodist, W. A. Moore, of Fannin, Miss.

It was fitting that her spirit should have taken its flight on the peaceful Sabbath, so suggestive of her life. A more amiable disposition than hers I never knew. I had known her intimately since my childhood, and never did I see her angry. To find where she now rests we have only to turn to the fifteenth Psalm, where are described those who shall abide in his tabernacle and dwell in his holy hill. She was a member of the Methodist Church, and was buried at Pearl River Church Cemetery, where have been interred many of her friends and relatives.

Our sympathy goes out to her bereaved children, especially to the daughter, whose home seems now so desolate without the sweet mother from whom she had never been separated. May they find comfort in the hope of meeting her again! HELEN STEWART.
Madison, Miss.

CARTER—Miss MARGARET LELA CARTER was born in Jackson county, Miss., June 5, 1874, and died Jan. 20, 1899. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when about ten years of age was converted July 17, 1893.

Sister Lela had been an invalid for several years. Although her affliction was of long duration, yet she bore it with Christian fortitude. I was her pastor for two years. I think she was the most patient sufferer I ever visited. I never heard her murmur or complain of her lot being hard, but was patient, ever trusting in the mercy of her blessed Savior. From her conversion she was filled with sweet peace and abiding trust in God, making her life like precious ointment poured forth, and its perfume will linger long in the hearts of many who witnessed her last illness. She would plead with those around her to seek Jesus and prepare to meet her in heaven. She told her parents not to grieve after her, for she was going to live with Jesus. She requested that while her grave was being filled up, that the song, with the chorus, "And I will cross the river of Jordan," etc., should be sung, substituting the words, "And I will cross," with the words, "And I have crossed," etc.

She leaves a kind father, mother, brother, five sisters and a large circle of friends to mourn their loss, but their loss is her eternal gain. J. L. JORDAN.

ERVIN—VIRGINIA ERVIN, daughter of Hon. A. J. Ervin, died at her home in Crawford, August, 1898.

Virginie gone! Oh, God! to think
Our dear one in the grave to sink,
Where we can see her form no more.
Oh, help us, God! we do implore;
Look down in pity where we kneel.
"Thou knowest best," this truth we feel;
But human are our poor, weak hearts,
And grief o'ercome this stroke imparts
To us just now.

For blinded are our eyes with tears;
Through this dark sorrow nought appears
As yet to show us why she died;
Our precious one now angel guide.
Ah! yet; we watched her soul embark
On Death's broad river, deep and dark,
And prayed so earnestly to thee
To spare her yet awhile; we see
Thy way not now.

So young and beautiful was she,
Virginia dear, a loan from thee;
Thou hast recalled her to thy side,
Forever with thee to abide.
We question not the right to take;
"Thy will be done," tho' our hearts break.
Dear Father, teach us so to live
That whether thou dost take or give,
We may submissive bow.

God's way we can not understand,
But all is right where he has planned.
This faith we have: that some great good
Affliction brings not understood.
A Christian pure was our dear child;
Perhaps her gentle life, so mild,
Will lead us nearer to our God;
Then blessed be the chastening rod—
We to God's will must bow.

ADELE ERVIN.

SHERROD—In the city of Columbus, Miss., early in December, 1898, the death angel took from our midst one of earth's loveliest beings, Miss IRENE SHERROD. Gentle, loveable in every way, she will be sorely missed by her friends throughout their lives. Closely associated with her for years, I never heard an unkind remark about anyone pass her lips. Such a life leaves a void that can never be filled in our hearts until we join her above.

Dear friend, thy amiable face,
So full of every winning grace,
Alas! on earth we see no more;
Above thou standest now before
The great, eternal throne of God.
Thy body, buried 'neath the sod,
Was but the casket, wherein lay
The jewel soul. We feel to-day
Thou knowest all the sorrow, grief
Of friends. Could angels bring relief,
Thy spirit quickly back would fly,
And tell sad ones, "'Tis gain to die."
Ah! human is it thus to grieve
With breaking hearts, when loved ones leave.
God understands and will forgive;
"Not all of life it is to live,"
He gently whispers in our ears.
Lo! through the bitter, falling tears
Radiantly shines the promise fair,
The faithful shall God's glories share.

ADELE ERVIN.

WARREN—REUBEN GENTRY WARREN, son of Dr. Reuben Gentry and Mamie Farmer Warren, was born March 25, 1895, and died Dec. 7, 1898.

"Little Reuben" was a child of rare promise; so bright, vigorous, and beautiful. He was the joy of the home and the favorite of many friends. All his mother's earthly plans centered in him, "her only child, and she a widow." He was to be her stay in future years, she thought, but He who gave the precious gift took it again, and we grieve and wonder, and from crushed hearts pray, "Thy will be done." Faith sees that the mission of the child, though short here, is not over, for our sore hearts, empty arms, the void where the bright head rested on our bosoms, point heavenward. We take courage and press on; the way lonelier, but the desire to reach the city stronger. AUNTIE.

There are few temptations more common to ardent spirits than that which leads them to repine at the lot in which they are cast, believing that in some other situation they could serve God better. If each and each man had the spirit of self-surrender, the spirit of the cross, it would not matter to him whether he were doing the work of the mainspring or one of the inferior parts. It is his duty to try and be himself, simply try to do his own duty.—F. W. Robertson.

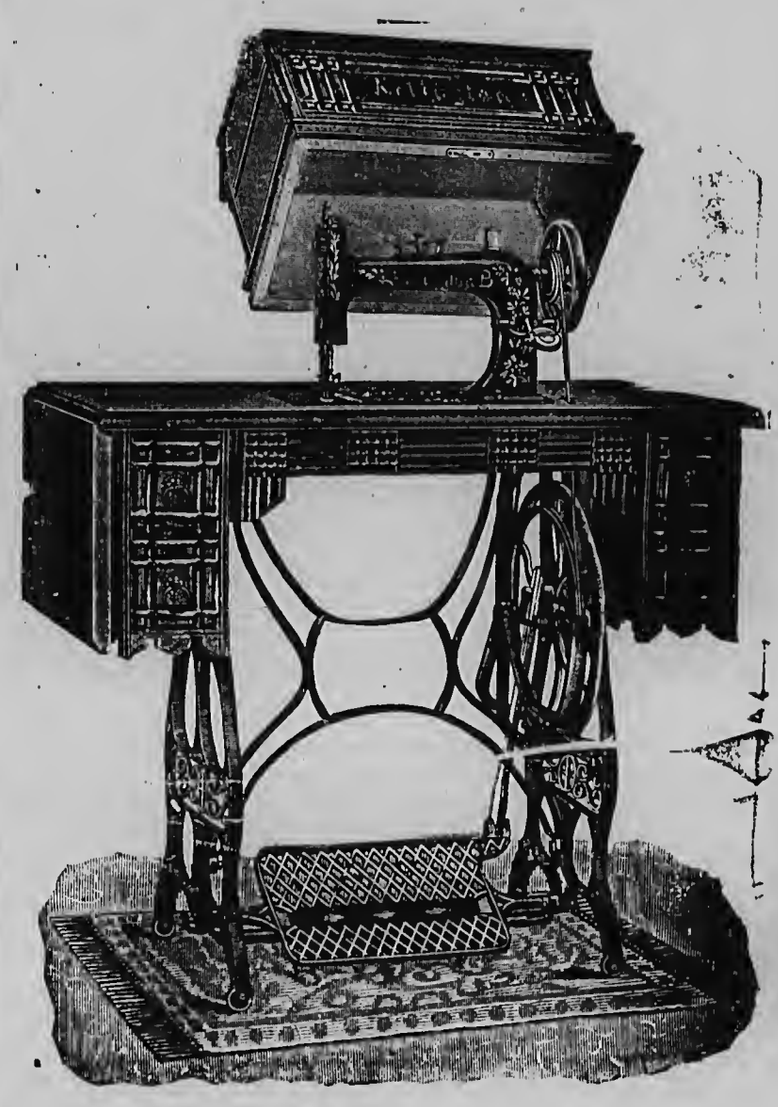
Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

The disamemberment of China is apparently going merrily on, and there is every indication that before very long the great powers will quarrel over the division of the spoils. Italy has demanded from China the lease of San Moon Bay on the same terms that Kiao-Chau is leased to Germany. It is reported that the Pekin Government has refused Italy's request, and that power has landed marines and taken forcible possession of the envoted bay.

Admiral Montejo, who was in command of the Spanish squadron destroyed by Admiral Dewey in the battle of Manila Bay and the commander of the Cavite arsenal, has been incarcerated in the military prison pending trial for his conduct at Manila. The Spanish Government has also ordered the prosecution of Gen. Linares, who was in supreme command of the Spanish forces at Santiago at the time of the capitulation to Gen. Shafter.

Although more than $9,000,000 were appropriated in a very few minutes for the erection of public buildings of very doubtful necessity, the Senate on the same day proceeded to reduce the number of the new ships to be authorized for the navy by a third. By an amendment to the House naval appropriation bill, the Senate reduced the number of new ships to be built for the navy to two battle-ships, two armored cruisers and four small unprotected cruisers.

Replying to Aguinaldo's demand for $7,000,000 for the release of Spanish prisoners, the Madrid government authorizes General Rios, the Spanish commander in the Philippines, to offer $2,000,000, and ask the archbishop if the religious orders will contribute more. The archbishop has replied that he can not contribute, having no funds. The Spanish public insists that the home government should satisfy Aguinaldo's demands and release the eight thousand prisoners, who are still detained.

The President's nomination of Richmond P. Hobson to be advanced ten numbers, from No. 1 on the list of assistant naval constructors, is said by naval officers to constitute the greatest material promotion as a recognition of gallantry in the history of the naval service. It will make Hobson a captain at the age of 30. His advancement amounts to 250 numbers in the line of the navy, which is remarkable in comparison with the single number secured by Admiral Dewey, eight numbers by Admiral Sampson and from three to five each by other officers during the war with Spain.

For fever, chills, debility and kidney diseases, take Lemon Elixir.

Ladies, for natural and thorough organic regulation, take Lemon Elixir.

Dr Mozley's Lemon Elixir is prepared from the fresh juice of lemons, combined with other vegetable liver tonics, and will not fail you in any of the above named diseases. 50c and $1.00 bottles at all druggists.

Prepared only by Dr. H. Mozley, Atlanta, Ga.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous form, I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly. I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

On Friday a final agreement was reached on the Rivers and Harbors bill, and that matter will now become law without further trouble. The Nicaragua Canal rider was killed off by an appropriation calling for another survey on a more extensive scale than before. This compromise was agreed to by the friends of the Nicaragua Canal in order to save the Rivers and Harbors bill, it being realized that it would be impossible at the present session to secure final and definite action on the canal project. In the conference on the bill the Southwest Pass project suffered somewhat, as the House provision was substituted for the more liberal one reported by the Senate. The appropriation is, therefore, only $500,000, although it is announced that the Rivers and Harbors Committee proposes to recommend at the next session a more extensive improvement of the pass under the continuous contract system.

FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

FEB. 20th, 1899.

Editor,

Dear Sir:—I have been a reader of your paper for many years, and consequently feel at liberty to write you so that you may know of the marvelous good that has come to me.

I want all the rest of your readers to profit by my experience. Since my twentieth year I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and dyspepsia, but was led by a friend to try one box of Hudson's Pills, which had worked a marvelous cure in her case, and also had made a new man of her husband.

Won't you please publish this letter to urge all sufferers to write to the Hudson Chemical Co., 125 Hudson St., New York, for a box of Hudson's Pills, for I know they will do them good. Tell them the cost is only 25 cents in stamps for a large box. Perhaps they won't believe me, so tell them to write at least for the circular which the Company sends free.

If you can not print this letter, won't you tell your own friends about Hudson's Pills? Your paper has been a great blessing to

Yours very truly,
(Mrs.) JAMES A. MARKHAM.

Account Cattlemen's Convention, to be held at Ft. Worth, Texas, March 13-15, the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets from all stations in Texas to Ft. Worth at rate of one fare, not to exceed $5 for the round trip; except from stations west of Pecos, where agents will add one way local to the $5 rate quoted from Pecos.

Tickets will be on sale March 12 and 13, with final limit for return March 17, 1899.

AT WORK.

We have been confined to bed several weeks with la grippe, but improving now. We feel the loss of time seriously, as we were delayed in getting to the field. However, our spirits are yet buoyant—our hearts are stayed on Christ. We meet the Building Committee to-morrow to devise plans for the erection of a parsonage. Pray for us and the work. ROBT. L. PHILLIPS.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wine-glass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

THE DRUM BEAT

of consumption is a hacking cough. It sounds a melancholy dirge in the march to the coffin. How many swell the ranks of this gloomy procession who could have been saved by a timely resort to the King of cures, Marsdon's Balm.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE OF LOUISIANA

has purchased and splendidly fitted up the elegant and commodious residence, Nos. 1628 to 1638 Felicity street, between St. Charles avenue and Carondelet street. The location is retired, yet convenient, and the arrangements admit of the strictest privacy for patients, either ladies or gentlemen. THE KEELEY TREATMENT affords the only SAFE AND SURE CURE for the liquor, opium, morphine, cocaine, chloral and other drug addictions, for tobacco poisoning, and neurasthenia. Parties interested are invited to call at the Institute and investigate for themselves. Communications confidential. Address P. O. Box 1966, or J. W. FAIRFAX, General Manager.

ATTENTION, FARMERS!

Do you desire to secure hundreds of samples copies of agricultural journals, magazines, newspapers, books, catalogues and circulars of the latest improved farm implements and machinery, and be kept posted on improved seeds and stock for two years or more? If so, send us your name with ten cents in silver and we will insert the same in the American Farmers Directory, which goes whirling all over the United States to publishers, merchants and manufacturers. You will get more good reading matter than you could purchase for many times the small cost of ten cents. We want every farmer's name in the United States in our Directory at once. Address

BY A. L. WARING.

I would not have the restless will
That hurries to and fro;
Seeking for some great thing to do,
Or secret thing to know;
I would be treated as a child,
And guided where I go.

In a service which thy will appoints
There are no bounds for me;
For my inmost heart is taught the truth
That makes thy children free;
And a life of self-renouncing love
Is a life of liberty.

Communications.

WHY WE SHOULD ASSIST IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

1. It is a world-wide movement. All the leading Methodist bodies are co-operating in it. The M. E. Church, with a membership of 2,851,000, proposes to raise $20,000,000; the Wesleyan Methodists, with a membership of 772,000, $5,000 000; the Canadian Methodists, with a membership of 278,000, $1,000,000. Surely no Southern Methodist of loyalty and intelligence would have his church lag behind in this great forward educational movement. As it is, we are hardly proposing to keep step with our sister denominations. One million five hundred thousand dollars is disproportionate when our numerical strength is considered. If possible, we should go far beyond this amount.

2. It is in keeping with the genius of Methodism. Methodism has always been the friend of education. It was born and cradled in the greatest university in the English-speaking world. Its founder was one of the foremost scholars of his time. He was a great linguist, and made a translation of the New Testament which anticipated nearly all the changes made in the Revised Version. He wrote a Greek grammar, which was highly praised by many of his distinguished contemporaries. When he came as a missionary to America his work was chiefly that of teaching. Among the earliest developments of the great revival which, under God, he projected was the Kingswood School. Soon Trevecca College followed. The pioneers of Methodism in America imbibed the spirit of their great leader, and sought to found and foster institutions of learning. Some of their plans were unwise, some of their efforts proved abortive; but there are still in existence noble institutions which tell of their prescience and self-sacrifice, of their devotion to God and their loyalty to the great cause of Christian education. He is an unworthy son of Wesley who is not interested in the instruction of our youth. There may be among us those who think ignorance is an essential element of piety, but, if so, they have departed from the Methodist faith.

3. It is a movement to meet an imperative need. I speak now of the Southern Methodist Church only. In our whole great connection we have not a single specifically endowed theological department. Vanderbilt University appropriates $10,000 annually to the maintenance of its theological department, but this money is a part of the income of its general endowment fund. For years we have been allowing the benefactions of the Vanderbilt family to educate our preachers, and have done practically nothing to help ourselves. This is a lasting reproach to us. We should be heartily ashamed of it. We can not undo the past, but we can manifest more pride and independence in the future. If we raise $1,500,000, as is proposed, twenty per cent. will give the theological department at Vanderbilt $300,000, which is the exact amount that Dr. Tillett says is necessary to creditably endow it.

Nor are our other schools by any means what they should be. Until within the last few years we have had no well-defined educational policy. Whilst we have had some admirable institutions under our control, nondescript schools, flying the Methodist flag, were allowed to spring up all over the country and humbug the people. Sometimes there would be a half-dozen of these so-called colleges in a single Conference, each claiming to have a faculty equal to any in the land, and pledging itself to turn out scholars of the first magnitude. It is said that the president of one of these colleges wrote to a brother in Mississippi some years ago, claiming all this for the institution under his control, and wound up by signing his name, "Yours in Krist, R. W. Hank."

Those were the Don Quixote days of our educational history. Thank God they are forever gone! A new and better era has dawned upon us. We now have a clearly wrought-out educational system, with a head in our General Secretary. Our policy is now well defined, and has been plainly enunciated. All our schools are to be correlated. A university is to be a university, a college is to be a college, and a training-school a training-school. Every institution must fly the right flag. "The hawks" must be shot to death by the cannons of authority. "The chickens" must be fed, fattened, and made to grow. Vanderbilt is to be the great center—the king fowl of the flock.

And along with this work of correlation is to proceed the work of equipping and endowing. This is what the Twentieth Century Fund is to be raised for. That this work needs to be done is painfully evident. A college must be progressive, or it will soon get to be out of date. It can never stop and say it has all it needs. It must be ever enlarging, ever equipping. Educational apparatus is like the machinery of a factory—it soon becomes obsolete. The appliances of a few decades ago are worthless now. We Methodists are in the condition of the ice manufacturer who has a five-ton plant and a demand for ten tons output. If we are to meet the emergency, we must do as he would do—increase our capacity.

We are now standing in the morning twilight of a new century. Soon we shall witness its splendid sunrise, and then will begin to unfold those marvelous events whose prophetic shadows we have already seen. What triumphs the human mind will achieve, what inventions will be perfected, what philosophies will be formulated, and what discoveries will be made in the domain of science, it is beyond the power of the most imperial intellect to conceive. But one thing is certain: If Methodism is to have a part in these great achievements, she must amply equip her educational institutions and have in hand the machinery with which to work. If she is to continue to lead in the great work of world evangelization, she must have these mighty reservoirs of power upon which she can draw. Without them she must lose her proud position in the forefront, and assume a subordinate place in the rear. Perhaps the most striking characteristic of this age is its educational feature. Efficient public school systems exist in all the States, and the masses everywhere are being instructed. The church that does not now provide for the education of its ministry and membership is doomed. To convert the people, and then ask the State and other denominations to educate them, is to pursue a suicidal policy. When they are educated, they will be ours no longer. To adopt such a course is to accomplish our own destruction. It is to dig our own grave. And if we would do a successful work of education, we must have institutions of learning equal to the best. The time has passed when we can hold our people by stressing denominational loyalty. Only merit can win now. If we believe that the teachings of Methodism are more in accord with the gospel of Christ than those of any other sect, and that its form of government is best adapted to the work of evangelization, then we owe it to God and humanity to strongly intrench Methodism in great institutions of learning, and make sure its perpetuity for all time to come.

4. It furnishes an opportunity for us to make our influence felt in the future. The desire to do something that will live and last is a worthy one. It is this desire that has made philanthropists of many of our rich men. It is not in our power to found a hospital or endow a college by ourselves, but we can assist in this great educational movement, and thus project our influence into the far future. A dollar contributed to this cause will bear fruit long after the grave of the giver has been forgotten, and his name has ceased to be pronounced upon the lips of the living. It will outlast bronze and marble shafts, and stand as a monument to one's life through all eternity.

5. This money is to be given as a thank-offering to God for his gracious goodness and bountiful blessings during the decades of the century now all but past. Surely if any people on the earth have cause to be grateful, it is "the people called Methodists." The youngest of all the larger Protestant evangelical denominations, we now lead them all, with the possible exception of the Episcopalians, both in numbers and the extent of our influence. Undoubtedly a providential development, Methodism has been owned and blessed of God in all her past. Her history reads like a romance; her achievements are among the marvels of modern times. As Bishop Fowler has observed in his recent memorable appeal in the New York Christian Advocate: "She came into the century few in numbers, poor in worldly possessions, and meager in scholarship, having only 288 ministers, 64,894 members, but little church property, and only the ashes of one college. She goes out of the century in sixteen great bands or denominations, having 38 352 traveling ministers, 6,213,425 members, with many schools and colleges, and over $250,000,000 of church property." In America her sons and daughters are found in every sphere of usefulness and honor—in the army, in the navy, at the bar, on the bench, in professorial chairs, and in the halls of legislation. The two distinguished men who represent the State of Indiana in the American Senate are members of the same Methodist Church in Indianapolis—one a trustee and the other a steward. Both the chaplains of our Federal Congress are Methodists. The present Chief Executive of the nation, whose Christian character and patriotic words have won the admiration of all hearts, is a Methodist communicant. Now, shall we not, in the manner proposed, make grateful acknowledgement to God for so richly crowning our efforts with success? Shall we, as is so often the case, allow our very prosperity to make us negligent and unmindful of Him who has brought this unparalleled prosperity upon us? Shall we prove ourselves to be of that despicable class, "who come to God when they are hungry, but who, when they are filled, forget that he exists"? Shall we, like Pharaoh, when the storm is raging, and the thunders are pealing, and "the lightning's polished blade is threatening death," call upon the name of the Lord, and then, when the thunders have ceased, harden our hearts and give no praise to our gracious Deliverer? No; let us make requisition upon our abundant means, and pile up this monumental thank-offering, and let it stand forever as an expression of our gratitude to God for his innumerable mercies and blessings.

6. Our assistance is urgently needed. The plan proposed contemplates the co-operation of every Methodist in the connection. "One dollar from every member" is what our leaders are aiming at. We have 1,500,000 members, and we want to raise $1,500,000. So, if you refuse to contribute, you may know that you are hindering the success of the undertaking. The problem before us is that of enlisting the masses of our people. If we fail, the responsibility will rest upon those who refuse to co-operate in the execution of the enterprise. Everyone must do his part if the plan is to succeed.

R. A. MEEK.

Starkville, Miss., March 7, 1899.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The League is the child of Methodism in the evening of the nineteenth century—her latest child. Dr. Tigert said at Toronto that Methodism, being the child of Providence, the Epworth League is the grandchild of Providence. From the great strides this young giant in the church is making, it would seem that the youngster is a favored child and a "petted" grandchild. But we fear no evil results from the favoritism of Divine Providence. God only favors us according as we do and suffer his will. This is the chief place of young Leaguers, where they can do something for the Lord and Master, and, if need be, suffer for his sake. The combined intelligence of the band, enlisted with the banner, "All for Christ," at their head, find and furnish work for each individual member to perform. A League is a failure which finds work for but few, and furnishes work for some. There is no "select set" in the Epworth League; no "elect" workers according to the will of the League president. To have one set of leaders long will kill any organization; here "variety" is the spice of life." If young Mr. Johnson can not pray in public, he can read a Scripture passage. If Miss Jones can not sing a solo, she can read the Minutes of the last meeting. If Mr. Smith can not deliver an address, he can act in the capacity of administrator. By this word we do not mean one who distributes what is left after death, but the executive of a living League. Give each member something to do, and use tact about it. Some Leagues are ready to die because men who ride "hobbies" are in control. God deliver us from the man who colors his spectacles green, and sees everything through these colored glasses!

You will not have to travel far to discover that this hearty grandchild of Providence is not well treated by his guardians. Some pastors and some church Official Boards care more for the Sunday-school than the League; and out of their fullness of heart for the Sunday-school this glorious institution flourishes like the "palm tree." The Epworth League is the high-school department of church work. The League supplements, but does not supplant the Sunday-school. It takes up the work of teaching to do where the Sunday-school stops at teaching to believe and know. The "faith" of the Sunday-school scholar without the "works" of the Leaguer "is dead."

Loyalty to Christ and the church demand that we use the League, and use it to increase loyalty to the church as well as to Christ. "Put only Americans on guard," said Washington on one occasion. Let's put on guard true Southern Methodists, who love their church, and whose memories can never forget the vows taken at the altar when they stood as candidates for church membership. Every footfall I made up the aisle of a church in West Virginia would sound my solemn spiritual requiem were I to forget that solemn, yet joyous hour when I promised to support the "institutions of the church." And this is not any exclusive "churchianity;" it is loyalty to Jesus Christ in the best sense, and certainly will bring good to the greatest number.

God bless the Epworth Leagues of our Methodism! God help us to give up "all for Christ!"

FROM THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

(Concluded.)

But we landed, and when we did so, we felt like offering a hecatomb of the many monkeys which we saw, not to the wrathful Neptune, out of whose hands we had just come, but to Jane, or Jove, or any other deity who would keep us where we could step, and know that our feet would touch the immovable terra firma.

As soon as convenient, we elbowed our way through the narrow, crooked and unwholesome streets of this strange city and stranger people. We found many huge stone buildings, built so compact and close that they all seem like prisons. We, not being cosmopolites, glared in wide-opened-mouth wonder at the modes, customs, dress and manner of these peoples, and at this most retired spot, which impresses us with the exuberance of life. We find races we never dreamed of. In their humble path they know the same passions and tread the same career as ourselves. The seas shut them out from the great world, but their island is a world in itself, and they know and heed no more the turbulent scenes of remote cities and countries than our own planet does the inhabitants of the distant stars. Though the world has rolled on for ages, and the pilgrimage of man has passed through various states of existence which, in our line, traditionary knowledge has not preserved, yet the condition of the race is conceived to be the earliest. Old Manila is walled by a rude and vast conglomerated mass of stone, the art of masonry being almost forgotten or never known. Vines and moss cover the entire mass of decay, which is so typical of her nation's downfall. The carriages are mostly two-wheeled vehicles drawn by a pony a shade larger than a Shetland. The transfers are Chinese and two-wheeled carts, to which caraboos, with huge heads and huger countenances, are hitched. Most of the transfer is carried on by means of canals which run through the city in various ways and directions. The bulk of the city is nine inches above the bay, making it easy for canals.

The fair senoritas are endowed with that fabulous beauty of which they have the reputation of having. They are "sweetly slender, beautifully graceful, and enchantingly fascinating." But they are as a "lotus blossom, slim and fair; a passing zephyr pausing to caress could move them not with all its tenderness." We do not know this by actual experience, but the logical sequence would be that they would forever have weak man worshiping at their feet, if it were otherwise. Men and women alike have the most open countenance and frank expression that mortal could wear; yet we are told that they are so deceitful and treacherous that they dare not trust each other a stone's throw from their chaperons.

We have been in your New Orleans cathedrals, and thought the fixtures, effigies and paintings magnificent, but they don't compare to the buildings and riches of these churches. The priests control the whole island. But we can't blame the ignorant natives for reverencing papacy. It made us feel like we were in something more than a common place when we saw and stood before the "sanctum sanctorum," with all its gildings. Before Protestantism can do anything versus Catholicism schools will have to be established and the people educated. They are as cruel and mean to their ponies and buffaloes as the occasion demands—sometimes easy and sometimes nearly whipped to death.

But this trip of ten thousand miles, terra mariique, has been quite a revelation to us. It has been grand from the time we passed the prairies of Missouri and Kansas, where we saw the corn and grain fields and cattle ranches in Southern Kansas which supply meat and grain not only to us, but send much to Europe. We passed out of the plains to the foot of the imposing Rockies, "towering their venerable old heads far up into the misty clouds, and assuming an aspect fit for a wanton to view." We saw this and thought it was grand; we climbed its heights, rugged and rough with canons of fearful depth, and even passed through the snow, which is perpetual in its linger; we beheld this, and thought it was grand; we went down and around those mountains, going through twenty tunnels in an hour's time, and at one time making a complete loupe, and we thought that was grand; we came to the great desert in western United States, and a weird vision, a mirage, showing a lake of pure water, and we thought that was grand; we passed through the Golden State, whose true value consists of its fruit farms and wheat fields, and along its shores till we reached San Francisco, and we thought that was grand; we embarked on the "Great South Sea," and passed through the Golden Gate, and met billows, piling wave upon wave, and we thought that was grand; we passed out into the heaving ocean, and went for days before we sighted land rising out of its depths, and we thought that was grand; we passed volcanoes and many islands, and came to the ground where Dewey has made his name immortal, as we looked at the sunken fleet, and then turned and viewed the great man-of-war that sunk it, and we thought that was grand; but when we came to the trenches where the Boys in Blue met the Spaniards in the roar and shriek of bursting shells, and saw them asleep in the land made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn palms, the sad eucalyptus, the tearful willows, the embracing vines, careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in his windowless palace of rest, we know, we knew that was grand! Very truly,

FRANK M. LOWRY.

LOUISIANA SUNDAY-SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The thirteenth annual school convention of the Louisiana Sunday-School Association will meet in New Orleans, March 21-23. Each parish association is entitled to four and each ward association to one delegate. Every Sunday-school is entitled to one delegate, and an additional delegate for every twenty-five scholars. The delegates will be entertained free if their names are forwarded in time to Mr. David Zable, 1224 Constantinople street, New Orleans.

Prof. Hamil will deliver several addresses. Other speakers on the programme are: Capt. J. N. Pharr, Rev. J. C. Barr, Rev. J. B. Kent, Prof. J. N. Bogart, H. E. Cautell, E. P. Mackie, Rev. R. P. Howell, Rev. E. N. Evans, W. C. Boorman, Rev. W. H. LaPrade, Rev. A. R. Edbrooke, Rev. Matthew Brewster, A. M. Mayo, Rev. G. N. Funk.

The officers of the association are: A. M. Mayo, Lake Charles, president; Mrs. A. M. Mayo, Lake Charles, corresponding and State secretary; C. D. Hicks, Shreveport, recording secretary; T. G. Hardie, New Orleans, treasurer; E. P. Mackie, New Orleans, chairman Executive Committee.

It is well to organize charity to relieve destitution, but it is a thousand times better to practice charity—kindliness is the true rendering. Love thy neighbor as thyself.

BROTHERHOOD.

Help thou thy brother on!
If light has come to thee,
Disclosing stepping-stones,
Enabling thee to see
Clearer the way, as in
The onward march we move
Show him the guiding light!
Reach out thy hand in love,
And help thy brother on!

If thou hast heard a call,
Strong and true and sweet,
Urging thee ever on,
Quick'ning thy lagging feet,
Oh, bid him listen, too,
That he the voice may hear!
The light will brighter glow,
And more the call will cheer.
Helping thy brother on!

HIGH TIMES IN STARKVILLE, MISS.

BY W. S HARRISON.

Yes, we have had a grand time. We have had celebrities and less. The Epworth League Conference of the Columbus district was held here Feb. 23 and 24. Rev. R. A. Burroughs was elected president, and Miss Annie Scales was chosen secretary. The first address was from Rev. E. S. Lewis on the "Real Objects of the League." That was a good beginning. The sermon was preached by Rev. W. M. McIntosh, and this concluded the morning session.

All the sessions were interesting. The program prepared was excellent and well carried out, and Bros. Bowen and Thames and a few of the ladies were the principal talkers. From first to last the papers, speeches, sermons and songs were all good. By common consent this was the best League Conference ever held in this region.

It may seem invidious to make special mention, but by general concession the paper by Miss Vic Thompson, of Okolona, on "The Devotional Work of the League," and the chart exhibition by Mrs. Mathis, of Columbus, illustrating the best methods for the study of Bible history, were of the highest order.

Finally, at the last service on that last great night of the feast came Dr. H. M. DuBose. His address was unique, eloquent, and full of beautiful imagery. His drafts on the Queen's English, however lavish, one never denied. The mental pictures were pleasing, the diction elegant, while throughout the discourse there was an undertone of profoundest philosophy. Dr. DuBose is in travels much, in labors great, if not in perils oft. He is doing the work of two men. Well, he can do two things at once. We witnessed that. For instance: Down at Bro. Ames', after the evening service, he did full justice to an elegant repast and entertained the company by the fine art of conversation, both at the same time.

Rev. R. A. Burroughs is a live man. He is in his work. He gave great satisfaction as presiding officer; kept the reins well in hand. He may never climb to the high altitude of the bishopric, but we have seen some Bishops who could not preside as well.

We have no doubt the members of the Conference from a distance were well pleased with Rev. R. A. Meek as host. He and his committees were vigilant in looking after the comfort of all.

The shadow of Dr. DuBose had scarcely faded from the sidewalks, and the steps of the Leaguers had not yet entirely ceased to fret the streets, when Dr. S. A. Steel came. He preached an excellent and timely sermon on Sunday, and in the evening gave us his famous lecture on "The Pioneer of Methodism in America." The house was full and the lecture was enthusiastically received. Monday evening, in the opera house, he delivered his humorous lecture on "Home Life in Dixie During the War." We have not before seen such a crowd out to hear a lecture, nor have we heard any lecture so richly enjoyed. Dr. Steel is a man of marvelous attainments. Such a voice we have never before heard; strong, pleasant, and under perfect control. He is inimitable in the vividness of his mental pictures. What he sees—and he is gifted in the art of seeing—he makes his audience see. His representation of a battle in the distance, the roar of cannon and the rattle of musketry, is a fine display of vocal power. But the most startling was a broadside from a gunboat close at hand. The entire audience, from footlights to "peanut gallery," jumped with surprise.

Last of all, but by no means of least importance, we note with pleasure that Rev. G. W. Bachman, the man of books and papers, of Sunday-school and League work, was here during all the exercises of the Conference, looking diligently after the special work assigned him. He is one of the most efficient, useful laborers in the field.

[The above should have appeared in last week's issue, but was unavoidably crowded out.—EDITOR.]

FROM REV. E. S. LEWIS.

MR EDITOR: I have just returned from a very profitable meeting of the Leagues of Columbus district. This meeting was with the Starkville League. Quite a good attendance of Leaguers and visitors from the district was the occasion of much rejoicing. Rev. R. A. Burroughs, who is completing his full term on Columbus district, was made president. Many thoughtful and valuable papers were read, and a number of most excellent addresses made. It was pronounced the best small affair ever seen, but it was no small affair. Besides a goodly number of Leaguers, ten or twelve preachers were in attendance; Miss Vic Thompson, of Tupelo; Bro. Bachman, who is a member-at-large of all our societies, and Dr. DuBose, the Era's bright editor. Bro. Meek, the popular pastor at Starkville, entertained us royally. Everybody seemed to be in a good humor, and it was the universal verdict that the League is going to furnish the church of the future with live, active, spiritual men and women. It has already developed much talent hitherto latent.

Bro. Bowen is hustling around at Columbus; has left no stone unturned. If a Methodist goes there and stays long, he will have to bide out, if he escapes Bro. Bowen's eye. McIntosh is winning golden opinions at West Point. Bro. Thames has the parsonage at Macon on wheels, and will, ere long, have it to the front. This will literally be true, or else the signs fail. The church is already to the front, or otherwise he would put the screws to it. Bro Duncan is winning his way into the hearts and affections of the Crawford people. He succeeds. The rest of us are battling with mud and doing the best we can.

Prospects are very fine for a successful year. This prairie country is the home of a cultured and thrifty population. Methodism is strongly entrenched here, and there is no early prospect of its deserting the land.

Brooksville circuit has had only five preachers in the last nineteen years. Very few of the stations can boast of such a record. It has a settled population; the plan of the circuit has not been changed for years. But this does not argue that everything is in a high state of perfection. We need much: one new church, more papers circulated, a deeper interest in religious affairs, and more consecration on the part of those who are making the paths straight.

MINDEN, LA.

Our first quarterly meeting has passed. Bro. Crews, our presiding elder, shows good executive ability as presiding officer and preaches well. All claims were paid to date. The Conference collections are fully provided for by good subscriptions, one-fourth payable each quarter. As Minden has not paid these claims in full for some time, we think an advance can be noted along this line.

Will open up a special campaign against sin (D. V.) April 9. Hope to be able to report victory, and many slain of the Spirit, and made alive through Jesus Christ unto God the Father. Dying unto sin is living in Christ, and "Christ liveth in me!" Oh, for many such deaths, that God may be praised by his own reviving power!

The church seems unified, and we hear little of past dissensions. All seem to realize that we should "be one" in Christ, as he himself prayed, ere the gates of brass, and posts of iron, and hearts of stone, will be broken down.

Following this revival effort, the District Epworth League Conference will meet here April 27-30. I have written Bishop Candler to be with us for two days. Hope he can favor us with his eloquent counsel at this critical juncture in our Epworth League movement in Northern Louisiana. C. P. SMITH, P. C.

POLYGAMY.

MR. EDITOR: If you will grant me a little space in the columns of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, I wish to make known some facts which have recently come under my observation with regard to the practice of polygamy among the Mormons. The Mormon elders who have been flooding this country with their spurious literature for the last three or four years claim that the Mormons have abandoned the practice of polygamy, which statement is false. I came in possession, a few days ago, of a little book which was picked up some miles north of here, the title of which is, "The Preceptor," and which was evidently private property, and had inscribed on the fly-leaf the name, "W. L. Openshaw, Santaquin P. O., Utah county, Utah." I suppose the book was dropped by Openshaw, as it was found lying in the road, and was picked up by a negro. On the leaf opposite the preface is printed the following: "The Preceptor," "Being a simple system for enabling young men to acquire a knowledge of the doctrines of the Gospel, and the ability to preach them," "by Elder John Nicholson." On page 36 he enters into the subject of polygamy, or plural marriage, and tries to prove from the Bible its legality. He begins the chapter by saying: "The chief merit of the method is its directness and practicability. It is not only of use in teaching what are termed the first principles of the gospel, but can be extended to every truth of the divine plan by simply setting up an opposite. As the elders who go abroad are invariably assailed on the subject of polygamy, it may be well for them to be prepared to show that it is sustained by the Bible," etc. He then brings in numerous quotations in attempting to prove that polygamy is sustained by the Word of God, interspersed with such remarks as these: "The following passage is sometimes used against polygamy, but it would be as sensible to use it to prove that a man should have but one horse," etc.

Can we, as loyal citizens of the United States, and as responsible beings to Almighty God for every thought, word, and deed in this life, silently submit to their sojourning in our midst, and to the inculcating of such satanic principles into the hearts and minds of our children? Can we afford to be silent on the subject? If Utah, which has recently been admitted to all the rights and privileges of Statehood, can afford to tolerate and practice polygamy, let her be refused a representative in Congress, and let the law-abiding citizens of other States close their doors against these intruders.

"NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS."

I said, "Nothing succeeds like success," and offered as a proof the example of several brethren whose work speaks for itself. Bro. Smith denies, but offers no proof whatever to support his denial. I did not say that every man must do as A does to succeed, nor did I say that the same thing had to be done to make success. If I say A, B, and C succeed, it does not follow that I mean that D, E, and F have failed because they did not do just as A, B, and C did. I asked Bro. Smith if success did not succeed, what did succeed? He does not answer; hence there is nothing in his last to answer. T. W. LEWIS.

THE TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF THE M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH, ABERDEEN, MISS.

(Written by the president of Aberdeen Auxiliary, and read to the society at close of the Conference year. It was requested for publication in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE on account of her extreme age—eighty-one years. May it bring forth much fruit, and may many follow in her steps as she follows Christ's last and great command!)

DEAR SISTERS: Another year has passed into oblivion; days and years have come and gone, and have rushed heedlessly into the great eternity without a good-by. Changes of importance and successful work in missionary fields have been noted with gratitude and with some success, and to-day we see the silver lining bursting forth from flourishing missions in China, Korea, Brazil, and Mexico. These places of mission work will tell how small were the beginnings in the year '78, the date of the organization. Soon after a few of our energetic ladies entered the work, and the first report made at the meeting of the Annual Board was one woman sent out to China—Miss Lochie Rankin, from Tennessee.

Looking over the past, noting the small amount gathered from collections reported—a little over $4,000 for the first fiscal year—the amount expended was $1,323.30. Two hundred and eighteen auxiliaries had been organized with a membership of 5,890. This was considered a fine beginning. Miss Lochie Rankin was the only representative of the Woman's Missionary Society. This was woman's work, and heart dwells with thankfulness, for the "day of small things should not be despised," for it is a divine work, and we have the promise from the great Teacher he will be with his followers to the end.

Twenty years ago the first meeting, with our beloved Mrs. Bishop Paine, vice-president of the Annual Board, at the head, gathered a goodly number together, and if my memory be correct, fifty-five joined; and as time passed we were anxious to learn of the details of the work. A more willing band of one mind to enter the work could not be found. Literature was eagerly sought after, notwithstanding our ignorance. Suggestion after suggestion was thrown into the work to bring something out that would edify and instruct our dark minds as regards the successful issue of this all-important subject.

As your humble president has been connected with this great work for the last twenty years, she sees the changes and a wonderful movement on all lines of the work, and thanks God for the light he has given us. What embarrassments we labored under at first could not be told. We had no periodicals, no literature, no reports from different societies, so little to aid us in carrying out plans, for the seed had been deposited in good soil, and after awhile it would bring forth a hundredfold of fruitage. That was the result of good work. Our course has been onward, and the influence of woman on woman has become powerful in the work of her own life. Our Board has been very successful for years, and has increased in intelligence, in wisdom and faithfulness. The last statistical report shows 34 Conference societies, 3,629 auxiliaries, 74,479 members. Report of treasurer, $86,418.76; $3,629 over last year's receipts.

Now, let me say this society has done well the past year. The membership has increased, the collections are fine, meetings well attended, and a good spiritual feeling manifested by the members—tell very plainly its growth and success. We have been blessed, and may God, in his infinite mercy, bless the dear societies, and give us strength in his grand and glorious work!

The most interesting work is the school called Florence Shell, of Sung Kiang, which is in successful operation, and we pray it may be the school that will be instrumental in bringing many to the light of the gospel and to the kingdom of Christ.

The Bible woman is of supreme importance in carrying the blessed gospel to the heathen, and much good is derived from entering the homes of their countrywomen to offer them the Bread of Life.

We are glad the juvenile work is again on sure footing, with a new lady manager at the helm managing the work, and by the help of the All-wise Father there will be a vast field cultivated by the children, as they have Korea for their special. Last year their special for Korea was $4,427. May they be blessed in their work with strength to help Christianize the cause and labor for the benighted heathen, and may we know what is expected of us, that we may be built on the rock of a Christian character! The organization of the young people is truly a grand work. Much of their precious time may be filled up with work that is for the advancement of the cause, while the call for literature for information is so necessary—thanks to wise heads—it has been liberally scattered around for that purpose. The time is propitious for seed-sowing. After a few years of toil the fields will be white for harvesting, and result in an abundant yield. Some of the fruit will be presidents, some corresponding secretaries, some recording secretaries, some treasurers, and some district secretaries. These officers will tell of the wonderful work that has emerged from their faithfulness, and blessings will crown your lives with a happy entrance in mansions above. God bless you!

The efforts to evangelize and Christianize the world is far from what it should be. Only about one-fourth has been touched by the gospel. Let us pray more, read more, do more good by consecration than we ever have. The promise made several years ago is still fresh in my memory, and in some way to return my heartful thanks for your kindness in serving you; and now let me bring to mind the high regard of your loving-kindness for the length of time in your service. You may now compare the work of to-day with twenty years ago. My heart thrills with sweet emotions when I look over the past so lately as the present year. You have been thoughtful and presented your president a gift of a certificate of life membership in our society. It will be a pleasing memento from the membership. Time brings Christmas of '98 full of good wishes and loving words in the way of a handsome Bible presented by our beloved society, for which I must express my thankfulness for a gift which will be a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path. Words are inadequate to express my joy for such a valuable gift.

Now that the year has drawn to a close, let us look into our hearts and pray all mistakes, all tempers, all wrong-doing may be forgiven, and let us turn a new leaf and consecrate our lives to the missionary work; officers and members pledging themselves to help save poor souls for the Savior, that it may be said: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou has been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

THAT ENTERPRISING PREACHER.

PART III.

At the next regular meeting of the society Bro. Jones was on time as usual. The attendance was larger than ever, and the new members were all present. The lesson for the day happened to be Second Kings iv, 8-10: "And it fell on a day that Elisha passed to Shunem, where was a great woman; and she constrained him to eat bread. And she said unto her husband, Behold, now I perceive that this is an holy man of God which passeth by us continually. Let us make a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall, and let us set there a bed and a table, a stool and a candlestick: and it shall be, when he cometh to us, he shall turn in thither."

The leaflet called for by the program was the "Pastor's Parsonage." The scene so graphically described—a sad Christmas Day, the funeral of the dear little baby; the cold, uncarpeted, desolate parsonage, to which the broken-hearted mother returned—all seemed in gloomy contrast with their own warm firesides and well-furnished homes. Bro. Jones led the prayer; and such a prayer! He voiced the feeling of the women as he prayed for the preachers everywhere whose "lines had not fallen to them in pleasant places;" the poorly-paid preacher in rural districts; the preacher in far-distant pioneer work on the border-land, upon whom God had laid the burden of making a highway in the unbroken wilderness country for the feet of the messengers of the King. He thanked the heavenly Father for ever putting it into the hearts of the women of the church "to be careful for us, with all this care," like the great woman of Shunem of old, and that at last they were bringing into these desolate homes the comfort and brightness of material things, while the preacher ministered to them in spiritual things. In conclusion, he prayed that the women of his charge "might be able to lift up their eyes and see the needs of other fields in the Master's vineyard, and seeing the need, might be able to recognize their duty." After the prayer the order of business was the unreported balance on church furnishings. Every woman present completed her pledge.

The president asked the preacher to make a few remarks, for it seemed evident he had something to say. "First of all," Bro. Jones began, "I wish to thank you each and all for your ready response to the ten-dollar proposition. Thirty-five times ten—$350—in three months, splendid work! But to-day I am more than ever impressed with our lack of duty to other fields. The pastor of a city church can better afford to be without a parsonage than the poorly-paid preacher of rural districts or a pioneer charge. Think of a salary of $165 a year to support a family, and $80 out of that for rent! Since the organization of the Home Mission Society, twelve years ago, about 800 of these have been supplied with comfortable homes. But the parsonage described in the leaflet to-day is a faint picture of the desolation of the pastor's parsonage, to which a majority of our poorly-paid preachers are compelled to shelter their families. Will not the women of this church be the first of all the eight prosperous churches in this great city to fall into line and take their places in this department of connectional work?

"Now, my sisters, it seems to me the fullness of time has come, and I hope every woman in this little band will agree with your pastor that everyone of you should undertake the work of your Home Mission Society. And remember, my sisters, you are only required to pay 60 cents a year to general work, while the other 60 cents goes to the preacher of your own Conference who is in need of a home." The vote was taken, and the Home Mission Society was organized with forty members.

The above is not fiction. It is the history of what was done by one enterprising preacher of a city church. There are stronger and wealthier churches in that great city to-day whose women are just as noble, just as loyal, just as willing to undertake for their Lord; but their hands are still idle because in eight churches there is only one enterprising preacher.

The Christian Life.

BROKEN AND MENDED.

God uses sorrow to elevate the affections, to soften and sweeten the character, to bring the soul nearer to himself. By their fruits God knows sorrow and trial. We are too apt to know them, to look upon them, in the acrid bud and the pale, withering blossom. It is not the divine mission of sorrow to destroy the heart, but in a certain sense to readjust and reconstruct it. Certain old violin makers had a strange method of producing sweetness of tone in their instruments. They would break them, and then skillfully put them together again, filling the cracks with resonant gums; so that, when the broken violin had been cured of its violent wounds, and was taken up into the master's hands again, it gave forth such range and sweetness of sound as had never been possible to it before.

This is precisely what God does with the human heart when he subjects it to the pangs of sorrow. He breaks it—true, but he mends it again. He always mends it. God never leaves a heart that truly loves and trusts him in the fragments and wreckage of trial. Patiently, skillfully, lovingly, he draws together the broken cords, and binds them with his sympathy. And then, ah! then the music, the new music, that swells out of that heart. It has a tone that is finer and purer than of old, that vibrates with a new tenderness and pathos. God has called out all the potential music of that soul. He has broken it, and searched it, and touched the quick of all its deepest feeling. And then he has taken that broken heart, that precious sacrifice, and restored it, so that its new wholeness is better a thousand times than its old soundness. By the wounds of sorrow the music of heaven has been grafted upon the music of earth.—Zion's Herald.

Kneel down, and part with that thing which has all your life stood between you and God, and so between you and happiness, and trouble will clear up as nothing else can make it. Every arch has its keystone. The jam of logs, which has become piled into apparently immovable obstruction, has a few key logs whose loosening releases the whole. Every troubled condition has its secret, and it is usually some hosom sin. Let that go, though the effort strain you to exhaustion, and though life's outlook for a time looks so barren because of its departure that it seems as if cheer would never come again, and straightway heavenly energies find their field, and your prayer can be answered.—Sunday-School Times.

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT,

Malarin creeps into the system and leaves a poison which saps its vitality until the well-known symptoms of CHILLS AND FEVER, INTERMITTENT FEVER, CONGESTION, BLOODY URINE, etc., will show their snake-like heads. Fortunately there is an antidote in DICKS' CHILLIFUGE, which absolutely exterminates Malaria in a few hours; so pleasant to the taste that children love to take it. It banishes fevers like mist before the morning sun; brings us a gift rose cheeks, health, happiness, and makes life worth the living

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. L. S. Jones: "We left our Yazoo City home, Jan. 9, 'mid the tears and regrets of a large and disappointed congregation. We reached our new home in Port Gibson, Jan. 11. We found a warm hearted, loyal people here, who have provided amply for our physical comfort. Despite the bad weather and poor health, we have visited nearly the entire membership. Congregations are fine, and our finances well in hand. The whole of our foreign mission assessment has been raised. Pray for us."

Rev. W. T. Woolward, Lecompte and White Chapel, March 3, 1899: "We arrived here on the eleventh of January. Have been very busy ever since we came. Have married two couple, made seventy pastoral visits, buried two (Mr. D. C. Clark, Episcopalian; Mrs. L. Reeves, a very excellent member of our church at Lamourie); have received five subscriptions to NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE; have had four accessions to the church, and passed through the severest Winter I ever saw. We are going to build kitchen and dining-room to parsonage. Pray for us."

Rev. T. G. Freeman, West, Miss., Feb. 24, 1899: "This has been the worst Winter for work I have seen. I have missed several appointments owing to rough weather and bad roads, and, worse than all, la grippe has had his grip on my wife and daughter, and last, but not least, he gripped me. We failed to hold our first quarterly meeting owing to cold weather. Bro. Shipman was on hand, but we could do nothing; it was so cold. We expect to hold our first quarterly meeting embracing the second Sunday in March. I am encouraged notwithstanding the bad start. Pray for us. Success to the ADVOCATE."

Rev. D. W. Babb, Louisville circuit, North Mississippi Conference, March 1, 1899: "We are one-fourth of the way on our fourth and last year here. How time flies! It seems as if it had been but a little while ago since we took charge of this work; yet we have buried many, many persons since coming—five this year in less than one month. How short and uncertain is this life! May we all be ready for the end! We have much mapped out for the next nine months. May the good Lord help us by giving wisdom, strength, and grace to do it! The year was commenced with consecration to our Master's work on our part, and we trust it was on the part of our membership. The continued cold and rainy weather has been quite a hindrance to carrying out our plans; hence so much to do in the future. Our first quarterly meeting came off last Saturday and Sunday; presided over by Bro. N. G. Augustus, who has been appointed to take the place of Bro. Oakley during his afflictions. Bro. Augustus magnifies his office. Notwithstanding the extreme weather, we have met all of our appointments, and held services at all but one. This being the year of collections, the money phase of the gospel will have to be studied carefully, and presented almost continuously. May our great church ascend to her ability in contributing to her various enterprises this year! Success to the ADVOCATE."

Preacher's Wife, March 4, 1899: "Thursday, Dec. 29, 1898, found us en route to Fulton circuit, and after two days of rough jolting and bumping through the country, with a sick babe on our hands, we reached Evergreen, hoping to find a home ready for us (a letter being previously mailed to that point, which, however, never reached its destination); but as there was none, we were warmly received into the home of Bro. and Sister J. N. Mallias with Christian generosity that can not be excelled. Go to Bro. Mullins when you will, and you will find the latch-string on the outside. On Monday following we moved into temporary quarters until a permanent home could be secured for us. We did not have such a storm as some of our preachers have written about, but a steady breeze, wafting as favors of many kinds, and that breeze keeps stirring once in a while, bringing us tokens of Christian fellowship and good-will. We made many kind and warm friends while at Evergreen, but space forbids us naming them, and we regretted very much to leave them, which we were compelled to do in order to secure a home, in which we are at last tolerably comfortably settled near Carlsville. A parsonage is badly needed on this circuit, and we believe this good people are determined to build one in the near future; but be that as it may, we have as good people as there is to be found anywhere, and their pastor well-pleased with his field of labor. We are hoping and praying for spiritual prosperity, not only at this place, but throughout the North Mississippi Conference. Pray for us."

Rev. J. W. Raper, Montpelier, Miss., March 1, 1899: "This, the Montpelier circuit, is in a prosperous condition. The spiritual condition of the church is better than on the average charge. Our greatest trouble is with the wild-cat whisky business. A number of our good men have formed themselves into a Law and Order League, and have hunted out the wild-cats and wild-cat-ers, and brought them before the courts. In some parts things had gotten so bad that people were disturbed at church, and the law was powerless to suppress the crime because the officers would not do their duty. Our church people ought to see to it that no man who is not a Christian gentleman can go into office. Let our Christian men demand of officers to execute the law, and if they fail, let the law-abiding people form themselves into Law and Order Leagues, and demand the punishment of offenders. . . . We had a good old-fashion pounding by our young people of Foster Chapel not long since. They came in at a late hour, and began to pound us. The licks came thick and fast, but we enjoyed it as much as they. These young people, and, indeed, all the people, are very thoughtful of and very kind towards their pastor. . . . This is our third year here, and our love for this people is steadily increasing. . . . The first Quarterly Meeting Conference for this charge was held the fourth and fifth of February. Our new presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, was on hand, and acted presiding elder as well as one of more experience. All our people and the preacher learned to love Bro. Wyatt. He will have their co-operation in the work. Bishop Key could not have appointed a man who would have come nearer taking hold of the work where Rev. S. M. Thames left it than Bro. Wyatt has done. . . . We are now serving under our fourth presiding elder. We were appointed to supply the Tremont circuit first under Rev. J. B. Stone as presiding elder. No young preacher ever had a warmer friend than he was to us. His fatherly care and advice did me much good, and my love for him is like that of a son. He will never know how much he did for me until he gets to the good world. Next, Rev. W. S. Lagrone came as my presiding elder, and soon I found that I had in him all that I had lost in Bro. Stone. He served as presiding elder of this (the Aberdeen) district only one year. After him came Rev. S. M. Thames, who served this (the Aberdeen) district four years. This man of God did more for me than any preacher ever did. We love him more like a father than a brother. Now we have Bro. Wyatt, and we find in him a brother and friend. So we conclude that presiding elders and Bishops are not as some people seem to think. We have found them in our short association with them to be among the best men in the world. We hope to do a better year's work than ever before."

Death Loves a Shining Mark.

"She is an only daughter and only seventeen," writes Mrs. H. H. Conklin, of Morton Avenue, Batavia, N. Y., in a recent letter addressed to Doctor R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. "We began your medicine in May (the 'Favorite Prescription'). My daughter then was very wasted, in fact we did not think she could live long. She had profuse menstruation which was of long standing; also a bad cough. We had spent a great deal of money and worried a great deal. When she began taking your medicine her weight was only eighty-seven pounds. She now weighs from ninety-eight to one hundred all the time and is well. Is cured entirely of her difficulty, has no cough at all, and all for eight or ten dollars. It had gotten to be a serious question with us. We had done all we could for her. We are truly grateful to you for all your kind advice and sympathy in the matter. We feel that you are a personal friend."

No living physician has a wider practical experience or enjoys a higher reputation in the treatment of diseases peculiar to women than Dr. Pierce. In cases of this nature he will send by mail careful professional advice without charge, and instructions whereby the most obstinate ailments may be entirely overcome. His "Favorite Prescription" is the only proprietary remedy ever designed by an educated, authorized physician specifically to cure women's diseases. ● It is the only medicine which makes motherhood perfectly safe and comparatively easy and painless.

Say "No" and stick to it when urged to accept a substitute.

Best Edition of the World's Best Book

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers. New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to March, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

Imperial Seal Binding, Tuck Edges, known as "Divinity Circuit," Linen Lined, Round Corners, Red under Gold Edges, Price, $4.00.

This book in Bourgeois type will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price ($4) to any address; but to that select class who read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, we furnish it on the following terms: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, viz., to March, 1900, and we will send it to you, postpaid, for $1.50. (A little later you will have to pay to April, 1900.)

The same Bible in Minion type will be sent for $1.25; in Emerald type, for $1, to those who pay a full year in advance.

For fifty cents additional we will send Bible with index. For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved on the outside in gilt letters.

Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day,
Time will never bring thee back
Chances swept away.
—C. F. Adams.

Lifting the burden of another beats training in a gymnasium for increasing strength.—Exchange.

Doctrinal orthodoxy is a very good thing in its place; but it is a very poor substitute for holy living.—Selected.

All I think, all I hope, all I write, all I live for, is based upon the divinity of Jesus Christ, the central joy of my poor, wayward heart.—W. E. Gladstone.

The covetous person lives as if the world were made altogether for him, and not he for the world; to take in everything, and to part with nothing.—Robert South.

Do not let any of us complain that our circumstances are making us evil. Let us manfully confess, one and all, that the evil lies in us, not in them.—F. D. Maurice.

After all, the kind of world one carries about in one's self is the important thing; and the world outside takes all its grace, color and value from that.—J. R. Lowell.

There are some men and women in whose company we are always at our best. All the best stops in our nature are drawn out by their intercourse, and we find a music in our souls never there before.—Drummond.

Useful occupation is not only a tonic; it is a sedative to the tronbled spirit. Instead of looking in upon our own griefs until we magnify them, we should rather look at the sorrows of others, in order to lighten and lessen them.—Cuyler.

We never know through what divine mysteries of compensation the Father of the universe may be carrying out the sublime plan, and these three words, "God is love," ought to contain, to every doubting soul, the solution of things.—Miss Mulock.

Deep streams run still; and why? Not because there are no obstructions, but because they altogether overflow those stones or rocks round which the shallow stream has to make its noisy way: it is the full life that saves us from the little, noisy troubles of life.—George S. Merriam.

The Lord knows how to make stepping-stones for us of our defects even; it is what he lets them be for. He remembereth—he remembereth in the making—that we are but dust—the dust of earth—that he chose to make something a little lower than the angels out of.—Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

Prayer is precluded by enmity in the heart either against one whom we have wronged or who has wronged us. Here is a paraphrase of the prayer so-called of an unforgiving one, even in "saying" the prayer Christ taught us: "Forgive me as I forgive him who trespasses against me—and I don't forgive him at all." His prayer is really for God not to forgive him.—Churchman.

THE GREAT EVIL.

During the prevalence of the recent unparalleled blizzard the daily papers contained numerous accounts of dire suffering among the poor, especially in the large cities, on account of the lack of fuel and food supplies. There is always a certain amount of destitution and distress among the impecunious classes in the cities, but the coming of a severe cold spell, such as we have recently passed through, greatly intensifies this distress, and thus focuses public attention upon it. That poverty is not likely ever to cease entirely is a warrantable deduction from the history of the human race, but it does not follow that the proportion of the poor to the whole population will never be lessened, or that its evils will not be decreased. As civilization advances, the gaunt wolf of famine shows himself less and less frequently, and is being driven from one retreat to another. It is well-nigh impossible for the people of America to realize how intense and how general is poverty in the East, especially in India and China. There is enough of it, however, at home to call forth the deepest sympathy and the most self-denying liberality.

A fact which the recent blizzard brought into bolder relief is, that the prime cause of pauperism in this country is the drink-evil. Many a family shivered and suffered from the icy blasts a short time ago simply because the bread-winner of the home had spent for rum the money that should have been saved for fuel. From all quarters comes the testimony given by the friends and helpers of the poor that this is the great source of famine and suffering; that to abolish intemperance means to put money into the pockets of the poor, to say nothing about the diminution of crime and taxation. Says the editor of the Wesleyan Advocate, in the issue of Feb. 22:

"There was a great deal of suffering in Atlanta and other places in Georgia during the severe weather last week. From conversations with pastors and others we heard again, what we knew before, that the dram-shops were the cause of no little of the privation and distress. Many families were reduced to hard life because the wages of the husbands and fathers were consumed in the saloons. The drink-habit, fostered by the open saloon, had driven many families to the poorest houses for shelter. The struggle for bread had been hard, and when the mercury dropped below zero the struggle to keep the unfortunate families from freezing was even harder."

Dr. Edward Everett Hale not long since made the remarkable statement that the church of which he is pastor could by itself take care of all the dependent people in Boston who were not made so by drink. The twenty-sixth annual report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of Massachusetts shows that out of a total of 3,230 paupers found in the State institutions during twelve consecutive months, 2,108, or over 65 per cent., were addicted to the drink-habit. Full statistics would, doubtless, make a similar showing in every State in the Union where the liquor traffic is not prohibited, or strongly restricted.

Strikingly confirmatory of what has been said above is the following emphatic utterance of the judge of one of the Chicago courts, quoted in the Inter-Ocean a few months ago: "You may ransack the pigeon-holes all over the city and county, and look over such annual reports as are made up, but they will not tell half the truth. Not only are the saloons of Chicago responsible for the cost of the police force, the fifteen justice courts, the bridewell, but also the criminal courts, the county jail, a great proportion of Joliet State Prison, the long murder trials, the coroner's office, the morgue, the poor-house, the reform schools, the mad-houses. Go anywhere you please, and almost invariably you will find that whisky is at the root of the evil. I saw estimated the other day that there are 10,000 destitute boys in Chicago, who are roaming at large. I think that is a small estimate. Men are sent to jail for drunkenness, and what becomes of their families? The county agent and the poor-house provide for some. Generally speaking, they go to destruction."

Here is a picture presented by the Wesleyan Advocate a few weeks since: "Mrs. Thomas Strickland, of Atlanta, suicided last Tuesday night. She was young—not more than twenty years of age. Her husband was drunk at the time. The day she suicided he had taken all his house-hold goods, not leaving his wife a bed. From the money he realized he got drunk, and was in the police barracks when informed of his wife's death, but was too drunk to be affected by the news."

Every intelligent man knows that this is only a fair sample of the wreck and ruin caused by intemperance. The liquor traffic is the most prolific source of crime and wretchedness known to modern civilization. Let Christian people everywhere wage upon it a war of extermination. We quite agree with Dr. S. A. Steel in saying, "Let us make the abolition of the liquor traffic the goal of civic progress in the twentieth century."

A NEW BOOK.

SPIRITUAL LIFE. By Rev. L. L. Nash, D. D., of the North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South. 12 mo. 203 pages. Cloth. Price, 75 cents. Southern Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

The nature and conditions of spiritual life, as well as the successive stages and manifestations thereof, are here presented in a very logical, forceful, and invigorating way. Though the scope of the book takes in many old, but fundamental, truths and doctrines, as, for instance, those of natural depravity, repentance, regeneration, spiritual growth, and the resurrection state, the author has succeeded in making these, and the other subjects treated of, both luminous and interesting. The opening chapter, which deals with the "spiritual sphere," makes it wonderfully plain that though we are in the flesh, we are also in the realm of spirit, in the very presence of God and the glorious verities of the eternal world. In discussing the "law of spiritual life" the author combats the supposition that the gospel dispensation is less exacting in its requirements than the laws that governed Israel under the Mosaic dispensation. The death of the carnal nature, it is shown, is the law of spiritual life, which law demands repentance and faith at all times as the conditions of salvation. Perhaps the most striking and suggestive chapter in the book is the one on the "Unity of Spiritual Life," which, though a life of degrees, the author holds, is not necessarily conscious life in its initial stages, the quickening of the soul before repentance and conversion being, as it were, a period of spiritual gestation. While the continuity of spiritual life, even in its general stages, is strongly affirmed, the possibility of apostasy is not overlooked. The author's definitions of "holiness," "sanctification," and "perfection," terms often confused, are based upon the Scriptures, and are about as unobjectionable as any we have seen. He thus outlines "Christian perfection:" "In a qualified sense, it means a state of spiritual being where the whole nature is permeated with love to God and his righteousness. As a state of love, it may be attained, but not in such degree that we can not fail to love God with all the heart, soul, mind, and strength, and our neighbors as ourselves. To keep in this state of perfect love, it is necessary that we should continue to use the means of grace, and grow after larger measures of love."

The concluding chapter is devoted to a discussion of the nature of the "Second Coming of Christ," and is a strong refutation of the millenarian error. To the spiritually minded and the inquiring that will prove a very readable and instructive book, and is entitled to the favorable consideration of every sincere seeker after truth. As Bishop Fitzgerald says in the preface, "The polemics of the book are not aggressive nor objectionable."

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. B.

In Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, for March, the timely topic of Mormon polygamy is tactfully discussed by Mrs. Frank Leslie. The Nicaragua Canal project—past, present and future—is ably discussed by E. A. Fletcher, whose contribution has the advantage of being thoroughly well illustrated. "Queen Wilhelmina and Women's Work in Holland," by S. M. D'Engelbronner, is full of personal and literary, as well as pictorial interest, which is equally true of "Sketching from Nature," by H. Villiers Barnett. There are complete short stories this month by Mary J. Holmes (illustrated by Wenzel), and Etta W. Pierce (illustrated by Rosenmeyer). The fine-art reproductions in this number are profuse and beautiful.

The Midland Monthly Magazine, for March, opens with a beautifully illustrated article entitled, "The Dells of Wisconsin," by Mildred McNeal. "A Swamp Adventure" is the title of a thrilling story by "A Mississippian." The author describes the social conditions existing in Mississippi in the ante-bellum days. A history of Grant's Vicksburg Campaign, by J. W. Emerson, appears in this number. Another article worthy of mention is one that treats of "Mormonism and the Mormon War in Missouri." There are also a number of short stories and several poems, which add to the table of contents.

The Coming Age is a new and interesting magazine of constructive thought under the editorial management of B. O. Flower and Mrs. C. K. Keifsnider. The contents of this valuable periodical appeal pre-eminently to the spiritual and moral energies of the readers. It is an excellent periodical of its class. The March number contains original essays by G. C. Lorimer, D. D.; E. P. Powell, Prof. Daniel Batchelor, Henry Ware Allen, Charles Malloy, B. O. Flower, and others. The departments of Health and Home, Original Fiction, and Conversations, are made interesting by articles of great importance to lovers of good literature.

A METHODIST MAGAZINE.

We have received the first issue of the American Illustrated Methodist Magazine, edited by Rev. James W. Lee, D. D., and Naphthali Luccock, and published by the Methodist Magazine Publishing Co., St. Louis, Mo. In its mechanical make-up it compares favorably with the very best magazines of the day. The paper, typography and illustrations are all superb.

The aim of this new candidate for public favor, as stated in the "publishers' announcement," is "to recall the great inheritance of Methodism from the past and declare anew its greater trust for the future; to revive with the vivid touch of art the heroic scenes and personalities of the church; to inspire anew loyalty to the ideals, organizations and institutions of Methodism; to assist in deepening the spiritual life and in enlarging the scope of Christian thought and aspiration."

We most heartily commend it to our people as a high-grade periodical worthy to take its place in every Methodist home. The subscription price is only one dollar a year.

THE COMBINATION BIBLE.

Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., 512 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

DEAR BROTHER: Your premium Bible came promptly to hand last evening. The "combination" feature is the excelsior feature of Bible making. Binding strong and beautiful; print clear and attractive; helps complete and manageable; size, just the thing! It is the best "combination" in the shape of a Bible I have yet seen. And so easy to obtain—only three subscribers! A preacher that can't get that number of Methodists to read his Conference paper, and theirs, lacks tact or zeal, or both.

Yours, etc., C. P. SMITH.

Minden, La.

Having been on the tripod long enough to acquire the nerve which naturally comes to an editor in the course of time, we take the liberty of publishing the above private letter from Rev. Courtland P. Smith, of the Louisiana Conference. We hope he will pardon the liberty we take. We commend it to the careful consideration of the preachers of the patronizing Conferences. Take notice that this magnificent Bible can be had free, postpaid, by sending in three new subscriptions accompanied by the cash—$6.

"THE BOOK OPENED."

MR. EDITOR: The "Book Opened," by Dr. Nevin, I take great pleasure in recommending as worthy of a place in every home. It is a suitable and necessary companion to the Bible. To the Bible reader of the average library it is indispensable. Suggestive, full of general information, it is the book the general reader needs. I. W. COOPER, President Centenary College.

March 9, 1899.

The first step which every pastor should take who wishes to make the new century revival and thank-offering movement successful is to introduce a church paper into every home in his congregation. The press will be the main organ in this movement for the diffusion of information, the announcement and advocacy of plans, the arousement of the people, and the interpretation and application of the principles underlying the enterprise. An Advocate in every family will help to enlist the household, old and young, as helpers in the work to be done. Apart from all the other reasons that exist to urge upon a pastor the duty of circulating church literature among his people, the one which we here urge becomes in the present juncture exigent.—Central Advocate.

NOTES.

The Methodist Churches in Chicago have surpliced choirs.—Exchange. What next?

Rev. P. H. Fontaine has announced a meeting at Parker Memorial, beginning Wednesday night, the fifteenth.

Parker Memorial Church has evinced its progressiveness by substituting electric lights for its former illuminating apparatus.

The New Orleans Preachers' Meeting, on Monday morning, was honored with the presence of Revs. T. B. Clifford and G. S. Barsoon.

Rev. W. E. Aiken, of the Louisiana Conference, has made an auspicious beginning on his charge. He has received several members, and has others to follow soon.

Many hearts will be made sad by the announcement of the death of Rev. J. White Davis, of the Louisiana Conference. He was an excellent man and a diligent, faithful pastor. On another page Bro. Grace gives particulars.

In a private letter Rev. J. A. Bowen writes: "The good Lord continues to bless us at Coinmbus. Sixty eight accessions to date, and more to follow." This does not include any of the college girls.

Rev. J. G. Galloway writes: "The loss of our church at Newton was a great blow, but we expect very soon to let the contract for a handsome brick church." We congratulate our wide-awake brother and his enterprising flock.

Rev. B. B. Sullivan, of the North Mississippi Conference, sending in a list of new subscriptions, writes: "I have been agreeably surprised at the readiness with which the people respond to my calls for subscriptions." This is a pointer.

***

The Skipper-Clifford meeting at Louisiana Avenue began, according to announcement, on Friday night, the ninth. The services are well attended, and the people are pleased with Bro. Clifford's preaching. Gratifying results are hoped for.

Bishop Galloway returned last week from Virginia. After spending a few days at home, he left for Fort Worth, Texas, where he holds a Conference with the presiding elders of the five Texas Conferences in the interest of the Twentieth Century Educational Fund.

Rev. J. W. Honnoll writes from Holly Springs, Miss., March 13, 1899: "I have been able to meet all of my Quarterly Conferences and found each preacher in his place and in favor with his people as far as I have heard an expression. Notwithstanding the severe weather the reports have been as good as usual. The preachers are working for and expecting a revival. . . . Dr. Price is moving up things in Holly Springs. Bro. Lowry, of Little Rock, Ark., is holding a revival meeting here at this time. Some sixteen have professed conversion, and we are expecting many more, as the meeting will continue during this week. Bro. Lowry preaches the gospel with power and effect. He makes no war upon Bishops, presiding elders, pastors or the church. The work he does is genuine and will be lasting in its results."

Rev. J. A. B. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, writes: "After ten days' confinement in my room with grippe I am on full duty again. We observed Veteran's Day last Sunday. Have sent my assessment in full for Conference claimants." An example worthy of universal imitation.

Rev. A. T. Buck, of the North Mississippi Conference, writes: "You are giving us a most excellent paper, and the interest of my people in it is being increased with every issue. May the Lord put it into the hearts of preachers and people to furnish you the 7,500 new subscribers, and more!"

***

Rev. John Hunter, D. D., died at his home in Jackson, Miss., on the twelfth. He was pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Jackson about thirty-nine years—from '58 to '97—when he retired on account of failing health. He was a man of fine abilities, and was highly esteemed wherever he was known.

***

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth gave a lecture in the Grand Opera House, in this city, a few nights since, on the subject of Prison Reform. Owing to the fact that her coming had not been judiciously advertised, she had a very small audience. Those who heard her were much pleased with both the lecture and the lecturer.

Rev. L. F. Alford, of the Mississippi Conference, has been on the sick list most of the time since Conference with an attack of measles. He is now at work, however. We are glad to learn that he has recovered so as to attend to the duties of his pastorate. His flock show their appreciation by many kind attentions.

Rev. J. M. Alford, of the Louisiana Conference, writes: "We have made a good beginning on Live Oak charge. Congregations large. I intend to put the ADVOCATE into fifty homes on this charge. Half that number are official members. We have a movement on foot for the establishment of a camp meeting at Denham Springs. We shall expect our editor to attend. Denham Springs is quite a watering place. There are three mineral springs."

In a private letter from Indianola, Miss., under date of March 10, Rev. W. H. Sanders writes:

We have made a splendid start in our new field at this place. The way is open for a good year's work. Bro. W. S. Shipman, our new and young presiding elder on this district, is making a splendid start. His soul and body is in the work, and he will move things along all lines. We have just had finished a new courthouse at this place, one of the most handsome in the State. Come up and see us.

Rev. R. L. Webb, of the Mississippi Conference, sending in a good batch of new subscribers, writes: "We are moving on smoothly on our new work. A new parsonage will soon be in process of erection at Brooklyn. We hope also to build two, or more, new churches this year. Two of our most valiant soldiers of the cross—Bro. Deerman, of Augusta, and Bro. Whyte, of Bond—have gone to their reward. There have been several additions to the church."

Since the programme of the Lumberton Sunday-school Conference, in this issue, went to press, we have received the following notice, which explains itself:

Please put in the ADVOCATE a notice of the change in time of meeting of Sunday-school Conference. It convenes March 29, and lasts three days. Opening sermon will be preached by Dr. J. M. Weems (night of the twenty-eighth) instead of by Dr. Murrah. Please make change in programme sent you.

D. SCARBOROUGH.

Forest, March 9, 1899.

We frequently receive requests to publish programmes in two or three issues. If the brethren will count the number of districts in the three patronizing Conferences, and remember the number of convocations belonging to each—District Conference, Sunday-school Conference, Epworth League Conference, Missionary Conference, Preachers' Institute, Woman's Foreign Mission Conference, and Woman's Home Mission Conference—they will cease to make such requests. If we do this for one, we will be expected to do so for all.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Jackson, La., EDITOR.

The Mississippi Leaguers will please take notice of change of date for holding the State Conference. The time set is June 22-25; West Point is the place.

The people of West Point are a loyal and liberal folk, and will royally entertain all who attend the Conference.

Let every League in the State plan to send several delegates. These Conferences mean much in arousing enthusiasm and enlightening the Leaguers as to the work.

Miss Lntie Stevens, who, for some time past, has been secretary of the Austin (Texas) district, recently returned to her home in Mississippi. We extend to Miss Lntie a hearty welcome. She is an earnest and efficient Leaguer.

The Epworth Era, of March 2, contained a good pictnre of Rev. J. S. Oakley, presiding elder of the Durant district, North Mississippi Conference. The Leaguers thereabonts know him. He is a onltnred Christian gentleman, and is as popular a presiding elder as he was a pastor. This is saying much.

Rev. H. Walter Featherstnp, D. D., presiding elder of the Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, writing to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, says: "We need abont fifty Epworth Leagnes on the district, and shall try to have them."

Interest in the work in Lonisiana continues to grow. Several districts are planning for Leagne Conferences, and the presiding elders are leading in the work.

At Texas Avenne, Shreveport (Rev. P. O. Lowrey, pastor), a Jnnior League has recently been organized with twenty-nine charter members, and is now snpplied with "Childrens' Praises"—the jnnior hymnal. The pastor writes the children are delighted with the book.

Rev. R. P. Howell writes: "We have organized a Leagne at Zwolle with over twenty members. President, H. P. Dance; first vice-president, Mrs. Maggie Foster; second vice-president, W. H. Hammett; third vice-president, J. A. Price; secretary and treasnrer, Miss Maggie May Hammett. We have also organized a Jnnior Leagne with eight members. Miss Maggie May Hammett is the snperintendent.

We are glad to hear snch good news from Bro. Howell. What he has done at Zwolle perhaps can, and will, be done at other places. We hope so. Who will be the next to send snch a good report?

Forget not the date of the Lonisiana State Epworth Leagne Conference; neither lose sight of the place of meeting. April 20-23 is the time; Crowley the place.

Let all attend who possibly can do so, and endeavor to make it the best Leagne Conference ever held in the State. It promises pleasnre and profit to all who go. The programme is now being arranged, and other plans are being formnlated looking to a snccessfnl gathering of the yonng people.

Dr. DnBose will be busy for the next few weeks assisting in arranging the programme for the Fonrth International Epworth Leagne Conference, to be held at Indianapolis, Jnly 20-23. We donbt not bnt that the Sonthern Leagues will be well represented.

REV. J W DAVIS.

Rev. J. W. Davis, of the Indian Bayon circnit, Lonisiana Conference, departed this life last Sunday night, March 5, between eleven and twelve o'clock. Tuesday, the seventh, we took his remains to the church, a few yards from the parsonage, and there, with a large host of friends of his, we conducted the funeral service. From the church we took the body a few steps out into the cemetery; then we laid it away to rest until the coming of our Lord.

Sister Davis told me that Bro. Davis had been unwell for the past two months, but had filled all through the past cold weather his appointments. He would go when there would be no one at the church bnt himself. She tried to persnade him not to go off to his appointments while the weather was so bad, bnt he would say, "I mnst discharge my dnty." He died with pneumonia, and was sick a very short time.

Bro. Davis was a good man. I loved him, and I know that he is in heaven. He served many hard circnits in his ministerial life, bnt was always found at his post. Onr dear brother died in the army of the Lord, and was baried on the battle-field. May the Lord bless and protect his dear wife and four little children that he has left behind! is my prayer.

R. C. GRACE.

THE MINUTES OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: In looking over the Minutes of the last session of the North Mississippi Conference, I notice one mistake and three omissions, to which, with your permission, I desire to call attention in the columns of the ADVOCATE.

1 1889 is given as the date of my admission on trial into the traveling connection, instead of 1886.

2 There was a resolution offered the first session requesting the Conference Board of Missions to change its policy in the payments of the domestic mission funds to the claimants. That resolntion, by vote of the Conference, was referred to the Conference Board of Missions, bnt the Minutes make no mention of it.

3. My name does not appear in the list with those who protested against the action of the Conference in the adoption of Report No. 5 from the Committee on Books and Periodicals. I went to the secretary's table and called for the protest, stating that I desired to sign it. The secretary said it was not convenient, bnt he would put my name to it.

4. The report on Sabbath observance is not published in the Minutes as it was presented to and adopted by the Conference. It is at best only a condensed statement, and does not even give the thought-contents of the report. Why the report was disposed of in this way I know not, bnt I can say positively that there was not the least authority for it. The report was not adopted by the Conference in part, bnt in whole; and if the committee and Conference had not desired its publication in the Conference journal, they would not have turned it over to the secretary for publication.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE MINUTES.

They are out and on their way to the preachers. As was the case with the Mississippi Minutes, unavoidable delays prevented their appearance sooner. One of these was the sudden death of the printer who has heretofore had in hand the difficult task of setting up accurately the statistical tables. All the matter except the tables was put into the hands of the printers not many days after Conference, and the statistical secretary furnished his tables as soon as it was possible for him to do so. There has been no unnecessary delay. While it is altogether optional with them, the secretary trusts the brethren will note the amount of postage on their packages and send it to him, care of Lock Box 269, Shreveport, La. A small amount to each brother, it is a large amount to the secretary, taken out of the small amount realized from the collections for the publication of the Minutes. Look at this:

	Assm't for Minutes.	Paid.
New Orleans District	$ 14 50	$ 31 30
Baton Rouge District	31 00	20 85
Opelousas District	25 00	13 15
Alexandria District	22 00	7 50
Shreveport District	39 00	23 00
Arcadia District	34 60	20 25
Delhi District	28 00	12 11
	$227 10	$128 26

About 56 per cent. only was brought up by the preachers for the Minutes. At no time can the secretary make much, bnt with the help of ads., he publishes and sends them out, realizing a few dollars only for his trouble, several times having pocketed a loss. The secretary assures all concerned that the best that could be done has been done, and he trusts that the Minutes, though past due, will be found satisfactory.

CHURCH DEDICATED.

MR. EDITOR: On last Sunday, March 5, we dedicated "Thompson Memorial" Church, four and a half miles north of Aberdeen, on the Okolona circuit. The people, with the encouragement and energy of their faithful pastor, Bro. E. P. Craddock, have wisely built a good house, and it is now set apart for the worship of Almighty God. They feel justly proud of their success, and are rejoicing over having done that which will be a special blessing to their community, be a means of salvation to many, and a goodly heritage to their children. This church has proven what plan, concerted action and liberality can do. They paid up a "full" quarter on salaries and subscribed (paid part of it) their assessment for general collections.

All communities can do as well. May the Great Head of the church continue to honor the efforts of his people!

Yours truly, J. M. WYATT.

AS MANY AS WILL READ.

The New Century Education is a monthly paper published by our Board of Education at Nashville. It is the organ of "The Twentieth Century Fund" campaign, giving reports from all over the connection. We propose to send this monthly, without any charge whatever, to all readers whose addresses are furnished by their pastors. If you have on your charge as many as fifty who will likely read the paper, send their names. Some pastors have already attended to this, and we have on the list at Nashville over 300 addresses from the Mississippi Conference; bnt each pastor who has not yet put this paper among his people would do well to send me about 20 names.

CHRISTIAN WOMANHOOD.

BY REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.

The above-named work has had a sale of nearly six thousand. From the many scores of highly commendatory notices that have appeared in the church papers, we present the following:

"We hope it will be read by every woman in the church."—Florida Advocate.

"It is the best thesaurus of facts concerning womanhood with which we are acquainted. The author has evidently given painstaking thought and care to the preparation of this volume. After showing the degraded condition of woman under the highest pagan civilizations, he demonstrates that it was Christianity that began to raise her to higher levels, and that since the Reformation the good work has been going forward. We wish thousands of women to read this excellent volume."—Dr. C. F. Deems.

"This volume is the result of patient investigation and thoughtful study of the whole question treated. In the formulation of the case and in analyzing the testimony, a vigorous, well-poised legal mind is brought to bear. Dr. Black, moreover, establishes the points of his discussion as a skillful general establishes his lines of battle in the face of an alert enemy. As he begins, so he closes, leaving the impression that a master in Israel has written bravely, and telling of Christian womanhood, maintaining his position at every turn. The book is needed, and will long be in popular demand."—Sunday-School Magazine, Nashville, Tenn.

"In place of the well-worn platitudes and sickly sentimentalism usual in the treatment of this subject, Dr. Black offers us the ripe results of historical research. He bases his arguments upon indisputable facts, expresses his convictions freely and fearlessly, and defends his conclusions with a zeal according to knowledge, both of logic and of rhetoric. Whoever reads this book will be profoundly moved in thought and feeling, whether he indorses it as a whole or not."—Catalogue, Publishing House M. E. Church, South.

The price is $1, and we will send it postpaid on receipt of that sum. Bnt to that select class who subscribe for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we make the following special offer: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, and send us sixty cents additional, and we will send you the book postpaid.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Columbus District Conference of the Epworth League met in Starkville, Miss., Feb 23 and 24, 1899. Among other interesting papers read were: "The Real Object of the League," by Rev. E. S. Lewis; "Social Life of the League," by W. S. Lagrone; "The Literary Department of the League," by Prof. J. A. Wordard, and "The Devotional Work of the League," by Miss Vic Thompson. Probably the most enjoyable feature of the Conference was the explanation of her chart on "Systematic Bible Reading," by Mrs. G. A. Mathis.

Our beloved General Secretary, Rev. H. M. DuBose, addressed the Conference Friday evening, to the delight of the Leaguers present.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE.

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1 50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, bnt only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"We have examined this book with a good degree of attention, and feel free to give it a very strong commendation. The author has brought out of the treasury things new and old. For popular use we know nothing better."—Methodist Protestant, Baltimore.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

"Dr. Nevin has given here in 341 pages the most valuable part of what is usually spread over 600 to 1,000 pages, and sold at a cost of from $5 to $10. He has appended tables of high value, and altogether made up a book which can but prove of great profit to every family into which it may come."—Journal and Messenger, Cincinnati, O.

"As an aid to Bible students this is a desirable volume."—The Christian Standard, Cincinnati, O.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

KIDNEY TROUBLE MAKES YOU MISERABLE.

Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT is the Great Remedy for Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid Troubles.

By Special Arrangement, Every "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" Reader, to Prove for Themselves the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery, May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely FREE by Mail.

Well people have healthy kidneys.

You are in no danger of being sick if you keep your kidneys well.

They filter your blood, and keep it pure and free from disease-breeding germs.

Your other organs may need care, but your kidneys most, because they do most.

If you are sick, begin with your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The treatment of some diseases may be delayed without danger, not so with kidney disease.

Swamp-Root is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of untiring effort and research by the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, Dr. Kilmer, and has truly wonderful healing action on the kidneys and bladder.

It will be found by both men and women just what is needed in all cases of kidney and bladder disorders, lame back, dull pain or ache in the back, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of neglected kidney trouble.

Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold water and promptly overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed for twenty-four hours forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

The way to be well is to look after your kidneys. To take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root when you are suffering from clogged kidneys.

This prompt, mild and wonderful remedy is easy to get at the drug stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. Make note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

"IF."

BY MARGARET G. GEORGE.

If wishing could bring it back to me,
If wishing could bring it back!
The wrathful sentence that flew away
To mar the joy of another's day;
If wishing could bring it back!

If working could bring them back to me,
If working could bring them back!
The selfish hours I dreamed away,
That made all toilful another's day;
If working could bring them back!

If praying could bring them back to me,
If praying could bring them back!
The chilling doubts that I gave away
To cloud the light of another day;
If praying could bring them back!

VOICE AND MANNER.

It has been wisely said that we receive an unknown person according to his dress and manner. We take leave of him according to his merits. A gracious presence and cheerful, well-modulated voice sympathetic and cheerful. A mother or teacher with a querulous voice is responsible for much misbehavior. Teachers and people of positive convictions too often have an unpleasantly didactic tone. Look with interest, but without staring, at the person with whom you are talking. Do not let your eye wander over her clothes or around the room. Be simple and sincere. Be yourself a good listener while another is talking. In talking to a number of people scattered around a room, even though you are telling the story especially to one, let all the others feel that their presence is recognized and their interest is appreciated. Hold each one pleasantly with your eye. A society woman of tact does this instinctively.—Prof. J. W. Churchhill.

LINCOLN AND THE PIG.

An amusing incident occurred while Lincoln was riding the circuit. As he was passing a deep slough, to his exceeding distress, he saw a pig struggling in vain to extricate himself from the mud. Lincoln looked at the pig and the mud which enveloped him, and then at his own new clothes, which he had purchased but a short time before. Deciding against the claims of the pig, he rode on; but he could not get rid of the vision of the poor brute. At last, after riding several miles, he turned back, determined to release the animal even at the expense of his new suit. Arriving at the spot he tied his horse and, with considerable difficulty, succeeded in rescuing the pig from its predicament. Then he washed his hands in the nearest brook, remounted his horse and rode on. He then began to inquire as to the motive that sent him back to release the pig. He at first thought it pure benevolence, but finally came to the conclusion that it was selfishness, for he said to himself that he went to the pig's relief in order to "take a pain out of his own mind."

CHARITY IN JUDGING CHARACTER.

Hasty judgment of the actions of others is dangerous and often unjust. We measure too much by some superficial appearance and condemn hastily, when, if we but knew and understood the motives and reasons, we would warmly approve. We sometimes say of someone: "That pain, sorrow, or loss has not deeply affected him." But we do not know. It is like the death of a few of the soldiers in front of a regiment. The broken ranks close up again into the solid phalanx and the loss is not apparent. There may be no disorganization, no surrender, no craving for pity, no display of despair. It is like the calm, dazzling play of the waves warmed by the morning's sun after a night of storm and disaster; there is no sign of the wreck; the tide has carried the debris away far out on the ocean; the treacherous water has swallowed all signs and tokens of the night's awful work. We see only the fairness of the morning, not the suffering of the night. Let us be charitable in our judgment and condemn not when we do not know.—William George Jordan.

A PERFECT LITTLE HOME.

Among the writings of that rare woman and gifted writer, Helen Hunt Jackson, there is a picture of a home as it ought to be, drawn in such fair and graceful lines that it deserves to be hung up in every family gallery where all may see, heed and learn its lesson. Here is the picture: "The most perfect little home I ever saw was a little house into the sweet incense of whose fires went no costly things. A thousand dollars served as a year's living for father, mother and three children. But the mother was the creator of a home; her relations with the children were the most beautiful I have ever seen; every inmate of the house involuntarily looked into her face for the key-note of the day, and it always rang clear. From the rosebud or clover leaf which, in spite of her hard housework, she always found time to put beside our plates at breakfast, down to the story she had on hand to read in the evening, there was no intermission of her influence. She has always been and always will be my ideal of a mother, wife and home-maker. If to her quick brain, loving heart and exquisite face had been added the appliances of wealth and enlargements of wide culture, hers would have been absolutely the ideal home. As it was, it was the best I have ever seen."—Christian Work.

TRUE COURTESY.

General Lee was in the cars going to Richmond one day, and was seated at the end farthest from the door. The other seats were filled with officers and soldiers. An old woman, poorly dressed, entered at one of the stations, and finding no seat, and none having been offered to her, approached the end where the General was seated. He immediately rose and gave her his seat. Instantly there was a general rising, each one offering his seat to the General. But he calmly said, "No, gentlemen; if there was no seat for the infirm old woman, there can be none for me." The effect was remarkable. One after another got out of the car. The seats seemed to be too hot for them, and the General and the old lady soon had the car to themselves.—Standard.

You are letting miserable misunderstandings run on from year to year, meaning to clear them up some day—if you could only know and see and feel that the time is short, how it would break the spell! How you would go instantly and do the thing which you might never have another chance to do!—Phillips Brooks.

Let us do our duty and pray that we may do our duty here, now, to day; not in dreamy sweetness, but in active energy; not in the green oasis of the future, but in the dusty desert of the present; not in the imaginations of otherwhere, but in the realities of now.—Farrar.

What an impression of sadness is made on the minds of the pure to hear ugly words falling from the lips of a sweet little child; they are like a great black spider crawling from the bosom of a beautiful white rose.—Churchman.

Hygiene.

VARIETY IN FOOD.

Many people fall into the mistake of supposing that, because they take a certain number, of meals daily, and keep their stomachs in constant employment, they have satisfied the needs of the body. A doctor was recently called in to attend upon a seamstress who was suffering from weakness and general depression. "What kind of food have you been living upon?" asked he of his patient. "Oh, my food has been all right!" she replied. "I have lived mostly on bread and butter for a long time, and I am sure there is no harm in that." "My dear woman," exclaimed the doctor, "you have explained the secret of your illness. Your body has been starving on that diet, and I am surprised you are no worse." The functions which the body has to perform are many and various, and the supply of food must be complex to meet its requirements. The inter-organs are constantly at work, and therefore wasting; the body must be kept warm to a large extent by food. Then there is the wear and tear of the system which an ordinary day's work involves. Whether one's life be one of comparative ease, or filled with arduous toil, this variety of diet must be maintained, and flesh-forming, heat-giving, and starchy matter must be taken in proper porportions. With this fact before us, it is a duty incumbent upon all to understand the nature and composition of food, and its fitness for the nourishment of the human frame.

Under natural conditions the appetite is a fair guide in the selection of materials, but our methods of cooking and seasoning are so contrary to reason that its power in that direction is not of much use. Food should also be regulated in quantity by the amount of physical labor to be performed. An artisan or farm laborer who spends Saturday afternoon and Sunday in resting after a week of exacting toil, does not require quite so much food during his leisure. Yet in the majority of instances he eats more, and, as a consequence, is in worse trim on returning to his work than he was when he left it. When the food supply is kept up, and mechanical labor diminished, the system is burdened with a surplus of matter which the tissues can not dispose of. The strain then falls to the internal organs, and when this happens indigestion, headache, and several other disorders make themselves known. Overfeeding and disregard for the true requirements of the human frame in its diverse experiences have been the cause of much physical discomfort.—Hall's Journal of Health.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wine-glass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

Do not fail to read our offer of "The Book Opened." It is a book that ought to be in every home.

OUR $1 OFFER.

Much has been said about reducing the subscription price of the ADVOCATE. The only way in which a reduction can be brought about is by an increase in the number of subscribers. In order to facilitate this result, we make the following offer: Until further notice we will take new subscriptions at the rate of $1 for eight months. When seven thousand five hundred new names have been sent in at this rate with the cash, we will extend the time four months longer, thus reducing the price to $1 per annum. When the extension is made, old subscribers will get the benefit as well as new ones, provided they first pay up all arrearages. Of course, no commissions can be given under this offer. Address

OBITUARIES.

MOORE—GEORGE MOORE was born in New Brunswick, Dominion of Canada, Feb. 10, 1827, and died at his home near Patterson, La., Feb. 18, 1899, aged seventy-three years and two days. He was married to Miss Eliza Nash, of Patterson, La., Oct. 10, 1877. He was converted under the ministry of Rev. Reynolds S. Trippett, and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1887, under the pastorate of Rev. F. N. Parker. Very soon after he joined the church he was elected steward and trustee, which positions he filled with fidelity till his death.

Bro. Moore was not a demonstrative man, yet his life was an open book of consistency and devotion to God and the church. Like David said, he was always "glad when it was said, Let us go unto the house of the Lord." His church vows were the rule of his life. He was a tender, affectionate husband; an obliging, considerate neighbor. He was the soul of honor and truth. This made him a host of friends. His remains were buried from the church Sunday, Feb. 19, at 3 o'clock P. M. The church was filled to its utmost capacity, and scores were forced to stand in the aisle and at the door.

Bro. Moore's death is a sad loss to the family, the church, and the community. "We weep not as those who have no hope." We shall meet again "where congregations ne'er break up and Sabbaths have no end."

TURNER—When we inaugurated the Twentieth Century movement at Carrollton, Miss., on Jan. 29, among the first to respond with a liberal contribution was a noble young man of fine physique, who had been a careful hearer, and whose beaming countenance bespoke his interest. He was a cheerful giver. In two weeks pneumonia laid its cruel hand upon him, and in four days he was dead.

So passed from the habitations of men to the realms beyond the spirit of WM. F. TURNER. He was the joy of his parents, the pride of his brothers and sisters, and the friend of everybody. A young man of noble spirit, fine mind, courageous heart, splendid character, he had good business capacity, and was fitting himself for the practice of law. His life was full of promise. The bow of hope spanned the horizon of his future. But, alas! he is gone. I count it a privilege to have known him, and recall with gratitude his gift to our Twentieth Century Fund, and rejoice that in this, "he being dead, yet speaketh." As this will be an elevated fund, how delightful to reflect that this, probably his last gift, will go on its mission of blessing students in our colleges through the years to come to the end of time. May there be many young men to imitate his noble example! Peace to his ashes!

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

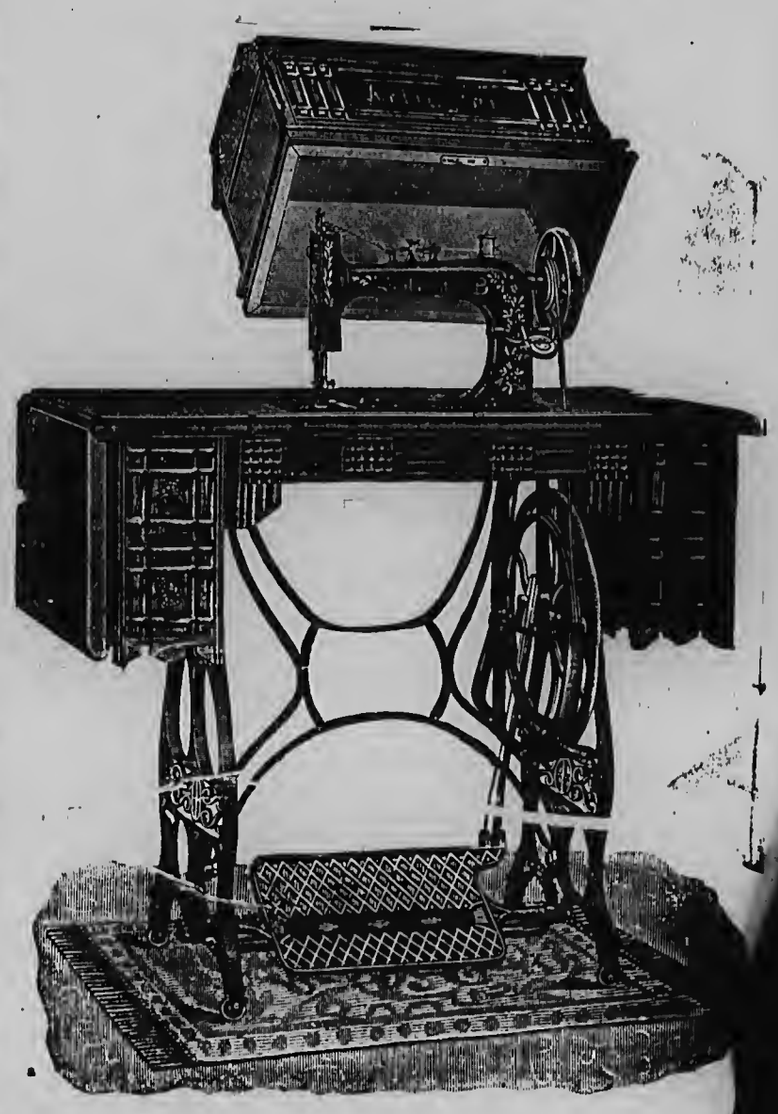
Machine Offer.
New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine
A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take-up, convenient foot rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearing polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "Arlington B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great length; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell, without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.
To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $19, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to April, 1900, and send $17 additional, and we will send you the machine. This price does not include freight.
We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:
We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40. Address.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Crowley, La., had a $50,000 fire a few days since.

Siberia will be largely represented in Paris in 1900, the first time at any exposition. The new railway and the lands it has opened will be fully represented.

S. Niwa, the general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of Tokio, Japan, is to be one of the speakers at Mr. Moody's Bible Conference at Northfield, Mass., during the coming Summer.

An anti-trust bill passed in Indiana authorizes prosecution of any person or corporation entering into a combination to lessen competition. It does not apply to agricultural products in the possession of the producer.

The Department of State has received claims to the amount of $21,000,000 on account of property in Cuba belonging to American citizens, and also on account of injuries sustained by citizens, for which pecuniary indemnity is sought.

The present beef inquiry by the War Department has shown at least two things: that the commissary department of the army was lamentably weak during the late war, and that the government system of inspection of meat and cattle is deficient and a makeshift at the best.

By a vote of 94 to 51, the Massachusetts House has rejected the bill giving to women the right to vote on the question of granting liquor licenses. By a nearly unanimous vote the Oklahoma House has passed a bill giving women full voting power. Both Houses have legislated against Christian Scientists.

Information has been received by the State Department showing that serious consideration is being given by the Chinese Government to the proposition to make San Mun a free port. By this action China hopes to checkmate Italy's plan for the seizure of that port and the creation of a sphere of influence in its immediate vicinity.

After six hours of violent discussion the Cuban Assembly has dismissed General Maximo Gomez from his position as commander-in-chief of the army. The vote was 24 to 6. The first motion was to abolish the position, but it was amended to the one dismissing General Gomez, and leaving the post open for the appointment of a successor.

General Otis has forbidden the continuance of the negotiations between the Spanish Commissioners and the Filipinos for the release of the Spanish prisoners held by the natives. His object in doing this is presumably to prevent the Filipinos from obtaining the immense indemnity which they demand for freeing the prisoners, as the money would undoubtedly be used in aiding the native cause.

It is now an open secret that the relations between General Fitzhugh Lee and General Brooke are not of the most amicable character. Several incidents have recently occurred indicating this. It is said that the Virginian feels that his power has been unjustly curtailed. It now appears likely that General Lee will be removed from his present command and appointed military governor of Santa Clara province with a regular army rank of brigadier-general.

General Gomez will disown the Cuban Assembly. He is disgusted with the petty jealousies of its members and is irritated at the antagonism evinced towards himself. He will disclaim any connection with the body and dispute its right to control his actions. Relying on his popularity with the Cuban people, he will proceed to discuss with Governor-General Brooke the problem of the pacification of the country without regard to the action of the assembly, which has, by its undignified conduct and bitter sentiments, gained the hostility of the Americans and lost the confidence of the sober-minded Cubans.

SPRING TIREDNESS is different from the weariness caused by labor. The last is cured by rest; the first requires a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla to cure it.

That distress after eating is cured by Hood's Pills. They do not gripe. 25 cents.

The officers and enlisted men comprising the temporary force of the navy during the war with Spain, who served creditably beyond the limits of the United States, and who have been or may hereafter be discharged, shall be paid two months' extra pay, and all such officers and enlisted men of the navy who have served within the limits of the United States, and who have been or may hereafter be discharged, shall be paid one month's extra pay. There is a similar provision for paying off the volunteers in the army when mustered out.

During the time immediately preceding as well as during the continuance of the war with Spain, German sentiment was distinctly unfriendly, not to say hostile, to the United States. The German press teemed with pro-Spanish articles, and in not a few instances was distinctly hostile to us. Now all this has suddenly changed. The German Government has not only ceased to advocate commercial retaliation on us for our high tariff duties, but has reprimanded Admiral Diedrichs for his course in the Philippine Islands, and has missed no opportunity to manifest a decided friendly feeling.

President McKinley's proposition looking to the decoration of the graves of the Confederate dead has caused a split in the Grand Army camp in Washington. General Robert Dyronforth, commandor-in-chief of the Union veterans, has not been altogether in sympathy with the President's proposition, and took occasion to state exactly what he thought of it before the D. D. Porter Command No. 16. The command had a meeting a few days ago, and passed a resolution heartily indorsing the promise of the President of the United States recently made to the citizens of the South in regard to caring for the graves of the Confederate dead.

At the Capitol.

I am in my seventy-third year, and for fifty years I have been a great sufferer from indigestion, constipation and biliousness. I have tried all the remedies advertised for these diseases, and got no permanent relief. About one year ago, the disease assuming a more severe and dangerous form, I became very weak, and lost flesh rapidly. I commenced using Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. I gained twelve pounds in three months. My strength and health, my appetite and my digestion were perfectly restored, and now I feel as young and vigorous as I ever did in my life.

CATARRH AND CONSUMPTION

I have spent nearly fifty years in the treatment of the above named diseases, and believe I have effected more genuine cures than any specialist in the history of medicine. As I must soon retire from active life I will, from this time on, send the means of treatment and cure, as used in my practice, FREE and post-paid to every reader of this paper who suffers from these annoying and dangerous diseases. This is a sincere offer which anyone is free to accept. Address,
Prof. J. H. Lawrence, 114 W. 32d St., New York

TO THE WOMEN OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

DEAR SISTERS: Our young missionary candidate, Miss Leila Mc Nemar, will graduate from the Scarritt Bible and Training-school in May. Her papers have been presented to the local Board, and we have good reason to believe that she will be accepted by the Woman's Board, and be appointed to her field of labor at the approaching annual meeting.

A debt of ninety dollars is now due the training-school on this last year's work, and at least sixty more should be raised to meet traveling expenses, etc. I, therefore, earnestly appeal to every woman in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference to aid in this good cause, whether a member of the W. F. M. Society or not. The time is very short and the case urgent. What is done must be done quickly.

Please let each send whatever amounts she can afford to give, or succeed in raising, to Miss Sallie Smylie, Meridian, Miss., who will apply the money as indicated, and acknowledge receipt of same by letter or through the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Yours for a liberal response,
C. B. DRAKE.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP IS THE best medicine for pulmonary troubles. One bottle will convince you of its excellence. Try it.

W. F. M. S.

The district meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies of Meridian district will be held at Enterprise, Miss., March 23 to 25. Each society is urged to send as many representatives as possible. All preachers in the district are most cordially invited to attend.

(MRS.) IRA PHILLIPS, Dist. Sec.

DID YOU?

Did you notify us to expect you at the Sunday-school Convention? If so, how many names did you send? If you didn't, why? Don't come incognito Herald your coming—a card will do.

Catarrh Can Be Cured.

Catarrh is a kindred ailment of consumption, long considered incurable; and yet there is one remedy that will positively cure catarrh in any of its stages. For many years this remedy was used by the late Dr. Stevens, a widely noted authority on all diseases of the throat and lungs. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all sufferers from Catarrh, Asthma, Consumption, and nervous diseases, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

MEMOIR OF REV. LEWIS A. REED.

Friday morning, Jan. 20, at seven o'clock, the long life of this usefni itinerant minister waa crowned by the Master, granting him rest from his labors, and entrance into the joys of his Lord. He ceased to work and live, for he had hardly entered into the position of a snperannnate which had been granted him a few weeks before at the last session of the Louisiana Annual Conference. For fifty-five years he had been a faithful minister of the gospel, itinerating all over the State.

Lewis A. Reed was born in Henderson, Ky., Sept. 1, 1812. While a young man he moved to New Orleans, and had attained to a incrative business in an omnibus line which ran np Tchoupitoulas street, when, in 1843, he was soundly convertod dnring a meeting at St. Mary Street Chapel. His wife (Miss Phllips) was converted at the same revival. His business compelling him to break the Sabbath, he immediately took steps to dlspose of his half interest in the firm.

From the very first he felt called to the ministry. In 1844 he entered the Mississippi Conference, which then embraced this city in its torritory, and was appointed to Carrollton. He probably served thia charge two years, and when the Louisiana Conference waa set off from the Mississippi Conference, hia name ia in the first list of appointments. Ho was sent to Lafayette and Colored Mission in 1847. From 1848 till 1851 he served Lafourche and Colored Mission; 1852 and 1853, Napoleonville and Colored Mission; 1854 Lafayette and Bayou Black; 1855, Donaldsonville and Bayou Black; 1856, Lafayette and Bayou Black; 1857 till 1860, presiding elder of Lake Providence district; 1861 till 1863, Sicily Island and Harrisonburg circuit; 1864, Ion circuit, Bastrop district; 1865, Jefferson circuit; 1866, Deer Creek and Sicily Island circuit; 1867, Oakley circuit. At the succeeding Conference (December, 1867) he was forced to ask a location, that he might pay off some debts which were troubling him. While local, from 1867 till 1875, he served several charges in the city; Algiers in 1873 and 1874. In 1875 he was readmitted and appointed to Algiers, the session being held in January; 1876 till 1878, Lafourche mission; 1879, Morean Street; 1880 and 1881, Algiers; 1882, presiding elder of Opelousas district; 1883, Plaquemine Brulee circuit; 1884, Vidalia and Troy circuit; 1885 till 1889, Grosa Tete and False River circuit; 1889 till 1891, South Bossier circuit; 1892, Wesley circuit; 1893 and 1894, Grand Cane circuit; 1895 and 1896, Carrollton Avenne; 1896 and 1897, Craps Street. This was his last charge.

From this list we learn the yeoman service he did in the itinerancy for Methodism, from the Colored Mission to the district. He served in all relations, "enduring hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." His ministry was molded by these early years as missionary to colored people, full of rejoicing and outbursts of exultation. He modestly rated himself in his last speech at Conference as a one-talented man. It was an understatement of his worth, for he was above mediocrity. With a fine presence, a voice of good compass, clear and ringing tones in the higher keys, graceful in gestnre, adding to this the presentation of broad, common-sense views of a passage of Scriptnre, he was no commonplace, but very acceptable preacher—above the average. With a most marvelous preservation these strong points lasted him till within a few years of his decease. There was in all his ministry the ability to sing well and take full charge of any service which was according to the old school, now sadly being neglected by the yonng ministers.

Bro. Reed always boldly presented the absolute need of repentance, conversion, and growth in grace. It was a square issue on these cardinal doctrines he left with his audience in nearly every sermon; not given to propositions, but fnlly declaring the whole counsel of God, necessitating repentance, or boing lost. With an earnestness and sincority that was beyond the shadow of a doubt, he delivered his messages, impressing his audience with the deep convictions of the truth that reigned in his own mind and heart.

As a pastor, he was equally as acceptable to his charges; always prompt to attend to the sick and bereaved of his flock; a regular visitor who more than carried ont the law of the Discipline: a qnartorly visit to each in yonr charge. Wherever we have followed him in his various works there has always come up the memory of this loyal servant of God, showing that he had made an impress upon the people, and was roverenced and loved by many. He can be pointed to as one who put all his talents to full use for his Lord. They were in no sense laid np in a napkin. When one haa marshalled all his powers, and has commanded them for his Lord throngh a long ministry like this, what a rest from his labors is death! How surely his works shall follow him! We shall have the memory of him when happily leading our Annual Conference love-feast. What joy on his own face, what truly spiritual delight to him, these occasions, with his own heart on the eve of an abandon of love, overflowing with the joy of salvation! He won and wore the name of a shouting Methodist.

Fifty-five years of continnous work as a minister of God! What a privilege! What a host on the other shore to welcome him home and recount the occasions of former meetings in the house of God with thia messenger of peace! A faithful worker has gone on before, faithful unto death. His last hours were full of confidence. Ho expressed his assurance and readiness to depart and be with Christ.

In the Snmmer of 1897, when he had a sunstroke which seemed would prove fatal, the writer visited him, and had prayers with him, and the very thought of death made him rejoice with the expectation of an abundant entrance into his glorious reward from the Savior's hand. On his sick-bed he began to shout, Hallelnlah! He left two sons and a daughter to mourn his loss. May they meet him on the other shore!

"Servant of Christ, well done!
Praise be thy new employ;
And while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Savior's joy."

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

BRO. BINGHAM: In connection with this Twentieth Century Fund for educational purposes the people often ask mo "why the church is so insistent and urgent on the subject of education when the State is doing so much for this great cause."

The State educates to make good citizens and noble patriots, and the church educates to make good Christians. The State may make educated citizens out of all her sons, and she may imbue them with a spirit of patriotism—all which is noble and praiseworthy; bnt it is not enough. Patriotism is a constituent element of the human constitution, and it is one of the nobleat passions that ever animated the human breast; but it is not religion, and can never supply the place of worship, nor satisfy the spiritual needs and aspirations of the human soul.

The mere diffusion of knowledge, however accurate and extensive it may be, will never supply the place of religion. The Church interposes no objection to what the State is doing and proposes to do, and it would not discount that work in the slightest degree. Tho Church proposes to do all that the State does, to educate all her children in all branches of usefni learning, to inspire them with sentiments of loyalty and patriotism, and to qualify them for useful citizenship. Thus far the State and the Church go hand in hand, and unitedly engage in the same beneficent work. In this work there is no conflict, no rivalry, bnt only a healthy emulation. It is not to be inforred that the Church opposes education by the State, nor that the State opposes education by the Church, for neither inference is true.

The Church proposes to do more than the State does, to give a character to education that the State does not give and dare not give, to give a distinctively religious cast and character to the whole course of education for her sons and daughters.

If the State makes good citizens and patriots of her children, she has done all that the State can reasonably be expected to have done, all that she is charged with doing. If, in addition to all of this, the church fails to imbue her sons and daughters with the spirit and principles of the religion of Christ, she has failed in her high commission.

Education, great and worthy as it is, falls short of the needs of man in his present depraved state. It will not save man from sin. This has been tried by the nations of antiquity, and "they were, but they are not." "They were without perpetuity, because they were without the essential element of it." The church proposes to perpetuate the reign of peace and prosperity by saving man from sin, from the consequences of his own depraved and unholy nature, to make him a good man, that he may be a good citizen from principle instead of from policy.

The State starts out to govern men, the Church to save them. The State has done its duty when it governs, but the Church has not done its duty till it saves. The State is concerned with the intellect, the Church with the souls of men. The State is limited to this life, bnt the Church looks to the life to come. The State strives to make men, the Church to make Christians. The State can not do the work of the Church, and the Church dare not surrender or slight the work committed to her by onr Lord.

These are a few of the reasons why the church is so urgent in building, equipping and endowing schools and colleges for our boys and girls. The church must have her hands upon them from infancy to mature age—all through the formative period of their lives—during the plastic stage when they may be shaped and molded into men and women in the image and after the likeness of God. If the church waits till the State educates, it will be too late in many cases. The work of the State is mainly secular, political, and national, and the work of the church is primarily religious, spiritual, and heavenly. Yours, GILDEROY.

TEN DAYS' "OUTING."

Why not? Who has more time for that kind of pleasure-seeking than the presiding elder? Having been frozen ont—or in?—at one of my appointments, I planned for the holding of four Quarterly Conferences, embracing two Sundays, in the good old county of Yazoo; so I packed for a ten days' "travel throughont the district."

Leaving home on Friday (the third), after an hour's travel I left the railroad, in company with Bro. H. P. Lewis, for Fletcher's Chapel, the seat of the Quarterly Conference. I heard nothing but expressions of appreciation (yes, more) of the new pastor. After having a succession of unordained men, the coming of one of such long experience is greatly appreciated.

Bro. Lewis is winning his way into the hearts of his people, though the attendance upon and reports at the Conference might be both greatly improved.

At Benton we found the new pastor and people mutually in love with each other, and an unmistakable evidence of the same in the reports on all questions. They deserve a place on the honor roll. Benton and Midway claim that they have one of the big preachers of the Conference.

Thence we faced a sharp north wind for twelve miles to be with Bro. Cowan at Tranqnil. Here we found his little family—or, rather, his family of little ones—comfortably housed in a brand-new parsonage, the work of Bro. W. A. Terry, who served the past year. Here we literally "compelled a brother to come in," that we might have one to represent the charge. Finances and reports but little in advance of the attendance, though the pastor has been on the field and at the work for two months.

Finding myself only an hour's run from Itta Bena, where a certain young physician has hung out his shingle, I found an irresistible longing to see how the "boy" was prospering. On my way I had a short while at Greenwood, where I found the genial pastor, Mitchel, with heart, head and hands full looking after the completion of a $15,000 brick church. Methodism in that little city respects herself highly. I was surprised to find Itta Bena a place of such size and push. The church under Browning and the school under Lipscomb are keeping pace with the business interests. The question of water supply has been solved by the sinking of an artesian well, which flows with a strong stream twenty feet high, and which has been conducted by pipes to every part of the town.

Friday, and time is up; so, after one day of recreation, I am again on my own territory, and with Cottrell at Bee Lake. He is finishing a pastorate of four years on this charge, and only the law would move him. Trained for the mercantile world, he carries his business methods into his church work. No halting to find out or to make calculations; everything is in order. Decently and in order, all the business is transacted within thirty minutes. Mud, water, and distance prevented a large attendance, though there was satisfactory reports from all points.

The planters are slow in beginning the work of the new year. Indeed, in many places we saw cotton picking and plowing side by side. What a country is this great Delta!

Arrived at home, I find twenty letters, representing all kinds of church interests, and many asking for an immediate reply. One came from an ex., who says, "I sympathize with the new presiding elders." Thanks, brother; you know.

FROM CENTRAL LOUISIANA.

MR. EDITOR: If a "hub" is a hub because it is in the center, then Alexandria is not only the "hub" of the district which, in Methodist parlance, bears its name, bnt is also the "hub" of the Louisiana Conference and of the State, as it is practically at the crossing of the two meridians—north and south, east and west—of the State surveys.

Since my last to the ADVOCATE the first "round" has been completed on the district, and cold, rain, mud, bad roads, and all to the contrary, notwithstanding, every engagement has been met save two. "Onr beloved" was kept from one of them for two reasons: 1. A railroad wreck had blockaded Simsport for a period reaching beyond the time for the quarterly meeting. 2. The livery man told me he would not send me through by private conveyance "for $25." I could not pay more than that sum, and hence the last reason was as good as the first. The other—well, it is explanation enough to say that the pastor living in the bounds of the charge could not get to the place of meeting on account of the prevailing snow and bad roads.

Since I wrote before Colfax and Montgomery, Dry Creek, and Ada and Winfield charges have "distinguished themselves" by paying up the presiding elder's claim in full for the first quarter. Others have not done so well, some paying nothing at all. Hence, running up the balance sheets, the presiding elder finds that the expenses have been equal to more than twenty per cent. of all receipts. Only three good days have been enjoyed during the holding of sixteen quarterly meetings. The latter visitations have been to charges presided over by the younger members of our vocation. With one single exception, the prospects are of an encouraging nature.

W. G. Roberts, at Spring Creek; H. L. Hughes, at Dry Creek; L. L. Roberts, at Pineville; W. E. Akin, at Olla and Pollock; G. D. Anders, at Columbia, are all moving off as wisely as could be expected in view of the unfavorable conditions of the weather.

Bro. Enochs is doing the best he can. His was one of the charges I failed to reach, bnt I hear favorably from him in his far-away work.

Bro. Van Valkenburgh is moving on in his usual channel, and according to his notions of right; a great reader of books and papers, and a great lover of the æsthetic in literature.

Bros. L. L. Roberts, at Pineville, and H. L. Hughes, at Dry Creek, are on the "supply" list, bnt in each case they are approved by their brethren, and the membership seems greatly encouraged.

Such a corps of workers as the district now has will, if full of faith and "sound discretion," carry up reports to Conference next Winter which will gladden the hearts of God's children there.

We are looking forward to the coming of Bishop Key to our District Conference with great anticipations.

If the Lord gives us souls for our hire, we can be content to endure labor and want; but what agony comes when spiritual dearth comes on with temporal want! Faith, zeal and prudence will bring success.

Respectfully, J. A. PARKER.

ELECTION ORDERED.

The Board of Supervisors of Sunflower county, Miss., ordered an election to-day, to be held the twenty-eighth instant, to see whether or not whisky shall be sold in the county. If the county can be voted dry on that day, whisky will be kept out and the county will remain a dry county. Let all praying people ask the Lord to put it into the hearts of these people to vote as they should.

ORPHANS' DAY.

The attention of presiding elders and pastors of the North Mississippi Conference to the immediate need of complying with the following action taken at our last session: "We deem it advisable that Orphans' Day be regularly and uniformly observed throughout the Conference, and we suggest that the first Sunday in March, or as soon thereafter as practicable, be set apart for this cause, and let this be known as 'Orphans' Day.' This Orphans' Home is now a part and parcel of our Mississippi Methodism, and must have our care and support."

There are now fifty children in the Home. Others are expected soon. The people always give to this cause if their attention is called to it. The manager feels a delicacy in visiting pastoral charges without invitations. He is ready to do all in his power for the Home when opportunity is his.

Brethren, let us observe Orphans' Day at once, and send contributions to Capt. I T. Blount, or Rev. M. L. Burton, Water Valley, Miss.

Yours for the orphans,

J. A. BOWEN.

LOUISIANA STATE EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

I have just returned from an extensive trip along the line of the Southern Pacific Company, and find that great enthusiasm is being manifested concerning the coming Epworth League Conference to be held in Crowley, April 20-23. The young people are beginning now to make their arrangements to attend this spiritual, intellectual and musical feast. The program will be announced in a few days.

The Leaguers of New Orleans will attend in considerable numbers, and have chartered a car, which will be suitably decorated. We would be glad if any of our brethren or sisters living out of the city would join this party. The car will leave Thursday morning, April 20, at 9 o'clock, from the Southern Pacific depot. The fare from New Orleans to Crowley and return will be five dollars, or one fare for the round trip. This rate will apply from any point in Louisiana along the line of the Southern Pacific. We are expecting to hear daily from other roads.

Crowley has made great preparation for the entertainment of all who will attend, and will feel slighted if two or three hundred people do not attend. H. H. AHRENS, Pres.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

MR. EDITOR: Please publish enclosed resolutions adopted by the Joint Executive Committee of Board of Education at its recent session at Jackson. I was under the impression that I had forwarded them with the report I sent you.

Yours fraternally,

T. Y. RAMSEY.

Booneville, Miss., March 16, 1899.

Resolved, That each presiding elder is directed to inquire specially at each Quarterly Conference as to what is being done for the Twentieth Century Fund, both by collections and imparting information.

Resolved, That the presiding Bishops at the sessions of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences be requested to ask each preacher, in making his report, to state what had been done on his charge during the year for the Twentieth Century Fund.

R. W. MILLSAPS,
H. M. ELLIS.
J. H. MITCHELL.

NOTICE.

MR. EDITOR: Please announce that the Epworth League Board of the North Mississippi Conference selects the following speakers for the Indianapolis Conference:

Principals—Rev. R. A. Meek, Starkville, Miss.; Miss Victoria Thompson, Tupelo, Miss. Alternates—Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Enpora, Miss.; Rev. J. C. Park, Rosedale, Miss.; Miss Annie Seales, Macon, Miss.; Miss Daisy Dye, Grenada, Miss.

Come to State League Conference at West Point, June 22-25; also to District Conference at Ackerman, July 27-30. Yours fraternally,

N. G. AUGUSTUS,
President League Board.

Durant, Miss., March 18, 1899.

NOTICE TO SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

In order to better equip Sunday-schools for usefulness, the Sunday-school Board offers to duplicate amounts raised for the Children's Visitor, magazines, and libraries. Many schools try to run without enough literature, and fail to accomplish their purpose. Money can not be better expended than for Visitors, magazines and libraries, and Children's Day money should be used for helping needy schools. Send in your money and orders to Rev. D. Scarborough, secretary, Forest, Miss.

W. T. GRIFFIN,
Pres. S. S. Board.

FORGIVE.

BY LAURA A. WHITWORTH.

Forgive—the very word is sweet—
"Forgive as you would be forgiven;"
When coming near the mercy seat,
Forgiveness you must ask of heaven.

Man is but human to offend,
By careless act or word unkind;
But let not strife-tried friendship end,
When this sweet word the wound may bind.

If one with sorrowing heart should say:
"Dear friend, forgive me once again,"
To smooth some thorns from life's rough way,
Would you refuse in proud disdain?

Methinks, if one had wrought me ill
Yet penitent would say, "Forgive,"
'Twould move my proud and stubborn will;
No anger in my heart could live.

We can not tell what moves the mind,
Or what the subtle cause may be;
We only know our friend unkind,
And we grow cold in sympathy.

And yet, one heart from pain to save,
What matter if our pride we bend?
We might be patted by a grave—
Life is so short! Forgive thy friend!

BRO. UPTON'S QUESTION.

AN ANSWER.

In the ADVOCATE, of Feb. 16, Bro. Upton asked the following question, "Is it legal for a Board of circuit or station stewards to assess for their pastor's salary a certain per cent. of all moneys collected for ministerial support, instead of determining the amount necessary in dollars and cents?"

As the question is a vital one, effecting the administration of an important part of our economy, it should be answered, and I have waited with no little interest for some one of our many seers in Israel to give us, on the subject, the benefit of their much learning and sound judgment. But as they do not seem disposed to enlighton us, I have decided to offer an answer myself, for fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

It suits my purpose to substitute the word "district" for "circuit or station," and "presiding elder" for "pastor," which enables me to approach the subject from the other side, and thereby get at the main point Bro. Upton had in mind when he propounded his question. With due regard to all the laws in the Discipline on the subject of money raising and to all the episcopal decisions recorded upon that subject, I shall answer in the negative. My reasons for so doing are as follows:

First. ¶ 195, which defines the duties of district stewards, does not contain anything upon which to base an affirmative answer. It says, "They shall estimate the traveling expenses and salary of the presiding elder, and apportion the same, together" with the other collections, "among the several charges of the district according to their ability." To fix an amount and "apportion" it for collection sounds like something definite to me—dollars and cents, and not an indefinite amount based upon the action of some other Board. This paragraph also says that "distribution pro rata shall be made at the Quarterly Conference." Now, why add this clause if the percentage plan is contemplated, for how else can settlement be made under that plan?

Second. An affirmative answer would put an interpretation upon the law which would be both unreasonable and dangerous; unreasonable in that it would be too far-reaching in its possible effects, and dangerous for the same and the additional reason that it would leave the pastor without protection, placing him at the mercy of the district stewards. If the district stewards have a right to say that the presiding elder shall have fifteen per cent. of all moneys raised for ministerial support, then they have a right to say he shall have fifty or seventy-five per cent.; and the law which requires a pro rata distribution would still hold with equal force. If this is the law, then let Ques. 6 of the Quarterly Conference be changed so as to read: What per cent. have the district stewards set apart for the presiding elder? How much does that leave for the preacher in charge?

Third. An affirmative answer to this question would force a similar answer to Bro. Upton's question, which would place an interpretation upon ¶ 189, defining the duties of circuit and station steward, that no one has ever proposed to give it. So far as estimating salaries and making assessments for the same are concerned, the two paragraphs are practically alike. There is no more ground for the percentage plan in the one than there is in the other. If the district stewards have a right to say the presiding elder shall have fifteen per cent., then the circuit stewards have a right to say the preacher in charge shall have ninety per cent. A Methodist preacher is hard to beat at money getting, so they say; but just how he would get $1.05 out of $1, I do not know. Again: If the circuit stewards have a right to say the preacher in charge shall have ninety per cent. of all moneys raised for ministerial support, they could, on the same authority, raise it to ninety-nine and a half per cent. Then where would the "beloved" appear? Before the Bishop for a decision, I shall not hesitate to assert.

Fourth. The logical conclusions of an affirmative answer are too ridiculous for things pertaining to sacred institutions.

This is not written in a spirit of criticism, but with a simple desire to get at the truth. When it is pointed out to me that my conclusions are wrong, I will cheerfully accept those that are right. JNO. B. KENT.

Plaquemine, La.

HOW THE SPIRIT COMFORTS IN THE TRUTH.

BY REV C. P SMITH.

(A Prayer-Meeting Talk made at Minden, La., March 8, 1899.)

(John xiv, 16, 17; Rom. xv, 4)

Truth is not always comforting to man. If it reveals to him his sinfulness, and reproves him for his lack of fidelity to the right, there is sometimes pain and always a feeling of uneasiness. We not only do not seek for reproof, but instinctively dread to meet and face it, as one naturally shrinks from a real or supposed enemy. Truth, in reproving, is our personal friend, and is only the foe of sin and unbelief. Truth hates only false principles and falsehood. The spirit of truth reproves of sin when it holds sway in the heart of man, and makes the soul feel guilt as the strings of a piano tremble and jar under the touch of the tuner and cleaner; but after the touch and cleaning of the Spirit of God—man, his soul responds to the touch and play of the Spirit with the welcome and outgo of a fine piano under the masterful soul of a Beethoven.

No Scripture reproves a really good man; no truth hurts him. He loves even the severe words of the Father of lights. He loves counsel and does not hate reproof, for "God is love," and admonishes only in love. Oh, if we could only realize this so fully that it would give heart to our service and strength to our obedience!

1. We must be in a receptive frame to get comfort from the truth. To get real comfort out of the truth, our souls must have that in them which responds to the truth of God. There can be no active, definite contact with any object by electricity, unless the object possesses negative electricity in its keeping. The tree on the hill-side had some of the mysterious element in its trunk, and a passing storm brought the bolt near enough to join the two electric principles together, and destroyed the tree. Harnessed electricity moves in obedience to this law the street-cars on a thousand tracks. So, my dear friends, if we are harnessed up by the law of love, the personal contact of truth makes us true, and we gladly receive the truth brought by the Spirit to our souls. So many men are not true to their convictions on anything that they have not the power to get comfort from the truth. They are like a "derelict" ship at sea, which gets no cheer from any wind, wave, or whistle, but must drift on to destruction. But an American liner, true to its own chart and compass, is hailed with delight by every passing vessel. Let us be true to every true and noble impulse, and every passing thing will bring us joy. Then, too, the heart must give an active welcome to the truth which makes free, indeed. Not simply a formal reception can suffice, for the truth, Jesus Christ, must have the upper seat in our heart's parlor.

2. The spirit of truth is our advocate. This is a forensic term, and brings out a beautiful thought in this connection. The Spirit stands before two bars and gives assurance of our acceptance at each. "The Spirit maketh intercession for us with groanings that can not be uttered." We read that passage slowly and wonder at its sublime condescension, but our idea of this intercession is the Spirit before God's throne seeking—yea, demanding—blessings for us. But, brother, that is not all of the condescension of the Spirit of love. "He dwelleth with you and is in you," as it should be rendered He stands at the altar of my heart, and before the bar of my own conscience, and answers every question of my mind, and responds to every proper feeling of my heart.

3. The living Christ is in the truth; and his presence is stimulating to, and makes thrilling the incarnate truth.

(1) In the substance of the truth. Many lives of Christ are being written, but the truth is all vital in his own words. If Renan praised Jesus in his so-called "Life" of the Nazarene, how much more does his own Word praise him in its sweetness, excellence, and simplicity!

(2) In the illumination on the truth. We study it in the light. All things look alike to a man in the shadows of the night, but by the noonday sun the beauty of forest, field and stream appear to the eye of the beholder. Oh, that men might learn this lesson! The noonday sun of righteousness reveals truth, reveals Christ, brings joy—yea, establishes his comfort in the soul!

A REVISED VERSION—IS IT YOURS?

Take heed lest ye hear.
"Ye are the pepper of the earth."
"Beat my sheep."
Hate your enemies.
By their faults ye shall know them.
Do no alms, lest thou be seen of men.
God is a respecter of persons.
Where little is given, nothing is required.
Lead us into temptation, but deliver us from punishment.
Seek ye last the kingdom of God, for then these things are not necessary.
Blessed are they that grumble, for they shall not be without cause.
Six days shalt thou rest and do all thy leasing; but on the seventh day thou shalt surely get the ox out of the ditch.
Seek not, lest ye find, and ask not, lest ye receive.
Thou shalt not often take the name of the Lord thy God in vain.
Pray not, lest thou offer a vain repetition.
Forgive not your enemies; you may have an opportunity to retaliate.
Cling to some evil habits, that men may not think you righteous overmuch.

SOMETHING FROM LONGTOWN.

If my friends to whom I preached fifty years ago, and others I have ministered to during the past half a century, would like to hear from me, I will talk to them a little in this paper. I am here in Panola county—further north than I have ever spent a Conference year. My circuit (Longtown) is composed of four appointments compactly located together. For the three months since Conference the weather, heavy rains, sleet and snow have come somewhat alternately, and long protracted; snow-frozen roads, succeeded by much and deep mud, followed again by deep and hard freezing, every change making it unsafe to travel. In my three years' superannuated experience I had to turn my horse and buggy into something to live upon. Soul and body of self and wife had to be kept together. On coming to this field of labor I had to start on foot. I have walked my circuit before, traveled horseback, traveled in buggy, have been transported in carriages, made my appointments by railroad, and reached some otherwise inaccessible places on the great river by steamboat, and have traversed the great overflows when the water seemed shoreless in my dug-out; shooting the rapids where they rushed through the broken levee, and ascending the same rush of waters on my return; navigated my little boat through the great forest, sometimes with nothing to guide me but the current, which did not always run in the right direction; startling a deer reposing on a dry knoll or mound. Once a bear tumbled from his resort from the water in a great tree, and made off. I did not follow it. I have fastened my boat to the church steps until I could hold service for a waiting congregation. Thus it may be seen I have traveled by every known mode of travel. However, I have not yet attempted it by electricity, telegraph, or telephone.

Here on Longtown I started my work on foot, being reduced to the infantry. One appointment I made three miles to and three miles from, every step upon the hard snow; met nine persons. Another trip of eight miles to and from, on a colder day, over a deeper frozen road. Met two persons for quarterly meeting; no presiding elder, no quarterly meeting. Some of my charge live on the verge of the last ledge of hills breaking off into the great valley. In visiting my flock I have approached the last line of division, but did not cross it. I did not want to cross the "dead line," so I turned back.

I am sure the people here are taking right kindly to their new preacher—not altogether new, but New-som. Since coming here I have buried one of the earliest pioneers of Methodism and of religion in all this region—G. W. Parkison. He struck the first lick with his axe towards building the first church erected in this county.

Have enjoyed myself here in the pulpit and in the homes I have visited. Never loved my Bible more than I do now; never enjoyed religion so much as now. I never enjoyed preaching the gospel as I do now. Some seem a little doubtful of my physical strength sustaining me under the labors of the year. Since my first Quarterly Conference, and hearing the report of the stewards on the estimate of what the preacher in charge is to receive for a support, an experience such as I have felt under similar circumstances before was in view the present year: that of preaching the gospel of Christ without an adequate support; and feeling I would rather do the preaching without an efficient support than answer for the people who decline giving such support, I am sure I would rather be the one man on such a line of duty before God than all the people together in their care.

W. H. M. S., LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The annual convention of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Louisiana Conference was held at Alexandria, March 2-5. Mrs. Lyons, of New Orleans, president; Mrs. F. E. Ross, of New Orleans, secretary, and Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, of Lafayette, corresponding secretary.

The address of welcome in behalf of the ministry was delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. D. McVoy, and the address of welcome in behalf of the local W. H. M. S. was read by Mrs. L. B. Baynard in a well-sustained manner. Her remarks were touching, admirably expressed, making a cordial and unique welcome. Mrs. B. J. Williams responded with an interesting and well-prepared paper. The various committees were appointed covering the different departments of the work, and the convention settled down to its regular program. After an instructive address by the president, Miss Sallie White read very effectively and distinctly a paper on Cuban work.

During the succeeding sessions a number of interesting papers were read on topics pertaining to the different operations of the society. The corresponding secretary made a very full report of her work. The reports of the president and Miss Mary Werlein on the City Mission gave a full account of the good done under the management of Mrs. Lillie Meekins, the city missionary. Mrs. Faunt Le Roy gave an important and instructive paper on the "Need of Parsonages." "Our Duty to the Japanese and Chinese on the Pacific Coast" was admirably discussed by Mrs. E. R. Kennedy. The president explained the system of the Loan Fund. Miss Mary Werlein very enthusiastically presented the claims of the paper of the society, Our Homes, and secured a good number of subscribers. Reports from the auxiliaries revealed the good work done in the various charges of the Conference. Mrs. A. E. McGimsey read an interesting paper on the importance of the "Baby Roll." Miss Norwood presented an admirable paper on "Missions." The importance of systematic and proportionate giving was very impressively presented by the president. Rev. J. A. Parker, the presiding elder, and Rev. J. M. Johnson were introduced and addressed the convention. Rev. George Jackson, rejoicing in his new ear-trumpet, which enabled him to hear the proceedings, seemed to enjoy the occasion as a great privilege. Memorial services were held in memory of Mrs. Guthrie and Mrs. Rowena M. Denson.

The devotional exercises each day were attended with marked religious fervor, and a deep spiritual feeling pervaded all the services. Miss Mary Werlein conducted the interesting services for the children, and inaugurated juvenile societies both in the Central Church and in West Alexandria. Collections were taken, and the people gave liberally.

On the Sabbath the sermon before the convention was preached by the Rev. J. L. Pierce, of Monroe, and won the marked attention of a large audience. Rev. J. L. Pierce preached again at night an able and stirring sermon on the "Work of the Spirit," and closed by inviting the members to the altar for a prayer of consecration to the work and for the baptism of the Spirit, after which the pastor was called upon to receive a member into the church—a lady who was so deeply impressed that she felt it her duty at once to join the church.

The convention was a great success, and produced a beneficial impression upon the local membership, tending to quicken and revive interest in the great work of the church. If any pastor wants a great blessing and great good done to his members, let him invite and welcome the coming of the W. H. M. S. into his charge. Thus has ended with great and increasing interest the seventh Annual Convention of the W. H. M. S.

WOMAN'S WORK IN HOME MISSIONS.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

Those actively engaged in home mission work in the cities realize how little of the better home influences are about the children, and there is a greater effort made to supply this want in their lives. It is lamentably true that there are scores and hundreds of children who have parents, and a shelter which they call home, and yet who know nothing about the sweet influences which make a real home. Having a desire to bring into these barren little lives as much as may be of this home influence, in some places Friday afternoon is known as "The Children's Hour." When the public schools are closed the church parlors are opened, and for an hour, or more, the children are entertained with stories, songs, and reading, and in the Summer time each child is given a bunch of flowers. Truly this is home mission work. A house and furniture can not make a home, and in proportion as we are able to keep alive in the world the real home spirit, in that proportion are we building strong characters, developing noble manhood and pure womanhood.

WOMAN'S WORK.

Mrs. W. H. Wall, Sardis, Miss.—

DEAR MRS. WALL: There is always much to be done in missionary work, but the past two months have been overflowing with work, for our Winter has been extremely severe, and this has caused a great deal of destitution and sickness among the poor. The territory in which my efforts are concentrated comprises one ward and part of another. The population of this district is 11,780, and in it there are only four Protestant missions and one Catholic. Our denomination has had a mission in this territory for several years, but it has never been very flourishing until the past two years. It is now fast becoming self-supporting. We have a pastor and regular church services. It is in this church that I have a little room fitted up where, from ten to twelve o'clock on three mornings in the week, I receive those who wish to see me about their spiritual or material needs. I visit among the people in their homes during the afternoons, and, when expedient, the Bible is read and prayer offered; good literature is distributed, Bibles are given or sold in the many homes where none are found, children are obtained for Sabbath-school, indifferent parents aroused to the duty of attendance upon church services, and the unsaved are pointed to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." There are so many sorrowing, aching hearts actually craving a sympathizing friend to whom they can tell their troubles. While we aim at nothing less than the saving of the souls of the people with whom we labor, we realize that where there is extreme poverty the physical necessities must be relieved before their spiritual needs can be successfully dealt with. Consequently, we have in the mission room a supply closet containing clothing and foodstuffs (especially for the sick), which the different churches furnish. A great number of children have been gotten into Sabbath-school by our providing them with clothing; and men and women whose lack of something to wear has kept them from the house of God can now attend regularly.

We have a Missionary Nurses' Association connected with our work now, which is proving a great blessing to the sick poor. I have the privilege of asking the help of one of the Scarritt Hospital nurses whenever I need her. We keep bed linen and garments for the sick at the mission, and those are loaned and returned after using.

We have plans on foot for establishing a day nursery, where the poor women who have to work all day in factories and other places can leave their little children. We hope to have funds sufficient to open it right soon. The trouble is as usual, viz: that so many of our church members have not consecrated their purses.

On every Saturday morning we have a sewing-school for girls; some boys attend also. The attendance ranges from fifty to seventy-five.

Besides the general evangelistic work, I have a weekly cottage prayer meeting and a Bible class at the mission.

Among these lower classes of people I find so much indifference to educational advantages. Oftentimes I have a struggle to get the children started to school when they are within a few blocks of one of the city schools. I've succeeded in saving three boys from the perils of running on the streets by getting them into school during this week, and nothing that has come into the week's work has made me happier, except the conversion of an old man for whom I've been praying a long time. He was in the mission room, and, with tears of repentance rolling down his cheeks, he gave up his life of sin and accepted the Savior, who came to seek and to save those who are lost.

I can't express to you what a great blessing I receive in this work. It is indeed a privilege to be "laborers together with God." He has a place for each of us, too, and only asks that we be willing to be used of him. In view of what needs to be done, it seems that I can do very little; but God's commands are enabling, and while I am not sufficient in myself for the least service, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

I wanted to give you some of my experiences, but having written at length, I fear I will weary you, and will wait another time.

I am glad to hear such encouraging reports from your society, and trust you will attempt even greater things for the Master, expecting greater things from him. There is so much to be done in his vineyard, and great blessing for those who are willing to be used of him. Truly the blessedness of life is not in keeping it, but in spending it.

Praying the Father's blessing upon you in all work for him, I am,

Your sister in Christ,

ELIZABETH STREATER.

P. S.—My mother was taken to heaven a year ago, and I can now realize that this, the great sorrow of my life, has better fitted me to be a comfort for others. Some one has very truly said that "our own hearts must break to fit us for giving comfort, for only with heart's blood can we heal hearts."

I hope you will remember me and my work when you are in close touch with your Savior.

Truly yours, E. A. STREATER.

SOME DON'TS FOR THE PULPIT.

It is a good divine that follows his own teachings. I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than to be one of twenty 'to follow mine own teachings."—Shakespeare in Merchant of Venice.

Don't imitate others. Better be a poor original than a fine copy.

Don't mumble your words. Chew your food, but not your language.

Don't preach too long. Better to leave the people longing than loathing.

Don't preach old sermons without revision. Grown men look awkward in boy's clothes.

Don't indulge in mannerisms. Simplicity is desirable in high places—the pulpit especially.

Don't speak in a monotone. The voice has numerous keys; play on as many as possible.

Don't catch the pulpit twang. Talk to men in as natural a tone as you talk with them.

Don't indulge in long pulpit prayers. Protracted petitions drag heavily. Always remember the stranger.

Don't hesitate to speak on public questions, but do not introduce party politics into the pulpit.

Don't neglect closet prayer. The finest pipes can give forth no music till filled with the divine breath.

Don't scold your congregation. Attack measures and hit people only when they stand between you and the devil.

Don't harp too much on one string. Variety is pleasing, and God's Word has given ample choice of themes.

Don't drop your voice at the close of a sentence. Men have as much need to hear the end as the beginning.

Don't be satisfied without fruit. The hand should pluck a few ears, though the sheaves have to await the harvest.

Don't forget the boys and girls. Their attention is worth gaining, and you may often reach old hearts through young ears.

Don't bawl or scream. Too much water stops mill wheels and too much voice drowns sense. Thunder is harmless, lightning strikes.

Don't ramble. Aim at the mark. Hit it! Stop and see where the shot struck and then fire another broadside. Pack your sermons.

Don't be disheartened if every sermon does not save a soul. Hearts may be pierced, though we see not where the arrows lodge.

Don't tire people out with long introductions. You can spoil the appetite for dinner by too much thin soup.

Don't imagine the demand for short sermons is a sign of diminished piety. Men may neglect the cow, though they cry for condensed milk.

Don't go on after you are finished, saying, "As I said before." If you said it before, say something else after. Let the clatter of the mill stop when the corn is ground.

Don't be discouraged on stormy days because only few are at service. Preach your level best to small assemblies. Jesus discoursed to one woman at the well, and she got all Samaria out to hear him next time.

Don't advertise false isms and the men who create them. It is not necessary to exhaust consecrated energies in striking at gnats with the club of a Hercules. If a mischievous error is at work, publish the gospel truth all the more to counteract, rather than fence with its author, and thus add to his reputation.

Don't exhaust your lungs, but keep them full. Take long breaths, then you will not finish off each sentence—uh, with a terrible gasp—ah, as if dying for air—ah, and so strain your lungs—ah, and never find it out—ah, and so leave you to make sport for the Philistines—ah. Inflate your lungs.—The Treasury.

A great many people worry without having any clear idea of what they are worrying about.

"My good fellow," says Snell, "what is it you are afraid of? Try to write down your forebodings, and as sure as there is a drachm of humor in your composition, half of them will flee away from the point of your pen. Walk up to the ghost that annoys you; it may be nothing but a white sheet on the stump of a tree. Get to know the worst, and, as you are a man, you will be more than equal to it. Gauge the depth of the hole, on the edge of which you stand. Do try to realize that it is not the bottomless pit. If a man will but say, 'I will not think of these things,' he can exercise the devil of worry. I believe in the old saying, 'Take short views.' Live by the day. Four and twenty hours hold enough for any one of us to bear."—Selected.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. D. P. Bradford, Meridian, Miss., March 13, 1899: "'East End' Church sends a check to day for her full assessment for foreign missions. Our church is alive here. I have been into the homes of over ninety families represented in this church. Congregations are large and attentive. We have had sixteen accessions to date. Our people pray and pay. Finances are well up. Bro. Galloway and his family are affectionately remembered here, and very many would have welcomed them for another year. But, as loyal Methodists, they are standing by me in my work."

Rev. J. W. McGee, Ruleville, Miss., March 9, 1899: "We held our first Quarterly Conference the fourth and fifth instant. The weather was very inclement, and but few of the brethren turned out. We held the Quarterly Conference at the home of Bro. D. B. Dwiggins. Bro. G. R. Stokley was elected secretary of the Conference. They assessed for the preacher in charge $425; for presiding elder $60.60. The collections were light, and we will have to live very close for the next three months. I am working for the ADVOCATE, and I think a little later on to send in several subscriptions. Some members of my flock have been very kind in supplying our wants. Among these I wish to make special mention of Bro. and Sister Dwiggins, Bro. McBee and Bro. W. F. Wilson. Death has been among us again. Sister Laura Lashley died of pneumonia. Miss Pearl Hanna, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Bro. A. J. Hanna, died Friday morning (third instant) at 1 A. M. We have just heard of the death of Sister Jones. She leaves several little children on the cold charity of the world. God bless and pity them! May their lines fall in pleasant places! Sometimes I feel a little discouraged. My wife has been sick for about eight weeks, my little boy has been sick for about two weeks, and one of my little girls for three weeks, and, last of all, I have had fever for the last three days. Of course, in my condition I am not doing any pastoral work. Pray for us, brethren."

Rev. T. G. Freeman, West, Miss., March 14, 1899: "The first quarterly meeting for West circuit was to have been the second Sunday in February. Bro. Shipman, our new presiding elder, came on Friday on the train. The weather was so cold we had no quarterly meeting. Only one steward came. He rode 9 miles to get here. Bro. Shipman, the presiding elder, by my advice, returned home to his wife and babies. I know of one presiding elder, pro tem., that rode thirty-five, or more, miles that cold spell and held the Quarterly Conference with a right good attendance of the stewards and some others. So our quarterly meeting was put off until the second Sunday in March. It has just passed. We have a two-horse presiding elder. He came down Friday with his fine Kentucky blacks, and Bro. Bachman was with him. They had a good time and a good load. We had a good turn out of the members of the Conference, a good sermon, a pleasant Conference; preaching, Sunday, at 11 o'clock; the sacrament and children's meeting in the afternoon. Through the effort and push of Bro. Bachman and the liberality of the good people Bro. Bachman succeeded in making up money for an $18 library. We had preaching again at night by Bro. Bachman. We enjoyed their stay with us. We are moving along on the work as best we can. The Winter has been so cold and roads so bad I have not been able to do much. I have a people of great endurance and long forbearance. Pray for us. May the Lord bless you in your arduous work and prosper the ADVOCATE."

Rev. R. A. Davis, Waterproof, La., March 15, 1899: "This is my second year on the Waterproof circuit. The difficulties of moving were not encountered by this writer (as this is my second year on the work). The Fall and Winter have been so wet and cold that little could be done, as the roads have been almost impassable. However, we are at work, preaching, visiting and praying with and for this dear people who have so generously and kindly received us again. There has been one accession to the church since Conference. Our Epworth Leagues are holding their regular meetings, and the Junior League is diligently at work, having furnished some nice lace curtains for the windows of one room in the parsonage, and for another room sent in a nice carpet. More than this: The Leaguers, friends and citizens of this town united in giving the preacher and his family quite a storming on the night of the sixth instant. A great shower of good things came in—from a package of tooth picks to one barrel of meal and one and a half barrels of flour, including the following: hams, potatoes, oatmeal, sugar, coffee, tea, cheese, canned goods, lard, etc., as well as many articles of clothing for wife and the children—of which we are very thankful indeed, and take this method of expressing to these good people our high appreciation of these favors, who so nobly express their good feelings to, and stand so firmly by, their pastor in these hard times. It makes us rejoice to realize that we have so many good and kind friends. We labor among them with much good cheer and prayer for their prosperity."

Rev. W. L. Blackwell, P. C., Vancleave, Miss., March 7, 1899: "On the second day after adjournment of the last sitting of Conference (at which Conference I was admitted on trial), I reached the work assigned me by the Bishop and his cabinet; perhaps being the first to reach the work assigned us by the Bishop. This work is one of the largest in the Conference, and I venture to say the worst scattered. I have nine appointments to meet monthly. I have to travel a distance of at least 125 miles in order to meet all my appointments, to say nothing of the visiting that's to be done, or should be done, as I go from place to place. But we are meeting with very good success, considering that we have had such bad, rainy weather. Our congregations are very good. People seem to be anxious to hear the gospel, as this scribe endeavors to preach it, as best he can, with the help of the Lord. We are taking collections at each and every appointment, as the Discipline requires. We have made some good collections, especially for the Conference claimants' fund. We want, by the help of the Lord, to break the record on Vancleave work this year by bringing up all collections, if it be possible; and I see no reason why, if I can only get the people to come up to the help of the Lord. Surely, out of a membership of 700 we can pay an assessment of about $650. We are doing some hard work trying to get people to take advantage of the opportunity of getting the ADVOCATE at one dollar a year; but some still hold off. Like one of old, they are waiting for a 'more convenient season.' I think we have a good average people on our work, religiously. We have only nine local preachers on Vancleave work, and maybe others coming on. Who knows what the future may bring about? I am glad to say our local brethren are loyal, and are in perfect harmony with their pastor. We are expecting great things this year, spiritually. The Lord bless the dear editor and the ADVOCATE. It gets better every day."

The Escape.

When a man has a chance to escape from prison he doesn't stop to argue about it; he breaks out as quickly as ever he can. He knows that every moment's delay may lessen his chances of escape; but when a man is sick he too often postpones his opportunity of getting well and says: "O, perhaps I'll be better next week" or "next month."

The weeks and months go on and every day his chance of escaping from the dungeon of disease grows smaller. The "Golden Medical Discovery" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., offers a certain means of rescue to every man and woman who is suffering from any form of weakness or disease due to imperfect nutrition. This marvelous "Discovery" creates good appetite, good digestion, good blood, good health. It gives solid flesh, muscular strength, steady nerves and keen wits. It helps you to think clearly and work successfully.

Mr. Frank A. Startz, of Fayetteville, Fayette Co., Texas, writes in a letter to Dr. Pierce: "It affords me pleasure to testify to the remarkable curative power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was severely afflicted with trouble in my lungs—spitting up blood, and was so weak I was unable to continue my work. I tried several remedies which gave me no relief, and I had commenced to think there was no hope for me. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me so I tried it and began to improve at once, and was soon able to resume work. I consider it a wonderful medicine."

Every man who wants to save doctor's bills should send 21 one-cent stamps, the cost of mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a copy of his 1000-page illustrated book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," in paper covers; or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

Best Edition of the World's Best Book

—THE—

"COMBINATION" BIBLE.

A SUPERB EDITION

of the Holy Scriptures showing at a glance at the foot of the pages all changes made by the revisers.

New Type. All Proper Names. Self-Pronouncing. The Most Valuable Collateral Matter.

There is a steady and increasing demand for first-class Bibles. Every body is anxious to obtain a copy of the best edition of the Holy Scriptures. Old editions are constantly being replaced by Bibles that are in every way more attractive, and there is practically no limit to the demand.

Our "Combination" Feature.

Hitherto the King James and Revised Versions have been printed in parallel columns, but this makes comparisons of texts tedious and unsatisfactory, and makes the book very unwieldy. We have overcome this difficulty by "combining" the two Versions on the same page, showing at a glance in foot-notes all the Changes, Additions and Omissions made by the Revisers.

The Old Version Printed in Full.

The King James Version is the basis, and this Version is read straight along from the text, while the Revised Version is read from the text in combination with the foot-notes. Our "Combination" Feature has met with universal approval and is strongly endorsed by all leading Divines and Biblical Scholars.

It is only by a comparison of the two Versions that the greatest benefit can be obtained from reading the Holy Scriptures, and this comparison every reader can easily make by our simple arrangment for showing the changes made by the revisers. This is the greatest triumph of Bible Publishing the World has ever known.

OUR OFFER.

To those unprogressive people who do not read and pay for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we sell this Bible at the publisher's retail price—$5.00. To our subscribers we sell it at the very low rate of $2. The only condition attached to this offer is that the subscriber must pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz.: to March, 1900. We will send it postpaid to any person who will send us three new cash subscribers at the regular rate. For six new cash subscribers at the regular rate we will send two "Combination" Bibles, postpaid.

For fifty cents additional we will send a Bible with index.

For twenty-five cents additional we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside.

Send for circular. Address REV. W. C. BLACK.

P. S.—We can give no commission on renewals in connection with the above offer.

SELF-PRONOUNCING

S. S. Teachers' Reference Bible

Text Conforms Exactly to the Oxford Teachers' Edition.

The self-pronouncing text enables the reader to pronounce all proper names at a glance.

This Bible is printed from Large, Beautiful and Clear New Type. All Proper Names are Divided into Syllables and Every Vowel is Marked and the Syllables Inflected, showing the Sounds and Accents as they are given in a Dictionary, thus enabling the reader to properly pronounce every word. This feature is a great improvement and a strong recommendation for this Bible over others.

This Bible contains the celebrated Oxford Teachers' Helps together with a complete series of New Maps illustrating the geography of Palestine and the surrounding countries from the earliest times, and embodying the most recent discoveries renders this Bible especially desirable to teachers and students of the Holy Scriptures.

THE BEST PREPARATION.

Rev. Dr. Hugh Price Hughes, the distinguished and gifted leader among the Wesleyan Methodists, in his ringing appeals to the church in behalf of the "Twentieth Century Thank-offering" of five millions of dollars which they have undertaken to raise, is stressing the importance of preparing for and accompanying the raising of this fund by earnest prayer and effort for a mighty spiritual revival throughout the church.

Southern Methodism can not do a wiser thing than to profit by this illustrious example. It speaks well for us that we have planned great things educationally, but we should also plan and pray for spiritual enlargement, and for a vast army of new converts in connection with our educational campaign. Our small increase of late (which may turn out to be a decrease) ought to occasion earnest heart-searching and prayer, and stir our ministers to greater zeal in the work of soul-saving. If ever we, as a church, become content with the mere "edification of believers" while the work of evangelization is slighted, the chief glory of Methodism will have departed.

Nor should it be forgotten that spirituality and liberality stand in vital relation to each other. It is like putting the car before the horse to attempt to raise money for benevolent objects without first striving faithfully to revive and promote vital religion among the people. A backslidden or sleepy church is almost certain to be an illiberal one. Pride and self-interest may induce the payment of the pastor's salary and the beautifying of the house of worship, but nothing short of the love of God and man will prompt to self-denial and free-flowing contributions to the great benevolent enterprises of the church. Nothing so promotes generosity as the grace of God in the heart. Hence, when a church is aflame with revival power, it is seldom difficult to raise money from it for any worthy object. When believers are fully consecrated to God and in the enjoyment of religion, there is then no holding back of a "part of the price," and their purses readily fly open in response to appeals for the advancement of God's kingdom. Consecration and benevolence ever go hand in hand.

Hence, the best way to induce church members to contribute liberally to the support of its institutions and its benevolent enterprises is, first, to get them soundly converted, and then keep them in that blessed state of grace. Believers whose love has grown cold, or who never had much love to start with, may contribute to the Lord's cause sparingly and spasmodically, especially under the influence of persistent personal solicitation; but scarcely any will contribute according to ability unless prompted thereto by fervent piety. Collecting money for great benevolent enterprises from unconverted or backslidden church members is usually an up-hill business, and requires no little grit, as well as grace, on the part of the collector. If, however, Methodists can be made, as they once were, "Christians in earnest," then they will become "cheerful givers" to every good cause.

A sweeping revival in every charge would mean the speedy success of our educational and missionary plans during this season of preparation for the dawn of the new century. Let us, by the help of God, do our utmost to leaven every church in Southern Methodism this year with the power of godliness, so that we shall have a membership fully dedicated to God, baptized with the Holy Spirit, and awake to every divine call to "go forward." Let there be earnest prayer and united effort for the deepening of the spiritual life of our people.

The editor of Zion's Herald forcefully says: "Faith, feeling and finance have very close connections. If all of them can be magnified and multiplied, as they should be during the next two years, then truly will the century close in a blaze of glory."

A MISAPPREHENSION.

In order to correct a misapprehension, we will state that in our "Honor Roll" we do not give the names of all brethren who send in new subscriptions each week, but only the names of those not previously mentioned. A number of brethren have sent in new subscriptions every week since our special offer was made; yet their names have appeared in the "Honor Roll" only once. It would take a great deal of space to repeat week after week the names of all our brethren who are working for the ADVOCATE.

WHAT SUBSCRIBERS SAY.

The following are a few extracts from letters recently received from subscribers. They are samples of the tone of a large number.

"The dear old ADVOCATE gets better all the time." "I have been taking the ADVOCATE for twenty-five years, and I enjoy it now more than I ever did." "The ADVOCATE is a great help to me in my religious life." "Your editorial on 'Spiritual Expansion' was superb." "I have read the ADVOCATE many years. It was never better than under your able editorship."

A NEW BOOK.

THE QUEEN OF THE SOUTH. A Drama by Miss Mary V. Duval, Sardis, Miss. The Citizen Print Pulaski, Tenn.

The above-named work is a pamphlet of 24 pages. The author is widely known both as a teacher and as the author of a History of Mississippi. The play was written for representation before an annual reunion of the Confederate Veterans of Tennessee at Pulaski, Tenn., in October, '98, and with no thought of publication. Its representation, however, aroused such enthusiasm from the veterans that they asked for its publication and recommended that its sentiments be embodied in a text book for use in Southern schools. The salient characteristic of each of the States of the Southern Confederacy are presented in a very striking and forceful way. Its tone is praiseworthy throughout. We predict for it an extensive circulation. It can be had of the author at Pulaski, Tenn., at the following prices: Single copy, 25 cents; one dozen copies, $2.50

LITERARY NOTES.

BY W. F. H.

We are in receipt of an illustrated pamphlet entitled, "Ceylon a Key to India," published by the American Board, Boston, Mass. This pamphlet is a new departure in missionary literature, and is the first of a series of twenty, each one of which will describe and illustrate one mission of the American Board.

The Gentlewoman, for March, gives views of the Cornelius Vanderbilt palace on Fifth avenue, New York. A new serial written shortly before her death by Mrs. Lynn Linton begins in this issue, which contains the concluding chapters of Julian Hawthorne's latest romance, "Forgive Us Our Debts." A new department, "The Comedy Corner," relieves the seriousness of such study departments as those connected with "The Kindergarten," which are unquestionably of real interest to every American mother, with "The Art of Making a Dress," which, it is needless to say, also interests all women readers.

TO LOUISIANA LEAGUERS.

The Louisiana State League Conference at Alexandria, last year, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That this Conference request the delegates to the Conference of '99 to come prepared to render statistical reports, in order that the Conference may ascertain which is the banner League of the State—the winning League to hold the banner until the next Conference."

Let the Leaguers throughout the State take notice.

L. ADA BLACK,
Sec. La. State League.

Mr. W. C. Everett, who will be in charge of the branch Publishing House at Dallas, Tex., is a man in every way well qualified for the place. His long and thorough business training will prove a fine preparation for the duties of his new position, and his devotion to the church will also help to give him success. Young, strong, consecrated, he is bound to do good service for the church in that broad field. It will not be necessary for the Texans to take him on probation. He has already been tried and found entirely worthy.

Whatever else you may skip in this issue, do not fail to read our offer, "The ADVOCATE for One Year Free."

A SUGGESTION

TO THE EXAMINING COMMITTEES OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRETHREN: The Nashville Christian Advocate heartily commends the proposed Summer Institute for the instruction of undergraduates and candidates for admission on trial, to be held by the examining committees of the Tennessee Conference next June, at Vanderbilt University. The design of the Institute is not for the purpose of examining the undergradnates and candidates, but to assist them in preparation for the examination at Conference.

Let some central point, like Jackson, be selected, easy of access, where board could be obtained for one dollar per day, where examiners and students can associate together for a week.

Let the date for holding the Institute be fixed at such a time that, after giving due notice, the various candidates shall have sufficient time to give their respective books at least one careful reading. Thus they will be familiar to some extent with the subject-matter, and will be able to indicate what they do not understand.

For instance: the writer examines on Tigert's Logic. In previous examinations it has been customary to omit all exercises in Mediate Inference, on account of the difficulty they offer to minds untrained to habits and methods of study. Such omission emasculates the science. As well examine on grammar and omit all exercises in parsing and the analysis of sentences. These so-called difficulties are not to be slurred over, but are to be mastered by patient, persistent study. The lawyer well knows the value of a practical knowledge of logic. Surely the preacher, whose business it is "to persuade men" to forsake evil and follow righteousness, ought to cultivate an acquaintance with a science so indispensable to forensic skill.

All such difficulties would be removed by the plan indicated, which, if adopted, would at once give an impetus to preparatory study. Both the examiners and those to be examined would be brought into sympathetic touch with each other, and the latter would return to their homes with definite ideas of what is expected of them at Conference.

The writer would be pleased to hear from the brethren at their earliest convenience, in order that an organized mode of procedure may be adopted. Fraternally,

C. F. EMERY.

Edwards, Miss., March 15, 1899.

We most heartily endorse Bro. Emery's suggestion. We believe that such an Institute would prove of incalculable service to many of our undergradnates. Only one difficulty suggests itself, viz.: the expense. But this can, doubtless, be overcome. Some plan can be devised for defraying the traveling expenses of both the undergradnates and the instructors.

"THE BOOK OPENED."

It is an invaluable book to the man of limited education, giving in small compass exactly the information needed. It is of great value to the busy man, enabling him to reap the labors of the wisest and best scholars in a few moments, and read with understanding all that part of Scripture which deals with the social customs of Bible times. It ought to be in the hands of every Sunday-school teacher and every Bible student. I have read the book with profit, and shall keep it close to my Bible for ready reference. JOHN W. CHAMBERS.

TRY IT.

We would like to send to every preacher who wishes to work for the ADVOCATE a sample copy of our Combination Bible to be used in canvassing. It can be returned at our expense, if not disposed of.

INFECTION THROUGH NORTH ATLANTIC PORTS.

The President of the State Board of Health has addressed to the health boards of all Atlantic ports notes, asking that all persons and baggage arriving from West Indian and other places subject to yellow fever, and bound for destinations in the Southern States, shall be properly disinfected before being allowed to leave the ports where they landed.

It has been demonstrated that persons from places in Cuba where yellow fever prevailed were allowed to land at New York without the slightest care as to disinfection, and in two days they were in this city. Fortunately their arrival was known, and their baggage and clothing were at once taken in charge and properly disinfected. In view of such facts, it is plain that yellow fever can be spread all over the country by persons arriving at Northern ports, where no precautions against the introduction of infection are taken, and thence traveling to interior destinations. It is earnestly hoped that some co-operation may be secured from Northern health officers; otherwise they will unwittingly spread disease in all parts of the country where it can propagate.—Picayune.

Rev. H. C. Morehead writes: "This had been one of the most difficult and trying seasons to do church work I remember to have seen. Notwithstanding the severely cold weather, the awful condition of the roads, and swollen streams, every quarterly meeting to date has been held. The pastors—a noble, self-sacrificing set of men—are all at the post of duty. Bros. Calloway and Gore have been much hindered by sickness, as well as bad weather, etc., in their work. With the blessings of Him who has promised to be with us always, even to the end, we expect success."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

"ALL FOR CHRIST."

REV. THOMAS B. CLIFFORD, Jackson, La., EDITOR.

The Epworth League Union of New Orleans met in monthly session Tuesday evening, March 14, in Felicity Street Church.

Engagements in revival services in another part of the city precluded the possibility of our presence on this occasion.

The meeting was both pleasant and profitable to those in attendance, and we herewith publish account as it appeared in the Times-Democrat, of March 15:

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

MATTERS PERTAINING TO THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE CONSIDERED.

"The Epworth Leaguers of this city, as well as those in the towns of the State, and particularly along the line of the Southern Pacific railroad, are growing more enthusiastic daily over their Annual Conference, which is to be held in Crowley, April 20-23. The Union Epworth League, of New Orleans, met last night at their regular monthly reunion, in Felicity Street Church, where the State Conference was the principal topic of the evening. The Southern Pacific railroad has reduced the fare from every point along its road to Crowley to just one fare for the round trip, which will naturally increase the attendance. The fare to Crowley and back from New Orleans for the Conference will be just $5."

"State President H. H. Ahrens, in stating these facts last night, said further that this was the biggest reduction that road had ever made for a religious convention. He reported from Crowley that the town was preparing a royal welcome for the convention; will entertain everybody that comes, and will provide one of the best programmes ever had. The printed programme is not yet ready for publication, but it is understood that there are to be a number of the 'big guns' of Southern Methodism there, and music is to be furnished by a trained choir of fifty voices. A special coach-load is looked for from New Orleans. President Ahrens is advertising the Conference all over the State, and is in correspondence with other railroads with reference to a reduction of rates on their part."

"The result of all this talking up of the Conference was that the Union elected two special delegates to represent their body—Rev. P. H. Fontaine and Miss Fanny B. Patterson."

"The other matters that came up before the Union were comparatively small ones. There were the usual monthly reports from the ten different Leagues in the Union, and the reports from the secretary and the treasurer."

"President George Parker wants the Leaguers to remember that their mission is located at No. 2509 Tulane avenue, and is in need of their presence and financial assistance."

"By action of the Union the office of Union editor of the Epworth League column in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE was abolished, as the State editor is able to do all the work."

[Let not the Leaguers forget that we need their help. Send in your reports.—EDITOR.]

"The meeting ended with a very entertaining programme and the serving of refreshments. Among those whose talents added to the evening's enjoyment were Messrs. G. S. Brown, R. F. Harrell, Emerson Bentley, Louis Connce and Rev. J. F. Foster, in a sacred song; little Masters Guy and Beverley Brown, in a missionary song; Miss Willie Seymour, in a recitation; Rev. Thos. W. Carter, with an account of his trip through Europe; by Miss Meyer, with a recitation."

The Leaguers in Mississippi are stirring themselves in arranging for their State Conference, to be held in West Point, June 22-25.

We gladly publish a piece contributed by our fair friend, Miss Vio Thompson, anent this coming Conference.

Intelligent and enthusiastic League workers have been secured for the occasion. We trust the Mississippi League will appreciate these arrangements in their behalf and attend en masse.

We hope soon to be able to give details as to program now being planned for the Louisiana State League Conference, to be held in Crowley, La., April 20-23.

MISSISSIPPI STATE LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

At a recent meeting of our State League Executive Committee the program for our State Conference at West Point was arranged, and the date changed to June 22-25. Acting upon the suggestion received from the Georgia State League Cabinet, it was decided to omit the customary addresses of welcome, etc., and, instead, open with a consecration service, thereby giving out at the beginning the key-note to the entire Conference. We want this meeting to be an occasion for an outpouring of God's Spirit—a baptism of power from on high—and request that the Leaguers throughout the State pray earnestly to this end. The general topic for the Conference will be, "Twentieth-Century Methodism," with these sub-divisions: 1. "Its Spirituality," 2. "Its Missionary Impulse," and, 3. "Its Educational Feature." It is our purpose to secure the very best speakers possible for this occasion, and I'm confident that our Leaguers will feel that the success of the Conference will be safe in the hands of those already secured, namely: Bishop C. B. Galloway, Dr. H. M. DuBose, and Bro. Joe Ramsey, State League organizer for Tennessee. Bro. Ramsey will make an itinerary in our State prior to the Conference, beginning June 4. We are sure to be greatly benefited by his work among us, and as soon as his itinerary is arranged, I'll ask for the publication of the same for the benefit of the Leaguers.

Aside from the discussion of the subjects already named, we have arranged for a School of Methods, in which we hope to have the most successful workers in our State give their plans of work in the different departments. In accordance with a resolution passed at our last State Conference, we are endeavoring to have the young Leaguers take part in this School of Methods. The number to be used from each district has been apportioned according to the League membership of same. We hope to make this work instructive and practical, and request every Leaguer to have a note-book and pencil, so as to carry away such instruction as will manifest itself in practical working power.

Another helpful feature of the occasion will be the singing, which we hope to have under the direction of Mr. W. A. Hemphill. Realizing that in the world's history, both sacred and secular, no factor has played a more important part than music, and that an outpouring of God's Spirit upon any place and people is always accompanied by glad and joyous outbursts of song, we feel that nothing will add so much to our Conference as to place a talented and consecrated man in charge of the music. Hence we hope to have Mr. Hemphill with us.

We request that each and every person in our State interested in this great young people's movement begin at once to talk, work and pray for our fifth State League Conference.

The above-named work has had a sale of nearly six thousand. From the many scores of highly commendatory notices that have appeared in the church papers, we present the following:

"We hope it will be read by every woman in the church."—Florida Advocate.

"It is the best thesaurus of facts concerning womanhood with which we are acquainted. The author has evidently given painstaking thought and care to the preparation of this volume. After showing the degraded condition of woman under the highest pagan civilizations, he demonstrates that it was Christianity that began to raise her to higher levels, and that since the Reformation the good work has been going forward. We wish thousands of women to read this excellent volume."—Dr. C. F. Deems.

The price is $1, and we will send it postpaid on receipt of that sum. But to that select class who subscribe for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE we make the following special offer: Pay your subscription one full year in advance, and send us sixty cents additional, and we will send you the book postpaid.

THE BOOK OPENED;

OR, AN ANALYSIS OF THE BIBLE

BY ALFORD NEVIN, D. D.

PRICE, $1.50.

This is indeed a most valuable work, written especially for Sabbath-school and Bible class teachers, scholars, and all who feel the need, as it is believed many do, of a convenient and comprehensive volume to which they can at any time turn for information to aid them in understanding and defending the Word of God. It has been prepared to serve in this direction as a manual, to which recourse can be had with confidence and comfort, for explanations which might be found elsewhere, but only after research involving great expenditure of time and means. The author is a man of learning and talent, and has written an eloquent volume. All who read the book will be delighted with it. Read what is said of it by the religious press of the country.

"The work is one of universal merit and contains a vast amount of valuable information."—American Christian Review.

"It is a universal compendium in which may be found explanations of many things and much information."—The Church Union, New York City.

This most excellent book we will send, postpaid, for $1 to any subscriber who will pay his subscription one full year in advance, viz., to March, 1900. To non-subscribers we will send it at the publisher's price—$1.50. Address

Parsnip Complexion.

A majority of the ills afflicting people to-day can be traced to kidney trouble. It pervades all classes of society, in all climates, regardless of age, sex, or condition.

The sallow, colorless-looking people you often meet are afflicted with "kidney complexion." Their kidneys are turning to a parsnip color, so is their complexion. They may suffer from indigestion, bloating, sleeplessness, uric acid, gravel, dropsy, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, or irregular heart. You may depend upon it, the cause is weak, unhealthy kidneys.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same remedy. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, will build up and strengthen weak and unhealthy kidneys, purify the diseased, kidney-poisoned blood, clear the complexion, and soon help the sufferer to better health.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, such as weak kidneys, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, rheumatism and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble. It is sold by druggists, in fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Where origin is known credit is given.

"When papa was a little boy
You really couldn't find,
In all the State of Washington
A child so quick to mind.
His mother never called but once,
And pa was always there,
He never made the baby cry
Or pulled his sister's hair.

"He never slid down banisters,
Or made the slightest noise,
And never in his life was known
To fight with other boys.
He always studied hard at school,
And got his lessons right;
And chopping wood and milking cows
Were papa's chief delight.

"He always rose at six o'clock
And went to bed at eight,
And never lay abed till noon,
And never sat up late.
He finished Latin, French and Greek
When he was ten years old,
And knew the Spanish alphabet
As soon as he was told.

"He never grumbled when he had
To do the evening chores,
And ne'er in all his life forgot
To shut the stable doors;
He never, never thought of play
Until his work was done;
He labored hard from break of day,
Until the set of sun.

"He never scraped his muddy shoes
Upon the parlor floor,
And never answered back his ma,
And never banged the door;
But truly I could never see,'
Said little Dick Malloy,
'How he could never do those things,
And really be a boy.'"

HUNGRY FOR A HANDSHAKE.

He was sitting in a park. He looked downhearted and despondent. His clothes were dusty, but not ragged. There was a look of despair on his boyish face, almost a look of desperation. Some one, noticing his despondent look, sat down by him, saying, "I judge you are a stranger in the city; I want to shake hands with you."

Only a word, you see, but a bright look came into the young man's face, and he eagerly held out his hand. "O," he said, "I am so hungry for a handshake. I left my home about a week ago with the prayers and best wishes of my friends. Times were hard, and it seemed necessary for me to go into the world to make a living for myself. I supposed there was lots of work for me in this city, but I don't think there is anything, and I am discouraged." He bit his lip hard as he said this, and his mouth quivered. "I will try again," he went on to say, "since some one cares enough for me to shake hands with me."

That handshake was the beginning of his success. Downhearted and discouraged before, feeling that there was no one who cared for him in a great city, his heart was made glad by that simple thing, a handshake, and he took courage and soon found employment.

There are people on every side of us, perhaps not in these exact circumstances, but who are discouraged and depressed, who need a handshake, a friendly word, a kindly interest. As servants of that Christ who went about doing good, shall we give it?—Union Gospel News.

THE MIND MUST BE PURE.

The youth who would succeed must keep his mind pure. God and the successful man know how necessary this is. Thoughts of envy and unrighteous scheming, and lust, and to be dreaded even more than all others, thoughts of impurity, must be avoided. An impure thought is like a piece of sponge crushed tightly in the hand, which, when the pressure is relieved, expands to a size many times larger than the hand itself. It is a deadly poisonous weed, easiest to spring up and hardest to root out. Without a pure life there can be no real success.

How many young men, in moments of despondency and defeat, have not stopped and asked themselves: "Is the struggle worth while, after all?" But in every true man is planted an ambition, a consuming fire that will not let him rest where he is, but goads him on to better and higher things. His spirit cries out: "Excelsior!" In the morning he can hardly keep from crying aloud in the street his absorbing hope and ambition. He is on fire with his thought and his purpose. "Is it worth the while?" The mind is exhausted or diseased that asks it. It is worth the while and the effort. It is life itself. It is what we live for; and, if a man fall short of always doing his duty, and making the best possible man of himself, he is a failure, and no other failure is so great.—Success.

NAPOLEON LOST THE BATTLE OF LEIPSIC because of a fit of indigestion. One dose of DICKS' MUL-EN-OL would have given him instant relief, and the fate of the kingdoms of Europe been decided differently. It is really marvelous how quickly a colicky pain will vanish when a teaspoonful of Mul-en-ol in a wineglass of hot water is taken. Try it; you will never suffer from colic.

WHY THE SERMON WAS DULL.

"The dullest sermon I ever listened to!" exclaimed Sam, petulantly, as he came home from church.

"Yes," replied grandpa, a twinkle in his eye, "I thought so myself."

"Did you, grandpa?" exclaimed Sam, glad to have some one stand by him.

"I mean to say I thought you thought so," replied his grandpa. "I enjoyed it because my appetite was whetted for it before I went to church. While the minister was preaching I noticed it was just the other way with you."

"Just the other way, how?" Sam demanded.

"Why, before you went," answered grandpa, "instead of sharpening your appetite for the sermon, you dulled it by reading the trashy paper. Then instead of sitting straight up and looking at the minister while he preached, as though you wanted to catch every word he said and every expression of his face, you lounged down in your seat and turned half way around. I never knew anybody who could hear a sermon right from the side of his head. Then you let your eyes rove about the church and out of the window. That dulled the sense. You dulled your ears by listening to a dog that was barking, and the milkman's bell, and the train puffing into the station. You dulled your mind and soul by thinking you were a terribly abused boy for having to go to church and stay through the sermon, and so you made yourself a dull listener. And I never knew it to fail in my life that a dull listener made a dull sermon."—Morning Guide.

OLD-SCHOOL MANNERS.

When one speaks of a lady or a gentleman of the old school, the idea conveyed is at once that of somebody stately, courteous, and somewhat formal. One can not conceive of a person distinguished by the gentle breeding of the old school as flying to and fro in a hurry; as rushing about over the affairs of the day, fussy, fidgety, or impatient because these are not going as they should; as interrupting conversation, as arriving too late to keep an appointment, or as in any small way violating the rules of politeness. It is characteristic of old-school courtesy that it has leisure to be considerate, and perhaps it would be well for us who belong to a newer time to return to some of the beautiful observances which were once enstomary among highly-civilized people.

The curt phraseology of the day has in a measure dropped even the beautiful words, lady and gentleman, substituting man and woman in very clumsy and awkward connections. Man as the name of the species, woman as its feminine, are appropriate terms, and there are certain situations in which it is right to speak of men and women. But when we are alluding to people in society, people who have certain relations to sustain to one another, we should say lady and gentleman, and it is not too much to exact of these the refinement, the good taste, and the freedom from hurry which are distinguished marks of those who have been brought up in a polite school.—Christian Intelligencer.

"The old oaken bucket, moss-covered bucket that swings in the well," laden with cool, refreshing, thirst-quenching drink, is not more grateful to parched throats than a few drops of delicious MARSDEN'S PECTORAL BALM to relieve a cold which has settled in the throat and chest. It is a sure cure.

SUGGESTIONS TO MOTHERS.

Children should be accustomed as soon as possible to sleep in a dark room. Unless they have learned to be afraid of it, the darkness is soothing to the nerves, and the rest is more profound and refreshing than when there is the unconscious stimulation of light. It is particularly desirable for children of a nervous temperament that light should be excluded, yet it is most often the nervous, sensitive child whose imagination has been filled with fears of the shapes the dark may hide. Silly tales told by cruel servants or mischievous brothers, thoughtless speeches of the elders, stories half understood and brooded over, make the kindly darkness a terror to many an unfortunate child. The mother should try by every means in her power to remove these fears. The child who is subject to them should never be forced to stay alone in the dark. Much gentle persuasion and reasoning appeals to common sense, and the example of older persons will be necessary before they are overcome, but patience will conquer them at last.—American.
